[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Hollywood remains the mecca of those who seek fame and fortune—particularly fortune—according to a list of 1939 salaries released tonight by the treasury department.

Movie stars and moguls again have topped the tycoons of industry in getting the biggest pay checks. Louis B. Mayer, production director for Loew's, Inc., motion picture corporation, is still the highest salaried individual in the United States. He received $688,371 in 1939 and $697,048 in 1940.

Mayer's salary was not included in the treasury list, but was previously reported to the Securities and Exchange commission, and none of those getting more than $75,000, as publicized tonight by the treasury, could match Mayer's stipend.

Cooper Collects $482,820.

The No. 2 money man of 1939 was Film Actor Gary Cooper, tall, lanky star from Montana, who is receiving plaudits for his portrayal of "Sergeant York," Cooper received total pay of $482,820.47 in 1939, of which $295,106.92 was from Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., and $187,713.55 from Paramount Pictures.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] yesterday charged "Sergeant York" was one of the new propaganda films after he and Senator Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] introduced a resolution calling for a senate investigation of war propaganda in the movies and on the radio.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation had 34 salaries in excess of $75,000, the minimum required by law to be reported. Warner Brothers had 26 salaries above this level, RKO Radio Pictures 15, and Paramount 29. Among the industrial corporations General Motors corporation was required to report 30 salaries. William S. Knudsen, as president, received $372,366.25. E. I. du Pont de Nemours reported 17, the highest, $150,260, going to Lammot du Pont, president.

Business Executive Third.

After Mayer and Cooper of filmland came Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines corporation with 1939 compensation of $422,560.17, or $10,880 less than he received in 1938. George W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco company, ranked fourth at $420,299.58. He received $331,348 in 1938. F. A. Countway, president of Lever Brothers company, soap manufacturers, who ranked next to Mayer in 1938, placed fifth with pay of $383,210.92, compared with $469,713 a year earlier.

Many highly paid business executives are now in the government service at $1 a year. But two of them are not getting even that much. They are Knudsen, who left General Motors to act as director general of the Office of Production Management, and Edward R. Stettinius Jr., priorities director of OPM, who received $105,600 as chairman of the United States Steel corporation. They receive only expenses.

Not All Are Reported.

Not all of the salaries have been reported yet, so some of the standings may be changed by later reports. This may be true particularly in the movie colony, because executives of Loew's—which controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Columbia, and Universal Pictures—are among those missing.

Some of the big movie salaries reported tonight included: James Cagney, $368,333.33; Edward G. Robinson, $255,000; Bing Crosby, $250,000; Charley Chaplin, $152,000; Jack Benny, $127,500; Madeline Carroll, $127,166.67; Ronald Colman, $194.747.04; Bob Hope, $77,847.17; Fred MacMurray, $240,333.33; Carole Lombard, $211,111.08; Ginger Rogers, $219,500.12; Sonja Henie, $249,166.67; Shirley Temple, $116,570.50 and Errol Flynn, $213,333.33.

Darryl F. Zanuck, the wonder boy of Hollywood, pulled down $255,000 as production head of Twentieth Century-Fox. H. B. Wallis, production chief at Warner Brothers received $265,000 in 1939.

Of course some of the wealthiest men in the United States are not even listed in the treasury salary reports which cover only compensation from corporations for personal services.

[A complete list of salaries of $100,000 or more reported by the treasury appears on page 10, part 2.]

Russians Push Counter Drives Near Smolensk

Two more German divisions were reported in Moscow's war communique today to have been cut to pieces in heavy counterattacks on the central front around Smolensk, 230 miles southwest of Moscow, bringing to six the number claimed destroyed in recent days. One of the routs was accomplished after a struggle which lasted four days, it was said.

German casualties on the eastern front were said by a soviet spokesman to total more than 1,500,000 men. He also declared that the Nazi drives had bogged down.

Predictions were made in Berlin that German troops soon would blast open the road leading to Moscow. A Nazi communique reported "another great destructive battle" in the Ukraine, between Kiev, Russia's third city, and Odessa, chief Black sea port.

ROOSEVELT PLEA FOR REVISED TAX BILL IS REJECTED

Committee Stands by Levies Voted.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Chairman Doughton.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—The house ways and means committee today rejected 11th hour proposals by President Roosevelt for sweeping changes in the big new tax bill, which is scheduled for house passage on Monday.

The President had asked for an increase in the taxes on corporations and for a broadening of the income tax base by reduction of personal exemptions. He also proposed that the mandatory joint return for married couples, which has aroused a storm of opposition, be cut out of the legislation.

It was estimated in informed quarters that elimination of the joint return section would mean a difference of about $25,000 in the amount of income taxes that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be required to pay under the pending bill.

Wife's Salary Exceeds His Own.

Mrs. Roosevelt's salary, it is said, consistently has ranged above the $75,000 figure her husband receives a President of the United States. In some years it reportedly has passed the $100,000 mark. The money has come to her as author, lecturer, column conductor, and radio commentator. Some years ago she attempted to add to her qualifications for radio contracts by taking voice culture.

Mr. Roosevelt's income is believed, in White House circles, to be made up chiefly of his salary as chief executive. Under the terms of his father's will, his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, has retained control of the bulk of the family wealth.

The $25,000 figure was quoted as the difference between sums the President and Mrs. Roosevelt would pay if they filed separate income tax returns, and the greater amount they will have to pay if forced to add their incomes together and file jointly.

Tax Information Secreted.

However, as tax information on the Roosevelts is regarded as extremely confidential and is kept stored in a special safe in the internal revenue bureau, exact figures on the possible saving to the President thru his own proposal are not obtainable. The amounts would depend largely on the sums deducted for charity and allowable expenses.

Informed observers also noted that the wives of three of the four Roosevelt sons undoubtedly have their own private incomes, which would be affected by the joint return section. They are Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt Jr., the former Ethel du Pont; Mrs. El-

DUKE OF KENT TO JOIN F. D. R. AT HOME AND DINE IN WHITE HOUSE

Duke of Kent.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 [Special].—The duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George VI. of England, will arrive at Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 23 to be the guest of President Roosevelt, the White House announced today. The duke's name is the latest to be added to the long list of royal personages who have been entertained at the ancestral acres of the Roosevelt family. Many others have been White House guests.

The duke arrived Tuesday in Ottawa, Ont., to pay his respects to the Canadian dominion government after a flight across the North Atlantic from England.

The White House said the duke would remain at Hyde Park over the Aug. 23 week-end and would return to Washington with President Roosevelt. The duke will fly from Washington to Norfolk, Va., Aug. 25 to inspect naval facilities there and will return that night to dine with the President at the White House.

MINISTER SAYS DAHL'S SAVIOR WAS NOT WIFE

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York News.]

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 2.—Edith Rogers Dahl, the platinum blonde "wife" whose pleas and photograph saved Harold E. [Whitey] Dahl, American flyer, from execution by the Franco forces during the Civil war in Spain, was never Mrs. Dahl at all, according to the Rev. W. J. Walker of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here. He said today that he married Dahl and Eleanor Roblin Bone on July 26, and added:

"According to the information given me by Dahl and shown on the marriage certificate, he was not previously married."

Dahl has recently been serving as aviation instructor to royal air force cadets in Canada.

In 1937, while flying for the Loyalists [Republicans] in Spain, Dahl was forced to bail out over Franco lines. Captured and sentenced to death, he was saved when Generalissimo Francisco Franco saw a revealing photograph of Edith Rogers, who sent it and represented herself as Dahl's wife. Franco yielded to her plea for clemency. Dahl was freed last year and permitted to return to the United States.

CHASES BUS, KILLS WIFE AND DRIVER, SHOOTS 4, SELF

Akron, O., Aug. 2 (AP).—Edward Hudson, 42 years old, tonight overtook a bus bearing his estranged wife, Loretta, 40; shot and killed her and a bus driver, then seriously wounded two other bus company employès and himself, police reported. Two passengers of the bus were hit by bullets and taken to hospitals by passing motorists.

The shooting started in the city environs, when Hudson, driving his own car, overtook the bus. Hudson's wife and Harold Klink, bus driver, were the first hit, and upon arrival at a hospital were pronounced dead.

Patrolmen who responded to a police radio call pursued Hudson as he left the scene, rammed his car and stopped it. As the officers closed in on him, they said he shouted: "I loved my wife and did not want to lose her," then shot himself.

Kazan, 85c Pup That Made $250 a Day in Movies, Dies

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—Kazan, German shepherd film star of a few years ago, died today at the home of its master, Jack King, actor and stunt man. King saw Kazan in a pound 10 years ago and paid 85 cents for the pup. As the star of "Fighting Fury" and other films the dog earned as much as $250 a day.

Rush to Beat U.S. Gas Sale Ban; British Motor Off on Holiday

Fill Tanks in East

New York, Aug. 2 [Special].—On the eve of the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. gasoline blackout of the Atlantic seaboard tomorrow night, service stations in the east did a flourishing business today. The usual chant for "five gallons" was heard less frequently as motorists ordered "fill it up."

Meanwhile, service stations made last minute preparations to meet the plan of Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, the petroleum administrator, who recommended that service stations in 16 eastern states and the district of Columbia remain closed at night as a gasoline conservation measure.

In New Jersey John Dressler, president of the Bergen County Gasoline Dealers' association, predicted that the plan would fail as station owners, facing loss of business and in economic difficulties, would reopen at night.

Oil Supply Plentiful.

Oil men are agreed that the oil supplies of the country are plentiful to meet all domestic needs. However, a shortage is said by Ickes to impend in the east because of the difficulty of moving oil here since the diversion of 50 American tankers to supply the British.

Many protests against the Ickes recommendation were heard. Station attendants reported that motorists not only were filling their gasoline tanks, but also were bringing cans to cart away a reserve.

George U. Harvey, borough president of Queens, termed the program a crackpot idea and urged residents of Queens to ignore the closing scheme.

Protest Loss of Jobs.

Walter Burke, president of the AFL Gasoline and Parking Attendants union, local 917, sent a protest to Ickes terming the plan "harsh and destructive." He estimated that 10,000 persons in New York City alone would lose their jobs if the system is continued more than a few days.

Burke said 50 unions have protested the closing as unwarranted. He added that the plan probably will not save a gallon of gasoline a week.

"If they wanted to whip up sentiment for all-out aid to Britain," said Burke, this is the wrong way to do it. Our people object—they can't see why they should lose their jobs."

A federal ruling today said gasoline could be sold in the proscribed hours to trucks and taxicabs and that stations could remain open to make repairs and to sell merchandise other than motor fuel.

Defy Stay-Home Plea

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—The British ignored en masse today an urgent government request to stay at home this week-end—the August bank holiday week-end—so that gasoline could be saved and so that railroads could be kept clear for important freight and coal traffic vital to Britain's war effort.

By the thousands they poured out of populous centers everywhere to spend today, tomorrow, and Monday in the traditional peacetime manner at country and seaside resorts, defying the government despite the possibility they might be stranded out of town.

Fear Many Won't Get Back.

A transport ministry official said many might not be able to obtain transportation back home. The rail companies, he said, are under no obligations to run return services and he added that "nothing will be allowed to hold up passage of goods."

Early editions of the Sunday newspapers scolded the outgoing holiday makers. The Sunday Express displayed, side by side, pictures of empty coal cars and packed vacation trains.

They overlooked, however, one symptom of this: The fact that stock exchange odds against the war ending in 1941 have fallen from 10 to 1 to 3 to 1 in the last three weeks.

Reports from major population centers showed that all transportation services were overtaxed. Trains to the Midlands, the south coast, and the north left in extra sections, and bus service to the country was booked to capacity weeks ago. Bristol and the west coast area was popular, and large crowds also flocked to Blackpool, Lancashire resort, and to North Wales.

Auto Traffic Is Heavy.

It was hoped that in addition to keeping the rails clear for war traffic the policy would result in a saving of gasoline—already rigidly rationed—if automobiles were left in garages for the holiday, but more than the usual number of cars streamed out over the highways in the city dwellers' exodus.

All week long the press had pushed the campaign, launched by the transport ministry, to make this week-end a "stay at home week-end."

Most hosiery and boot factories in Leicester were closed for the week-end, with thousands holding to traditional holiday plans.

Streets in Birmingham were jammed with people leaving the city. Long lines crowded bus and rail stations, and the main roads swarmed with motor cars with baggage strapped outside.

WOMEN FIGHT FOR SILK HOSE AFTER U. S. BAN

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The longest stocking run in history was reported thruout the nation yesterday. In large cities and rural towns, women went on a wild buying spree for silk hosiery in a desperate effort to lay in reserves following the government's order of Friday freezing silk production. They feared the move would lead to rationing, altho dealers said supplies are adequate.

From San Francisco to New York, retailers reported hosiery sales up 300 per cent. Individual customers purchased as much as $400 worth and saleswomen's quotas reached an all-time high as many averaged more than a dozen pair to a sale.

Storm Loop Stores.

Chicago women stormed several loop stores and lingerie shops as the doors opened yesterday morning.

By noon the customers were standing seven or eight deep around the hosiery counters, shouting and demanding to be waited on. Saleswomen stumbled over each other in an effort to serve everybody. In desperation, some women, regardless of the size, clutched at the sheer hosiery on display for advertising purposes.

Demands for four dozen pairs of hose by one customer were not unusual in Chicago. Many stores rationed their sales so that their stocks would not be depleted before the day was over. Some cut their sales to two pairs to a customer, others to three.

Nylon Hosiery Greatly in Demand.

Nylon stockings also were greatly in demand. One customer in a large department store demanded six dozen pair of nylon hose, only to be shown the last remaining pair on the shelves. While she hesitated over the purchase, another customer grabbed the stockings.

"Give me those hose," the first woman declared in a loud voice, "I was here first." With that she made a grab for the precious package and a tug-of-war began. Two men brought it to a halt and the stockings, somewhat the worse for wear, were sold to the first customer.

No Longer Fussy About Size.

Similar scenes were repeated thruout the day. The regular size, nine and a half, was at a premium by midafternoon. Women, who normally were fussy about the fit of their hose, considered themselves fortunate to get stockings several sizes too large.

A large hosiery manufacturer selling direct to consumers instructed its salesmen to limit customers to a dozen pairs each. Customers ordering silk stocking will be required to purchase in addition the equivalent amount of lisle, wool or cotton articles such as shirts and slack suits, also made by the company. This, it was explained, is to prevent a "runaway market" in silk stockings and to balance production in other materials.

She Runs Into Trouble.

Some Chicago store buyers said reluctantly that hoarding of silk hose will have its advantages for the customers. "The old idea that silk rots if kept a long time, is partly true," one buyer explained. "But the way hose are made today they can be kept for a reasonably long period without damage."

Many store customers declared they would never put a pair of lisle hose on their legs.

"I'll wear hoop skirts, first," one woman announced.

Having said her say, the woman pushed her way to the counter with such force that her legs brushed the rough edges of the wood. She looked down with dismay. She had a run in her hose.

U. S. FEELS FIRST JOLTS OF TRADE WAR ON JAPAN

Silk Mill Stoppage Hits Wide Area.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Officials scanned the nation's industrial setup tonight for indications of the threefold impact on the nation's economic life occasioned by the administration's adjustments to the European war and the crisis in the far east.

Within a few hours yesterday, President Roosevelt curbed the export of gasoline and oil, in an order aimed at Japan; halted the processing of raw silk, Japan's leading article of export, and proposed that congress grant him the power to fix the prices of commodities and services on the basis of levels existing on July 29.

The moves were so sudden that congressional circles had received little information today concerning the reactions of a stunned industry. This reaction is expected to be appraised early next week, as industry begins to measure the shock delivered by these triple jolts.

Jap Showdown Believed Near.

It is felt here that the oil embargo brings Japan to the point of a showdown on her plans in the far east, because that nation is largely dependent on the United States for the fuel of war.

Two-thirds of Japan's gasoline and oil imports have come from this country. The remaining third came from British and Dutch sources, which also have been cut off as a result of Japan's occupation of naval and air bases in French Indo-China.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox estimated that Japan has accumulated sufficient reserve stores of motor fuels and oils to keep her war machine going for 16 months, but military and naval experts agreed that such a limited reserve would not warrant the undertaking of major military operations.

175,000 Face Idleness.

Curtailment of the processing of raw silk threatened to shut down the 250 million dollar silk industry, which employs 175,000 or more workers.

This phase of the economic war against Japan threatened the United States with widespread unemployment in silk centers in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and a number of southern states.

Representatives of labor and management are to meet here Monday to discuss federal aid to the industry.

The government probably will be called upon to support silk workers and their families thru the readjustment period with WPA funds.

A plan to transfer thousands to other employment, largely in defense industries, was announced by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator. He said the bureau of employment security had instructed its regional officers to arrange for the registration by state employment services of all those whose jobs are threatened.

Qualified for Defense Jobs.

"A large proportion of workers in the silk industry," he asserted, "are women who have a high degree of manual dexterity. Such workers are well qualified for light assembly work in defense plants and for many essential jobs in the manufacture of munitions and time-fuse apparatus."

Officials tonight set aside 10 per cent of the nation's rayon yarn production and supplies for allocation among silk users affected by the closing edict.

The step is intended, according to the Office of Price Administration and Supply, to "avert complete dislocation of the silk hosiery and civilian silk weaving industry."

The order applies only to rayon yarn production dusing August and September, and during that time a special advisory committee will attempt to work out a long range program based on increases in rayon production, and consumer reaction to silk substitutes.

Proposals thus far advanced would increase the production of rayon and other synthetic silk, with federal aid, by 50 million pounds a year to make up for the 35 to 50 million pounds of raw silk processed in this country each year.

Body Blow to Japan.

The stoppage of silk processing will prove a severe blow to Japan, official sources said. This country has imported more than 100 million dollars worth of silk each year for sev-

ROOSEVELT PLEA FOR REVISED TAX BILL IS REJECTED

House Group Stands by Levies as Voted.

llott Roosevelt, the former Ruth Goggins of Fort Worth, Tex., and Mrs. John Roosevelt, the former Ann Clark of Nahant, Mass.

Ready for Final Action.

General debate on the bill, expected to yield revenue of 12,700 million dollars, including 3,529 million dollars in new revenue for rearmament, closed yesterday. Consideration of amendments is the only remaining step before final house action at its next session.

Today's committee action indicated that the measure will go thru on schedule. Mr. Roosevelt, however, will have several months while the bill is pending before the senate to press his views upon congress.

The President made his proposals for changes in the legislation in a letter to Representative Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.], chairman of the house ways and means committee. Doughton immediately called the group into executive session to consider them. The changes requested by Mr. Roosevelt were:

1. Elimination of the mandatory joint income tax return for married couples.

2. Elimination of the average earnings method for computing excess profits taxes on corporations.

3. Reduction of existing income tax exemptions of $800 for single persons and $2,000 for married couples to $750 and $1,500, respectively.

Morgenthau Backs President.

Mr. Roosevelt's five page letter to Chairman Doughton was accompanied by a memorandum from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau supporting his proposals for killing the joint returns section and revising the excess profits section.

The President said he approved of joint returns in principle, but only on condition of "granting substantial relief to earned income of husband and wife." The pending measure makes no provision for such relief, he noted.

Mr. Roosevelt, in discussing the excess profits section, asserted that "certain types of corporations may be making 20 or 30 or 50 per cent on their equity capital. But, he continued, because they happen to have made equally large profits in recent years, they are called upon to contribute no more to the "national defense" under the proposed bill than heretofore. He said that seemed to him to be clearly a discrimination in favor of these corporations.

Admits Plan Is in Disfavor.

In reference to the reduction of personal exemptions, the President said he knows that very few experts agree with him, but he still thinks that some way ought to be found by which the exemptions should be lowered. He said he is convinced that the majority of Americans want to "chip in" and would rather do it with their eyes open than by a sales tax or nuisance taxes.

Following the committee meeting, Doughton sent a firmly worded reply to the White House informing the President of the rejection of all his proposals.

"Each of the three items mentioned by you were again discussed," Doughton wrote. "Then, by decisive majorities, the committee voted to reaffirm the action previously taken with respect to each of them and instructed me to so advise you with the reasons therefor."

Penalty on Lone Earner.

Doughton explained that the committee opposed granting special earned income relief to a family in which both husband and wife earned the income, and thus penalize the family in which the husband is the sole breadwinner.

The mandatory joint return not only will remove existing inequities and close some of the most glaring income tax loopholes, Doughton said, but will result in the additional revenue which, in the judgment of the committee, could not be raised from any other source with so little hardship.

To adopt the excess profits recommendation, Doughton said bluntly, would be to punish the small corporation in favor of the heavy or overcapitalized corporation; it would "punish conservative corporation finance and reward stock watering." It would put a penalty on brains, energy and enterprise, and confirm old ventures in their monopolies, he added.

Unable to Reconcile Views.

Several members of the committee, Doughton said, favored the reduction of personal tax exemptions. However, he continued, the treasury representatives were opposed to such a step, citing the rising cost of living and the burden of hidden taxes on persons in low income groups.

Doughton was frank in expressing his surprise at the disagreement between the White House and the treasury on this question.

"I am surprised to learn that your views are antagonistic to those expressed so emphatically by the treasury, as a representative of the administration," he wrote. "The committee at times found it impossible during the course of its hearings to reconcile the testimony of different officials representing the administration.

"Nothing in this letter is intended as a defense of, or an apology for, the action which we have taken," the committee chairman's letter concluded, "but only as an explanation, so that you and the country may understand some of the reasons for our conclusions."

Under the gag rule for consideration of the bill, adopted by the house three days ago, no provision of the bill, except the joint return clause, is subject to change, unless the committee itself brings in new amendments.

Administration spokesmen admit that the joint return section, on which there will be a separate vote, may not pass. It has been assailed during the debate as un-American and as placing an undue penalty on marriage.

Government fiscal experts estimate that the joint returns will produce about 300 million dollars per year in extra revenue thru forcing married couples to lump their incomes, automatically raising many to the higher surtax brackets. About the same amount could be raised, it was said, by lowering the income tax exemptions as proposed by the President.

It was the second time Mr. Roosevelt has asked the committee to strike out the average earnings plan. Originally the treasury department's recommendation was rejected in committee by a vote of 20 to 4. Then Mr. Roosevelt summoned Chairman Doughton to the White House for a conference on the matter, following which the committee took it up again and turned thumbs down, 20 to 5.

After Wedding in Lake Forest

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keith outside the Church of the Holy Spirit, where they were married yesterday. She is the former Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed.

No Guests Invited

BY JUDITH CASS.

Yesterday's most interesting wedding was also the smallest, for there were no guests at the marriage of Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed and Stanley Keith at 11 a. m. in the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest.

Mrs. Reed, grandmother of two, wore a becoming and stunning frock of blue printed silk with yellow flecks in it and a hat of blue with tiny yellow mimosa trimming it. Her flowers were white orchids, worn in a corsage. Mr. Keith, who also has grandchildren, and his bride will go to the Canadian Rockies for a month. Upon their return they will be at at home in her Lake Forest residence. Mr. Keith also has a Lake Forest home.

Miss Anne Dinsdale Harding, daughter of Mrs. Charles F. Harding Jr., of Winnetka, and Dr. Alexander Spoehr were married at 5 p. m. yesterday in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. Against her white brocade bridal gown, the bride held a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis.

STEINWAY

In a way, it's not unusual that the Steinway should command top attention at a national meeting of music men . . . it's been doing just that for years. But in other respects it would seem unusual, for the Steinway had no "surprises"—nothing startlingly new to "excite the entire music profession." Steinway doesn't build pianos on the basis of yearly models. Instead, Steinway is constantly striving to improve the best . . . to maintain the high standards of quality set up by Henry E. Steinway, the Founder, and to add the advantages of modern science. Because the world's great musicians have found the Steinway to be well-nigh perfect, it has aptly been nicknamed "The Instrument of the Immortals." You can have The Instrument of the Immortals in your home for just a very small amount down, and the balance in conveniently budgeted terms. Steinway Grands priced from $985; Steinway Verticals from $495.

WEBER RESIGNS POST IN OPERA; TWO VERSIONS

Board Chairman Tells of Plans for Season.

Henry Weber sent a telegram yesterday to Robert Hall McCormick, chairman of the board of trustees of the Chicago Opera company, announcing he was resigning as general director of the organization.

Mr. McCormick said he had received the communication, but declared that Mr. Weber had never been offered the position of general director for next fall's season.

The Weber telegram read: "After giving the matter careful consideration, I have decided to submit to you my resignation as general director of the Chicago Opera company. Conditions and circumstances are such that I feel the high excellence maintained last year cannot be repeated. The public expects me to match the work of last season, but under the restrictions imposed this will be impossible. Therefore there is no alternative but to sever my connection. Kind personal regards."

Chicago Demands Finest.

Later Mr. Weber added to his statement, as follows:

"Chicago and the midwest want and deserve the very finest in grand opera performance, comparable to that given by the Metropolitan and San Francisco Opera companies.

"Last season's performance admittedly came up to such standards, and by the close of the season our confidence was regained. I cannot conscientiously enter another season and disappoint the discriminating audience which the Chicago opera has attracted."

McCormick's Statement.

Mr. McCormick, after asserting the general director's office had not been offered to Mr. Weber, added:

"This position was given to Mr. Fortune Gallo by vote of the company's board of trustees on April 30 last. Having not been engaged as general director or for any other position, Mr. Weber has no responsibility to the public for the coming opera season.

"Mr. Gallo is preparing a season of the highest excellence, and has already secured leading artists of the Metropolitan opera, who appeared in the Chicago opera last season. Mr. Weber is held in the highest regard by the trustees and we regret he will not be with us."

The season is scheduled to open Nov. 8 and run thru five weeks.

HOGAN ACCEPTS BID TO RUN FOR N. Y. PROSECUTOR

Frank Hogan.

New York, Aug. 2 [Special].—Frank Hogan, 39 years old, administrative assistant to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, named yesterday by Tammany hall as its choice for the New York county prosecutor's job, today announced his acceptance.

Hogan said Dewey had given his "complete consent and approval to my acceptance." Dewey himself has declined to be a candidate for reelection, tho assured of both the Republican and fusion nominations.

Tammany's action was regarded in many quarters as a blow to the mayoralty candidacy of Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who is seeking a third term.

Hogan's acceptance, it was pointed out, would take the Tammany issue out of the campaign, since the assistant district attorney had been selected by Dewey as one of four assistants qualified to handle the job.

RED CROSS TO ASK BLOOD GIFTS FOR ARMED SERVICES

James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, said yesterday that volunteer blood donors will be sought within the next few weeks to supply blood for the use of the army and the navy. The plan to be adopted here, Forgan said, would be similar to that in New York, where 10,000 persons contributed about a pint of blood each recently.

The blood is reduced in laboratories to dry plasma which may be stored indefinitely and which may be used without regard to type in making emergency transfusions. Some blood in this form has already been sent to Britain, Forgan said.

Several other midwest and far west cities will be canvassed for donors. Among them are Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis, Cleveland, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, and Pittsburgh. It is estimated 200,000 donors will be needed to meet the requirements of the fighting forces.

REPORT TOMMY, 3, LOST AT ZOO, IS IDENTIFIED

Tommy, 3 years old, who was found wandering in the Brookfield zoo three weeks ago today, was reported last night to have been identified as the child of a Detroit couple and to have been reunited with his mother. Officials of the zoo started a search for the boy's parents after he was found there July 13. Later the Juvenile court took custody of Tommy and undertook to reunite him with his parents.

Mrs. Lester Milne, 1232 West Grand boulevard, Detroit, seeing a picture of Tommy in a newspaper, said he appeared to be the boy who had been living with the family downstairs—the family of Frank Turowski. She said the child had been taken from the Turowski home some three weeks ago by his father, Walter Argo, a truck driver. Members of the Turowski family said the picture resembled Tommy Argo.

The child was taken from the Juvenile detention home by Minnie Jones, an officer of the Juvenile court, yesterday afternoon simultaneously with a report that a Mrs. Lillian Argo of Detroit had identified Tommy as her son.

Ban Photos from Ferries in New York City Harbor

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The department of docks tonight forbade amateur cameramen from taking pictures from Staten Island ferries, which ply across the main ship channel of New York harbor. Commissioner John McKenzie said the indiscriminate use of cameras might cause some embarrassment in an area where convoys are being made up, adding "the wide range of seafaring activities in the area traversed by the ferries led us to take this precaution."

GERMAN TECHNICIANS EXPELLED FROM IRAN ARRIVE IN TURKEY

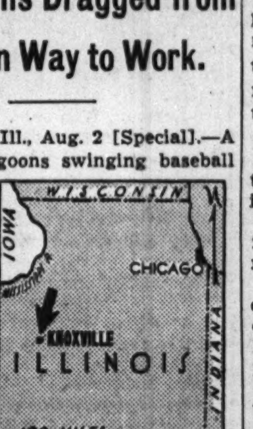
ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 2.—The advance guard of 60 German technical experts, forced to leave Iran [Persia] by the expiration of their residence permits, arrived today in Ankara and Istanbul. The remainder of the German party is expected in Turkey next week. Russian sources claim there are nearly 3,000 Germans in Iran.

Turkish authorities were reported to have advised the Germans that they would not be permitted to remain in this country while awaiting the possible revision of the Iranian attitude toward German visitors.

The Spanish minister to Ankara, the Marquis De La Prat, has been transferred to Iran, it was said in diplomatic circles here. The marquis is an ardent Fascist and a close friend of the Germans and Italians here.

GOON GANG SLUGS MINERS AS CIO SEEKS PAY RAISE

Six Victims Dragged from Cars on Way to Work.



Arrow locates scene of goon attack.

Knoxville, Ill., Aug. 2 [Special].—A gang of 15 goons swinging baseball bats, pistol butts, and blackjacks slugged six mine employés who were on their way to work here today. One workman's arm was broken, the ribs of another were cracked, and all the victims suffered bruises and lacerations. Three were taken to a hospital.

Carl Bowman, head of the Knoxville Mining company which operates the mine two miles east of here, expressed the belief the attackers were "out of town sluggers hired by the CIO." CIO leaders have been seeking a new contract at the mine to replace one that expired March 31.

Three carloads of men, believed to have come from the Springfield area, overtook the workmen as they were driving in their own cars to the mine. The goons forced the workers' cars off the road at separated points and pulled the occupants out.

Brothers Severely Beaten.

The car of James and Dudley Boone, miners from East Galesburg, was upset and the brothers were beaten severely. James suffered a kidney injury and his face was smashed. Three of Dudley's ribs were broken.

The right arm of John Rose, chief electrician at the mine, was broken by the goons who assaulted him and two companions in another car. With Rose were G. F. Timmons, a bookkeeper, and Ralph Shover, a miner, both of whom were injured.

Dale Bragg, who was alone in his car, was beaten less severely. All of the men were given emergency medical treatment at the mine. Rose and the Boones were taken to a Galesburg hospital, but later were released.

Sheriff Frank Hooker of Knox county attributed the attack to labor trouble, but asserted he did not know details of the controversy. He had made no arrests after an all day investigation altho he admitted he had some idea who the sluggers were.

CIO Seeking New Contract.

However, Mr. Bowman readily explained that the company had been negotiating with representatives of the CIO-United Mine Workers for a new contract, but had not been able to come to terms.

"It's my idea," he said, "that these men were hired sluggers imported by the CIO to manhandle our workers in an effort to force us to meet the CIO's excessive demands. The miners in the party beaten were themselves members of the CIO.

"The CIO has demanded an increase in wages that would raise our cost of production so high we would have to close. The public wouldn't pay the price we would have to charge for our products if we gave the CIO what it wants."

The mine has continued to operate while negotiations have been in progress, with 15 men working. About 100 men are employed when the mine's production is at its peak.

4 Held in Car Theft; One a Training School Alumni

James Green Jr., 21 years old, 6640 Vernon avenue, who served 18 months in the Illinois State Training school, near St. Charles, on a charge of armed robbery, was in custody of Englewood police yesterday in connection with an automobile theft. Also held were Reginald McLean, 18, of 715 East 65th street; Daniel Bowens Jr., 21, of 1116 West 71st street, and Milton Craig, 20, of 521 East 67th street. All four are colored. Police said McLean admitted stealing the car.

RAIDS BY BRITISH CAUSE MARTIAL LAW IN NORWAY

Nazis Decree Death for Communist 'Spies.'

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Joseph Terboven.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 2.—Raids of British naval units and naval planes upon towns, fishery plants, and German garrisons in northern Norway, culminating last Wednesday in an attack upon the harbor of Kirkenes and the Finnish port of Petsamo, have resulted in strong measures being taken by German occupation authorities in Norway, where a state of martial law has been proclaimed.

[In Oslo, German occupied Norway, it was announced yesterday that Reich's Commissioner Joseph Terboven had been empowered to declare a state of emergency—backed by authorization for sentences of death or imprisonment—to "preserve public order, security, and economic life" in Norway. War developments, it was stated, had brought about a "decisive phase" in the conquered nation's affairs. The official announcement did not indicate whether Terboven intended to use his new powers soon.]

Signal Fleet with Radios.

The presence of King Haakon and the Norwegian government in England has caused much trouble for the Germans in Norway. Secret radio sets have been smuggled ashore and Nazi activities along the entire Norwegian coastline are being spied upon by Norwegians who communicate information to units of the British fleet, enabling the British to strike where the German defenses are the weakest.

Under the more severe administration, the Norwegians have been informed that all persons arrested for espionage or sabotage will be brought before courts martial which have the authority to impose the death penalty and order its immediate execution. In many districts Norwegians have been told to deliver all radio receivers to the authorities, who will return them after the war.

Reds in Norway Aid British.

In the spring of 1940 Norway had the most highly organized communist movement in all the Scandinavian countries. That was before England laid mines in Norwegian waters, an action which was followed by the occupation of Norway by the Germans and the withdrawal of British forces. In that heydey of Norwegian communism agents of the international made special efforts to spread the red doctrine among the Norwegian sailors.

Now the communist element in Norway is one of the leading groups cooperating with the British espionage service and many of those caught and sentenced by the Germans admitted membership in the communist party.

HUNGARY EXPELS THOUSANDS OF FOREIGN JEWS

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 2 (AP).—First news of the expulsion of foreign Jews from Hungary, which has been taking place for two weeks, was published today in the form of a government communique.

"Hungarian police revised resident permits of all foreign citizens residing in Hungary and exercising a detrimental influence on the economic life of the country," the communique said.

"During this revision police visited all Jews with Polish or Russian citizenship as well as Jews residing in Hungary for 10 years or more, who failed to acquire Hungarian citizenship, and expelled them from the country. At the same time raids took place in Budapest and provinces in an effort to find Jews who had entered Hungary without Jewish permits and who had not received resident permits. Twelve thousand such Jews already have been expelled."

NEW ZEALANDER HOME AFTER U. S. TRIP TO GET GUNS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 2.—Joseph G. Coates, a member of the war cabinet, today returned from a visit to the United States, where he sought heavy artillery. He expressed satisfaction in the mission. He had assurance, he said, that war materials would be diverted by the United States to the points where they would be most useful. Coates is believed to have discussed with American officials plans for coöperation between New Zealand and the United States in the event of a Pacific crisis.

JANITOR DIES IN FALL.

Bulgars Chafe at German Rule as Blitz Drags, Ankara Hears

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 2.—Bulgarian soldiers concentrated on the Turkish frontier are building a line of defense fortifications, including tank traps, concrete casements, and artillery and anti-aircraft gun emplacements, according to travelers arriving here.

Meanwhile, military columns, including a number of cavalry units, continue to move to the front, it is said.

Foreign military circles in Ankara believe the fortifications are being built principally to give the mobilized army something to do. Among the Bulgarian peasants there is said to be the fear that if Germany fails to conquer Russia the British might induce the Turks to join them in a thrust from Turkey into Nazi dominated Europe. There is no indication here that any such move is contemplated and competent circles point out that the British do not have sufficient equipment or men in the middle east to launch such a campaign.

Heinz Beckerle, German minister to Sofia, reportedly asked King Boris to send three Bulgarian divisions to the Russian front at the outset of the Russian campaign. Boris is said to have refused because of the internal situation.

The Bulgarian people, who are pro-Russian, are said to be becoming increasingly anti-German as the Russian campaign drags on. There have been isolated reports of peasants throwing stones at German troop trains. The army, however, remains pro-German, it is said.

Communist agitation is reported to be growing. Minister of War Gen. Theodossy Daskalov introduced a bill in parliament providing penalties for political activity in the army.

The Bulgarians are forbidden to listen to broadcasts by the British Broadcasting corporation or the Moscow radio. Any one convicted of circulating news from these stations is subject to six months at hard labor.

The economic situation is said to be deteriorating rapidly. Heavy purchases of tobacco by Germany are reported to have led to a cigaret shortage.

RAF BOMBS KIEL NAVAL BASE IN U. S. BUILT PLANE

LONDON, Aug. 3 [Sunday].—A big American-built bomber of the royal air force dropped explosives on the docks of Kiel, German naval base on the Baltic, while on a reconnaissance flight yesterday, an authoritative source said today.

A 2,000-ton Nazi tanker was reported set afire and left sinking by other RAF bombers off Ostend, Belgium.

The Germans stabbed at the British east coast and RAF pilots were credited with bagging two Nazi bombers against the loss of one British fighter.

Nazis Claim Big Ship Toll.

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP).—An unofficial tabulation for a week's war on Britain's routes of seaborne commerce today listed 166,500 tons of British ships destroyed and another 50,000 tons damaged since last Saturday. This included 16,000 tons which the high command said were sunk in air attacks last night off the Scottish east coast and damaged in day and night bombardments of the British Isles from the Faroe Islands to southwest England.

REDS CLAIM SIX NAZI DIVISIONS NOW DESTROYED

Put Foe's Casualties at 1,500,000 Men.

MOSCOW, Aug. 3 [Sunday] (AP).—Red army counter attacks in the Smolensk area were officially declared today to have broken two new German divisions, and a soviet spokesman said that Nazi casualties now totaled more than 1,500,000 men.

Destructive blows at German tank columns inside Russian lines, sinking of a German destroyer and a transport, and damaging of three other vessels in a Baltic sea convoy were reported.

Soviet troops, a communique said, engaged the invaders thruout Saturday in the directions [areas] of Porkhov, Smolensk, Korosten and Byelaya Tserkov and on the Estonian front. Korosten lies about 60 miles north of Zhitomir, which long has been a center of Ukrainian fighting. Byelaya Tserkov is south of Kiev.

"The German army is bogged down on the eastern front," said Vice Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky, who estimated the casualties. He declared that the Germans now were forced to change their tactics to prepare for a long war, and said "the six weeks of this gigantic encounter are only the beginning."

Rout Division in 4 Day Fight.

With four wearied Nazi divisions already declared to have been cut to pieces in a succession of triphammer counter blows, the army newspaper, Red Star, reported the destruction of two more—the 5th and 253d divisions.

Red Star said the 253d was routed after a fierce four day struggle near the city of "V," in which the Germans were estimated to have left behind 2,250 dead, 53 artillery pieces, 47 trucks, 19 motorcycles, 63 machine guns, many rifles, and documents.

Novel absorbing tactics were described by the newspaper as effective against German machines. It reported that one column of 300 tanks was liquidated by a Russian infantry division.

Claim Nazis Retreat.

"The Red army is beginning to beat off the Fascists from the positions they occupy," said an optimistic statement in the communist party organ, Pravda, and "is forcing them at a number of places to abandon the offensive and assume the defensive, and in certain places to retreat with great losses."

Crack Red units, it was said, were probing for the weak spots in the German lines, driving in wedges, and then exploiting the gains with flank attacks.

One soviet division, the 99th, thus contributed to the destruction of three tired German infantry divisions, soviet military dispatches said. One of these presumably was the German 5th infantry division which an eyewitness account from the front said had been rushed forward to reinforce a parachute unit. The location of this action was not given, tho especially severe fighting was reported in the Smolensk area, 230 miles southwest of Moscow.

A communique specifically mentioned another German infantry division, the 137th, as having been wiped out at Smolensk.

GERMANS ARREST BOLIVIANS AFTER ENVOY IS OUSTED

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP).—DNB, the official German news agency, announced tonight that several Bolivian citizens in German-occupied countries of Europe had been arrested "because of suspicion of intrigues hostile to the state."

[This action followed two protests by Germany against Bolivia's expulsion of her minister, Ernest Wendler, which the La Paz government declared was necessitated by the disclosure of a Nazi plot against the administration of President Enrique Penaranda.]

Wilhelmstrasse appeared to be little perturbed over the diplomatic incident sparked by Mexico's refusal to protest to the United States against American blacklisting of Latin American merchants who trade with the axis.

Ouster of Consuls Urged.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 2 (AP).—Suggestions that Mexico demand recall of the German minister and oust Nazi consuls rose today as political leaders and newspapers indorsed the government's firm rejection of a German note urging it to protest against the Washington blacklist of proaxis Mexican firms.

REDS' CONTEMPT FOR HUMAN LIFE AMAZES NAZIS

Million Slain in First 5 Weeks of War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—In no previous campaign has human life been placed at such a low value as by the soviet commanders in the Russo-German war. The world probably never will know the exact number of casualties the soviets suffered in the world's biggest encirclement battle of Bialystok and Minsk and in the mopping up of the numerous pockets between the Polar sea and the Black sea.

Some circles estimate that in the first five weeks of the campaign the soviets lost approximately 1,000,000 dead. In addition to the Bialystok battle, strong soviet forces were entrapped in the Vitebsk region, in the Smolensk area, in the Mogilev territory, and farther south in the Ukraine, west and southwest of Kiev.

Rarely Ask for Quarter.

Rarely was quarter asked and rarely was quarter given in these grim mopping up actions, especially in the earlier stages of the war.

Embittered by the soviet tactics of sniping—lying in hiding after the first German attack waves had passed in order to ambush German supply columns, messengers on motorcycles and the like—the German troops searched the woods with automatic rifles and hand grenades, the most effective weapons for cleaning up actions.

Fanaticism Is Told.

Germans attributed soviet tenacity to bolshevist fanacitism, inability of the entrapped troops to realize that the game was up and further resistance was useless, and the Russians' fear of being shot if captured.

Reports from the Russian front are that blazing soviet tanks continued to fire even when aflame and when the blaze finally forced the crew to abandon the tanks, the men would leap out and continue the fight with automatic rifles. In the western campaign the French tank crews invariably surrendered once the tank had caught fire.

TELL OF SERBS BURNING CROPS TO FOIL NAZIS

ANKARA, Turkey, Aug. 2.—Serbian peasants are systematically destroying the autumn harvest to wipe out a source of German food supply for next winter, it was reported here tonight. Peasants in the Banat set fire to several grain fields last week, it was said, and burned considerable acreage despite efforts of Hungarian soldiers to prevent it.

ROAD TO MOSCOW TO BE BLASTED OPEN SOON: NAZIS

Report Great Battle Rages in Ukraine.

BERLIN, Aug. 3 [Sunday] (AP).—The well informed German new service Dienst Aus Deutschland predicted today that "the way to Moscow will be open shortly" thru the Smolensk area, while German war reports told of the outbreak of "another great destructive battle" in the Ukraine.

Stubborn efforts of the Russians to halt the German advance on the soviet capital thru the central front, said the news service, have led to a "battle of attrition" which now has raged more than two weeks. It declared that the outcome would clear the road to the east. Smolensk is 230 miles southwest of Moscow.

[The Berlin radio reported that "important railway yards in the city region of Moscow" were bombed Saturday night.]

Fight Beyond Dniester.

Ukraine fighting flamed between the Bug and Dniester rivers south of Kiev, with German speed troops officially declared to have cut deeply again into retreating soviet columns.

The location of the new southern drive was given as 155 miles south of Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine. It evidently was launched across the Dniester from upper Bessarabia, and possibly was aimed at driving a wedge between Kiev, Russia's third city, and Odessa, her chief Black sea port.

The Germans already have reported advance of their forces across the lower Dniester, and were said today to be bringing their artillery up to within bombardment range of Odessa, which is also an important naval base and only about 30 miles distant from the Dniester.

Coupled with the land attack, the high command said warplanes heavily bombed Moscow and rail junctions in the upper Volga and southern Ukraine.

Seek Red Army Destruction.

While the Germans claimed to have made steady if small territorial advances in the week just ended, they were putting emphasis again and again on the military thesis that the first objective is to destroy the soviet army and not to occupy its cities. This war of material against material was held to be developing favorably for the Germans.

Thus, an unofficial review of the last seven days said 82,000 prisoners and enough equipment to outfit a fair-sized army had been taken. Captured war material, it was said, included 737 heavy tanks, 770 field cannon, 27 complete artillery batteries, 1,210 machine guns, 3,000 motor vehicles, 1,200 railway cars and two armored trains. Destroyed yesterday, another report said, were 128 soviet planes.

RED COUNTERATTACKS AGAINST 10 COLUMNS REPULSED, FINNS SAY

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 2.—Russian counterattacks against 10 advancing Finnish columns have been repulsed, it was officially reported today. At many points the Finns were said to have destroyed or captured many Red tanks and armored cars. Finland's own offensive was reported continuing.

Many soviet naval units were reported to have entered Lake Ladoga thru the Neva river. They were driven away from the northwest shore, a communique said, during an attempt to bombard Finnish occupied towns.

Finnish artillery concealed at strategic points fired on the vessels, chasing them far out into the lake, where they were attacked by planes.

ARGENTINA TELLS BOTH SIDES: CURB WAR PROPAGANDA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Aug. 2 (AP).—Both the British and German governments were requested by the Argentine foreign office today to tone down the activities of their propaganda bureaus in Argentina so that Argentina would not have to close them.

The foreign ministry in notes to both governments declared that material published in Buenos Aires "more or less" under the auspices of the British and German embassies and picked up by police in a campaign against anti-Argentine activities had been found to contain "statements injurious and offensive to one side or the other" in the European war.

The notes added that these publications thus "constitute propaganda which affects deeply the tranquility and order of this neutral country."

Storm Troopers Guard Red Embassy in Berlin

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP).—Storm trooper guards were posted today about the former soviet embassy in Unter den Linden. Authorized sources said that the incident had no special significance, and that the embassy was not being confiscated.

BELGIAN CLASHES WITH NAZIS ON HOLIDAY BARED

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Belgium's independence day, July 21, was the occasion of numerous anti-German demonstrations in many parts of that Nazi occupied country and street fighting broke out in several places, a Belgian source declared today.

"In Brussels demonstrations went on all day long," this source said. "Large numbers paraded in boulevards and the principal streets.

"As they marched along some of them dared to shout insults at the Nazis and Belgian fifth columnists. At various intersections there was fighting.

"German authorities were obliged once more to reproach Belgian police for not having dispersed the demonstrators, particularly for not saving Rexists and Flemish extremists from manhandling."

BRITISH ASSAIL RIBBENTROP IN RADIO DRAMA

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—The British Broadcasting company, in a German program to which it had especially invited Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop to listen, tonight presented a dramatization of Von Ribbentrop's career since 1920 and then accused him of having "dragged down the entire German nation."

The radio narrative depicted the foreign minister as champagne salesman, German ambassador to London, and in his present job.

The broadcaster called Von Ribbentrop "the man who built up his career after the manner of a gentleman crook," and, directly to the foreign minister, added: "You are swollen with vanity and conceit; you are corrupt and a forger of documents."

VICHY GETS U. S. WARNING AGAINST ACTING WITH AXIS

Welles Terms Tokio Pact Threat to Nation.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—The United States today cautioned the French government at Vichy that the future of Franco-American relations, which already have been jeopardized by the Vichy government's coöperation with Hitler, will be guided by the degree of France's resistance to axis powers in French territory.

The warning was delivered by Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, at his press conference.

The United States already had sent several notes rebuking the Vichy government for coöperating with Nazi conquerors, the notes bringing Franco-American relations near the breaking point. American officials privately said Vichy's cooperation with the far eastern wing of the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis was even more exasperating, because, while France had been defeated by Germany, she was not even at war with Japan.

Branded Threat to U. S.

Welles described the Tokio-Vichy agreement on Japanese bases in French Indo-China as a threat to American security. He assailed the Vichy government for declaring the preservation of French territory to be a keystone of its policy and then allowing Germany and Japan to walk over that territory and fighting to preserve territorial integrity only against Britain.

It was evident Welles' statement was calculated to prevent any shift in the status quo in Africa.

In administration circles it still is held possible that Dakar in French West Africa may be an important base for expeditionary activities against the Nazis.

Welles Pens Statement.

Welles' statement in part follows:

"The French government at Vichy has given repeated assurances to the government of the United States that it would not coöperate with the axis powers beyond the obligations imposed on it by the armistice and that it would defend the territory under its control against any aggressive action on the part of third powers.

"This government has now received information of the terms of the agreement between the French and Japanese governments covering the so-called 'common defense' of French Indo-China.

"In effect this agreement virtually turns over to Japan an important part of the French empire.

Explanation Is Rejected.

"Effort has been made to justify this agreement on the ground that Japanese 'assistance' is needed because of some menace to the territorial integrity of French Indo-China by other powers.

"The government of the United States is unable to accept this explanation. As I stated on July 24, there is no question of any threat to French Indo-China unless it lies in the expansionist aims of the Japanese government. The turning over of bases for military operations and of territorial rights under pretext of 'common defense' to a power whose territorial aspirations are apparent here presents a situation which has a direct bearing upon the vital problem of American security.

Permits Foreign Troops to Enter.

"For reasons which are beyond the scope of any known agreement, France has now decided to permit foreign troops to enter an integral part of its empire, to occupy bases therein and to prepare operations within French territory which may be directed against other peoples friendly to the people of France. . . . . . . In its relations with the French government at Vichy and with the local French authorities in French territories, the United States will be governed by the manifest effectiveness with which those authorities endeavor to protect their territories from domination and control by those powers which are seeking to extend their rule by force and conquest or the threat thereof."

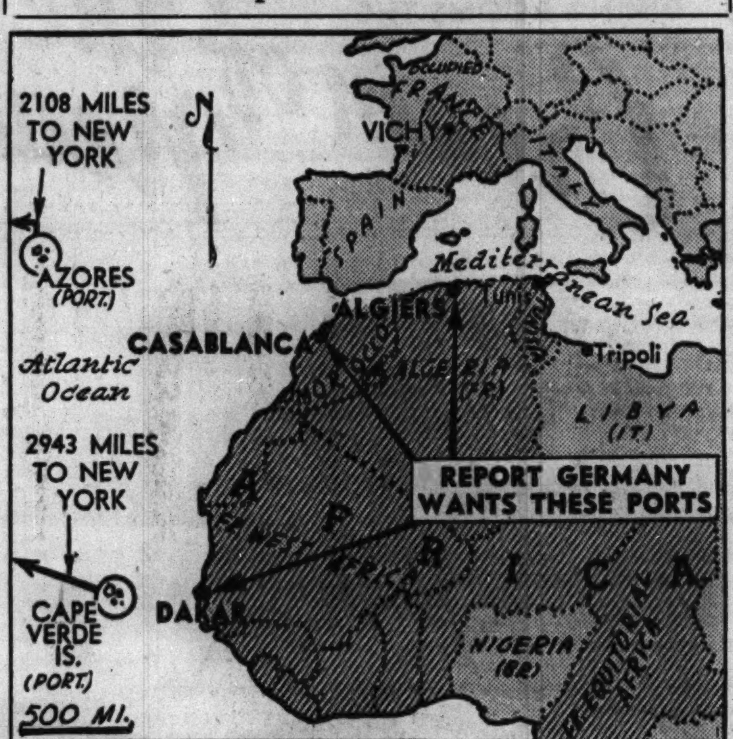
BRITAIN CLAMPS AN EMBARGO ON FINNS, NEW 'FOE'

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Britain turned the power of an economic embargo against Finland as enemy-occupied territory today because, an authoritative source said, of her "unfortunate association" with the axis.

Altho diplomatic relations between Helsingfors and London have been broken and Finland is fighting Russia, now Britain's ally, it was emphasized here that the two nations were not at war.

"An enemy destination for contraband purposes" is the official British description of Finland, which Britons aided with supplies only 18 months ago in the 1939-'40 Finnish-Russian war. All goods destined for Finland were declared liable to seizure.

Germans Reported to Demand Bases



Principal French naval bases in Africa, which London understands are being sought, together with the French fleet, by the Germans. Distances from islands off the African coast to New York are given.

'POLITICAL CRISIS' FADES AS PETAIN CABINET MEETS

Vichy Hints Storm Has Blown Over.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Aug. 2.—Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and his cabinet met today and later issued a communique indicating that a political crisis, which seemed to be threatening yesterday, had blown over. Only routine matters, said the statement, were taken up.

[An Associated Press dispatch from Vichy said it was reported the cabinet decided to make "its own decisions," despite pressure from Paris newspapers to enter an accord with Germany for joint defense of Dakar, French West Africa, and other African possessions. The British radio said the Germans resumed negotiations with Vichy with the object of inducing the French "to hand over the French fleet and the African ports of Dakar, Casablanca, and Algiers."]

Four on Visit from Paris.

The crisis took form yesterday when it became known that the secretary for foreign affairs, Jacques Benoist-Mechin, an expert on German affairs; Paul Marion, general secretary at the ministry of information; Eugene de l'Oncle, chief of Cagoulardists [hooded ones] and organizer of a volunteer legion to fight the Russians, and the Germans' ambassador to Paris, Fernand de Brinon, had come to Vichy from Paris.

Government Shifts Rumored.

The appearance of these men, together with the campaign of the Paris press against Vichy, led to rumors being spread about impending shifts in the government in Vichy.

[Before yesterday's meeting the Paris press predicted the cabinet would "finally" erase effects of the ouster of Pierre Laval, pro-German vice premier, several months ago.]

HITLER'S PAPER SAYS REDS BEST FIGHTERS SO FAR

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, declared tonight that Germany has found in the Red army an enemy "who battles with dogged tenacity, who surpasses all previous opponents in fighting temper."

"Bolshevism is the most dangerous enemy which we have to survive in the fight for final security and maintenance of the reich," said the article, written by Dr. Fritz Zierke.

When the eastern campaign began, the article said, "many of us believed that after the first waving of the German sword the enemy in the east would collapse like Colossus on feet of clay. "They [German readers] passed lightly over sentences in the proclamation of the fuehrer which left no doubt that we faced a bitter, bloody war, the most violent battles in world history."

The article said planes and tanks have been destroyed by the thousands, "but the soviet armies still are defending themselves with dogged resolution, still are throwing new material into the battle."

New RAF Parachute Packs Include a Rubber Lifeboat

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—Rubber boats included with parachute packs is the newest thing for British air force pilots, the commerce department reported today. A pilot bailing out over water pulls two rip cords, one releasing a parachute and the other a rubber dinghy, which is inbated with a bottle of carbon monoxide gas. The boat can be kept afloat for several days.

ITALY BOOSTS CONVOY BATTLE VICTORY CLAIM OVER BRITISH FORCES

ROME, Aug. 2 (AP).—A tally of two British destroyers sunk, five other warships damaged and six merchant ships sunk was posted officially today for Italian air and naval forces in the three day attack on a British convoy in the Mediterranean last week.

[The British have acknowledged that the destroyer Fearless was lost in the attack and a merchant vessel damaged but have said that all the merchant ships reached their destination. They also claimed the Italians listed the Fearless as being sunk twice.]

The five warships listed as damaged are the battleship Nelson, the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, two cruisers, and a destroyer. The announcement said the 33,900 ton Nelson was hit among her stern guns.

Meanwhile, the Fascist high command announced that British planes bombed Lampedusa, an Italian island between Sicily and Tunisia, yesterday causing neither damage nor casualties. One attacking plane was shot down.

An unidentified town on Sardinia's west coast was bombed Thursday night, the command added.

The communique said German planes had bombed Tobruk, Libya.

U. S. Planes Shoot Down 40.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 2 — During June and July the American built Tomahawks [Curtis P-40 fighters] flown by royal air force pilots in the middle east, shot 40 axis planes out of the air and destroyed 16 on the ground, according to a summary here.

HOPKINS LEAVES MOSCOW; NEXT STOP IS SECRET

MOSCOW, Aug. 2 (AP).—Harry Hopkins, personal envoy of President Roosevelt, left Moscow tonight with Brig. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney of the United States army.

Hopkins, who arrived by air from London on Wednesday for a series of conferences with Russian leaders, was seen off by Deputy Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky and other foreign commissariat officials, United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, British Ambassador Sir Stafford Cripps, and members of the British military mission to Russia. Hopkins was accompanied to the frontier by two representatives of the foreign affairs commissariat and a Red army colonel.

[Where Hopkins was bound and the manner of travel were not mentioned in this dispatch. Turkey, India, and China have frontiers with Russia as neutral or friendly neighbors. Reliable sources in London have indicated Hopkins might travel thru the far east on the way back to the United States.]

JAPAN STEPS UP HER PRODUCTION TO MEET U. S. BAN

Fears One Spark May 'Set Off Explosion.'

TOKIO, Aug. 2 (AP).—The Japanese government further stepped up its war geared domestic economy today to make the nation economically self-sufficient and independent of American supplies.

Seizo Sakonji.

The authoritative news agency Domei said Japanese aviation could dispense with the United States supply of lubricants, adding that "vegetable oils now have successfully been processed as aviation oils and 90 per cent of used oils are being reclaimed."

"The American embargo on motor fuels and aviation oils does not mention Japan," said Domei, "but it is competently pointed out that it is directed against Japan."

Japan's minister of commerce and industry, Vice Admiral Seizo Sakonji, indicated the government's concern in telling Japanese newspapers that "the current international situation is so tense that a single spark would be sufficient to cause an explosion."

"The economic situation confronting Japan," he said, "demands an increase in industrial production for replenishment of national defense and to maintain our standard of living."

Check Use of Gasoline.

There were further instances of increased stringency in gasoline and oil regulations, in Tokio and the provinces as well. The prefectural office in Kobe, for instance, banned the cruising of taxis from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m.

The Japanese welfare minister, Lieut. Gen. Chikahiko Koizumi, announced that "a proper distribution of labor thruout Japan, Manchukuo, and China calls for a rearrangement of middle and small scale merchants, a transfer by industrialists of labor from nonurgent industries, and a mobilization of idle labor."

The Imperial Rule Assistance association urgently recommended that the government call on students, including girls, to meet what was described as a critical labor shortage.

Japan added India to its list of countries whose assets it has frozen and said New Zealand and the Union of South Africa would be added to the list on Monday.

China to Plan Thai Action.

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 2 (AP).—Quo Tai-chi, Chinese foreign minister, said today that Thailand [Siam] is coming more and more under the domination of Japan and that China, tho she recognizes that the Thais are acting under duress, will consider counter measures.

Quo spoke after reports had been received that Thailand had granted recognition to Manchukuo, Japan's puppet, as an independent state.

See Threat to Vladivostok.

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Authoritative quarters here today said they had information that Japan is strongly reënforcing her forces in Manchukuo and disposing them so that they are a serious threat to the Russian air and naval base at Vladivostok.

Mt. Vernon Water Users Asked to Conserve Supply

Mount Vernon, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—The Illinois-Iowa Power company today asked its customers here to use water only for necessities. W. H. Gott, manager of the utility, said the city had only two months supply and until the reserves are increased by rainfall the restrictions would be in effect. It was the fourth time in two years that restrictions have been imposed here. Three railroads are hauling water from the Wabash river for their use.

Liner Unloads Silk

Stevedores at San Francisco, Cal., unload bales of raw silk from Japanese liner, Tatuta Maru. Importers have claimed the silk by maritime libel action.

San Pedro, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—The 85,000 barrel Japanese oil tanker, Nissyo Maru, headed to sea today with her tanks empty. The vessel put in yesterday, seeking a cargo of gasoline and fuel oil. Requests for license to load and credit permits had been made when President Roosevelt's order banning further oil shipments to Japan became effective.

Liners Unloading Silk.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—Great slingloads of raw silk were lifted today from the holds of the liners Tatuta Maru, here, and the Heian Maru at Seattle. The cargoes have been claimed by eastern importers in numerous maritime libel actions.

Unloading of the Tatuat Maru may be completed by tomorrow. She has been guaranteed clearance by the state department. The Heian Maru was posted to sail at 3 p. m. Monday.

All goods involved in the libel attachments will remain in the custody of the customs department until the actions are settled. Goods under bond, including the Tatuta Maru's silk cargo, will be forwarded to their destination.

A DETERMINATION

In an address on Sept. 11, 1940, President Roosevelt said:

"I hate war now more than ever. I have one supreme determination—to do all I can to keep war away from these shores for all time. I stand with my party, upon the platform adopted in Chicago:

"'We will not participate in foreign wars, and we will not send our army, naval, or air forces to fight in foreign lands outside of the Americas, except in case of attack.'"

JAPANESE RUIN U. S. HOSPITAL IN CHUNGKING RAID

CHUNGKING, China Aug. 2 (AP).—The main building of the Seventh Day Adventist Mission hospital here was destroyed in Wednesday's Japanese air raid, it was disclosed today. E. L. Longway, head of the mission, said the loss was $4,000 and included the best X-ray machine in Free China.

A convoy of nine American trucks owned by the Seventh Day Adventists arrived over the Burma road with medical supplies, tracts, and school books.

Fifty to Leave Indo-China.

SAIGON, French Indo-China, Aug. 2 (AP).—About 50 American missionairies, women and children, approximately half the United States religious workers in Indo-China, will leave for home in a few days, it was reported today. A spokesman for the group said its departure should not be considered an evacuation of this Japanese occupied French territory.

LITCHFIELD RESIDENT, 83, DIES.

Litchfield, Ill., Aug. 2 [Special].—August Picaman, 83 year olds, a cigar manufacturer, died last night of a heart attack.

REPORTER TELLS OF 4 MONTHS IN GERMAN PRISON

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Richard C. Hottelet, United Press foreign correspondent who arrived here yesterday aboard the West Point after spending almost four months in German prisons, wrote today that "doors which I can open myself are something to be thankful for and not to be taken for granted."

Hottelet, who was charged with suspicion of espionage, was released by the Germans in an exchange of prisoners in the United States. He had been imprisoned from March 15 to July 8. He denied the charge.

In a story of his daily prison existence, Hottelet wrote that while he was confined to the old police presidium at the Alexanderplatz:

"I was not allowed to sit or lie on the cot from 6:30 in the morning until 4:30 in the evening. This, at first, was annoying. After weeks of solitary confinement, however, I came to welcome this prohibition. It gave me something to look forward to every afternoon when even the unexpected opening of the cell door was a real pleasure.

Two Meals of Bread.

"In this prison the daily breakfast was a piece of dry black bread and ersatz coffee. Lunch consisted of bean, noodle or barley soup, or a sour brew of dehydrated carrots. Dinner was again dry black bread and ersatz coffee, with a piece of cheese added as a special treat on Saturdays only. Occasionally jam or margarine was spread on the bread.

"Sessions with the secret police became less and less frequent during the last few weeks in Alexanderplatz. They never mistreated me. But shortly before I was transferred to another prison I was told flatly: 'You will sit until you confess. We've got plenty of time.'"

The correspondent wrote that on May 3 he was moved to the Moabit prison where "routine was much more strict. There was no possibility of clandestine exchanges with other prisoners. We were not allowed to smoke. But the food was better.

Extra Potatoes Hoarded.

"It was known that I am an American and the trusties who handed us our food as we stood in the doorways of our solitary cells frequently gave me large numbers of potatoes, which I would save and eat over a period of several days when I felt particularly hungry.

"The day's routine consisted of getting up at 5 minutes to 7, washing, eating breakfast, and then being taken out for a half hour's exercise every day except Sunday."

Describing the two visits from consular officials, Hottelet said the first was in his first week in Alexanderplatz, the second in his last week in Moabit. Both were in the presence of German officials. The only other outsider he saw was an attorney who called twice.

Chile Hints at Gasoline Rationing Over Tanker Cut

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 2 (AP).—President Pedro Aguirre Cerda today said Chile might have to ration gasoline to meet a shortage expected to result from a lack of tankers plying between this country and the United States.

CIRCUS IS HERE; SURE ENOUGH, IT HAS EVERYTHING

Mother of Two Tells Life of Trapeze Artist.

The circus came to town yesterday. A matinée crowd sat enthralled for three hours as aerial artists, acrobats, animal trainers, jugglers, and bicyclists went thru their smoothly paced performances, nursery rhyme characters came to amazing life in the Old King Cole number, or dozens of very beautiful girls indeed rode in carriages of Gay Nineties vintage for A Day in Central Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Gargantua, the gorillas, toughest husband and wife in the world, drew their share of attention, as did the rest of the menagerie, the sideshows, vendors of ice cream and pink lemondade, and the "Joeys," clowns to you, "those chalk-faced, big-footed, red-nosed funmakers from every land," to quote the program.

Two Shows a Day.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus will perform twice daily, just south of Soldiers' field, thru next Sunday.

It has, in its own word, everything, including that indefinable aura that spells show business. Take, as an example, Miss Fern [Boots] Strubey, who was born near Alamosa, Colo., and now does high dives into a net.

Boots got into aerial work eight years ago, when she was 22, because her boy friend was too fat. She went with him to a conditioning lot for circus folk in Los Angeles, liked the stuff, and before she knew it she was a professional. To start learning so arduous a job at 22 is quite unheard of, but Boots has an explanation:

"Having been born on a farm," she says modestly, "I was quite well equipped physically."

Stops Wondering in Midair.

She and five other girls broke into the big time in 1939 when John Ringling North saw their act in London, liked, and bought it. She and Lou Anne Haydon, a red head, do a double trapeze number and also dive from a 40 foot board. At first, Boots says, there was a constant wonder on the way down how you would land, but soon she got over worrying. A good landing is important, however, since a bad one can skin your back or break your neck.

Boots, who is 5 feet 7 and weighs a well-distributed 137 pounds, has no worries about diet: Burns fat right off. She talks well [the English language, she says, is an obsession with her] and has a keen, if slightly acid, sense of humor. Asked whether she were in the Gay Nineties number, she smiled sweetly and said no, her hips weren't big enough.

Unlike many circus people, Boots isn't superstitious. She doesn't think it's good luck to carry an elephant's hair or bad to wear yellow tights on a Friday, whistle in a dressing room, toss a hat on a bed, or travel with a camel-back trunk. Nor does she think bad things happen in threes.

Boots has two children—Bill, 11, and Joy, 8, who stay with her sister in Flagstaff, Ariz., during the circus season. She says they may go into show business if they want to, but makes one reservation: They have to have something on the ball.

NAVY NAMES TWO COMMANDERS OF NEW AIR STATIONS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The navy today named commanding officers for two Pacific island air stations which it said will be commissioned on Aug. 15.

It also announced that a naval air station on Sangley Point, Cavite, Philippine Islands, will be commissioned on Sept. 1, but a commanding officer has not been designated.

Lieut. David James Welsh, whose home is at New York, was named commanding officer at the Palmyra Island station, 975 miles south of Honolulu.

Lieut. Roland H. Dale, whose home is at Bridgeport, Conn., was designated commanding officer of the station on Sand Islet in the Johnston Island group, about 717 miles from Honolulu. He was ordered there last June 4 in connection with establishment of the station.

18th 1941 Drowning Victim Loses Life in Lake County

Merrill Johnson, 33 years old, who resided at 22d street and Green Bay road, west of North Chicago, was drowned yesterday afternoon in Deep lake, near Lake Villa. The drowning was the 18th in Lake county since Jan. 1.

POPULATION PUT AT 132,584,922 BY CENSUS BUREAU

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The census bureau estimated today that the nation's population increased 915,647 in the last nine months of 1940 and totaled 132,584,922 on Jan. 1, 1941. The population of the continental United States on April 1, 1940, when the last census was taken, was 131,669,275.

Since then birth, death, and immigration statistics have indicated an average growth of 102,000 a month. The average gain was 74,000 a month in the last 10 years.

Part of the fast increase was because immigration brought in approximately 9,000 persons a month last year, compared with a net loss from emigration in the last decade. The remainder resulted from a higher birth rate.

53 Infantile Paralysis Cases Now in Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2 [Special].—The infantile paralysis total in Tennessee was placed at 53 cases today by Dr. A. E. Hardison, state epidemiologist. Dr. Hardison said the disease has spread to Nashville and Davidson county and now was in a four county area. Counties infested are Coffee, site of Camp Forrest; Franklin, Bedford, and Davidson. Three deaths have been reported in the state in the last three weeks.

U. S. FEELS FIRST JOLTS OF TRADE WAR UPON JAPAN

Silk Mill Closing Means Idleness in Wide Area.

eral years. Of the imports, 89 per cent went into women's stockings.

Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], an opponent of administration foreign policy, told newsmen that the administration had "acted hastily" in ordering commercial silk mills closed.

"This is another example of the impulsiveness of the President," Nye declared. "I think we should be very careful in depriving ourselves of needed commodities, and at the same time moving closer toward war."

Envisions Barter Trade.

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.] expressed the opinion that "if Japan engages in no further aggression," this country could work out a barter arrangement under which trade could continue with the Nipponese empire. He agreed that the silk stoppage would deprive Japan of cash exchange.

George, who recently relinquished the chairmanship of the foreign relations committee, expressed the view that Japan had taken into account all possible American economic retaliatory steps before moving into Indo-China.

"I think Japan would have followed her decision to go into French Indo-China and Thailand regardless of what this country might do to her economically," he added.

He said he had "no thought that the Japanese intend to attack the Philippine Islands."

New Dictator Bill Hits Snag.

Today the President's price fixing bill began hitting snags in congress, as the house banking and currency committee set the stage for hearings to begin Monday.

The legislation would authorize the President to fix price ceilings for commodities and rents, but would give him no authority over wages or utility rates, and would grant special treatment to farm commodities.

The price control proposal was countered by a demand from farm state senators that a "floor" be placed under farm prices if a "ceiling" is imposed by the legislation.

Chairman Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] said the senate agriculture committee is "unanimously opposed to any price fixing that does not fix a floor as well as a ceiling."

Others, including Senators Arthur Capper [R., Kas.], Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.], and Tom Stewart [D., Tenn.] said they agreed that if congress were to fix a maximum price limit on things the farmer sells, it also should protect him by a minimum.

Taft to Demand a Board.

There were other indications of trouble for the bill, among them the announcement of Senator Robert Taft [R., O.] that he will demand that price control be administered by a board. In its present form the bill would permit the President to delegate the price fixing authority—presumably to Leon Henderson, now heading the office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply in the OPM.

The bill designates the price level on last July 29 as one to which the chief executive should give "due consideration" in fixing other price lists. The President, however, could make adjustments to compensate for speculative fluctuations, changes in cost of production or transportation, and similar factors.

The President would be empowered to establish price ceilings, to fix rents in designated defense areas where rents had increased 10 per cent since last August 31, to "eliminate and prevent profiteering" and to "protect persons with relatively fixed and limited incomes." He could require licenses for engaging in transactions covered by the measure, except that he could not compel licenses for distribution of newspapers, periodicals, books, and other printed matter.

The legislation provides maximum fines up to $5,000 for violation of price-control orders, imprisonment up to one year, or both.

LARGE CHICAGO SILK PROCESSOR HIT BY U. S. BAN

The Oscar Heineman corporation, 2701 Armitage avenue, one of the country's largest processors of raw silk, is the only Chicago company affected by the Office of Production Management decree stopping all silk processing, effective last midnight. The company also faces an acute shortage of materials it might use as substitutes.

The corporation has 1,000 employés, two-thirds of them women. Normal weekly production is 50 to 70 thousand pounds of silk yarn on cones ready to be used on knitting spindles. Customers are hosiery and knitting mills thruout the country.

John H. Brine, vice president, said the plant was operated as usual yesterday. He said no official notice had been received from Washington, D. C.

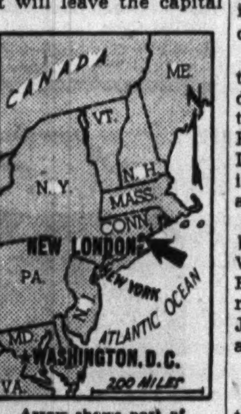
He said that if no official word is received by tomorrow, the plant would operate only on silk already being processed. Raw silk would not be touched, he added. He said the plant could not operate for long on that basis.

Brine asserted the company has the equipment for processing rayon and nylon yarns, but that nylon is scarce and rayon is virtually unattainable because it is being used to replace the cotton and silk used in rearmament, he asserted.

F. D. R. WILL TAKE SECRET CRUISE OFF EAST COAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—President Roosevelt will leave the capital tomorrow morning for a 10 day secret cruise off the New England coast. To assure secrecy he has invoked naval censorship on his movements.



Arrow shows port of departure.

He will board the Presidential yacht Potomac at New London, Conn. From the time he steps aboard the yacht his movements will become "confidential naval operations" which no newspaper or radio can communicate to the nation.

Secretary of War Frank Knox this morning appealed to the press not to display any enterprise in following the President or speculating on his whereabouts.

Seeking Cool Climate.

It was acknowledged that as far as the public will know Mr. Roosevelt might transfer to a destroyer and take part in the neutrality patrol or visit Iceland or even go to the British coast for a personal conference with Winston Churchill. However, it was said that the President has no such intention and is merely seeking 10 days of rest in a cool climate.

White House secretary Early said the President will cruise on a day to day basis and will be ready to return to Washington at a moment's notice. His special train will be held at New London, Conn., for a dash to Washington if events should necessitate a hurried return.

Mr. Roosevelt will be accompanied by Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, White House physician; Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, White House secretary and military aid, and Capt. John Beardall, White House naval aid.

Correspondents are Barred.

Beardall will send a daily dispatch to the navy department, which will be released to the press. No correspondents will be permitted to accompany the President. In past cruises at least three newspaper men have been permitted to trail the chief executive or maintain shore communication with him. Assistant White House Secretary William D. Hassett will stand by at Northfield, Vt., in case the President should need a secretary. A skeleton White House staff will base at Swampscott, Mass.

Early said Mr. Roosevelt has no plans to land at any port. This, he said, bars a visit to Campobello, N. B., where Mrs. Roosevelt and the President's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, are vacationing.

WORKER DIES OF BURNS.

Charles Butkus, 32 years old, died yesterday in St. Anthony's hospital of burns suffered Friday at the National Starch Products company, 3641 Washtenaw avenue. Butkus, who lived at 7135 Artesian avenue, fell beneath a valve from which live steam was escaping.

CONSUMER MILK COST RISES MORE THAN FARM PRICE

Producers and Middlemen Both Get Advance.

Altho the price being paid for milk to dairy farmers of the Chicago area is the highest in 10 years, the distributors' "spread," or difference between the price paid to farmers and the ultimate cost to the consumer, is also the largest in 10 years.

Major distributors, however, report operating at a loss during the first five months of this year. The answer to this paradox, the distributors say, may be found in government price pegging and increased labor costs.

Until recently, the price paid to farmers for fluid milk by organized distributors of the Chicago area was determined by negotiations between the distributors and producers' co-operatives. Since September, 1939, this price has been fixed by the Agricultural Adjustment administration and a federal milk market administrator in Chicago.

How Farm Price Is Fixed.

This price, figured monthly, is based on the price of evaporated milk plus a differential which varies from month to month. The evaporated milk price is controled by fluctuations in the butter and cheese market.

The distributor, according to a spokesman for one of the major Chicago companies, expects to operate at a loss during certain seasons of the year, because the retail price of milk remains relatively stable while the distributor's costs—particularly the farm price, a major item—fluctuate. The distributor expects to compensate for his losses during the summer months, when milk production is at a peak and farm prices consequently lower.

This year farm prices have increased instead of declining. Dr. D. B. Peck, president of the Bowman Dairy company, said recently that the increase was a result of "butter and cheese markets responding to increased demands of the country's defense and aid to Britain programs." Cheese and evaporated milk are among the chief lease-lend exports.

Farmers' Price Advances.

The price paid to the farmer for class 1 milk, per hundredweight [46.5 quarts], normally declining during summer months, has shown this trend in 1941:

January	$1.966
February	1.952
March	1.982
April	2.078
May	2.082
June	2.119
July	2.359
August	2.370

Last May the milk wagon drivers' union won pay increases aggregating $1,000,000 a year, restoring wages to a $48 a week base scale from a cut to $43.74 last year. The July 1 increase of 1 cent a quart on home delivered milk was effected by the distributors, they explain, because altho they had been absorbing increasing farm price costs they could not absorb the increased labor cost.

Ten Year Record of Prices.

Here is the picture for the last 10 years of the price per quart of fluid milk paid to the farmer, the cost to the consumer for home delivered milk, and the "spread":

	Paid at farm.	Price for home deliv.	Spread.
1932	$0.04	$0.1119	$0.0719
1933	.036	.0980	.0620
1934	.042	.0953	.0533
1935	.045	.1063	.0613
1936	.042	.1142	.0722
1937	.046	.1242	.0782
1938	.04	.1235	.0835
1939	.037	.1184	.0814
1940	.042	.1300	.0880
1941 [thru June]	.044	.1300	.0860
Aug., 1941	.051	.1400	.0890

The cost of home delivered milk in single quart containers, however, is no longer an accurate yardstick of the cost to the consumer, according to the distributors. Since the introduction several months ago of half-gallon and gallon bottles, the single quart home deliveries represent only about 12 per cent of the distributors' business.

How Sales Are Divided.

Here is how the Borden-Wieland company figured the average price per quart of all the grade A milk sold by the company in May, 1941:

	Retail price per quart [cents].	Per cent of milk handled.
Single quarts, home delivered	13	12%
Half gallons, home delivered	12	11%
Gallons, home delivered	11.75	5%
Store quarts [wholesale price to storekeepers]	9.5	49%
Other wholesale [hospitals, restaurants, etc.] and odd-size containers	9.4	23%
Average price	10.1

In the month studied the farmer was being paid 4.5 cents a quart. The "spread," according to the company, is actually the difference between 4.5 and 10.1 cents, or 5.6 cents, instead of the 8.5 cents difference between farm price and the home delivered price of 13 cents for single quarts.

Still using the average price of 10.1 cents, the company breaks down the cost to the consumer as follows:

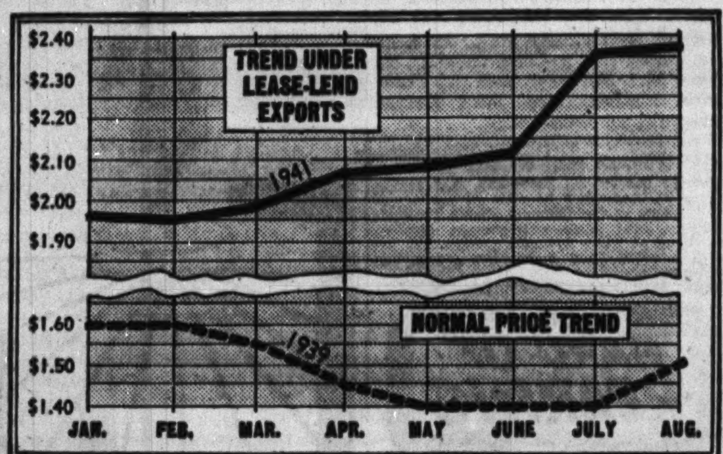
Cost at the farm	4.5 cents
Receiving plant cost	0.2 cents
Hauling to the city	0.25 cents
Processing	1.4 cents
Distribution—
Labor	3 cents
Vehicles	0.4 cents
Miscellaneous	0.5 cents
General and administrative	0.25 cents
[illegible]	10.5 cents

The difference between the cost of 10.5 cents and selling price of 10.1 cents means a loss of .4 of a cent on all quart sales during May, the company said. Loss for the first five months of the year was put at .7 of a cent for every dollar of sales.

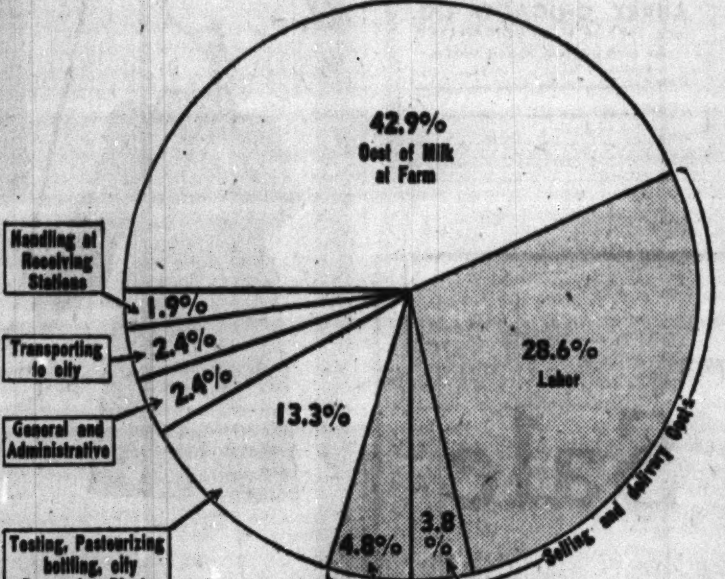
Department of agriculture officials are to conduct hearings tomorrow on a request recently made by organized producers to increase the prices being paid at the farm. Another increase in the farm price, milk dealers say, would result in another advance in the cost to consumers.

Aid to Britain Raises Milk Prices

(Story in adjoining column.)



Comparison of the rising trend in price paid per hundredweight for Class 1 milk (for bottling) with the normal decline in price during the summer, as shown by 1939 prices for the same months. Heavy exports of dairy products to Britain are given as one reason for the higher price this year.



Elements of cost to the consumer in the average price of home delivered, store and wholesale container milk, as reported by one Chicago milk company.

NEW NOAH'S ARKS GET A WAR JOB—RESCUING FLYERS

Channel Lifeline Saves Pilots Who Bail Out.

SOMEWHERE ON THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF ENGLAND, Aug. 2.—All along the important English channel theater of war, where royal air force fighters and bombers make ceaseless attacks on German-occupied France, Britain has stretched a lifeline for its airmen.

The lifeline is composed of "Noah's Arks," bobbing little roofed floats resembling combined miniature hospitals, recreation rooms, and officers' mess. Providing a vital link to these arks are amazingly speedy 60 foot motorboats which incessantly patrol "Hell's Corner" [off Dover] in search of pilots who have been forced to bail out of their planes. Incidentally, as well as saving many British flyers, the arks also benefit German airmen who have been shot down.

The "Air-Sea Rescue Service" boats are scattered all along the channel region. They are anchored off the English coast at varying distances, painted a bright yellow and red, and marked with the Red Cross insignia.

Boasts the Comforts of Home.

At each end are ramps making it easy for any one to clamber aboard to a superstructure resembling a submarine conning tower. The distressed airman then pulls open a hatch and descends a narrow ladder to a compact cabin just below the sea level. Here in a tiny space are four bunks and—on a miniature scale—all the comforts of home. On one side is a stove. Nearby are cans of food—and a can opener. In a tiny cabinet are medicines, bandages, and first aid instructions.

Also on hand is a checker board, on which the rescued flyer may compete with himself or a companion, as the case may be, or if he would rather read there are many books. Radio telephone connections are available with which he may communicate with his superior officers.

A Welcome for All; Nazis, Too.

If sea water has seeped into the batteries, all he has to do is hoist a yellow flag and, when the flags are spotted from the English side, he will be taken off.

A typewritten sheet, framed and prominently displayed, tells the rescued flyer—whether he be British or German—that he is welcome on the ark and that the "Air-Sea Rescue Service hopes you'll be comfortable and that your stay will be short," adding that, "altho the host is absent, you will find everything you need." Then follow instructions telling where to find medicines, bandages, food, telephone connections, distress signals, checker boards, cigarets, and books.

KILLED AS TRUCK HITS BRIDGE.

Taylorville, Ill., Aug. 2 [Special].—E. W. Simpson, 28 years old, of Assumption was killed last night when a truck in which he was riding struck a bridge butment six miles east of here.

Householders Told to Cut Down on Radio Electricity

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP)—Householders today were urged to keep the radio on only when they are listening to it, to turn out the basement lights, and to operate refrigerators efficiently—all in the name of national preparedness. Harriet Elliott, head of the consumer division of the Office of Civilian Supply, said consumers should prepare for possible power shortages. "Practice of such economies is especially valuable in parts of the country where the estimated future demand for electric power exceeds the available supply," she said.

"Washday backaches and washday hands are silly . . . with laundry prices so reasonable!"

Read this voluntary letter from Mrs. Kimball, telling why she would never be without laundry service.

Mrs. Allen H. Kimball, 4321 N. Hermitage, Chicago, active in Ravenswood activities and president of Lakeview High School P.T.A.

"My pet economy for many years has been sending my washing to the laundry. It saves me the dread of rainy washdays . . . my back is saved the strain of lifting heavy, soggy clothes . . . and my hands are not subjected to punishment in hot water.

"The energy I once used on washday is now spent with my family, and in worthwhile outside activities. Personally I think a woman's silly to suffer washday backaches and rough red hands with laundry prices so low."

(Signed)
Mrs. Allen Howard Kimball

PRESS FREEDOM THREAT IS SEEN IN SEIZURE BILL

Investors' Head Calls for Delay in House Vote.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Charging that the property seizure bill may sound the death knell of freedom of speech and the press in the United States, Catherine Curtis, national director of the Women Investors in America, Inc., today called upon congress to return the bill to committees for further study.

The bill would legalize the unlimited emergency proclaimed by the President and empower him to requisition the use of any military equipment, supplies and munitions, or tools or materials for their manufacture.

The measure, passed by the senate, was reported to the house yesterday by the military affairs committee after that body heard but one witness, Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

Sees Dictatorship Goal.

Miss Curtis charged that the administration is seeking to steam roller the bill thru congress, presumably as an emergency measure, but in reality is interested in seeking absolute dictatorship over industry and thereby stiffling opposition to its war program.

"Not only does this bill threaten the jobs and existence of nearly six million workers and the 200,000 small manufacturing plants employing them, but it also assumes the aspect of an iron clad censorship control measure being rushed thru congress under the guise of preventing a few second hand dealers from profiteering in second hand tools and equipment," Miss Curtis said.

"If the bill becomes a law it can be used—together with the export control list—effectively to suppress all printed opposition to the war involvement program, including publication by newspapers of information which those in power do not wish made available to the public, as well as to end the right privately to own property in this country."

Points to Senate Hearings.

To support her contention that the administration is seeking to control all opposition to its war program, Miss Curtis said that in senate hearings on the measure administration spokesmen refused to define what constitutes military equipment, component parts thereof and tools for making the same.

She cited the fact that a similarity of language exists in the wording of the bill and the order issued last month by the export control office expanding the number of items that may be considered in that category and asserts that the list constitutes a yardstick by which the administration's plans to seize power may be measured.

Many Items Listed.

The export control office list numbers hundreds of items. Among them the following, which relate to freedom of press and speech, are classified as war materials or components thereof:

Newsprint, book paper, typsetting machines, printing presses, bookbinding machinery, and other printing and typsetting machinery. Plates, cuts — electrotype, stereotype, halftone, lithographic or engraved. Books, maps, pictures, and other printed matter. Current newspapers and periodicals. Cameras and photographic material, radio equipment, and telephones.

The appeal for reconsideration of the bill ends with:

"If there is no intent to suppress free speech in this country and to seize purely personal property for alleged national defense need, why all this hurried action on this bill—particularly since it is admitted there now is sufficient law to permit requisitioning materials and plants actually needed for defense purposes?

"The President alone is granted power under this bill to determine what constitutes component parts of military supplies. Will he use the newly expanded war materials list of the export control office as his yardstick to determine what he can requisition under this bill if it becomes law?"

Four Saloons Raided

Tom Snyder (right) of state liquor revenue division, directs loading of van with liquor without state stamps attached, seized in raid on saloon at 645 North Clark street.

In raids reminiscent of the prohibition era, state agents visited four Chicago saloons yesterday and seized 265 cases of gin, wine, and whisky. Jens Jensen, state liquor revenue supervisor, who led the raids, confiscated the liquor.

The object was to enforce the new Illinois liquor tax law, which became effective July 1. Only those bottles not bearing stamps issued under the new law were seized. Five squads of agents of the liquor revenue division of the state department of finance made the raids.

Jensen said that all the places raided belong to a family headed by Seymour Schlosberg. The saloons are at 555 West Madison street, 503 and 645 North Clark street, and 868 East 63d street. None of the proprietors was arrested, but the liquor was hauled to the division's headquarters pending a hearing on the cases.

NEW EGYPTIAN CABINET PUSHES AIR RAID SAFETY

Add 'Minister of Passive Defense' to Body.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 2.—Hussien Sirry Pasha, Egypt's premier who resigned Thursday with his cabinet, today headed a new cabinet formed with the dual aim of reducing opposition and intensifying defense work.

Altho Egypt is not at war, air raids near the capital, as well as on Alexandria, bring home the need of effective defenses. To speed up that work the new cabinet includes a minister of passive defense. Abdel Kawi Ahmed Pasha, who long has been directing such work, was given that post.

Stress Air Raid Protection.

The government has been concentrating its attention on air raid protection. The press revealed today that the first task of the new passive defense minister will be to get action in providing shelters in private homes.

The political purpose of the cabinet shakeup, as pointed out by Sirry Pasha in his letter of resignation, was to include in its membership some of those who had been in opposition to the government. Five ministers of the Saadist party were taken in as ministers, respectively, of public health, agriculture, communications, supply, and public works.

Two Parties Still Out.

All Saadist ministers had resigned some time ago because the government would not declare war on the axis. They agreed to coöperate again with the government under the new arrangement. This means that only the Shaabists and the ultra-nationalist Wafd party are outside the cabinet and in opposition to it. They are said to control less than 30 votes in parliament.

Certain of a majority in parliament, it is explained, Sirry Pasha will be able to push ahead much faster with defense projects as organized by the new minister of passive defense. The British have made nearly $20,000,000 available to Egypt for additional air raid defense.

The repeated raids on Alexandria, altho they have not done much military damage, have caused hardship and suffering among the civilians and shown the Egyptians the weaknesses they must remedy.

CHANGE PLANS FOR NEW GATUN LOCKS IN CANAL

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Aug. 2.—The new Gatun locks of the Panama canal will be built 850 feet nearer Gatun lake than originally planned, thus obtaining a better foundation, Brig. Gen. Glen Edgerton, governor of the Panama canal, disclosed today. The change will not delay construction, he said. The new locks are designed to accommodate the largest ships afloat while the change will add $1,667,663 to excavation costs, increasing the total expenditure to $10,151,292, it is expected there will be a saving in masonry costs.

FESTIVAL THRONG WILL PAY TRIBUTE TO M'CUTCHEON

Cast of 1,100 to Dramatize Injun Summer Cartoon.

Festival Tickets!

Tickets for the Chicagoland Music Festival, to be held Saturday night, Aug. 16, in Soldiers' field, are on sale at 50 cents and $1 at THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. All seats are reserved. Mail order checks should be made payable to Tribune Charities, Inc.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

It was long ago—as time is measured nowadays—that John T. McCutcheon, a rising young war correspondent and cartoonist, set out to do a short biography of his college chum and newspaper comrade, George Ade.

"In the heart of every young boy," McCutcheon wrote, "is the dream that he may go away and make his future, then to return in a carriage drawn by white horses and be greeted with admiring acclaim."

That was in 1905. On the night of Aug. 16, 1941, in Soldiers' field, more than 85,000 people at the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival will roar their admiring acclaim for the most beloved cartoonist in the great central west—John T. McCutcheon.

Wins Affection of Thousands.

In the years intervening he has made his future by creating for himself an enduring place in the affections of hundreds of thousands of Tribune readers. And when he enters the great lakefront arena on Festival night he will be in a carriage drawn by white horses—if it is possible for the Festival management to find two such steeds.

Mr. McCutcheon will be one of the few persons not identified directly with music to receive the traditional, thundering welcome of the multitude that attends the Festival. But for 40 years he has, in his way, created a sort of equivalent of music.

He has stirred the emotions of his public with pen and ink symphonies in which have been blended a homely philosophy, a purifying earnestness, a vast kindliness, and a keen, Hoosier wit. He has created the music of laughter.

In Soldiers' field Mr. McCutcheon and the 85,000 others will see an amazing dramatization of his incomparable "Injun Summer," probably the world's most widely circulated cartoon. They will hear the nostalgic words of the old man and the little boy of the famous drawing as they watch a field of corn shocks turn into Indian teepees and see the redskins "come troopin' back from the happy hunting ground—the sky jest hazy with 'em."

Cast of 1,100 Boys and Girls.

The Injun Summer spectacle will be the biggest and, technically, the most difficult attempted in 11 years of Festivals. The cast of 1,100 boys and girls has been rehearsing for weeks. Mayblossom Macdonald and Ermie Schultz, outstanding instructors of the dance, are directing the Chicagoland contingent.

In Elgin, the "Big Timber Indian Dancers" are being rehearsed by Carl Palasca, Boy Scout executive, with whom Indian lore is a hobby. The authentic costumes of these dancers are valued at $10,000.

The opening of the pageant in Soldiers' field will be heralded by the Festival Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Henry Weber, playing a medley of Indian themes: "Pale Moon," by Logan; "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water," by Cadman, and "War Dance," by Skilton. They will be followed by Victor Herbert's beloved "Indian Summer."

Then the lights will blaze up, disclosing 200 corn shocks dotting the broad expanse of the arena. On either side—so that the picture will appear properly to all spectators—will be an old man and a boy.

Business Men Take Part.

The men will be played by Carl Stockholm, west side business man, and Walter H. Buescher, publisher of the Garfieldian and Austin News. Thru the amplifiers will come the words of the cartoon, spoken by Radio Actor Howard Hoffman.

As the spoken words unfold the theme of the scene, the lights will be dimmed. When they are brightened again the corn shocks will have become brilliantly hued teepees and 1,000 "Injuns" will be "hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat th' old Harry."

And now for the great moment. From the south gate the carriage and its white horses will enter. Mr. McCutcheon will be escorted to the equipage from his seat in the stands. As the trip up the field is started and the carriage weaves in and out among the teepees, the Indians will fall in behind in snake dance formation.

Crowd to Shout Its Welcome.

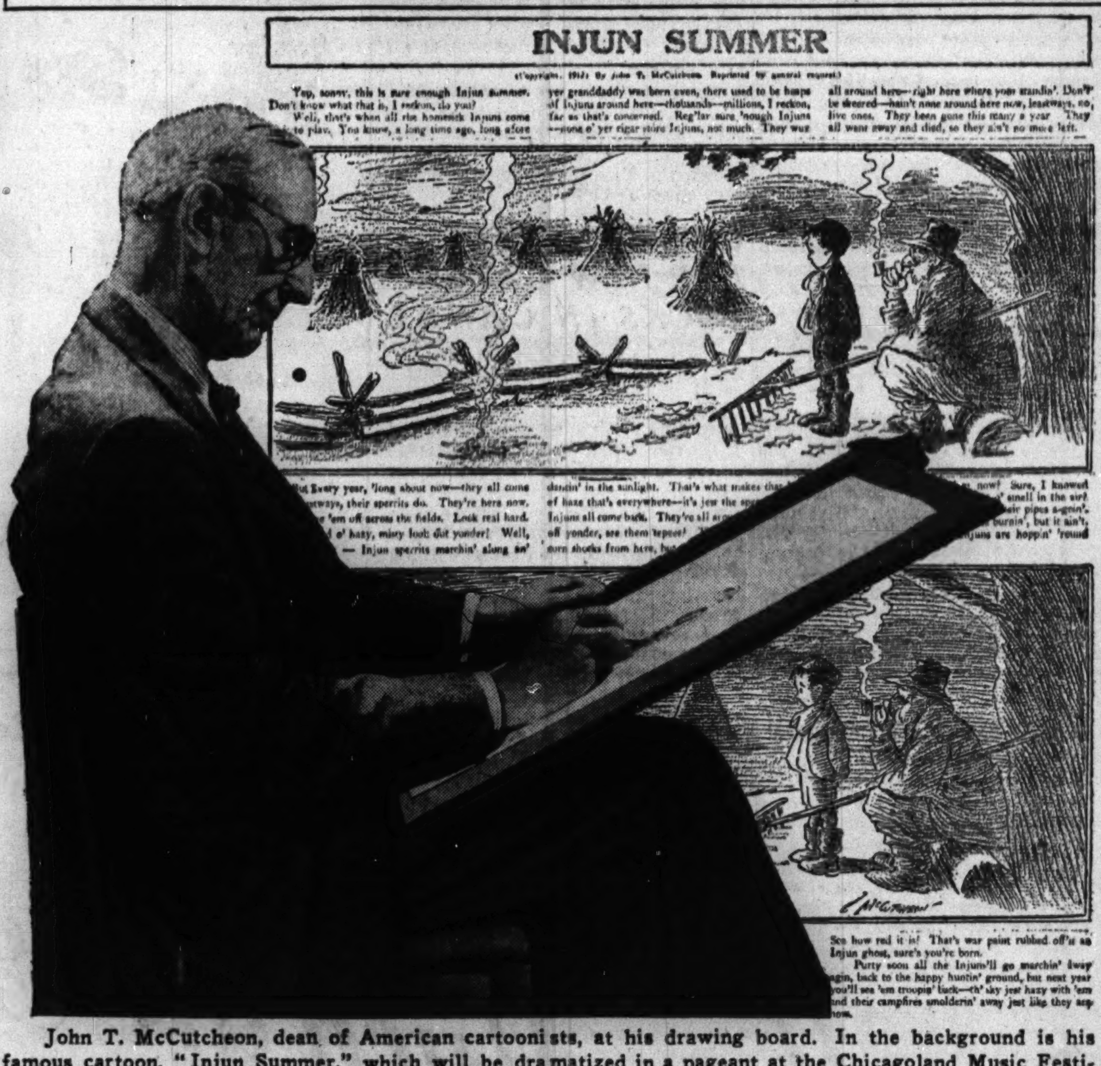
Then, from the vast audience, will come such a welcoming warwhoop as hasn't been heard along Chicago's lakefront in more than a century. When its echoes have died away, Mr. McCutcheon's voice will be heard, directing his driver to pick up one of the old men and his boy.

As the ride up the arena continues, the Festival orchestra will play "On the Banks of the Wabash," a reminder of Mr. McCutcheon's Hoosier birthplace; "Hail, Purdue," for his school, and "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" for his fraternity—the crowd joining in the last.

At the stage, the famous cartoonist will be introduced to the throng by Philip Maxwell, director of the Festival. Mr. McCutcheon will speak briefly and perhaps tell something of "Injun Summer's" history.

The deadline for entry to all Festival contests is tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. All signed entry blanks must be in the Festival office, 4th floor Tribune Tower, at that time. This includes vocalists outside Cook county, all bands, choral groups, instrumental soloists, baton twirlers, and flag swingers.

McCutcheon's Celebrated Cartoon to Be Dramatized



INJUN SUMMER
(Copyright, 1912: By John T. McCutcheon. Reprinted by general request.)
Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?
Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'. Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways, no live ones. They been gone this many a year. They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.
See how red it is! That's war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.
Purty soon all the Injuns'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

REPORTS HEAVY DEMAND HERE FOR ANTI-WAR TRACTS

America First Distributes 2 Million Pieces.

Two million pieces of America First literature have been distributed by the Chicago America First committee since January, Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, national vice chairman of the committee, announced yesterday.

Speeches of prominent citizens leading the fight to prevent the United States' involvement in the war, interviews with well known economists on the question, "Can Hitler Cripple America's Economy?" cartoons, automobile stickers, and mimeographed letters have been passed out to interested citizens in such heavy volume that the demand hardly can be met, Mrs. Fairbank said.

The Various Subjects.

Included in the various forms of literature available are the principles of America First, and the speeches of Gen. Robert E. Wood, acting chairman of the national America First committee; of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh; of the Most Rev. Francis J. L. Beckman, archbishop of Dubuque; of John T. Flynn, author and economist; of Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago; of Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain; and of United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Also available are interviews with Bernard M. Baruch, head of the war industries board in 1918; Raymond Moley, one of President Roosevelt's original brain trusters; and George N. Peek, former New Deal agricultural adviser.

Three Suburban Meetings.

During the coming week three suburban meetings will be held under auspices of the Chicago America First committee.

Tomorrow night Attorney Hugh O'Neill Jr. will address the Oak Park America First chapter, and Walter F. Boye, attorney and author of the book, "Steps Short of War Mean War," will speak before the Arlington Heights group. Wednesday night, Dr. Howard G. Swann, University of Chicago physiologist, will speak before the Park Ridge America First committee.

Snake Crawls Into Baby's Buggy; Dog Barks Alarm

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 2 [Special].—Rex, a fox terrier, got an extra ration of dog food tonight. When Rex today saw a five foot snake crawling into a baby carriage containing the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hammang, he rushed, barking, to Mrs. Hammang and directed her to the reptile, which she chased away.

ROB BAKERY OF $372.

Three armed robbers took $372 yesterday from the Albany Park bakery, 4640 North Kedzie avenue.

Report 3 New Infantile Paralysis Cases in Illinois

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—The total number of infantile paralysis cases in Illinois this year was raised to 69 today with reports of three new cases—one each in Cook, Fulton, and McLean counties. Dr. Roland R. Cross, state health director, said the number of infantile paralysis cases reported during the comparable period of 1940 was approximately one-half of this year's figure.

MICHIGAN CITY MUSIC FESTIVAL STAGED ON ISLE

Kilts and Grass Skirts Add Glamor to Event.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Scotsmen in kilts, lassies in grass skirts, and baton twirlers bedecked with gold and silver medals, paraded last night in the International Friendship gardens near Michigan City, Ind. The event was one of 13 music festivals being held preliminary to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's 12th annual Chicagoland Music festival to be held in Soldiers' field Aug. 16.

The stage was an island, the audience facing it from across a 100 foot stretch of water. Around were weeping willows, a field of 40,000 roses, and huge Lombardy poplars. On a natural amphitheater lounged hundreds of music lovers who did not wish to sit in the chairs roped off in boxes at the water's edge.

Resembles Beach at Waikiki.

The kilts were worn by the Ford Caledonia Bagpipers band, from Detroit, Mich. The grass skirts graced 25 pretty girls from South Bend, Ind., who played Hawaiian guitars and lolled about the stage as if they were on the beach of Waikiki.

Popular with the more than 2,500 guests were the Studebaker Male chorus of South Bend, directed by Ethel Stuart Gaumer, the Van Lente family male octet from Holland, Mich. A boy soprano, Dickie Barnett of Michigan City, sang in a clear, sweet voice, "The Holy City," by Adams and "I Love Life," by Manazucca.

Two Chicago Representatives.

The Chicagoland festival was represented by Carl Craven, community song leader, and by Capt. Howard Stube, who judged contests in the afternoon and led the massed bands and choruses in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" at the close of the show.

The best man singer and the best woman singer won applause. They were petite and pretty 21 year old Mary Frances Kabel, lyric soprano of Mishawaka, Ind., and Daniel Mooney, 30, lyric tenor of Valparaiso, Ind.

Miss Florence Smith, one of Michigan City's leading piano teachers, was general chairman of the festival. J. Virgil Stauffer, executive director of the gardens, assisted Miss Smith.

Other Winners in Contest.

Other contest winners, all of whom will enter the Tribune Festival finals on Aug. 16 in Chicago, are:

Men's chorus—YMCA chorus of Michigan City, directed by Walter Johnson.

Trombone — Clayton Marks, 15, Michigan City.

Fretted band — Royal Hawaiian Electric guitar band, directed by Geraldine Ellis of South Bend.

Baton twirling — Juvenile girls: Joan Eberhart, 11, Mishawaka, first; Patsy McCavit, 9, Elkhart, Ind., second; Patsy Cunningham, 11, Benton Harbor, Mich. Juvenile boys: Ted Smirinotis, 15, Sodus, Mich., first; Robert Glickstein, 15, Michigan City, second; Morton Barch, 16, Ligonier, Ind., third. Junior girls: Ernestine Franklin, 15, Elkhart, and Roberta Thompson, 14, Watervliet, Mich., and Ruth Ganser, 14, Mishawaka, all first; Joyce Thomas, 13, Watervliet, and Betty Duesler, 14, Elkhart, and Jean Stevenson, 17, White Pigeon, Mich., all second; Shirley Lewan, 14, Elkhart, third. Senior girls: Lorraine Frank, 18, Dowagiac, Mich., first; Margaret Smith, 18, Mishawaka, second. Senior boys: George Wallbridge, 18, Benton Harbor, Mich., first, and Blaine Gamble, 19, Mishawaka, second.

Flag swingers—Individual: Mary E. Smith, 17, Elkhart, first. Team: Miss Smith and Rith Putman, 17, Elkhart, first.

Band [class A]—St. Joseph, Mich., Municipal band, directed by Franklyn Wiltse.

6,000 EXPECTED AT EAST MOLINE MUSIC FESTIVAL

East Moline, Ill., Aug. 2 [Special].—A record attendance is expected tomorrow night at the fourth annual Mississippi Valley music festival in Soule stadium here. The festival crowd has grown each year and more than 6,000 music lovers are expected to hear and witness one of the most thrilling preliminary shows being given this summer thruout the midwest in connection with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's 12th annual Chicagoland Musical Festival, scheduled for Saturday night, Aug. 16, in Soldiers' field, Chicago.

The three highlights of the evening's entertainment, announced by Dr. F. E. Bollaert, East Moline physician who is the festival director, are Lanny Ross, radio and concert tenor, who is returning here for the second time by popular request; the Bennett Singers of Chicago, one of America's outstanding choral groups, and 10 year old Sonja Gamburg of Chicago, child prodigy pianist.

Among the contestants in the voice competition which will precede the evening show are Gladys Hokinson Clarke, coloratura soprano, Sherrard, Ill.; Ione Steele, contralto, Washington, Iowa; Ralph De Reus, bass, Rock Island, Ill.; and Robert F. Anderson, bass, Moline, Ill.

Age Pensioner Weds Girl, 16

Charles S. Shipman, 73, old age pensioner, and his bride, the former Emma Sue Schultz, 16.

Mother Approves

Zanesville, O., Aug. 2 (AP).—A 73 year old pensioner and a 16 year old girl were married here last night and the child's mother, Mrs. Lulu Rose Schultz, remarked, "It's fine to have some one to look after her." After two Muskingum county magistrates and the mayor of nearby Roseville said they refused to read the ceremony, Charles S. Shipman and Emma Sue Schultz were married by the Rev. W. W. Thompson of the First Baptist Holiness Church of God of America. Both are residents of nearby Darlington.

SCHOOLS TO GAIN IN IMPORTANCE, SAYS DR. SNYDER

They Haven't Failed, He Asserts on W-G-N.

American colleges and universities in the next few decades will become more important than ever in contributing to the national and international welfare. This prediction was made last night by Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, in a talk over the Mutual Broadcasting system from the studios of W-G-N. Dr. Snyder appeared as the guest speaker on the Chicagoland hour.

He told of receiving a letter from a friend whose young son was in doubt whether to go to college or to go to work in an arms factory at $35 a week. The writer also commented that with the world torn by war, some people feel that higher education has failed.

Speaker Denies Failure.

Higher education has not failed, said Dr. Snyder. It will go on after the war, and help to make a better world. After the war there will be need of university trained men and women who can think straight, he added, and a chance for such training should not be bartered for a $35 a week job.

The war has upset the normal calm of campus life, Dr. Snyder went on. Students have been drafted. Registrations are uncertain, and so is income. As a result, he asserted, expenses must be reduced. Whatever happens, it is the duty of the university, he declared, to turn out trained men and women who can help make democracy work.

"Our chief job," he added, "is to educate men and women for peace, and not for war."

Program's Musical Features.

The musical portion of the program on which Dr. Snyder spoke featured Marion Claire, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor. Miss Claire sang "Sweet Songs of Long Ago" by Charles, and with Miss Slater sang Offenbach's barcarolle to the musical background of the W-G-N concert orchestra, directed by Henry Weber. Miss Claire also joined Baggiore in three duets, "Serenade," "Deep in My Heart," and "Giannina Mia," by Friml.

The chorus, directed by Robert Trendler, aided in the last two numbers. The orchestra played the intermezzo from "Jewels of the Madonna," by Wolf-Ferrari, and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

The program was under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

Dog Saves Girl as Father Drowns in Rescue Attempt

Hardin, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—Arthur W. Angel, 40 years old, drowned in the Illinois river yesterday while attempting to save his daughter, Marion, 10, but his dog completed the rescue of the girl. The dog, an Airedale, jumped into the river with Angel and when he sank after reaching his daughter the dog caught the girl's clothing in its mouth and swam to shore with her.

NAVAL VESSELS BUILDING IN 109 PRIVATE YARDS

Contracts Spread Over 28 States.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—The navy department has 109 private shipyards engaged in building naval craft from patrol boats to battleships.

This represents a nine fold increase over a year ago when only 12 private yards were building naval vessels. The expansion has brought naval construction to more than half the states of the union. Building is now proceeding in 28 states as against only 9 states a year ago.

The expansion has strengthened the navy's position in congress. The extension of the building program to new yards has brought new congressional support from members of congress in whose states and districts the navy has placed jobs.

At the end of the fiscal year, last June 30, California with 17 led in the number of private yards holding navy contracts. New York was second with 14. The score by states is as follows:

Alabama	1	New Jersey	14
California	17	New York	14
Connecticut	3	Ohio	2
Delaware	2	Oregon	5
Florida	4	Pennsylvania	4
Georgia	1	Rhode Island	2
Illinois	1	South Carolina	1
Indiana	1	Tennessee	1
Louisiana	1	Texas	6
Maine	3	Virginia	1
Maryland	1	Washington	9
Massachusetts	5	West Virginia	1
Michigan	4	Wisconsin	5
Mississippi	1

The private yards with navy contracts in the Chicagoland area are as follows:

American Cruiser Co., Detroit, Mich.

Burger Boat Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

Defoe Boat and Motor Works, Bay City, Mich.

Fisher Boat Works, Detroit, Mich.

Henry C. Grebe & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Jeffersonville Boat and Machinery Co., Jeffersonville, Ind.

Lake Superior Shipbuilding Co., Superior, Wis.

Leathem Smith Coal and Shipbuilding Co., Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Manitowoc Shipbuilding Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

Peterson Boat Works, Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

Robinson Marine Construction Co., Benton Harbor, Mich.

Only the Defoe Boat and Motor Works, was engaged in naval construction in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1940.

EXPECT MILLION TO SEE LEGION'S ANNUAL PARADE

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 2 [Special].—A million persons are expected to see the American Legion's convention parade here Sept. 16. George R. Howitt, executive vice president of legion convention corporation, said today 23,000 grand stand seats will be sold to the public.

Howitt described the parade of the legion as the biggest and most colorful in the world. The parade will be conducted the second day of the convention, beginning at 9 a. m. About 100,000 legionnaires will march, and it will take 12 hours for the parade to pass.

Comprehensive War Report from Churchill Forecast

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to make a comprehensive statement on the war to the house of commons soon, informed sources said today. They declared he probably would discuss British aid to Russia, recent Japanese moves, and possible future German moves.

GERMANS BEHEAD WAR PROFITEER AND ACCOMPLICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—War profiteers in Germany may now expect the guillotine if they get caught. Erich Wilkie, 35 years old, of Leopoldshall, Prussia, and his convicted accomplice, Fritz Temple, 58, an official whom he had bribed, were executed in Berlin Thursday as "enemies of the people" after being convicted of profiteering by the special court at Magdeburg.

Wilkie was charged with attempting to make an illegal profit of 100,000 marks [about $4,000] as the middleman in transactions involving the delivery of products "essential for the combat of the war." Wilkie, it is revealed, actually got 60,000 marks [about $2,400] before he was caught.

Nearly 39 Million Raised in U. S. for Relief Abroad

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—Americans have contributed $38,823,904 for relief purposes in belligerent and occupied countries, the state department reported today. All organizations collecting relief funds in this country must register with and report to the department. Of the total collected up to June 30, $27,526,448 has been spent, leaving an unexpended balance of $7,324,076 on hand.

FORCE 12 TO LINE UP; SEIZE $831.

Two youthful bandits forced a dozen employes of the Vienna Model Bakery company, 1212 Congress street, to line up with their faces toward the wall yesterday and escaped with $831 taken from a woman cashier.

CHARGE GERMANS BARRED VICHY AID FOR INDO-CHINA

LONDON, Aug. 2 (AP).—De Gaullist headquarters here charged today that secret reports found in Syria showed that the German armistice commission forbade the Vichy government to send reënforcements, warplanes, or other materials to defend French Indo-China.

"There can be no more convincing proof than this of German conspiracy with Japan as to Tokio's demands over Indo-China," the Free French communique alleged. The De Gaulle officials said the reports were from the Vichy war ministry, and showed the Germans were "the real ministers of Vichy foreign policy."

THE TREATY OF HYDE PARK.

It is easy to reconstruct the steps which led Mr. Roosevelt and the country into the present predicament. In 1937 it was apparent that all his economic experiments had failed. Altho he had been reëlected, he was facing the responsibility of continued failure. Time was running against him and the situation was an unpleasant one. He had overreached himself in trying to pack the Supreme court and his prestige had suffered from his defeat in the senate.

Then, again in dealing with the court, he stepped on a loose board when he appointed Black to the Supreme bench and discovered he had named a man who had joined the Ku Klux Klan. That appointment met universal censure. The Alabama senator was already justly disliked for his arrogant conduct of an investigating committee, with agents known as the Black Hundreds.

It was time for Mr. Roosevelt to do something to divert the public attention and he did so in October at the Chicago bridge ceremony. He startled the country by exploding a war speech when America couldn't see the possibility of a war cloud over it. He assailed the bandit nations abroad and demanded that they be quarantined for the protection of the peaceable world from their plagues. This speech had the effect of taking Mr. Black off the front pages for a while. The country had reason to be startled, but could not at the time appreciate how grave those reasons were. Mr. Roosevelt was actually on his way to war, but people couldn't even suspect all his intentions. Most of them thought that he was doing the old trick of pointing to trouble abroad when he had trouble on his hands at home.

What else was behind this speech may be revealed in time. The French and British governments were beginning to be alarmed by the consequences of some of their mistakes. They had been playing the international game badly. The treaty of Versailles was falling to pieces. They began to suspect that they had made a terrible blunder in dealing with Herr Hitler. The British must assume more responsibility for this than the French. The Vichy government now says the French would have stopped the Nazis when they went into the Rhineland, but the British wouldn't support them. World opinion might have been against them if they had seemed to deny the German right to remilitarize German territory.

The British and the French turned to Mr. Roosevelt, seeking to scare Hitler, Mussolini, and Japan by shoving the United States to the front. Altho they welcomed the diversion in their favor, they appeared to give Mr. Roosevelt cold support when he responded.

It was, however, more than coincidental that his speech was exactly timed with the decision of the council of the league of nations to refer the question of Japanese aggression in China to the powers which had signed the pact guaranteeing China's territorial integrity. The people here didn't know that action had been taken when Mr. Roosevelt denounced the bandits. He did know it.

It became perfectly apparent that the purpose was not to do anything for China, because the Brussels conference was a fiasco before it got started. The purpose was to get the United States involved in foreign complications. Those tactics were successful. Mr. Roosevelt has been in the forefront of European power politics ever since. His new rôle was pleasing to him because it was pleasing to the aristocratic governments whose policies he was adopting.

As the tension increased abroad and as coming events became more predictable, more pressure was put upon Mr. Roosevelt. The climax which topped it off was the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Hyde Park. Mr. Roosevelt was thus approached on his most susceptible side. He fed hot dogs and beer to their majesties and, altho that was intended to impress the American people and show them how the top royalty of the earth could be introduced to the American way of life, Mr. Roosevelt's sensations were those of one elevated to importance in the monarchical system. The royal ruler unbent and the republican ruler was flattered. Hyde Park was the scene of an agreement which has been unfolding ever since.

Mr. Roosevelt believed in common with everybody else that the French army was better than the German and that the British navy was supreme at sea. He plunged into the game of politics in Europe, undoubtedly convinced that he was playing with the more powerful side and that his proclamations and declarations and his warnings to the disturbing nations would be backed up by a superior force. The open record discloses enough of what he did to frighten one side and encourage the other. The unopen record some time will show more of this.

He probably thought with others that Poland, altho deserted and betrayed by Russia, would be able at least to soften the German army before being overwhelmed and that in allying himself with France and Great Britain he was with the ultimate victors and would be at the peace table with them, adding his dictate to the others. When the disasters in western Europe began with the allied failures in Norway and extended all over the Low Countries and into Flanders, Mr. Roosevelt was in the war as far as he personally could get, openly promising all aid to France and Britain.

In the battle of Flanders he advised that French troops be moved from the frontier of Italy, which had not yet delivered its stab. Reynaud, the then premier of collapsing France, appealed to him for the aid to continue resistance, and he promised everything but an expeditionary force. France was urged to keep up the fight and retire to its overseas empire, if necessary. After France capitulated Mr. Roosevelt urged Mr. Churchill to fight on. He urged Greece and Jugo-Slavia to resist and promised aid. Constant promises of aid were given China.

Every military reverse in the war in which Mr. Roosevelt had involved himself got him deeper into it. He had now been a party to so much havoc that he could not see where he could stop.

He has thrown everything he could of American resources, money and material without stint into the conflict with which he identified himself four years ago and he has wanted to throw men. He wanted to throw men into the fighting in Serbia and Greece. He has wanted to send them to Africa. He is told by British generals and British ministers that the war cannot be won without American manpower. That is the next step in his program and he is poised to take it.

Then the treaty of Hyde Park, the promise given the king of England, will have been honored by Mr. Roosevelt.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The Auditorium theater, together with the hotel and office building which adjoin it, is being closed. There is, fortunately, every reason to expect that the closing is only temporary and to hope that before the winter season the properties will again be at the service of the community. They will be if the people of Chicago have the pride and the good sense to contribute 3 or 4 hundred thousand dollars for the preservation of the noblest music room to be found anywhere in the world, an architectural masterpiece.

A nonprofit corporation, the Auditorium Music Foundation, has been chartered to take over the properties. Terms of transfer have been arranged which are anything but exacting. As soon as the transfer has been made, the theater which occupies well over half the site will be exempt from future taxation. The hotel and the office buildings, even in recent years, have earned more than enough to meet their share of the taxes, and there is little doubt that they can continue to do so after the buildings have been reopened. The contributions from the public will be spent for new heating and power equipment and other unavoidable outlays of the sort. Structurally, the buildings are in excellent condition, according to a recent engineering study.

If the Auditorium is lost, the time will come within a few years when the taxpayers will be called upon to pay for a substitute hall worthy of the city. The cost will be 10 or 20 times $400,000, and when it has been spent the city will have a building which in all probability will be neither as handsome nor as serviceable as the present one. Acoustically it cannot be better.

The Tribune is persuaded that Chicago wants and needs the Auditorium. We have confidence in the citizens who have been selected to take possession of the properties in the name of the community. The Tribune has no doubt that when the time comes for public subscriptions its readers will wish to do their share.

PROGRESS AGAINST SYPHILIS.

Surgeon General Parran of the United States Public Health service has congratulated Mayor Kelly upon the success achieved by Chicago in the campaign against syphilis. If the effort is continued, said Dr. Parran, Chicago will have proved that syphilis can become as rare a disease in an American city as smallpox. Already it is becoming somewhat difficult to find new cases for purposes of demonstration in the medical schools.

Dr. Parran quoted figures provided by his assistant, Dr. O. C. Wenger, which show a remarkable reduction in the number of victims and particularly in the number of new cases. The improvement coincides with the campaign against venereal disease undertaken by The Tribune four years ago. In the year just completed fewer than 600 new cases were reported, a reduction of 150 from the previous year and of 600 from two years ago.

The Tribune takes great satisfaction in the knowledge that it defied the long-standing taboo against popular discussion of venereal diseases; that it proposed the enactment of the law requiring medical examination before marriage, and that it has given encouragement to the health authorities thruout the campaign. The goal of a syphilis-free community is in sight.

Some of the campaigns we have waged have taken a good deal longer. Many years were required to free the steel industry in Chicago from the restraints imposed by the Pittsburgh-plus pricing system. Progress has been made toward a rational extension of daylight saving, but more remains to be done. We do not always win right away, but we generally win in the end.

NO PLACE FOR A CHAMELEON.

The British naval air force has bombed the Finnish harbor at Petsamo and the admiralty reports that "great damage was done to port facilities." Last year when the Finns were fighting the Russians the British said they were trying to get aid to Petsamo to help out the gallant little country which now, still fighting the Russians, gets bombed by the friend as a diversion in favor of the Russians, who are the allies of the British, to whom Finland is an enemy. In this new war Britain has delivered something to the Finns, but it isn't aid.

In London the Poles and the Russians have signed an agreement by which Russia professes to renounce the territory of Poland grabbed when Hitler was overrunning part of the country and permitting his then pal and brother in arms, Joe Stalin, to have a large slice of the unhappy land with its stricken population. Polish prisoners taken in the outrage of 1939 will form an army, estimated at about 200,000, to fight for their tormentors under the Russian high command.

Reports from Vichy say that two divisions of French volunteers will join the German army on the Russian front to fight under the German command against the bolshevists. Some Italian troops are reported to have made an appearance with the Germans, and the French contingents may be fraternizing with the soldiers of Il Duce, who gave France the stab in the back. The hospitals in Syria have many French soldiers who were shot by their late allies in the struggle for that country.

Harry Hopkins, whose Washington address is the White House, has bobbed up in Moscow and is in conference with Joe Stalin in the Kremlin, promising him all aid if he will continue the fight for the four freedoms. He may also have assured him that if he has to skip the country he can join the crowned heads on this side of the water and may expect to be an overnight guest of Mr. Roosevelt.

You don't have to be a chameleon. Anything would blow up on this.

AMERICAN POLICY AND BRITAIN

[From the Arizona Daily Star: July 20.]

The war now raging between communist Russia and Nazi Germany should bring to an end and silence all the past talk about various ideals being at stake in this spreading titanic struggle. Those who screamed about Christianity being an issue now see their sentiments arraigned on the side of godless Russia. And so it goes with those other ideals of aggression, treachery, violation of treaties, and democracy. It was the communist régime that exterminated democracy and that first openly boasted about welching on treaties, and first glorified the ideal of atheism as a political ideal. Nor can we say that dictators have much in common or mutual respect. They will fight and betray each other. The war has now become openly what it has actually been since it started, a struggle of conflicting political powers in the great field of world politics.

In spite of the fact that the falsity of the idealistic issues has now become exposed, America's position and interest in its outcome have not necessarily been changed. They have merely been made more truly apparent. As a consequence, it should now be possible for America to adopt a truer and more correct policy in keeping with her interests.

America is a world power with the duties and responsibilities of a world power. As a result of this war in Europe, and in the orient, too, America faces the potential danger, if Britain succumbs, of having a hostile combination in the Atlantic at the same time she faces another hostile power in the Pacific. That is a deadly serious matter involving our very national existence. On the other hand, all the talk about the Germans invading America as soon as England falls is so much bunk, particularly since America has begun her rearmament. Nor is there any danger of a Japanese invasion. The danger would develop in the future when our interests in South America and Africa might easily clash at the same time they clashed in the orient. This danger would be a real one, because both Japan and Germany have scores to settle with us. If Britain falls we would have to face this combination of hostility alone, and bear indefinitely in the future an enormous armament burden. Moreover, if Britain falls, would America remain disinterested in the conquest of Australia and New Zealand and the East Indies by Japan? That conquest would take place as certainly as the sun rises unless America should intervene. But how effective would our intervention be if we had to face the future Germany and Japan alone?

America's interest in the survival of Britain is an undeniable one, but this interest should not be taken to mean that America must sign a political blank check in favor of Britain. A line of demarcation needs to be drawn, and it can be drawn, which will bind us to save Britain, but restrain Britain from using America as a tool in attaining unjustified British ambitions. For instance, if America must blindly go to the aid of Britain in order that Britain can re-Balkanize Europe as was done in 1919, the war will be a futile one. Such a program would re-create the very causes of the present war. Twenty years hence we would be called upon to bail out Britain again. If America must sign a blank check in favor of Britain's attempt to maintain a status quo forevermore, again America would make a tragic mistake. Nothing is more certain in the world than change.

At this time America needs to be thinking of how the future peace is to be policed. Suppose America does go to war and does break German power. Who is going to police Europe and maintain order among those many different jealous tribes of people that inhabit that continent? Britain cannot do it alone, nor could France and Britain together do it. Therefore, unless the American people are willing to maintain an army in Europe forevermore, they must recognize the rise of a German dominated continent and the eclipse and decay of France. Consequently it should be the American policy to bring into power those elements in Germany that do have a high sense of honor, who can be trusted, and who have contributed great good to the world. That element working with Britain and America could bring undreamed of good to mankind.

How are these elements in Germany going to be brought to power? By threatening to destroy Germany and keep her forevermore under a British-American heel, or by recognizing Germany's primary interest in central and eastern Europe? Will Hitler be overthrown more quickly by offering Germany an honorable and just peace or by telling the 80,000,000 Germans they are going to be held in bondage forever? Certainly if no offer is made that distinguishes between a Hitler Germany and an honorable Germany, we must look forward to a long war of attrition that will end with loss of freedom everywhere.

As a part of this policy of taking command of a situation and holding British political ambitions in check, of being the head of the dog and not the tail, America must take into consideration the military situation. At the present moment it is an illuminating one. With the bulk of the German army engaged irrevocably on the Russian front Britain still cannot take the offensive. She lacks the man power to do it. Assuming that Germany does break Russia within the next year, which she will surely do, she will be able to move back to the western front at least 100 of the 150 divisions she has engaged on the eastern front. To conquer Germany it would be necessary to America to organize, train, and transport overseas at least 100 divisions. We have 31 divisions at the present. Where would this expeditionary force land to engage the German armies? Portugal and Spain or Africa offer the only opportunities, and those opportunities will be lost if America continues to delay.

Only a few days ago Gen. Wavell declared in a public interview that Germany could be beaten only by engaging her armies, and that American man power would be necessary. This statement should end the dreams and fairy tales about bombing Germany into submission. Faced with a threat of extermination the Germans would resist bombing just as heroically as have the British.

As the Russian-German war removes the smoke screen and fog of ideals generated to deceive the public, the American people should consider their position in the world at the present moment on the basis of self-interest, on the basis that the struggle is one of conflicting political powers, that America is a world power and must consider her interest as such. That interest calls for saving Britain from destruction, but it does not call for writing a blank check in favor of Britain. It calls for America taking command of a situation, taking command of her own destiny, justifiably and frankly predicating American aid to Britain on known limited political objectives rather than the totally unknown ones at the present time.

WITHOUT JUDGMENT, EMOTIONS WILL LEAD US ASTRAY.

The one who is utterly lacking in emotion misses many pleasurable thrills. But sensibilities must be trained, and the harness must be strong enough to prevent a runaway. Imagination—projecting thoughts into the future—is a constructive faculty. But this does not mean that we should allow our thoughts to become reckless drivers in the game of life.

It takes a good deal of intelligence, and a fair amount of will power, to keep one's feet upon the ground when the crowd is surging to and fro—blowing hot and again blowing cold. The man or woman with a highly organized nervous system must likewise possess an intellect trained for its orderly operation.

No one can assert truthfully that this old globe is not better off because of our masters of the stage. Mention may be made of Henry Irving, Edwin Booth, Richard Mansfield, E. H. Sothern, Sarah Bernhardt, Minnie Fiske, Maude Adams, and Ellen Terry. Each was able to play upon our heartstrings at will. Great orators likewise have portrayed the art of phrasing, inflection, and tone of voice so that—regardless of the logic of a given discourse—audiences have been moved profoundly. But when it is over we realize that acting isn't reality, and the effects of eloquence may fade with the last echoes of the speaker's voice.

Most of us are obliged to face existence as a series of inexorable facts, where there is no room for weakness, no matter how amiable. Anthony failed to achieve a world empire because he was unable to keep his head. He yielded to the fascination of a siren.

We talk of calm and sane thinking, but what is sanity? First of all, good health is necessary, and the exercise of common sense at all times, and under all conditions. Even hysteria may be madness because the ability to think things thru has been lost. Loyalty to an ideal cannot excuse a distortion of truth. The more impersonal, the more farsighted one can be—is the best guarantee of devotion to a principle.

Napoleon went down in defeat because he believed himself omnipotent. As his career advanced, he trusted more to "hunches" than to analysis. He steadily developed more pride—more arrogance. Never a man of his word, when it suited him to do so, he betrayed even himself; he spurned peace, when he might have had it. He made one march too many—to Moscow. Robespierre, in like pattern, thought himself the master of revolutionary France. History now tells us that he was but a puppet in the hands of a band of unscrupulous men.

For the happiness of all of us it is better perhaps that our leaders shall not be quite so brilliant. The danger lies in the fact that one so endowed may exhibit a warped mentality with delusions involving three-quarters of his character. I well recall a patient in one of our mental hospitals who would talk unceasingly about the conspiracies leveled against him by his fellow inmates and the nursing staff. Nevertheless his performances on the piano were superb. The instrument translated the only sound portion of his intellect.

Would that we all could be sensible men and women, endowed with determination not to be obsessed with or confused by error, seeking only the truth. Emotional—yes! Imaginative—to a superlative degree, but unyielding to the cry of passion. The thing we must guard against is unreasoning bias. This demands a type of judgment which is quite different from the wild exultation of the lover.

NOT USUALLY.

D. F. C. writes: Is poor circulation a forerunner of diabetes?

REPLY.

Not as a rule. Diabetes is frequently accompanied by the obliteration [plugging] of capillaries, particularly those in the extremities. Larger vessels may then become involved. This in turn may lead to diabetic gangrene. Good circulation demands the expert use of insulin and extra attention to the skin.

LEARN TO DUCK.

P. writes: My girl friend plays baseball—man's style. I was wondering if such strenuous exercise would affect her later?

REPLY.

Yes, but only to her advantage. Look to your own physical laurels if you wish to maintain the apocryphal rôle of head of the household. Encourage her to play all positions on the team except that of pitcher.

HAS UNCLE SAM GONE CRAZY?

Lincoln Neb., July 29.—The State Journal quotes the Sidney Telegram stating that a field of 230 acres of wheat estimated at 6,900 bushels was being plowed under because of AAA regulations. The farmer, Robert Garrard, was refused the use of this wheat for feed, even if it was cut for hay.

Protest meetings by wheat farmers are held all over the country because they are prohibited from using "excess quota wheat" for the feeding of live stock, even their chickens.

Two weeks ago your paper had the following: "Because lease-lend purchases of eggs for Britain have raised prices in this country to the highest levels in years, dealers will import large quantities from Argentina, they disclosed yesterday. Up until 1938 Argentina was our best export egg market.

"C. E. Borden, of the Chicago office of a New York produce house, announced that his company would purchase 60,000 dozen eggs a week. Borden said his company had contracted for 360,000 dozen—thirty railway carloads—and is considering importing eggs from Argentina on a much larger scale if the shipments are consistently good in quality."

With all our surplus wheat we are importing large quantities of wheat from Canada to eastern states where it is ground for poultry feed in competition with our wheat. In addition to this we are importing hogs from Canada which are slaughtered in the United States and then given to Great Britain under the "lend-lease" program.

This whole thing doesn't make sense. We buy wheat and hogs from Canada, eggs from South America, and then give them away! Our own farmers are penalized and prohibited the feeding of their own stock with wheat raised on their own farm when at the same time they are urged to raise more meats and eggs. Have we gone crazy? Isn't it time we used a little common sense in managing our domestic affairs by placing the interests of our farmers and our people first rather than be meddling in other nations' affairs all over the world?

Henry C. Luckey,
Member of Congress, First Nebraska District.

A RAILWAY TRACK CROSSING.

Chicago, July 25.—It is unbelievable that when we are all trying to make Chicago a safe place to live in that a condition of this kind exists: The surface lines on North Central and Peterson avenue stop their buses as follows: The Central bus stops south of the railroad track just north of Peterson avenue, and the Peterson bus stops at Central avenue just north of the railroad tracks, compelling the passengers going either way to get off and cross the railroad tracks.

I am very much interested in having this dangerous condition corrected. I would appreciate your help in this matter. O. H. Duncan.

HUSBANDS ACCESSORIES.

Chicago, July 27.—It is time that husbands who take their wives to abortionists should be held as accessories before the fact. The man who fires the bullet certainly is as guilty as the man who tries to extract it. Having had "weeks" on everything else, why not a "National—Do You Know Where Babies Come From—Week"? J. H. M.

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Chicago, July 28.—My advice to mothers-in-law: Do not live with your daughter-in-law and do not let her live with you.

You seldom hear criticism of daughters-in-law because the love of a mother for her son is too great to hurt his feelings by telling him the cruel things a daughter-in-law can inflict. Usually when she comes into a family she is selfish to the last degree; considers herself a superstructure of human superiority. Simply sets herself on a high pedestal to be adored and petted.

I am writing only of cheap, ill bred people. There are some splendid mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law but they belong to the considerate, right thinking people who know how to give and take. I once knew a daughter-in-law who came into a widow's home after marrying the only son. She took control of the house at once, ordered the mother-in-law into a back bedroom, threw out all her furniture and personal photographs that she had cherished for years, and told her to stay in her room. Now, the house belonged to the mother-in-law and this dear old lady took this unkind treatment without a word and also helped to support the son's family.

Thank God there are few people of that type in this world! When a daughter-in-law wants to make a maid out of you the best thing you can do is to go on relief if you have no other means of support. Nellie Johnson.

FINDS POOR CAR SERVICE.

Chicago, July 25.—I had to go to the Central Steel and Wire company offices, 3000 West 54th street. Having finished my business I walked to Richmond street and waited 7½ minutes for an east bound car. It ran right by me. I walked east one block, South Francisco avenue. I waited there 7½ minutes and the second car ran right by me. I then walked east to California avenue. I waited there 7 minutes and finally boarded a car No. 3201 at about 11:45 a. m.

These cars that ran by me were nearly empty. There are no signs at any of these streets notifying the public that the cars do not stop there. I am writing this to notify the public of the rotten service handed to the public by the Chicago Surface Lines. B. L. Sherman.

8,000 MILES FROM OUR SHORE.

Glen Ellyn, July 29.—In Vancouver, Canada, there are posters showing pictures of Churchill and Roosevelt over the title "Our Defenders." I think it's going just a little too far for any branch of the British government to tie our President in with their dictator in this manner.

I am definitely in sympathy with The Chicago Tribune program and was much interested in the map you had in The Tribune the other morning showing the distance of about 8,000 miles from our western coast to Indo-China. I think we have no business over there and we certainly should not assume the position of dictator to a nation located 8,000 miles from our western shore. E. W. Hill.

FOUR FREEDOMS, LTD.

Chicago, July 24—I have sent the following telegrams to Senators Brooks and Wheeler:

"Soldiers cannot complain or petition their congressmen on account of army regulations. Citizens cannot speak for soldiers because the powers that be call it sabotage. War mongers and armchair patriots have the only right to speak in name of four freedoms and to decide the fate of our boys!

"O, democracy and freedom, what crimes are committed in thy names! Taxation without representation is tyranny, but disfranchisement of 80 per cent of the American people is democracy betrayed and crucified. Please, Mr. Senator, sponsor or support a bill that the constitutional right of petition shall not be abridged by any army regulation. Such right is not denied to the veriest criminal in prison.

"The first amendment to the constitution provides that: 'Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.'

"The constitution has always been 'the supreme law of the land'."

Frederick J. Bertram.

REAL MEANING OF "DEFENSE."

Chicago, July 27.—New Dealers controled by international war mongers ask the small factory, store, and shop owners and their employés for unity and loyalty and in the same breath tell them they will be forced to close factory, store, and office and face unemployment because raw materials will not be available to them.

They are told that their earning power will be eliminated and that taxes will be higher, which means what they have earned and saved will be taken by the government for "defense."

This misnomer is and should be given its proper name. It is aiding Britain to continue domination of the seas and regain domination of their exploiting economic policy over Europe, the direct cause of all past wars.

There is not and never was any danger to America from Germany. A. B.

KIPLING ON THE RUSSIANS.

Evanston, Ill., July 31.—At this time when old friends are discarded and strange new friends are taken on, it might be well to re-read one of the famous tales of Rudyard Kipling, "The Man Who Was." The opening paragraph reads: "Let it be clearly understood that the Russian is a delightful person till he tucks in his shirt. As an oriental he is charming. It is only when he insists upon being treated as the most easterly of western peoples instead of the most westerly of easterns that he becomes a racial anomaly extremely difficult to handle. The host never knows which side of his nature is going to turn up next."

These words of wisdom first appeared in a magazine in April, 1890. If they were true then, how much greater is their truth today! L. R. Carpenter.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the answers on page 10, part 2.

1. A farmer who set out a field of Catawbas would expect a harvest of Trees Buckwheat Grapes Plums.
2. How far apart are the barbs on a standard barbed wire fence? 6 inches 8 inches 10 inches 12 inches.
3. Which of these religious denominations has the largest membership in the United States? Lutheran Methodist Baptist Catholic.
4. When a farmer pitches hay, his fork usually has how many prongs? 2 3 4 5.
5. A comptometer would most likely be found in a Machine shop Doctor's office Dairy barn Bank.
6. You deserve one point for each correct identification of the special business ability or talent of the five biblical women named below:

[a] Lydia
[b] Dorcas
[c] Priscilla
[d] Rachel
[e] Miriam

[v] Seamstress
[w] Dry goods saleswoman
[x] Shepherdess
[y] Singer
[z] Tent maker

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

JUDGMENT.

Chicago, July 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a judgment dated and recorded in March, 1931, still a lien on a property or [2] would such a judgment have to have been renewed to be valid as a lien now? 3. Must a judgment be renewed within seven years? 4. If renewal was neglected, is it necessary to file a new suit or [5] is there another proceeding? 6. Is a judgment of $75 a lien on real estate? 7. What minimum amount of judgment constitutes a lien on real estate? M. R.

1. No. In the sense that the judgment becomes dormant after seven years, unless additional steps are taken.
2. Yes. See 1.
3. See 1.
4. The renewal proceedings are something like a new suit except that there is not much opportunity for contest.
5. See 4.
6. Depends on the court and on what steps are taken. If you employed an attorney for the proceedings he is in a better position to advise you than we are.
7. There is no minimum.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, July 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the sales tax apply to second hand cars? H. C.

The fact that goods are second hand or even that they have previously been the subject of taxable sales, does not exempt a dealer from the sales tax. Under rule 15, as applied to sales made before Dec. 1, 1938, goods acquired by the dealer as "trade-ins" were exempt on resale, but under revised rule 15, effective after Dec. 1, 1938, the sale of the trade-in property carries the same tax liability as the sale of any other new or second hand property.

SALE AGREEMENT.

Chicago, July 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a five months' exclusive sale agreement is signed for the sale of a property by one party of a joint tenancy, can the agent compel sale at the agreed price? M. C.

The other joint tenant is not bound unless he authorized his co-tenant to act as his agent, but the party who signed would be bound, so that damages could be collected from him.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEATH FACTORY NEAR JOLIET IS STARTING TO HUM

Shells and Bombs Rolling Out of Big New Plant.

One of the largest munitions plants in the world, the 80 million dollar Wilmington works in Will county, is beginning to hum with productive activity.

Nine months ago the project's 65 square miles were Illinois farmland. Now the area, 19 miles south of Joliet on U. S. highway alternate 66, is dotted with nearly a thousand buildings designed to manufacture death—high explosives, bombs, and shells.

The first of four loading lines at the Elwood ordnance plant started turning out completed shells on July 12, well ahead of schedule. Yesterday army officers said two more lines will start soon, while the fourth, recently authorized, is already under construction. In addition to shell loading operations the Elwood plant will assemble and install fuses.

Nearly 8,500 workmen, whose weekly pay roll totals $500,000, are rushing the work to completion.

Progress at Kankakee.

The Elwood plant's twin, the Kankakee ordnance works, which will manufacture TNT, tetryl, and lead azide—the three ingredients that put the punch in any successful bomb—is nearly finished. Kankakee will supply all the ingredients with which Elwood's bombs and shells will be loaded. If Kankakee's production outstrips Elwood's the excess will be sent elsewhere.

More than 10,000 persons with a weekly pay roll of $640,000 are working on the Kankakee plant. The army ordnance department daily is conducting final examinations of finished buildings.

Military secrecy shrouds the production figures of both plants, altho it was announced earlier that 144 million pounds of explosives would be manufactured yearly. Since then, operations have been expanded.

Shell casings, forged in other factories, are shipped to the munitions works. When they arrive they are handled like any other merchandise. But by the time they leave, they are being handled "delicately, to say the least," according to Lieut. D. P. Tunstall, army intelligence.

Clean and Dustproof.

All of the buildings along the mile long assembly line are as clean and dustproof as an operating room. The shell casings are placed on conveyors and are not touched until they are taken off the end of the line, loaded.

There is one especially delicate step in the operation in which workmen figure. That is the pouring.

TNT, as manufactured, resembles brown sugar. For bomb purposes it must be melted—over fireless cookers—before it is poured into the shell. After the TNT is melted it resembles brown sugar syrup and is run into a small vat on wheels. A workman rolls the vat to where the shells are waiting.

Another workman, using an ordinary tin bucket, dips up the fluid and pours it into the container, like a farmwoman pouring milk into a 10 gallon can.

What If It Slips?

"What if the workman should have slippery hands and the pail slipped?" Lieut. Tunstall was asked.

"These workmen don't have slippery hands," he replied. "But I'll wager that nine out of ten times, nothing would happen. The 10th time—unpleasant thought, isn't it?"

All of the buildings are widely separated so that a mishap in one would be unlikely to set off a series of explosions. Army officers said the most modern designs have been used thruout to reduce the possibility of accidents.

Every person entering the works is searched for matches, and when the plants are in full operation, metal clasps on clothing and nails on shoes will be prohibited.

10,000 Employés Altogether.

About 7,000 persons, including 3,000 women, will be employed in the operation of the Elwood plant, while 3,000 men will operate the Kankakee section.

Two eastern firms will operate the works, E. I. du Pont de Nemours the explosives manufacturing, and Sanderson and Porter company, New York, the shell loading, altho the government owns the entire layout.

The du Pont personnel department is interviewing all types of powerhouse and maintenance workers, as well as others, who will be needed in the operation of the powder plants.

Wins a Divorce

MRS. RUBY CARROLL.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 2 [Special].—"Miss Nebraska of 1936," the former Ruby Hart of Clay Center, Neb., who was so bored by Atlantic City when she entered the national beauty competition that year that she flew back to Nebraska after one day in the east, received a default divorce decree today from Charles C. Carroll, with whom she eloped in the fall of 1936.

ARMY ORDERS 25 MORE OFFICERS TO PHILIPPINES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The army general staff today ordered 25 officers to the Philippines to strengthen the newly created United States army forces of the far east.

Whether any troops will accompany the officers was not announced, but it was presumed that these and other recent increases in the officer corps in the Philippines indicate an increase in the garrison there.

Previously the war department had disclosed that a group of officers would sail for the Philippines from San Francisco on or about Aug. 7. Today's orders show that four field artillery officers, including three lieutenant colonels and one major, are to sail Sept. 18. Three other field artillery officers, including one lieutenant colonel, a captain, and a lieutenant and 18 coast artillery officers, including four captains and 14 lieutenants, were ordered to sail about Aug. 30.

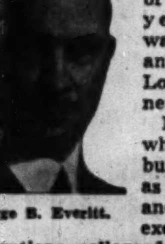
GEORGE EVERITT, BANKER, DIES AS HE TAKES STROLL

Stricken at Age of 56 Near His Winnetka Home.



George B. Everitt.

George Bain Everitt, chairman of the Merchandise National bank and former president of Montgomery Ward & Co., died of a heart attack yesterday. He was 56 years old and lived at 60 Locust road, Winnetka.

Mr. Everitt, who began his business career as an accountant and became an executive of many corporations, collapsed while walking in front of 815 Elm street in the suburb. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Clarence Minnema, who has an office near by.

He was born in Mitchell, S. D., and went to New York as a young man. He later became system manager of the National Cloak and Suit company. From 1916 to 1918 he was general manager of the Encyclopedia Britannica corporation, and from 1918 to 1919 assistant to the operating vice president of American International corporation.

After two years as secretary and treasurer of the European Textile corporation, Mr. Everitt joined the executive staff of Montgomery Ward in 1921.

Steps to Presidency.

He was successively assistant to the president, operating vice president, vice president, and general manager. He was named president in 1926 and served in that capacity until 1932.

He leaves his widow and two children, George Bain Jr. and Mary Louise.

CLIPPER BRINGS BRITAIN'S 'NO. 2' AT WASHINGTON

New York, Aug. 2 [Special].—Sir Ronald Campbell, British diplomat knighted recently after his work in the Balkans, arrived today on the Atlantic Clipper to take the post of Britain's No. 2 man in Washington, under Viscount Halifax, the ambassador. The Clipper carried 32 passengers and 3,556 pounds of mail.

Asked if he might replace Lord Halifax, Sir Ronald said, "O, no. I don't believe that's true." He explained that the ambassador was slated to go on leave shortly, in which case he would become chargé d'affaires.

He said the British people do not talk much of participation in the war by American troops. "That, they think, is something very much up to you," he added.

As minister to Jugo-Slavia, Sir Ronald was credited with swaying the Balkan nation last spring to resist axis invasion.

AUTOIST JAILED AFTER ACCIDENT DIES IN HIS CELL

Louis Mistro, 53 years old, died in a cell at the Burnside police station yesterday after his car had struck a pole at 132d street and Indiana avenue. He was arrested at the scene of the accident on a charge of reckless driving. The police did not take him to a hospital because they said he told them he had not been injured. A coroner's investigation was ordered to determine whether or not the accident caused Mistro's death. Mistro, a brick maker, lived at 14305 Grant street, Dolton.

F. John Simpson, 31, of 6106 Blackstone avenue, died in Jackson, Mich., Friday night of injuries suffered when his car struck a trestle there.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 547 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 387 were killed in Chicago, where 14,283 were injured in the same period.

SEA WAR COSTS SWEDEN 751 LIVES AND 109 VESSELS

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—The war at sea has cost Sweden 751 lives and 109 ships, the Swedish American News Exchange said today.

The vessels lost totaled 427,465 deadweight tons, the agency reported. Advices from Sweden said four vessels were sunk during July but did not give the names of the craft.

On the brighter side, the exchange reported that a 4,571 ton motorship freighter arrived in Gothenberg [Goteberg] on Thursday with a mixed cargo from New York, from where it sailed two weeks ago. Licensed thru both German and British blockades, she was the fourth ship to reach Gothenberg safely from New York in the last two weeks.

Poll at Champaign Shows 702 of 762 Oppose War

We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America yesterday announced the results of a poll taken at the Champaign county fair last week on the question, "Do you approve the United States entering a foreign war?" The poll, counted by George S. Hurd, mayor of Champaign, showed 702 persons opposed to entering such a war and 60 in favor of entering it.

Hopes to Ferry Planes

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

GLADYS O'DONNELL.

Long Beach, Cal., Aug 2 (AP).—Tall, dark haired Gladys O'Donnell, an instructor of army flying cadets and wife of J. Lloyd O'Donnell, manager of the new army school of aeronautics at Visalia, wants to ferry bombers to England. She wrote Col. Robert Olds, chief of the air corps ferry command, that she was "willing, able, and eager" when he asked if she would serve as ferry pilot or co-pilot. She started flying in 1929 and won the women's national air Derby the next year. In 1938 she won the Amelia Earhart memorial trophy race.

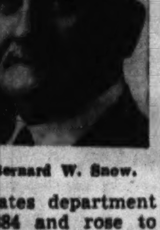
B. W. SNOW DIES; GRAIN AUTHORITY AND G.O.P. LEADER

Once Federal Statistician; Later Alderman.



Bernard W. Snow.

Bernard W. Snow, widely known grain authority and former Cook county Republican leader, died yesterday in the Albert Merritt Billings hospital. Mr. Snow entered the hospital July 15 after having been in failing health for several months. He was 76 years old.

Mr. Snow, a statistician, entered the United States department of agriculture in 1884 and rose to assistant statistician of the department.

Joins Swift & Co.

In 1892 he retired to become statistician for Swift & Co. in Chicago. Soon afterward he joined the grain brokerage firm of Bartlett Frazier & Co., of which he was vice president for a number of years until the company discontinued business.

In 1900 he organized the American Corn Kitchen at the Paris Exposition with Clark E. Carr, former United States minister to Denmark, to exploit the use of Indian corn as food. Mr. Snow had been a consultant and speaker on grain crops and grain marketing for many years.

His Political Career.

He was alderman of the 7th ward from 1903 to 1912, and chief bailiff of the Municipal court from 1922 to 1928. In 1930 he was elected chairman of the Cook county Republican Central committee, a post he held until 1932.

Mr. Snow lived at 6700 Crandon avenue. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Snow, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph M. Michaels.

Funeral services will be held at Tazewell, Tenn., tomorrow.

MEDAL AWARDED TO GEN. CHAFFEE, ILL IN HOSPITAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, seriously ill in a Boston hospital, was decorated today by the war department for "outstanding foresight, judgment and leadership" in organizing and commanding the army's new armored force.

Already possessor of the Distinguished Service medal for his World war services, Gen. Chaffee was presented with an oak leaf cluster citation, the equivalent of the DSM.

The presentation was made by Lieut. Col. George X. Cheves who represented Secretary Henry L. Stimson.

Gen. Chaffee recently relinquished command of the armored force because of illness. His successor was Maj. Gen. Jacob L. Devers.

50 YEARS OF LAIN & SON SERVICE

1941 marks five decades of business for Lain & Son. From that early beginning in 1891 has grown Chicago's largest funeral concern, with a preference of 30 to 1—thirty times the average.

This phenomenal growth has been based on two fundamental precepts. First: Lain & Son spare no thought or care in giving Chicagoans the finest service obtainable. Second: Lain & Son prices are always fair, with no extra charge made for the Imperial Quartet, use of beautiful chapels and modern equipment.

Lain & Son were the first in Chicago to inaugurate an advisory department to deal with the pre-arrangement of funerals. They were first to install air conditioning to purify and freshen the air, and they were first to include music by the Imperial Quartet and Hammond organist with every funeral in the chapels, if so desired.

The Lain & Son policy of giving MORE and BETTER service, regardless of cost and Chicago's acceptance of this finer type of funeral direction, is the reason for their leadership, and overwhelming preference.

Today Lain & Son receive more calls and conduct more funerals than any other director in the city.

OBITUARIES

Thomas B. Carson.

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 2 [Special].—Funeral services for Thomas B. Carson, 81 years old, well known industrialist who was raised here, will be held Tuesday morning at McGovern's funeral home here. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery. Mr. Carson was treasurer and director of French & Hecht, Inc., of Davenport, said to be the world's largest manufacturers of railway car wheels. The body will arrive here Tuesday from Los Angeles, Cal., where he died Thursday of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile. His son, Clark, will accompany the body. In 1881 Mr. Carson married Mae Louise Clark. She died last May 9. Surviving him, besides the son, are a daughter, Mrs. James Von Maur, and a brother, Robert N. Carson, both of Davenport.

Mrs. Lily MacLeish Day.

Mrs. Lily MacLeish Day, 80 years old, daughter of the late Andrew MacLeish, manager of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.'s retail store, died yesterday in the Presbyterian hospital. She was a graduate of Vassar college. Her husband, Charles Lewis Day, an executive of the Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co., died in 1936. BUY ALUMINUM TO STREAMLINE FEDERAL PLANT

Citizens, Meanwhile, Give Up Pans for Planes.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 2 [Special].—While American citizens are giving up coffee pots, curling irons, and ash trays in response to the government's plea for aluminum to build airplanes, the government itself is using large quantities of the metal in the routine business of building a New Deal dam.

Location of Grand Coulee Dam.

The reclamation division of the government today is awaiting the arrival here of a large consignment of fabricated aluminum ordered from a Cleveland, O., firm for use on a streamlined power house of the government's 200 million dollar Grand Coulee dam.

Thus far the so-called "aluminum famine," which prompted the owner of a large Portland chain store to tear out an aluminum store front in support of the airplane cause, has not been considered sufficiently serious to change the plans for the modernistic dam structure.

Strive for Ritzy Touch.

The aluminum being brought across the country will be used for windows, doors, louvers and glass block framing to give the government power house that ritzy touch that some believe can be provided only by this metal.

Frank A. Banks, the reclamation division's supervising engineer of Grand Coulee and general director of the project, said the aluminum contract had been signed with the Artistic Iron Products company of Cleveland on July 26, 1940.

Banks said the material is expected to arrive early next week and will be put in place early in the month. He would not disclose the amount of the contract.

However, officials of private building firms estimated that the many parts used in the ornate powerhouse, with its casement windows and other luxury features, along with the heavier aluminum material used in the control bay areas, might cost from $75,000 to $100,000.

Fail to Order Change.

It was learned from Grand Coulee attachés other than Banks that the government had made no effort to change the powerhouse material to steel, native wood or other metal in the place of aluminum. The Cleveland company was permitted to proceed with the fabrification, no effort being made to cancel the contract despite the drive of other government agencies to save aluminum.

Representatives of important companies engaged in construction business who were interviewed on the subject were unanimous in the opinion that Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, boss of the reclamation division, has the power instantly to halt the dam's use of aluminum, regardless of the contract.

START BUILDING CRUISER MIAMI; BARGE LAUNCHED

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP) — United States Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], speaking at the keel laying of the new cruiser Miami, asserted today that this "marks the forging of another hammer with which America expects to strike off the shackles of imprisoned mankind."

The keel of the 10,000 ton fighting craft, first warship to be built at Cramps' shipyards in 14 years, was put down six weeks ahead of schedule, and Pepper declared the occasion signifies "that, if freedom is to be won today in the world, it will be won not by soldiers or sailors or even men in the air, but by what the workmen do in America."

The ceremonies quickly followed the launching of the YR-29, first of three repair barges to be constructed for the navy. The steel vessel was christened by 11 year old Dorothy Fabiszewski. No sooner than that way was cleared, a huge crane swung into place the keel of the second barge, the YR-31.

The Miami is the first of six $20,000,000 cruisers which Cramps has on order.

Astor Yacht to Be Used as Floating Weather Station

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Vincent Astor's yacht Nourmahal, on which President Roosevelt has cruised as a guest, will be used by the United States coast guard as a floating weather station to gather meteorological data. Astor, a commander in the navy reserve, has leased the 2¼ million dollar yacht, a vessel of 2,000 tons, to the government for $1 a year.

Tell How Wills Helped Make Caldwell Boss of Clerk Union

The rôle that Charles F. Wills played, in installing his son-in-law, Max Caldwell, as czar of local 1248 of the Retail Clerks International Protective association, and in keeping him in that position in spite of a flood of complaints, was disclosed yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney William B. Crawford.

Crawford, has been commissioned by State's Attorney Courtney to gather evidence on which to seek an indictment against the ousted czar who collected more than $900,000 from the clerks in 30 months and left $62 in the treasury. Crawford said the story of Wills' part in the union's affairs was told by Wills himself.

Connected with Labor Paper.

Wills is advertising and circulation manager of the Federation News, publication of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and a member of the review board of the state unemployment compensation department at $4,700 a year. By his statement, and by copies of letters that passed between him and other labor officials, Crawford said, it was proved that:

1. Wills' influence put Caldwell in control of the union and its rich treasury.

2. Caldwell's rule was so unpopular, and so provocative of complaints among the rank and file, that he promised prior to March 12, 1940, to retire from his post in June of that year.

3. After this promise had been made Wills, appointed by international headquarters to supervise the local, defended Caldwell in letters to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and C. C. Coulter, secretary of the international.

Met Him in 1932.

Wills said he first met Caldwell in 1932. He added that he never knew until he read it recently that Caldwell [whose real name is Pollack] was sentenced in 1925 to six months in prison in Indiana for bootlegging.

"Caldwell was an officer of the waiters' union," Wills said. "He told me he was muscled out of that about 1934. I knew that he had been arrested several times, and that he was indicted and acquitted on a charge of shaking down the owners of the French casino; also in 1934.

"In 1937 the clerks' union here was not doing well and Alex Marks, an AFL organizer, suggested that Caldwell would be a good organizer for a real local. I urged Coulter to make the appointment and he did."

Dispute with Second Union.

Early in 1940 Caldwell's union got into a jurisdictional dispute with another AFL union, the Demonstrators, composed of women. Some of the women were slugged by Caldwell's agents and as a result local 1248 was thrown out of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Coulter conferred with Wills, Caldwell, and officials of the AFL. On March 12, 1940, Coulter wrote to Wills, in part:

"As to the conference held in room 1177 of the Palmer House later on last Sunday with yourself, Max Caldwell . . . and the writer, it was then agreed to permit matters to remain status quo in local union No. 1248 until next June, when, as Max stated, he was going to eliminate himself from the organization."

Wills said that he took over the task of ironing out the jurisdictional fight with the Demonstrators, but took no cognizance of the internal affairs of local 1248. He asserted he threw up the job in a report to Coulter on April 1, 1940. Coulter has contended that Wills still had full authority over the union, as international representative, until two months ago.

In his letter Wills wrote:

"The newspapers, or the police, do not like Caldwell. The labor official they do like, who is in actual labor union activity, is useless and an obstacle as far as unionism is concerned.

Calls Him a "Good Husband."

"If Caldwell is taken out, who controls the local? The retaining or dismissing of Caldwell is the determining factor in local 1248. I recommend that his loyalty receive your support and coöperation. That is my honest conclusion. The word of a newspaper is never as good as the word of a union member or officer."

On March 19, 1940, Wills wrote to William Green: "I have found him [Caldwell] a good husband in family relations and a good organizer in the union. Since Caldwell's appointment as international organizer, the complaints of shakedown from unions carrying Retail Clerks' charters have completely stopped."

Council Meets Here

Whether the purge of Max Caldwell from the retail clerks union will be discussed by the American Federation of Labor executive council when it meets tomorrow concerned labor leaders last night. The sessions will be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

William Green, president of the AFL, was instrumental in throwing out Caldwell, international organizer, and 19 lieutenants, on a charge of looting the union's treasury. The action was in contradiction to weak pronouncements concerning racketeering at last year's AFL convention in New Orleans. It was held at that time that each international union should be allowed to scrub its own doorstep. Many leaders expressed the belief that the 1941 council will indorse Green's stand.

Green will address the delegates at the Chicago Stadium Friday night. Other speakers will be William L. Hutcheson of Indianapolis, president of the union, and Frank Duffy of the union's national headquarters in Indianapolis.

Name Provost Marshal First Time Since 1917

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Maj. Gen. Allen W. Guillion, judge advocate general of the army, today was designated provost marshal general in addition to his present duties. The order marked the first time since the World war that the army has created the position of provost marshal. The major duties of the office are to train, organize and command military police and supervise internment camps for aliens.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o' sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

CHICAGO PLAYING IMPORTANT ROLE IN FEEDING ARMY

Giant Food Laboratories Located Here.

Uncle Samuel took his market basket the other day and went to the corner store for 616 million pounds of meat, 475 million pounds of potatoes, and 100 million pounds of flour. This snack, along with astounding amounts of other victuals, will be gnawed away to nothing within 12 months by an army of 1,500,000 men.

Stoking the army stomach is the job of nine quartermaster depots scattered thruout the United States. One such depot, which takes up 1,750,000 feet of floor space, is located at 1819 West Pershing road.

It's a Big Chore.

Some idea of the vast chore of feeding an army may be obtained at the Chicago depot. Its commander, Col. Henry B. Barry, employs 1,500 persons. During June $10,000,000 was expended there. Last week, 4,731,000 pounds of freight were moved, and a recent purchase of six and one-half million pounds of frozen boneless beef represents a mere four day ration for an army of 1,500,000 men.

The philosophy of the army not too many years ago was said to be "fill 'em up with food and forget about it." Now menus are planned scientifically and each meal is scrutinized for proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals, vitamins, and roughage.

In addition to the problem of obtaining food and getting it to the soldiers, there is the business of training cooks, inspecting kitchens and foods, and examining food handlers to see that none has a contagious disease. In the Chicago depot the men who solve these problems are Lieut. Col. C. N. Elliott, in charge of the procurement division; Lieut. Col. F. N. Neville, in charge of storage and distribution, and Lieut. Col. R. A. Isker, in charge of the subsistence research laboratory.

Dieticians Called In.

Menus are made up a month in advance by the quartermaster in the corps area after he has conferred with diet experts. The quartermaster of each camp studies the menus and then prepares a requisition for his supply. This passes from the corps area quartermaster to the quartermaster general who sends his procurement director to the various depots. Bids are submitted on the various items and deliveries are started.

"Watch the garbage can" is the slogan of those responsible for placing tasty and healthful dishes before the soldiers. Many soldiers will give off an automatic complaint about some dish just for the sheer pleasure of complaining, these men say, but when they toss the food away they don't like it.

District prejudices in food have to be watched and, in some camps, where both northern and southern boys are stationed, separate messes are conducted to keep palates pleased. An example cited was the southern love for grits which, apparently, inspire no gustatory ambition among the northern lads. Two items held in great esteem among the army's serious eaters are cherry pie and fried chicken, while beef in any form is viewed with considerable fondness.

The daily cost of feeding a unit of 100 men during July ranged from $33.61 to $45.95, or a total of $1,198.88 for the month. The average cost of one meal was 38 cents. The cost per meal is rising to 41 cents in August, officers say.

In addition to furnishing the camp food the quartermaster depot is concerned with testing and packing field emergency rations to be used in maneuvers under battle conditions. These rations at present consist of one can containing a biscuit, a sweet, and some soluble coffee, and one can of either meat, beans, meat stew, or a vegetable.

Officers at the depot decide on changes in these rations. They eat in the subsistence laboratory, and the testing staff feeds them proposed rations for the army. The approval or dismay with which these tidbits are received does much to establish their standings as army morsels.

BOATING BEATS THE HEAT

John Waring and Lloyd Wendt review one of Chicago's favorite pastimes — boating — in a color-illustrated article

In Today's COLOR GRAPHIC

A timely warning to men and women approaching forty!

LIFE seems mighty interesting and alluring to most persons on the sunny side of forty, but, in the words of a great poet, "youth knows but half." There are glorious years ahead for healthy men and women after forty. In fact you can make them the best years if you will guard your health. But persons under forty are much inclined to take good health for granted. They feel it is a special gift that will take care of itself. There's no denying that good health is a special gift, but unfortunately it is not immune to the strains of living and the danger of infectious diseases. Protecting health isn't difficult, if it is started sufficiently early and carried on systematically. Medicine is fully equipped to prevent practically all of the diseases which cause ill health and untimely death. The first step in protecting health is a thorough physical check-up. This includes a careful examination by a competent physician; an X-ray picture of the heart and lungs; an electro-cardiogram of the heart's action; an X-ray of the mouth and teeth, and laboratory tests of the blood, urine and other secretions. These examinations, plus your case history will give an accurate record of your physical condition. If no infection or beginning disease is detected you can enjoy the thrill that only a clean bill of health can give. If on the other hand beginning disease is discovered you have the satisfaction of knowing that early medical supervision and care can prevent serious damage.

Persons with definite symptoms should receive medical attention without delay. There is real danger to health in neglect of any persistent ailment. Practically all serious stomach ailments, including peptic ulcer and cancer can be prevented if they could be diagnosed early through the use of the fluoroscope and X-rays. No medication should be prescribed or self administered until the cause of the disorder is definitely known. The same applies to other serious ailments.

It is no longer necessary to take such dangerous chances with your health. Competent medical knowledge in all fields of medicine fully supported by fluoroscope, X-rays, electrocardiograph, laboratory tests and other modern scientific facilities is available through a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE at fees well within reach of the most limited income. This big modern medical organization, the first of its kind anywhere, has been providing the public with responsible medical service at low fees for almost ten years. Here you can obtain under one roof the scientific procedures and medical techniques which has made the development of modern medicine one of the most astonishing pages in history. These complete facilities are available for the lowest fees sound medical practice can provide. Make use of them through our own highly trained medical staff or through your own family physician.

Pre-Marriage Examinations
Complying with all the requirements of the Illinois State Marriage Law by physicians practicing in all fields of medicine. Certificates of examination made before 12 noon any week day, except Saturday, can be had the same day. Couples, $5. Single $3.00

Save Your Teeth Protect Health

An X-ray of all your teeth once or twice a year is an important medical procedure. Besides saving your teeth it will protect you against ailments which may result from diseased teeth, such as arthritis, heart trouble, stomach and kidney disorders. A full mouth X-ray, 14 films, is available here for. $1.50

X-ray and Laboratory Services

U. OF I. WILL TAKE OVER FAMED EYE AND EAR CLINIC

Transfer Made Possible by New State Law.

Permission given by the legislature makes it possible for Illinois to turn over to its state university one of the five leading eye and ear clinics in the United States—the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary, 904 West Adams street, which is also the largest charitable institution of its kind in the world. Its transfer to the University of Illinois may be effected this fall.

During 1940, the infirmary hospitalized 6,000 persons in its 220 beds and cared for 112,000 other patients who made more than 300,000 visits there for treatment. With 24 resident physicians, under the direction of Dr. Harry S. Gradle, noted oculist and chief of staff, it has the largest medical staff of any similar institution. The residents will become members of the university medical faculty upon the transfer.

Both Sides Favor Change.

The university, Dr. Gradle said yesterday, is eager to take over the infirmary, which feeling is shared by the infirmary heads, so the new control will be brought about in an entirely amicable manner. The bill permitting the state to relinquish the clinic was passed under the sponsorship of Senator Everett R. Peters [R., Champaign], legislative spokesman for the university.

The infirmary was founded in 1869 by Dr. Christian Holmes, a pioneer eye man in the middle west, and was turned over to the state two years later. Eventually it came under the control of the department of welfare, which supervises all criminal and charitable institutions. Dr. Stanley Paronski, the managing officer, and Dr. Gradle have been its heads since 1933, by appointment of the late Gov. Henry Horner. Altho a $4,000 salary is attached to the position of chief of staff, Dr. Gradle has never accepted it.

Talking of the aims and work accomplished by the institution within the last few years, Dr. Gradle said it has a threefold purpose: To give the best possible care to patients; to educate professional men who are going into the specialized fields the clinic treats, and to provide post-graduate or "refresher" courses to physicians who need to brush up on the latest techniques.

Between 1921 and 1933, the clinic graduated 109 "house officers," as the resident physicians are called, but only four of them took and passed the examinations of the American Board of Ophthalmology, the highest authority in the eye treatment field. Since 1933, a total of 96 men have been graduated and the management is proud of the fact that each has passed the rigid tests required by the board.

Increase Control of Glaucoma.

Dr. Gradle is especially gratified over the near-control of glaucoma which has been brought about by the clinic within the last few years. This disease causes hardening of the eyeball. If kept under constant observation, it can be arrested and the afflicted persons will retain what sight remains to them; but constant treatment is necessary.

After examining the records of glaucoma patients for a four year period, Dr. Gradle discovered that only 4 per cent of them remained under observation, the others having drifted away. He obtained a $5,000 grant from the Sprague foundation to establish a supplemental glaucoma service about two years ago and started to combat the inertia or hopelessness of patients who failed to keep up treatment.

96% Keep Up Treatment.

Keeping after them with the aid of a social worker, and with two additional physicians giving treatment, Dr. Gradle was able to change the glaucoma condition completely. Now all but 4 per cent of the sufferers are kept under observation and treatment; 96 per cent are being treated and the disease arrested. Almost all will keep what vision they have.

Thru efforts of the infirmary, plus an $83,000 appropripation biennially by the legislature, Dr. Gradle said that another disease, trachoma, will, within another generation, be wiped out in southern Illinois, where it flourished since settlers brought it over the Daniel Boone trail from the east in 1810.

Known as "Egyptian granulated eyelid," trachoma has afflicted the residents of the 17 southernmost counties of Illinois, as well as persons in southern Indiana, Tennessee, and Oklahoma. At Dr. Gradle's suggestion, Gov. Horner, the Society for the Prevention of Blindness, and other agencies, brought about the establishment of five clinics for the treatment of the disease in Shawneetown, Vienna, Eldorado, Herrin, and Jonesboro.

Afflicted persons from 92 towns have received treatment at these centers. A total of 3,000 cases were found when the work was started, but only 12 new cases were reported last year.

"It is now under perfect control and will be wiped out within one more generation," Dr. Gradle said. "Every eye in southern Illinois is coming under our scrutiny."

Robber Escapes

A robber with a scar on his face took $23.31 yesterday from the office of the Commercial Credit corporation, 309 West Jackson boulevard. He handed Miss Marie Signanini, the cashier, a note directing her to empty the cash drawer and give him the money. The gunman escaped from the sixth floor office before police arrived.

PICKETS IN ROWBOATS SURROUND ANCHORED VESSEL AT DULUTH

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 2 (AP).—Rowboats carried pickets today in encircling the steamer Jupiter of the Jupiter Steamship company, Cleveland, anchored in the Duluth harbor, with the CIO maritime union pressing demands for recognition and a contract.

Three small boats with men bearing strike notice signs were augmented by a patrol on shore.

Evans Shippen, union organizer, said the company's wage scale is below the union scale. "The company refused to negotiate with our representatives," he said, "and we set up our pickets. We are not asking that the crew be replaced by union men but that the company negotiate toward a union agreement."

2 American War Flyers Die in Canadian Accidents

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 2 (AP).—The death of two American members of the royal Canadian air force was announced today in a regular casualty list. They were Sergt. Harry Archer Womack, whose mother, Mrs. H. A. Womack, lives at Johnson City, Tenn., who was killed in unspecified air operations, and Leading Aircraftman Robert Henry Hendrix, whose father, W. T. Hendrix, lives at Walsenburg, Colo., who was drowned in Canada.

HOLLINGBERY JOINS COACHING STAFF OF ALL-STARS

ACCEPTS OFFER TO REPRESENT PACIFIC COAST

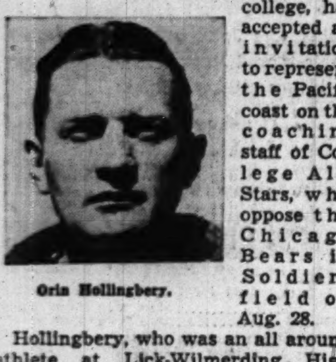
He'll Help Cook Up Woe for Bears.

Musicians!

COLLEGE musicians and former members of the All-Star band residing in the Chicago district are invited to participate in the ceremony between halves of the game between the College All-Americans and the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field on Aug. 28. Musicians should write to G. Cliffe Bainum, band director, Fisk hall, Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

BY ARCH WARD.

Orin [Babe] Hollingbery of Washington State, who never went to college, has accepted an invitation to represent the Pacific coast on the coaching staff of College All-Stars, who oppose the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field on Aug. 28.



Orin Hollingbery.

Hollingbery, who was an all around athlete at Lick-Wilmerding High school in San Francisco, played football with the San Francisco Olympic club and coached the team in 1924 and 1925. His 1925 Olympic club eleven won 11 straight games, which included victories over California and Stanford.

Washington State picked Hollingbery as its head coach in 1926 and he has served in that capacity ever since. In that span his teams have won 81 games, lost 47, and tied 12. His most successful season was 1930 when the Cougars won 9 of their 10 contests.

Hollingbery was coach of the West team in the first East-West Shrine charity game in San Francisco and has continued to serve in that enterprise every year except three.

The Case Against Shaughnessy.

Clark Shaughnessy of Stanford had the most successful team on the Pacific coast last fall, but there are three reasons why he wasn't chosen over Hollingbery for the All-Star staff. They are:

1. It would be unfair to Shaughnessy.
2. It would be unfair to the Chicago Bears.
3. It would be unfair to the All-Star game.

Shaughnessy for the last few seasons has collaborated with George Halas in the development of the T formation, with a man in motion. He has been in Chicago the last month helping the Bears to prepare for a defense of their National league championship. Shaughnessy hardly could be expected to use his knowledge of the T formation to set up an All-Star defense to stop it.

Sportsmanship Assured.

It would be straining standards of sportsmanship which the All-Star game has established to employ on the staff a man who probably would know in advance every move the Bears would make.

Most important, however, it would be detrimental to the best interests of the game itself. Shaughnessy's heart, in this particular ball game, would be with the Bears, not the All-Stars, and no coach with that attitude ever will serve on the All-Star staff.

Hollingbery is the third coach to accept appointment to the All-Star board. Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern and Homer Norton of Texas A. & M. previously agreed to help prepare the team for its meeting with the Bears. The two remaining members of the staff will be announced tomorrow and Tuesday.

Meanwhile, all members of the All-

All-Stars! Here Is a Challenge from the Bears

BY GEORGE HALAS.
[President-Coach of Chicago Bears, National League Champions.]

In my last article I said we would issue a challenge to Arch Ward and the All-Star coaching staff. Here it is. The accompanying diagrams show plays which are basic in our modern T formation, man-in-motion offense, which I personaly guarantee will be used against the All-Stars on Aug. 28. To give teeth to the guarantee I'm willing to put up all my worldly goods as collateral.

We challenge the opposing coaches and the athletic director of the Collegians to follow suit and publicly diagram three of their basic All-Star plays. With a heart that is pure gold, we ask no collateral other than their word of honor.

A String to Guarantee.

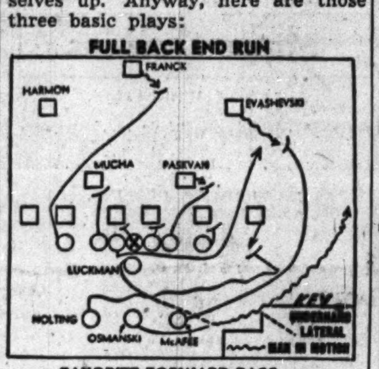
Our guarantee has one string to it. We will run the plays as shown, but we do not guarantee that, from the same formation, with the same preliminary moves or faking on the part of the key men, a radically different attack will not suddenly develop. The quick opening play shown for example may be converted in a twinkling into a forward pass.

As a matter of fact, the Bears will take the field with a répertoire of about 80 different plays, far less than our bag of tricks usually holds.

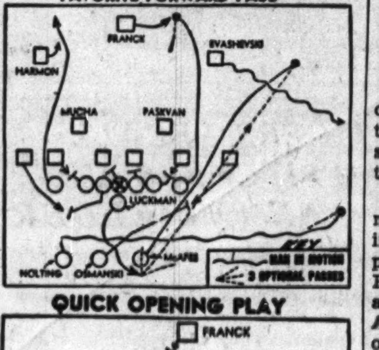
Admission of Error.

Lest the figure of 80 sound too impressive, I hasten to add that all of our offensive maneuvers will be under-rehearsed and on many of them our Bears will stack themselves up. Anyway, here are those three basic plays:

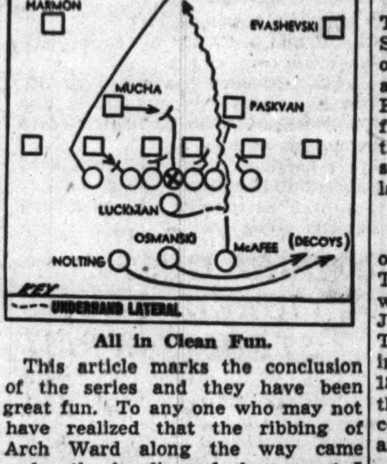
FULL BACK END RUN



FAVORITE FORWARD PASS



QUICK OPENING PLAY



All in Clean Fun.

This article marks the conclusion of the series and they have been great fun. To any one who may not have realized that the ribbing of Arch Ward along the way came under the heading of clean sport I add that Arch happens to be my good friend except for the period of the All-Star game.

It would be a pleasant surprise, however, if Arch Ward, without too great emotional tension, could spend at least one quarter of the game on the Bear bench.

Stella Walsh Sets Mark for Women in 75 Yd. Dash

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP).—Stella Walsh, Cleveland's contribution to women's track and field champions, clipped 2/5 of a second off the world record for the 75 yard dash today in an AAU track meet. Miss Walsh blazed a new record of 9 seconds to top the mark set by Anna Yates of St. Joseph, Mo.

TALKED ABOUT HAS TO KEEP MOVING TO TAKE THIS ONE!

TALKED ABOUT SMACKED
KING'S BLUE
TOTAL ECLIPSE
EQUISTAR
AIR BRIGADE
TECHNICIAN
SAMBOROMBON

Talked About, owned by Mrs. J. F. Waters, crosses finish line in $5,000 Chicago handicap at Washington Park yesterday a head in front of Smacked in a drive that had 18,000 spectators on edge. Smacked was three-quarters of a length in front of Air Brigade. The winner's time was 1:10⅘, only three-fifths of a second over the six furlong record set by Roman last year. Talked About was 7 to 2 in the betting and paid $9.20, $5.20, and $3.80 across the board. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TALKED ABOUT IS HEAD VICTOR IN CHICAGO HANDICAP; SMACKED 2D

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Talked About won the $5,000 Chicago handicap yesterday in a finish that had Washington Park's 18,000 spectators balanced on the edges of their chairs.

In the last 70 yards, a front running sprinter—Smacked—was refusing to quit after setting a blazing pace; an invader from the east—Air Brigade—was gaining powerfully along the rail, and Jockey Johnny Adams was driving Talked About up on the outside.

As they went over the line, it was Talked About first by a head, Smacked second by three quarters of a length, and Air Brigade third by a neck over his stablemate, Total Eclipse. It had been a scorching six furlongs in 1:10 4-5, which was only three-fifths of a second over the mark set by the brilliant sprinter, Roman, last year.

7 to 2 in Wide Open Betting.

Talked About was held at 7 to 2 odds in this wide open betting race. Technician was the 3 to 1 favorite, with Kings Blue at 7 to 2, Hirsch Jacobs' entry of Air Brigade and Total Eclipse 5 to 1, and the others in the field of eight ranging up to 18 to 1 on Equistar. The prices on the winner, who was scoring his third consecutive victory, were $9.20, $5.20, and $3.80.

Smacked was away with his usual alertness and went right out to do the quarter in :22 2-5 and the half in :46 2-5. Equistar undertook to go with him. These two opened up a lead of six lengths over their nearest rivals during the run down the back stretch and the swing around the turn.

Meanwhile Kings Blue, Technician, and Samborombon were side by side in the second flight. Adams, realizing the folly of attempting to keep up with Smacked's early foot, kept Talked About well back. Air Brigade also was with the trailers.

Equistar Tires Rapidly.

As the stretch run began, Equistar tired rapidly. Smacked, however, kept right on going. Technician went fairly wide, but came back toward the inside. After saving ground on the turn, Adams took Talked About well out from the rail and sent him up after the leader. Meanwhile Air Brigade was finding racing room on the inside all the way.

At the eighth pole, Smacked was still in front by a length and a half. Thru the last furlong Jack Richard worked furiously to keep him running but gradually Talked About wore him down. In the last few yards, Adams landed his mount in front.

Misty Isle, Joseph E. Widener's fleet filly, won the $2,500 Princess Pat stakes, which shared interest with the Chicago handicap. Jockey Al Snider got her home a length and a half in front of Pink Gal while Silvestra was saving third place from Montsin by the margin of a nose. Happy Home completed the field of five fillies and mares which went to the post in this mile dash.

A Run for Misty Isle.

Misty Isle was forced to run all the way. She went out of the chute head and head with Happy Home and Silvestra. All the way down the back stretch and most of the way around the turn these three ran side by side, while Montsin was three lengths farther back and Pink Gal was last.

As they approached the stretch, Happy Home, who was running between her two rivals, weakened and dropped back. She had been in a tight fit between them on the turn but she was too tired anyway to carry on.

After they had straightened out in the stretch, Misty Isle drew out to a lead of a length and a half. Then Pink Gal launched a drive. She came up alongside Silvestra and conquered her after a hard duel in midstretch but she couldn't get to the leader.

Misty Isle ran the mile in the sharp time of 1:36 4-5, the first half having been in :46. She was the favorite in the betting, her payoff being $4.60, $2.80, and $2.40.

GIULIANI BALKS AT TRANSFER TO MONTREAL CLUB

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 2 (AP).—Expressing dissatisfaction with his transfer to Montreal, Angelo Giuliani, Brooklyn Dodger catcher, was back home in St. Paul today with the announcement he was tired of being a human football, and that he planned to protest to Commissioner Landis.

Angelo returned to Brooklyn June 30 after a stay with Minneapolis in the American association. Early this week Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn general manager, announced Giuliani's transfer to Montreal.

"I'm waiting for the Dodgers to suspend me for not reporting to Montreal as ordered," Giuliani said. "Then I'll appeal to Commissioner Landis. This is the fourth time I've been sent out in two years. They took me out just when I had a chance to prove something. I don't believe I have had a fair trial."

Cards Wallop Phillies; Hold 1 Game Lead

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 2 (AP).—Heavy slugging made up for three errors and numerous fumbles that didn't get into the box score today as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 11 to 7, to maintain their one game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Howard Krist might have been knocked off the mound had the game been close, but a 14 hit bombardment by his mates, including a home run by Johnny Mize with the bases filled and one by Enos Slaughter with one on base, made the rocky road safe, and he stayed to the finish.

It was the ninth straight victory without defeat for the St. Louis rookie. Score:

WOOD HOLDS 6 UP LEAD IN MATCH AGAINST GHEZZI

Girard, O., Aug. 2 (AP).—Craig Wood, National Open champion, was 6 up on Victor Ghezzi, PGA champion, today after 36 holes of their 72 hole contest for the unofficial world golf championship. They play the final 36 tomorrow.

Ghezzi gained one hole in the afternoon round after Wood had broken the course record with a seven under par morning round of 63. Ghezzi was one under par in the afternoon with 36—33—69 and Wood had 36—34—70.

Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, called Wood's 63 "the greatest round of the season." Wood said it was the greatest of his career. He used only 28 putts in scoring eight birdies and an eagle on the record round. He sank one putt of 40 feet and one of 25. The cards:

ED SMITH AGAIN DOES A BIG JOB FOR SOX; WHIPS SENATORS, 3-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Edgar Smith, tho again supported by a typical tap-tap White Sox offense, this afternoon rang up his second victory of the week, his 11th of the season, as he carried the Chicagoans to a 3 to 1 victory over Sid Hudson and the Washington Senators. The score was a duplicate of a match between Smith and Hudson in Chicago on July 11.

The victory, the Sox's 48th, in this, their 102d game of the season, lifted the Chicagoans to within a half game of the fourth place A's, who lost to Cleveland. It also ended a three game losing streak.

Smith, who beat the Athletics, 1 to 0, on Tuesday, supported by four Chicago hits, labored along with a four hit attack in his behalf until two were out in the eighth. Then the lads made one hit in the eighth and two in the ninth for a grand total of seven, the same number the Senators made off Smith.

Scoring's a Lot of Work.

The consistent frailty of the Chicago hitters was revealed in the fourth when they got three passes and a scratch double before a putout, but closed the inning with a total of only two runs.

Joe Kuhel and Mike Kreevich walked in that inning, then Taft Wright caromed a double off Mickey Vernon's glove, Kuhel scoring. Luke Appling walked, loading the bases, after which Myril Hoag tapped into a double play, Kreevich scoring. Bob Kennedy gently popped to Vernon. Strangely enough, the three passes issued by Hudson were the only walks in the game.

The score became 2 to 1 and Smitty lost a second successive shutout after one was out in the seventh. Cecil Travis singled to left, fourth Washington hit, stopped at third on Vernon's double to right and scored on George Archie's fly to Wright.

Hudson Again Has a Lapse.

The Sox's unneeded run was made in the ninth. With one down, Appling singled and went to third on Hoag's single to right. Kennedy bounced to Hudson, who, as he did in the game in Chicago July 11, became confused between making an out at the plate or trying for a double play. He tried for the double play, after too much deliberation, and tho he nailed Kreevich at second, Appling trotted across the plate.

The Sox, tho still weak with their bats, seemed wide awake today, in marked contrast with their dull manners yesterday and the day before. The weather wasn't so humid, which may have accounted for the brighter look on the faces of Jim Dykes' boys.

CALIFORNIA RING BODY DECIDES TO JOIN UP WITH NBA

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—The California State Athletic commission voted today to affiliate with the National Boxing association. California severed its affiliation with the New York boxing commission several months ago. Today's action automatically granted recognition by California, of Tony Zale as middleweight champion, instead of Billy Soose, and Sammy Angott as lightweight king, instead of Lew Jenkins.

ENID WILSON, THE GOLFER, INJURED IN BOMBING RAID

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Enid Wilson, three-time British women's golf champion, now serving in the woman's auxiliary air force, suffered an injury to her left eye in a recent bombing raid. It is believed her sight will be permanently impaired.

Chicago golf fans will remember Enid Wilson as the medalist in the women's national golf tournament at the Exmoor Country club in 1933.

UMPIRES CHASE DUROCHER AND WYATT IN FIRST

French Is Routed in Fifth Inning.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The second place Dodgers started out yesterday to beat themselves but eventually developed a better idea and beat the Cubs instead. They were on the charitable side during the first inning in which they not only saw three Chicagoans skip across the plate but also saw their boss, Leo Durocher, thumbed into the clubhouse. With that bit of side play disposed of, they gave some thought to their pennant ambitions so laid the wood to the pitching of Larry French and others to accomplish a 9 to 6 triumph.

French, now the loser of a dozen decisions, remained on the sunny side by a slim margin over Kirby Higbe until the fifth, when Peewee Reese's second 1941 homer touched off a four run blast in which Joe Medwick, as usual, figured. Later Vance Page had some difficulties in his effort to stop the Brooklyn run production and similar treatment was administered to Jake Mooty as well as Vern [Lefty] Olsen. Among Mooty's contributions was Alumnus Billy Herman's second homer of the year.

Leo Lives Up to Nickname.

Mr. Durocher, known as Lippy, worked himself into a lather in the first inning, because Umpire Tom Dunn changed a decision upon advice from Fellow Guesser Bill Stewart. Durocher orated for fully 10 minutes before agreeing to a suggestion that he leave the scene. He went only part way, hiding in the dugout while the Cubs were scoring three runs on one hit. When he spouted some more, the unsuspecting umpires thought they recognized the voice and, upon investigation, discovered it was the man they thought they had chased to the bathtub. After more delay, Durocher really disappeared, taking with him Whitlow Wyatt, who had joined the argument.

The stormy first inning began to warm up when Charley Gilbert and Dom Dallessandro walked with one out. Bill Nicholson grounded to Dolph Camilli, whose throw to Reese forced Dallessandro for the moment. Manager Jim Wilson strolled forth to point out to Umpire Dunn that Reese had dropped the ball. The umpire explained he had dropped it while attempting a double play, but Wilson was insistent, so Dunn consulted Stewart and the verdict was reversed. This was where Durocher came in.

Riggs Helps Our Side.

When play was resumed Dahlgren scratched a hit to Lew Riggs, who assisted with a wild throw to second, Dallessandro following Gilbert across the plate and Nicholson taking third whence he scored on Johnny Hudson's fly to Tatum.

A double play saved French the consequences of two passes and two hits in the Dodger's first, but the next time they did any clouting they got results. It started in the third with a pass to Herman. Later there was a single by Medwick and a double by Camilli for two runs.

French's one run lead went into the left field sun terrace on Reese's homer in the fifth, the first of the cluster of four tallies. Herman walked and Pete Reiser bunted, but French's throw to second was too late for any good. These two fellows dashed in on Medwick's two bagger. French was expelled after walking Camilli. Page retired the next two batters, Medwick going to third on one of the outs, but Mickey Owen's pop bunt dropped between Page and Stan Hack

NEW COACH AT BATH.

Jacksonville, Ill., Aug. 2 [Special].—Arthur H. Yates of Johnston City, 1941 graduate of Illinois college, has accepted a position as coach at Bath Community High school.

YANKEES WIN 3D SHUTOUT IN ROW BEHIND BREUER

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Marvin Breuer pitched three hit ball today as the Yankees beat the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 0, for their third successive shutout victory. Singles by Joe Gordon and Bill Dickey, the latter after a double by Joe DiMaggio, drove in the Yankee runs.

Joe DiMaggio, who made two hits, ran his latest streak to 16 straight games. He has hit in 72 out of his last 73. Score:

Baltimore Craft Takes Power Boat Speed Trophy

St. Michaels, Md., Aug. 2 (AP).—Ernest Chase and John Bramble of Baltimore carried off the Miles river trophy for unlimited displacement class runabouts today in the feature event of Miles River club's 20th annual power boat regatta. Pep IV., owned by Chase and piloted by Bramble, won all three heats to score 1,200 points and win permanent possession of the cup.

De Lion Seeks 10th in Row for Spencer Coals Today

Slim De Lion will seek his tenth consecutive pitching victory for the Spencer Coals in their double header with the Brooklyn Royal Giants in Spencer field this afternoon. Bill Williams will start the other game for the Spencers, who have won 15 of their last 16 games. Rocky Ellis and Sugar Cain are slated to hurl for the Royals.

Come what may to the Cubs, Chicago fans usually can count on Stanley Hack, day in and day out, as a consistent hitter. And if you are afforded the necessary perspective, this is what you'll see as Stanley goes about his offensive work. He looks over the bat rack in the Cubs' dugout, selects two to his liking, takes his stand at the plate, starts his swing, connects with the ball, and heads toward first base. [TRIBUNE photos.]

Dodgers Lose to Umpires, Beat Cubs, 9-6

for a hit, so Medwick simply strolled home.

Two Walks Prove Welcome.

The Cubs grabbed back two of these runs in their half of the fifth when, with two gone, Higbe walked Dallessandro and Nicholson. They rode in on Babe Dahlgren's double. In the sixth Reese singled, took two bases on Herman's infield out because third base was unguarded and scored on Medwick's fly. In the same inning the Cubs made it 6 to 7 on a hit by Bob Sturgeon, who continued to second on Reese's bad throw, and a single by Bob Scheffing, who swung for Page.

Herman's homer to left made it 8 to 6 in the eighth and when Olsen appeared for work in the ninth he was nicked for the final run on singles by Dixie Walker and Alumnus Newel Kimball, who had taken over in Higbe's behalf at the start of the seventh.

IT'S LEE VS. WYATT

The Dodgers will be on their way after a single appearance this afternoon in Wrigley field. Bill Lee will start for the Cubs and Whitlow Wyatt for the National league second placers.

Hank Leiber, beaned more than a month ago, is gradually improving. He chases fungoes and has done a few turns as a batting practice pitcher. But there is no thought of returning him to the Cub lineup immediately.

Clyde McCullough wasn't very popular with the Cub adherents in the eighth inning of yesterday's game. He singled, as did Bob Sturgeon, with one out. While Augie Galan was at the plate batting for Jake Mooty, McCullough was picked off second by Newell Kimball.

Bill Nicholson had a very unhappy afternoon. The grounder he hit with two on base in the first inning would have been a double play if properly fielded and in the ninth with two on and one out Bill fanned.

Kimbrough Signs to Make 'Lone Star Ranger' Film

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—Twentieth Century-Fox today said John Kimbrough, star full back at Texas A. and M. last year, had been signed to star in a Zane Grey picture, "The Lone Star Ranger."

The film will be completed in time for Kimbrough to meet engagements in professional football.

Parker, Sabin Win Easily as Rye Tournament Opens

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—The 15th annual eastern grass court tennis tournament got under way today without upset. Fourth-seeded Frank Parker of Spring Lake, N. J., brushed past Vincent Paul of Brooklyn, 6-1 and 6-3, and fifth-seeded Wayne Sabin of Reno, Nev., downed the South American star, Eduardo Buse of Lima, Peru, 6-0, 6-1.

WhiteSoxSend Ted Lyons to Mound Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2.—Ted Lyons and Steve Sundra will be the opposing pitchers tomorrow in the windup of the Chicago-Washington series here.

The White Sox will leave for St. Louis at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night. They will be in St. Louis for virtually five days, thanks to the continued vagaries of one of the screwiest schedules ever devised.

Julius Solters was hit in the head by a thrown ball 20 minutes before game time and knocked unconscious. During Sox fielding practice Joe Kuhel overthrew third base just as Julius was strolling in from left field. The outfielder plunked to earth and was down for five minutes before he went to the clubhouse under his own power.

THREE MIDWEST TEAMS DEFEND STREAKS TODAY

The Chicago Firemen, Chicago Heights Owls, and the Glenview Boosters, all in the midst of winning streaks, will play in the feature game on today's 12 game Midwest Baseball league schedule.

The Firemen, beaten only once in their last ten starts, seek victory No. 10 against the Elmhurst semipros in Elmhurst; Glenview seeks its ninth straight win at the expense of the Highwood Boosters in Highwood, and the Owls, playing on their home field in Chicago Heights, will be out for their tenth consecutive victory and eleven triumphs in thirteen engagements this year. All games begin at 3 p. m. The schedule:

Chicago Firemen at Elmhurst.
Glenview Boosters at Highwood.
Chicago Giants at Arlington Heights.
Goldberg Clothiers vs. Golden Clothes at 91st street and Racine avenue.
Marseilles at Glen Ellyn.
Greenviews S. A. C. vs. Hayes Motors at Cole Lensi field, McCook.
Chicago Hornets at Chicago Heights.
Svitak V-8's at Skokie.
West Towns at Midlothian.
Higgins Musketeers vs. Benda Coals at 31st street and East avenue, Berwyn.
Pepsi-Cola at Fort Sheridan.
Brookfield Merchants vs. Cragin A. A. at Long and Fullerton avenues.

Cincinnati Buys Lukon, Knoxville Outfielder

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 2 (AP).—Eddie Lukon, 20 year old right fielder of the Knoxville Southern association club, was acquired tonight by the Cincinnati Reds. General Manager Warren C. Giles said Lukon, who has hit 23 homers and is batting .326, will report next week. Lukon bats and throws left handed.

TIGERS RECALL 2 PITCHERS AND AN INFIELDER

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers announced today the recall of Pitchers Harold Manders and Leslie Mueller and Shortstop Murray Franklin. They will report next Saturday in Detroit.

Manders, cousin of Bob Feller, has won 14 and lost 8 for the sixth place Knoxville team of the Southern association. Mueller has a low earned run average for Beaumont of the Texas league, altho he has failed to compile a winning record. Both are right handers. Franklin has played shortstop for Little Rock of the Southern association and is hitting slightly under .300.

UMPIRE GOETZ INJURED; FOUL STRIKES WRIST

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 2 (AP).—Umpire Larry Goetz suffered a fractured left arm when a foul off Eddie Joost's bat struck him above the wrist in the third inning of today's game between the Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds. He was taken to Christ hospital for examination.

Landis Hears Durocher, Phelps on Club Dispute

The case of Babe Phelps, Brooklyn catcher who left the club June 12, came up before Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday but no decision was handed down. Phelps, Manager Leo Durocher and John McDonald, the club's road secretary, appeared before the commissioner. Club officials believe Landis will put Phelps on the voluntary retired list, a decision which would enable the Dodgers to take on another active player. Since leaving the club, Phelps has been drawing full pay.

GIANTS DEFEAT PIRATES, 2 TO 0, IN TEN INNINGS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Hal Schumacher pitched and batted the New York Giants out of a six game losing streak today as he blanked the Pirates, 2 to 0. Schumacher opened the Giants' 10th inning rally with a hit to left field which he stretched to two bases by a headlong slide.

Joe Moore singled to score Schumacher and Johnny Rucker's second double scored Moore. Rip Sewell was the losing pitcher. Score:

TERRY HOPES FOR QUICK DELIVERY OF BABE BARNA

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP).—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants said today he hoped to obtain delivery this month of Outfielder Babe Barna, purchased recently from Minneapolis of the American association, altho the Millers, who are only a few games out of first place, want to hold him.

"Some cash has been turned over in the deal," Terry said, "and possibly if we add another payment immediately we can get Barna this month. I'm going to keep trying."

The Giant boss said he knew nothing about reports his one spare outfielder, Morrie Arnovich, might be inducted into the army this month. "He hasn't mentioned the matter to me," Terry added. "I have a feeling he may escape the draft, because of his age, or at least won't be called until the season's over."

SHERIDAN SHORE RACE WEEK PRIZE IS WON BY GALE

Nye's Craft Defeats 27 Other Star Sloops.

Harry Nye Jr. of the Chicago Yacht club won the final race for the Valspar trophy yesterday in the seventh of the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's annual race week series off Wilmette harbor. Skipper Nye sailed his Gale to victory over 27 other Star sloops with an elapsed time of 1 hour 49 minutes 2 seconds.

Bubbling Over, another Chicago Yacht club entry, led the fleet the first time around the triangular course, but was passed by Gale before the finish line was reached. Bubbling Over finished in 1:50.19. Twin Star, Lockwood M. Pirie's Sheridan Shore Yacht club Star, was third in 1:50.55. Gemini, Commodore John T. Pirie II.'s Sheridan Shore flagship and defender of the Valspar trophy, was fourth in 1:15.20.

Gale Scores 170 Points.

Gale won the trophy with 170 points to Twin Star's 159 and Bubbling Over's 158. Step-N-Fetchit, Richard and William Otter's Sheridan Shore sloop that won the Great Lakes championship last year, placed fourth with 141 points. Gemini was fifth with 135. Gale will be loaded aboard a trailer behind Skipper Nye's auto next Friday to be towed to Los Angeles, Cal., there to represent the southern Lake Michigan fleet in the world Star class championship series Aug. 17-24.

The final race was sailed in a light southeast breeze and a choppy sea. The two visiting competitors, Avery Hand's Flame, from the Vermilion [Ohio] Yacht club, and Skipit, sailed by Fritz Bloom of the Illinois Valley [Peoria] Yacht club, finished the race 10th and 14th, respectively.

Wins in R Class Races.

Dr. T. J. Morris' sloop Alert IV. won the Chicago Yacht club's regular series race for R class sloops off Belmont harbor. Nancy, the Kimball-Railton syndicate's entry, was runner-up. Gould Davis' new R boat, Tabasco, sailed for the first time with its new mast which replaces the one lost in a dismasting in June.

The Jackson Park Yacht club's sailing fleet will race at 10 a. m. and at 2:30 today. The Columbia Yacht club's open race with working canvas only is scheduled to start this afternoon off Grant park harbor. Star yachts of the Chicago Yacht club will compete in their regular series race this afternoon.

Yachting Notes

The Great Lakes Star class championship opens tomorrow with five days of competition on the Columbia Yacht club's course, starting a month of almost continuous yachting activity in the Chicagoland area. Other open events follow:

Aug. 7-8—Lipton, Nutting, Gehrman trophies series, Chicago Yacht club.
Aug. 8-10—Great Lakes Snipe class championships, Wilmette Yacht club.
Aug. 9-10—Green Star novice championship series, Columbia Y. C.
Aug. 10—Challenge race in power cruisers, Jackson Park Yacht club vs. Southern Shore Yacht club.
Aug. 16—W. G. D. Orr Memorial regatta, Columbia Y. C.
Aug. 17—Blake trophy navigational consistency race, Southern Shore Y. C.
Aug. 21-23—Barthel trophy series, Great Lakes Q class championships, Chicago Y. C.
Aug. 24—Daily News regatta, Navy pier.
Aug. 30—Chicago-St. Joseph, Mich., first leg tristate race, Chicago Y. C.

Four important sailing championships with Chicago entries competing also will be held this month, as follows:

Aug. 18-22—Inland Lake Yachting association annual regatta.
Aug. 17-24—World Star class championships, Los Angeles [Cal.] Yacht club.
Aug. 22-24—National championship series of national one-design class, Lake Wawasee [Ind.] Yacht club.
Aug. 23-24—National championship series of 110 class, Grosse Pointe [Detroit, Mich.] Yacht club.

Sailing, canoeing, motor boating, and swimming races were held yesterday at Ephraim, Wis., for the 35th year, by the Ephraim Yacht club. Malcolm D. Vail of the Chicago Yacht club is commodore of the club.

The Easy Way and Tough Way in Golf

Golf is a much more strenuous proposition for Tommy Goodwin, however. Playing in the Briar Hills Invitation tournament, he had to take an unorthodox stance—with the assistance of his caddy—to get off a shot from near a tree. [Associated Press Photo.]

Women Start Play Tomorrow in 13th Derby

The 13th annual 72 hole Derby tournament of the Women's Western Golf association, longest medal play event for women players in the game, will open tomorrow morning over the No. 1 course of the Medinah Country club, with a field of 70 players, including many of the country's leading stars, playing the first 18 holes of the show. Eighteen hole rounds will follow on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Newell, the former Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Cal., will defend the title she won last year at Westmoreland. It will be no easy task the capable little Californian faces, for the field she will meet in the next four days includes several of her strongest rivals in the national scene.

Ellamae to Try Again.

Ellamae Williams of Bryn Mawr, winner of the Illinois women's championship for the last three years, will return in the hope of giving Mrs. Newell the same sort of battle she did last summer, when she finished runner-up to Elizabeth, six strokes back.

Mrs. Newell will be seeking her third consecutive triumph in the event, for she also captured the Derby championship in 1939 with a 72 hole score of 307, all time record for the tournament. Last year, at Westmoreland, she finished with a 314 that included a third round of 74, a figure which tied the course record, set in the second round by Miss Williams. Ellamae, who was forced by illness to withdraw from the recent Chicago Women's district tourney, in which she was trying to win her third straight title, has recovered and will be on the tee tomorrow morning.

Other Strong Contenders.

Virginia Ingram of Sunset Ridge and Mary Wilder of Skokie, champion and runner-up in the CWDGA event at Olympia Fields on July 26, are two other top contenders for the championship.

Miss Ingram retired the CWDGA trophy by her victory over Miss Wilder, the triumph being her third and giving her permanent possession. Three western junior title holders are entered. They include the incumbent, Jeanne Cline of Bloomington; Miss Wilder, and Georgia Tainter of Fargo, N. D. Other stars include Mary Jane Wall of Menominee, Mich.; Eleanor Dudley of Ridge; Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia.; Virginia Nilles of North Shore; Dorothy Ellis of Indianapolis; Peggy Rutledge of Long Beach, Cal., and Mrs. Hayes Dansingburg of St. Paul.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 2 [Special].—Potential members of Purdue's 1941 football squad apparently have taken to heart Coach Mal Elward's statement that no time can be wasted in preliminary conditioning.

A survey of the summer occupations of the Boilermakers shows almost without exception they are engaged in activities designed to keep them in good physical condition. Purdue's early conditioning problem is complicated by the fact that classes start on Sept. 11, one day after the start of practice. This will limit the Boilermakers to only one day of double drills, whereas most of the other Big Ten schools, due to the later opening of classes, will enjoy from two to three weeks of interrupted sessions. Purdue will open play against Vanderbilt here Sept. 27.

BUCKEYE COACH SENDS WARNING TO 37 PLAYERS

Columbus, O., Aug. 2—[Special]—Thirty-seven candidates for the Ohio State University football team have been warned by Coach Paul Brown to be in condition when they report for the opening of practice Sept. 10.

Coach Brown sent out letters, asking the players to be in Columbus on Sept. 8 to the following:

WINS MINNESOTA TITLE.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Hayes Dansingburg of St. Paul today won the Minnesota state women's golf championship by defeating Margaret Barry, St. Paul, 1 up.

Golfer Climbs Tree

Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., Aug. 2 [Special].—The shot looked difficult when Tommy Goodwin, playing in the Briar Hills Invitation Golf tournament here yesterday, found himself up against a tree en route to the ninth hole. Goodwin looked the situation over and, with the assistance of his caddie, who braced him from the rear, encircled the tree trunk with his legs, and got himself out of trouble from that unorthodox stance. He finished with a 74, against a medal 71.

PAULINE BETZ WINS MAIDSTONE TENNIS CROWN

East Hampton, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—Pauline Betz of Winter Park, Fla., today defeated Hope Knowles of Philadelphia, 6-2, 6-1, in the final round of the Maidstone club invitation tennis tournament.

Miss Knowles, who had advanced to the finals with upset victories over Virginia Wolfenden and Louise Brough, had neither the experience nor the speed to cope with the National indoor champion's steady forehand. It was Miss Betz's first Maidstone club title.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke of New York and Margaret Osborne of San Francisco won the doubles by defeating Louise Brough, the National Girls' champion from Los Angeles, and Helen Bernhard of New York, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2 in the final.

NAME CORGNATI ONARGA MILITARY ATHLETIC COACH

Onarga, Ill., Aug. 2 Special].—Leino [Moose] Corgnati, graduate of Monmouth college and coach at Fairview High for six years, has been appointed basketball and track coach at Onarga Military school. He will also serve as back field coach in football. Capt. Claude Ludwick will continue as head football coach but is being released from other duties to spend more time developing the school's intramural program.

Bo McMillin to Teach in Shurtleff Coaching School

Alton, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—A. N. [Bo] McMillin, Indiana university football coach, will head the summer coaching school at Shurtleff college here, Aug. 18-22. He will be assisted by Carl [Swede] Anderson and Ralph Graham, also of the Indiana staff. Classes will be in both basketball and football.

Harbor Lights Boat Club to Hold Regatta Next Week

The Harbor Lights boat club will hold its second annual regatta a week from today on the Grand Calumet river, 137th street and Torrence avenue.

Cross Is Ready for 1st Bout in Chicago Ring

Tommy Cross will conclude training today for an eight round bout against Leonard Bennett, Detroit welterweight, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Cross, Philadelphia junior welterweight, will be making his first appearance in a Chicago fight.

Cross is undefeated in four previous starts this year, but so is Leonard unbeaten in four 1941 fights. Tommy has scored victories over Ted Christie in New Bedford, Mass., April 22, and Julie Kogan in Philadelphia May 13, and fought to a draw decision with Charley Sulic in Atlantic City Feb. 20. He also boxed to a draw with Kogan in Brooklyn on Friday. Bennett's victims include Kenny Blackmar, Jerry Fiorello, Chuck Vickers, and Dick Demaray. His conquests of Vickers and Demaray were registered in the Marigold arena.

George Nyberg, welterweight of Port Arthur, Ont., who has not lost a decision in two years, is paired with Ernie Derho of Minneapolis in an eight round cofeature. He will be in quest of his eighth consecutive triumph. Derho held Indian Billy Lee to a six round draw in Minneapolis on July 11.

Additional eight round events bring together Billy Seward, Ingomar, Mont., lightweight, and Annunzio Ferraro, Milwaukee, and Frank Greene, south side heavyweight, and Bill Petersen, Indiana Harbor.

* * *

A wrestling show in White City tomorrow will be topped by Tarzan White and Ignacio Martinez. . . . Dany Spunt has the honor of being the first manager and second to pay for the privilege of handling a fighter in Illinois. Under a recently adopted law, the fee for managers is $15 and for trainers and seconds $5. . . . Joe Manjarrez, Madison-Cicero Boxing club welterweight, will meet William Jordan of the Savoy Athletic club in a five round amateur contest Wednesday in West Suburban club, 61st court and Roosevelt road.

New Jersey Boy Captures 3 Mile Junior Swim Title

Clementon, N. J., Aug. 2 (AP).—Warren Morgan of Orange, N. J. won the three mile junior national AAU swimming championship today at Clementon Park lake. Morgan, who plans to enter Lafayette college next month, came from behind to beat Edwin Meyers of New York, by 15 yards in 1 hour, 27 minutes and 17 seconds.

SOFTBALL TRIPLE HEADERS.

A softball triple header will be played in Weber park, Wellington and Ashland avenues this afternoon and evening. Northtown Currency and Ashland Inn clash at 2:30 p. m.; 1651 Club and Ald. Brodys meet at 3:30 p. m., and the winners meet at 4:30 o'clock. Eugene Dukes oppose the Triple Ells at 7:30 p. m.; Walsh All-Stars meet Ashland Inn at 8:30 p. m., and 1651 Club opposes Red Royals at 9:30 o'clock.

ILLINOIS TAKES OVER SPOTLIGHT AS GOLF CENTER

Banner Year Continues in Chicago Area.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Illinois, and particularly that portion of it involving the Chicago district, has become the 1941 capital of world golf.

Sure, they did have fine galleries for the National Open tournament this year in Fort Worth, Tex., and there was a goodly house for the PGA in Denver, Colo. But so also were there excellent throngs for the fourth annual Chicago Open at the Elmhurst Country club. Not only was the gate thereat pleasing to a high degree for the sponsors of an event which was not nationally sanctioned, but the field that worked for the top prize, eventually won by the ubiquitous Benjamin Hogan, was of a caliber that any national tournament might well have been proud of.

Bright as that Chicago Open field was, it can hardly be expected to match the battalion that will go into the 72 hole fight for the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open, to be decided on Sept. 4, 5, 6 and 7 at the Tam o' Shanter Country club on the northwest rim of Chicago. Go ahead and look up the purses for any tournament in the world this year and see if you can match that total of $11,000, with a breakdown of $2,000 for first place, $1,400 for second, and $1,000 for third.

Another Quality Field.

And then check the list of advance entries that includes such gents as Hogan, Craig Wood, the National Open champion who pressed Benny to the limit in the Chicago Open; Victor Ghezzi, the surprising new National PGA titleholder; Byron Nelson, most respected competitor in the modern game; Jimmy Demaret of Noroton, Conn., still striving to get back on the game that won him six tournaments in 1940, and Marvin [Bud] Ward of Spokane, Wash., one of the truly great swingers of amateur golf.

So much for the male tournament side of the game in Illinois and Chicago, or, shall we say—wait a minute. There's the richest Illinois PGA tourney ever attempted, the $2,000, 72 hole medal play tournament which the Hieland Lodge in Kankakee is preparing for Aug. 15, 16 and 17. And no sooner is that over than the first annual Great Lakes amateur event at Knollwood comes to bat with a field including Bud Ward, Willie Turnesa, Tom Sheehan, George Dawson, Gus Moreland, Johnny Burke, Art Doering, Wilford Wehrle, and Walter Burkemo, last year's runner-up when the tournament was still officially known as the Chicago District Golf association's annual amateur.

Women's Derby Tomorrow.

It would be highly incorrect to omit two of the finest women's tournaments in the game. There's the Women's Western Derby, opening tomorrow at Medinah Country club. This is the longest medal play event in the game anywhere for gal swingers. And, coincident with the Great Lakes amateur for men, the Women's Western will conduct its annual closed tournament at Exmoor. The WWGA, like the WGA, has its headquarters in Chicago, and year after year, has endeavored, and successfully, to bring the ablest stars in the game to its events. To the progressive credit of the ladies, it must also be pointed out that it is the first organization to provide a recognized competition for such business women golfers as Patty Berg, Helen Dettweiler, Mrs. Opal Hill, Mildred Didrickson Zaharias, and Helen Hicks Harb. The annual Western Open, won this year by Miss Berg, is the vehicle for same.

That's the players' side in Illinois. Consider the variety of extrafairway activities that Illinois and Chicago organizations have given to golf. There's the handicapping system designed by Thomas G. McMahon, vice president of the Chicago District Golf association. This has been adopted by more than 150 golf associations thruout this country and Canada. The CWDGA, thru its president, Mrs. Andrew D. Collins, has provided a similar service for women's clubs and groups. Joe G. Davis, 79 year old secretary of the CDGA, has stimulated interstate rivalry with a series of matches against Wisconsin and Missouri which he avers is only the beginning of a healthy rivalry.

A Scoring Innovation.

McMahon, aside from his handicapping system, chose the Chicago Open to give the galleries a factual picture of where they might find the score of the ball game in the one sport in which it is hardest to discover. By the use of diligent caddie-couriers he kept the galleryites informed of where the 10 leaders in the tournament were playing, and how much under or over par they were against their rivals.

No story of Chicago golf would be complete without a bow to the Western Golf association and the Illinois section of the PGA. The latter, thru Tom Walsh, national president of the organization, last year instituted a program of caddie education adopted by every important club in the land. This same Illinois PGA was the first, thru its sectional president, Alex Cunningham, to conduct clinics for all persons interested in golf, an idea since taken up by several leading universities. The WGA's work in the Chick Evans caddie scholarship fund at Northwestern university is now so nationally known that it needs no amplification.

Inboard, Outboard Races Are Scheduled for Today

The Chain o' Lakes Boat club will hold the third of a series of inboard and outboard motor races on its Pistakee lake course near Fox Lake, Ill., this afternoon. Eight events are on the program, which has been arranged by Commodore Elmer Olson The first race will start at 2 o'clock.

THE LOCKER ROOM

Round-of-the-Week
Bill Ludolph's two-under-par for last eight holes of Chicago district closed junior meet.

Shot-of-the-Week
Joe Murphy's approach shot to 18th green during Cruise Day tournament at Butterfield.

WHEN Jim Wilson, Park Ridge professional, was stationed at the Kent Country club in Grand Rapids, Mich., Henry Stanton also was there and was known as one of the best players in Michigan. . . . Recently, at 11 p. m., Jim thought he heard somebody call his name, and his wife confirmed the impression. . . . Jim turned the Wilson porch light on and there was Henry Stanton, whom he had not seen for 18 years, altho Henry had lived in Chicago for a number of years. . . . It seems Henry had been playing in a tournament and was invited to stop on his way home at the home of one of the contestants. . . . They were in different cars and were separated en route. . . . Stanton was not certain of his host's name, but knowing that Wilson lived in Park Ridge, he decided to look up his old friend. . . . Walter Dana, whom the Locker Room's Glen Oak correspondent, A. B. Ambrose, identifies as the so-called pro from Aurora, drove a ball so hard the other day that the center was torn loose and rattled. . . . Speaking of Glen Oak reminds us that the west side club will hold its annual Round-up, one of the better local invitationals on Aug. 15 and 16. . . . Frank Brysky of Nordic Hills is being congratulated on his ace with a 4 iron at the 194 yard 11th hole. . . . His witnesses were Dr. Allen Parker, Dr. E. S. Pachoca, and Dr. H. M. Peterson. . . . None of the good doctors, 'tis said, were called upon to revive Frank.

Cubs Prove They Can Hit a Golf Ball, Too, Tuesday.

Charley Root, Hank Leiber, Dominic Dallesandro, and Bob Scheffing will give a golf and baseball demonstration Tuesday night at 9 o'clock at the Airport Driving range, 55th street and Cicero avenue. . . . The range is operated by the able Joe Wolf, the man who answers all calls in Butterfield's locker room. . . . Two boys who have risen to success since vacating the caddy ranks at Twin Orchard are Phil Schaeffer and L. Levinthal. . . . Both, now members, toted bags at the course 'way back when the club was started. . . . No figures are yet available on the fourth annual Chicago Open tournament at Elmhurst, but Tournament Chairman Larry Rutherford's first official announcement starts out, "The fourth Chicago Open golf tournament is now history—but what history it made!" . . . Chairman Rutherford added that the CDGA hopes to hold the fifth Chicago Open in the third week-end of July, 1942, world conditions permitting. . . . Ray Gerber, greenkeeping superintendent at Glen Oak, makes the cover of the current issue of the Greenkeepers' Reporter. . . . His assistant, Paul Elliott, is pictured in the intricate operation of tee plugging. . . . Paul estimates that about 600 divots had to be replaced on this particular hole, the 116 yard 11th at Glen Oak.

That No. 3 at Medinah Is Easy if You Are Good.

Fred Vandover of the Tom, Dick, and Harry radio team has been balking at playing the No. 3 course at Medinah. . . . Friends asked him if he had any trouble on that layout. . . . "You never have any trouble on No. 3," Van replied, "if you hit a long, straight ball, keep out of sand traps, and clear the water." . . . Edgewater tomorrow will be host to the annual Pro-Presidents' tournament, one of the best events on the Chicago golf calendar. . . . Alternate shots and selective drives will make up the program, with half of the presidents' handicaps applying to the scores. . . . Reservations are coming in rapidly for the Medinah Camel Trail on Aug. 13. . . . Westmoreland will hold its 26th annual Tam o' Shanter tourney on the same date.

Harry P. Bauman was doing the treating at Westmoreland a couple of weeks ago as the result of having broken 80 for the first time in his career. . . . Ditto for J. J. Ferguson, who scored an 89, the first time he ever had broken 90. . . . For the first time in the history of the club, South Shore will hold a junior tournament. . . . The qualifying round is set for tomorrow. . . . Dr. Allen Parker was boasting to fellow club members at Nordic Hills about a round in which he had 11 one putt greens. . . . Hank Leiber of the Cubs, who can get plenty of distance with a baseball bat, is equally proficient with a golf club. . . . Playing at South Shore recently he was just short of the green with his drive to the 325 yard sixth hole. . . . Riverside is one of the oldest golf courses in the Chicago district, having been opened in 1895. . . . Old timers recall that before the club was built, golf enthusiasts would play on the open prairie in the neighborhood. . . . John Mullane of 1411 West 73d place made a hole in one on the 280 yard second hole at the Kinsman course. . . . The annual Illinois-Wisconsin professional series of matches will be decided at the Racine Country club on Aug. 18.

The Inquiring Golfer

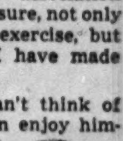
THE QUESTION.

What has membership in a golf club meant to you?

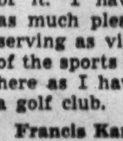
[Asked during Butterfield's nineteenth annual cruise day.]

THE ANSWERS.

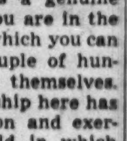
Fred Leuthesser—I happen to have been one of the founders of Butterfield Country club back there in 1919, when none of us quite knew where to spot the clubhouse. As a former baseball player at the time, golf was new to me, but it hasn't been new since. It has been a constant source of real human association which I shall always treasure, not only from the standpoint of exercise, but also from the friends I have made here.



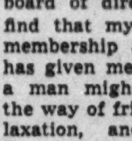
W. W. Buchman—I can't think of a place where a man can enjoy himself more than at a real, live country club like Butterfield. It isn't just the golf, or the playing of it. I have had just as much pleasure out of serving as vice chairman of the sports and pastimes committee here as I have had out of swinging a golf club.



Francis Karel—My job as chairman of the sports and pastimes committee would not seem to give me much chance to enjoy myself, but that is not the case. It's an honor and produces a genuine kick when you are in the position by which you can bring happiness to a couple of hundred men out to enjoy themselves. Beyond that my membership here has given me more relaxation and exercise than any other field in which I have been.



Jack Walsh—As a member of the board of directors of Butterfield, I find that my ten years' membership at the club has given me everything a man might desire in the way of friendship, relaxation, and exercise. Certainly, it has meant a great deal to my wife, who, in the course of my time here, has become one of the best bridge players in the club.



Jim Jackson—The quality of friendship is a difficult one to attain, but I have found it here at Butterfield. I have belonged to a number of other clubs, yet Butterfield has provided me with contacts that I will remember all my life. If you are a member of a golf club, you presumably play the game. I do—about once or twice a week—but I find that my membership here provides me with far more than standing on a tee and hitting a golf ball.

ONE of the outstanding women's tournaments of the year has been incorporated in the 41st amateur event of the Women's Western Golf association, scheduled for the week of Aug. 18 at Exmoor. . . . The innovation is called the Auld Lang Syne tourney. . . . All golfers who played in any western tournament prior to 1925 are eligible. . . . There will be low gross prizes for the Auld Lang Syne golfers who are entered in the tournament proper and who play on the 18th in the qualifying round. . . . On Tuesday there will be a putting event for which the WWGA is giving prizes. . . . The Exmoor club will entertain Auld Lang Syne members at a tea following the putting competition. . . . Entry fee for the entire tournament is $5. . . . Entrants must be members of a WWGA club. . . . Entries should be forwarded to Mrs. J. A. Wheeler, 814 Ingleside place, Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Davis Finds Out About Missed Putts.

Stationing himself at the 18th green of the final three rounds of the Chicago Open golf tournament at Elmhurst, Secretary Joe G. Davis of the CDGA saw approximately 175 putts attempted each day. . . . Joe avers he never had a better lesson in putting, and his final analysis was that 65 per cent of the putts were from 1 to 2 feet short. . . . Joe thinks that if most of these had been stroked so as to go over the hole, a number would have dropped instead of curling away just as they neared the cup. . . . It is obvious, Joe says, that where a number of players have walked near the hole, the surface of the green is bound to become even, and so it takes greater speed to hold the ball on its original line. . . . As if the Women's Western Derby, opening tomorrow and continuing thru Thursday at Medinah, were not enough golf for one week, Skokie's Kilties day and Calumet's Plae Dae are scheduled for Wednesday. . . . Art Hall of Chicago, playing as a guest of Paul Birks at Glen Oak, sank a 150 yard spoon shot for an eagle on the 12th hole.

Chicagoans who aren't able to attend the National Amateur tournament in Omaha the last week of this month can get a great preview of the big show at Knollwood the week of Aug. 18, when the first annual Great Lakes Amateur is conducted by the CDGA. . . . Marvin [Bud] Ward, former national champ and winner of the last two westerns, is doing everything possible to arrange his plans so that he will be able to compete. . . . If Bud can get to Knollwood, all he has to face is a field that includes Willie Turnesa, Tom Sheehan, Wilford Wehrle, John Barnum, Chick Evans, Bob Cochran, and Gordon Kummer, all of them already entered.

Tam o' Shanter's Sundial Is Slightly in Error.

Jack Kainer, popular Tam o' Shanter Country club member, recently presented the club with a handsome, specially designed bronze sundial. . . . Disregarding the precept of looking a gift horse in the mouth, his fellow member, Jim Lowder, discovered that the word, "Tam o' Shanter," was misspelled, with the apostrophe ahead of, instead of after, the o. . . . Cast as it was, in imperishable bronze, this looked like a mistake for the ages, but metallurgical engineers have been consulted and they state that the apostrophe can be transferred. . . . Bill Gordon, pro at Tam o' Shanter, was in Detroit on Thursday, attending the funeral of a relative. . . . He was delayed and could not catch any train to Chicago. . . . At 11 a. m. he called up the airport and was told the 11 o'clock plane had been delayed 20 minutes. . . . He hopped into a taxi, caught the plane, and was back at Tam o' Shanter by 2 p. m. in time to supervise a handicap event with a field of 200.

Bill Jacobs of Mohawk, for the second time this season, won low gross honors at Elmhurst in the CDGA interclub junior competition with a 37-45-82. . . . Harriett Robinson of Ruth Lake was the girls' winner with 49-56-105.

NATION'S HEALTH TRAINING CHIEF MAPS PROGRAM

Ocean City, N. J., Aug. 2 [Special].—An elaborate program for improving the health of the nation was outlined today by John B. Kelly, newly appointed United States director of health training, who said he would enlist the greatest names in the athletic world to help him accomplish his aims. Kelly, a former Olympic rowing star, will retire as Democratic chairman of Philadelphia.

"I will invite Jack Dempsey, Tommy Harmon, Bobby Jones, Paul Costello, my former rowing teammate, and others whose achievements in sports are well known, to make public appearances thruout the country in the interest of the training program," Kelly said.

The new director said his plan would not be compulsory, but that every attempt would be made to make it so attractive that all civilians would wish to participate.

MAILMAN TAKES A VACATION AND WINS GOLF TITLE

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 2 (AP).—Playing in his first state tournament, Harland Reich, young Madison mailman, won the Wisconsin amateur golf championship today by defeating Bobby Johnson of Milwaukee, 1 up in 36 holes.

Reich had to fight off a rally by Johnson on the last nine holes and matched the Milwaukeean's birdie 4 on the final hole to halve it and win the title.

The Madison youth, who entered the tournament only because it came while he was on his vacation, tired on the final stretch and saw his lead of 4 up on the 27th hole dwindle as Johnson played par golf.

Week's Fights

Jan. 14—Marquette at Syracuse.
Jan. 16—Marquette at Michigan State.
Jan. 17—Marquette at Detroit.
Jan. 31—Marquette at Notre Dame.
Feb. 14—Marquette at Butler.
Feb. 21—Michigan State at Marquette.
Feb. 28—Detroit at Marquette.
March 7—Notre Dame vs. Marquette in Milwaukee auditorium.

TRAGIC ENDING TAKES GRANITE STATE HANDICAP

Salem, N. H., Aug. 2 (AP).—W. J. Hirsch's Tragic Ending scored a half length victory over the pace setting Cape Cod from the stable of C. G. Greer today to win the $5,000 added Granite State handicap at Rockingham Park. Louis Tufano's Market Wise finished third, a length behind, and Whitey Abel's Honey Cloud took fourth money. Tragic Ending ran the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44.

END SEEMS NEAR FOR CALIFORNIA'S JUNIOR NET REIGN

Chicagoans Threaten for Title This Week.

BY WILLIAM FAY.

There are reports out of the west that associate members of the California Chamber of Commerce, particularly in the Los Angeles branch, have not been sleeping so well.

They've been dreaming of the national junior tennis tournament which will open tomorrow at Culver [Ind.] Military academy, and when two Chicago youngsters named Gardner Larned and Jimmy Evert walk into the dream the Chamber of Commerce members begin to roll and toss.

They haven't acted this way since 1928, when Frank Shields of New York was the last non-Californian to win the junior title. Of course, Frank Parker of Milwaukee won in 1932, but every loyal chamber of commerce man knows that Parker really learned how to play tennis during winter sojourns to sun-kissed California, out where tennis begins.

Patty Is Coast Contender.

But now the 12 year reign of California over junior tennis is virtually at an end. Los Angeles offers Budge Patty, the 1939 boy champion, as a possible successor to Bobby Carrothers of Coronado, Cal., who beat Earl Bartlett of New Orleans for the title last summer and later was killed in an automobile accident.

But Patty's work in the Illinois state tournament in Chicago 10 days ago was not up to the form displayed by Larned or Evert, who already has won the national junior indoor title. Larned defeated Evert in four close sets in the semi-finals and then beat Dave Freeman of Pomona, Cal., the 1938 national junior champion, for the title.

Thus Larned will begin play tomorrow as the No. 1 seeded favorite, since Bartlett has passed the 18 year old age limit. Larned was ranked third nationally behind Bartlett in 1940.

Patty lost to Jack Tuero of New Orleans in the Illinois tournament. Tuero, who ranked No. 3 among the boys last year, is very likely to lift Bobby Falkenburg's boys' title, particularly since Falkenburg, who plays out of Hollywood, broke his arm last month and will try to defend his title with his left arm in a sling.

May Lose Two Titles.

Falkenburg won the western boys' tournament last Friday, despite this handicap, but he was not playing any Tueros. Thus, California stands to lose two national tennis titles in one week.

The combined junior and boys' entry will number more than 200 players from all sections of the country. The list of leading junior contenders looks like this:

EAST—Victor Seixas, national interscholastic champion, and Bill Voght, both of Philadelphia; Irving Dorfman, New York City, who upset Evert in the interscholastic tournament; Blair Hawley and John Moses, interscholastic doubles champion.

MIDDLE WEST—Gardner Larned, Jimmy Evert, and Bob Smidl of Chicago, and Bobby Jake of Milwaukee.

WEST—Budge Patty; Harry Likas and Harry Buttimer, San Francisco; John Howard, Hollywood.

Tichenor Is Threat.

Falkenburg, as defending champion, will be seeded No. 1 in the boys' sector. He can expect his hardest competition from the previously mentioned Tuero, who holds the southern boys' title. Then there is Charles Tichenor of Indianapolis, the national boys' badminton champion, for Falkenburg to worry about, not to mention Howe Atwater of Wilmette, Ill.; Allen Watson of Elizabeth, N. J., and Emil Martinez of San Antonio, the Texas champion.

No wonder the California Chamber of Commerce, particularly the Los Angeles branch, is worried.

RIGGS TROUNCES FRANKIE KOVACS AT SOUTHAMPTON

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of Clinton, S. C., won the 51st annual Meadow club tennis tournament today with a 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 triumph over Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal., for his fourth championship in five years.

Kovacs was rifling the ball all over the court off his forehand and backhand, but Riggs' ability to anticipate Kovacs' next move nullified most of the California's efforts.

Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Cal., and the international team of Sidney Wood of New York and Ladislav Hecht, the ex-Czech Davis cupper, swept into the finals of the doubles tournament. Mulloy and Schroeder eliminated Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, Ga., and Frank Bowden, New York, 6-8, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4. Hecht and Wood beat Dick McKee of Miami and Earl Cochell, Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

MEXICO LIFTS BAN ON RACING; TO BUILD TRACK

Mexico City, Aug. 2 (AP).—The government lifted the ban on horse racing in Mexico today and at the same time granted a concession for what is planned to be the western hemisphere's largest race track. The return of racing, which was barred several years ago by ex-President Cardenas, was officially authorized in a published presidential concession.

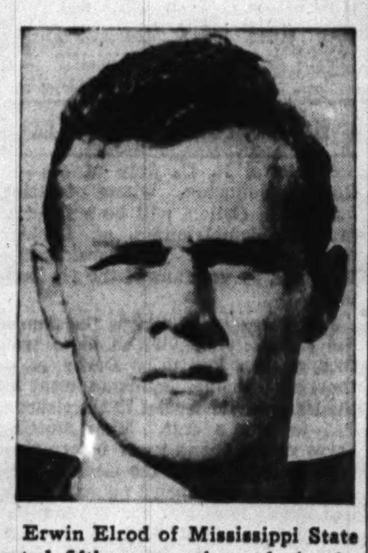
The lavishly planned racing establishment would include polo fields, breeding stables, sports facilities, and jumping grounds in addition to the track. The total investment would be over 1,000,000 pesos [$200,000]. The concession was granted to Bruno Pagliai, who guaranteed to invest at least that much in the venture and complete it within one year.

Betting, heretofore banned in the federal district, apparently will be permitted at the new track.

They, Too, Star

Paul Christman (above), Missouri forward pass expert, and the others in this group weren't named to the All-Star starting lineup, but they'll be ready as capable shock troops to face the Chicago Bears in Soldiers' field on Aug. 28.

Joe Lokanc of Northwestern was the third ranking guard, right behind Lio of Georgetown and O'Boyle of Tulane.



Erwin Elrod of Mississippi State rated fifth among the ends in the All-Star voting.

Paul Severin of North Carolina is among the many adept ends who will oppose the Bears.

ACORNS, WISLA SOCCER PLAYOFF STARTS TODAY

The Oak Park Acorns and the Wisla Soccer club today open a two game, total goal series to determine the champion of the first division in the International league. They clash at 4 o'clock in Hanson park. Oak Park won class A honors and Wisla led class B in the spring season. The winner of the series will be promoted to the major division next season, replacing the Hansa club which finished in last place and will be dropped back to the first division.

CALIFORNIANS SWEEP WESTERN JUNIOR TENNIS

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP).—Harry Likas of San Francisco today won the western junior tennis tournament by defeating Jack Tunnell of Los Angeles 2-6, 6-2, 6-0, 6-4.

Bob Tunnell and Bob Kimbrell, both of Los Angeles, gave the west coast a clean sweep by defeating Dick Warner and Cleo Sinnard, both of Salt Lake City, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, in the doubles finals.

West Side Lawn Bowlers Oppose Rockford Today

Only two Chicago lawn bowling clubs are scheduled for action today, with others en route to the national tournament starting tomorrow in Buffalo, N. Y. The Westside club will oppose the Rockford club in Rockford, while the Lakeside club will hold an open event for new and old members, starting at 10 o'clock.

VISITORS WON'T BE WELCOME AT BEAR WORKOUTS

BY EDWARD PRELL.

There will be no hostile or neutral eyes spying on the Chicago Bears during their three weeks of All-Star game preparation. George Halas, owner-coach of the National Football league champions, said yesterday the practice field at St. John's Military academy in Delafield, Wis., will be barred to all outsiders.

"I know this isn't a very chummy attitude to take," explained Halas, "but it happens we want more than anything else to beat those college fellows. We won't have time to check on every one who might come out to take a look at us. So we're going to keep 'em all out."

He's Taking No Chances.

Halas said he has had to discourage at least a dozen college coaches who wanted to attend the practice sessions. "Their intentions might have been entirely honest," George admitted, "but even so, they might let something slip which would get back to the All-Star coaches. So it's with regret that I'm putting up that sign telling every one to stay away."

In past years, the Bears' training camp has been open to visitors but, of course, the Bears haven't prepared for an All-Star game since 1935 when they defeated the All-Americans, 5 to 0. The year before they were held to a scoreless tie. The Bears, then, have scored only five points in 120 minutes of All-Star play. Halas and his players hope to do something about this, in a mathematical way, the night of Aug. 28 in Soldiers' field.

Six Ends Under Contract.

The Bears—44 players, Halas, and three coaching assistants—will leave for camp at 10 o'clock next Saturday morning.

All but 10 of the 44 men are under contract and Halas anticipates no trouble with the late ones. A few of them have a habit of bringing in their contracts when they report in Chicago. Yesterday, the signed contract of Bob Nowaskey, end from George Washington, was received. He was the sixth end to sign.

Three of the Bears' recruits will get only as far north as Evanston, as they are members of the All-Star squad. They are Hugh Gallarneau, half back, and Norm Standlee, both of Stanford's Rose bowl champions, and Fred Hartman, tackle from Rice.

The Bears' squad of 44 is divided by positions this way: seven ends, eight tackles, eight guards, four centers, four quarter backs, three full

Oak Brook Plays Evanston Today in 3d Polo Game

The Oak Brook and Evanston polo teams, contenders for central circuit and national honors, will play at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the deciding game of their Chicago district title series on the Oak Brook stadium field, York road and 22d street. Evanston won the first contest of the series and Oak Brook the second.

A PARTNERSHIP: JENKINS & SON, SPEED DEALERS

Salt Lake City, Utah, Aug. 2 (AP).—A father and son team of speed car drivers—probably the first in history—is going to try for new world records.

The father—Ab Jenkins, mayor of Salt Lake City, holder of more momentum records than any other man. The son—Marv Jenkins, just turned 21, a commercial flyer and an expert behind the wheel of a dashing automobile since he was 11. Their goal—167 miles per hour for 24 consecutive hours, or 4,000 miles in one day and one night.

Father Ab already holds the record for the grueling grind over Utah's famed Salt Flats near the Nevada border, but to the Jenkins pair that mark of 161.18 m. p. h. is too low.

A smile of pride spread over the elder Jenkins' face when the American Automobile association granted young Marv a license to do the relief driving for his father, a job heretofore held by such racing veterans as Babe Stapp and Lou Meyer.

"Marv could have qualified for the license three years ago," Ab beamed, "except for the age angle. But he's 21 now and I expect him to drive at least 10 of the 24 hours when we start, probably in September."

When Marv was 11, Ab went to California to try out a stock car for a record run over a lake bed. While the entourage was busy elsewhere, young Marv hopped into the stock car and streaked toward the measured mile testing ground.

Following the course his father had used, Marv poured it on for the full mile.

Confidence in a Lad.

"I wasn't alarmed," said Ab. "I knew the kid could drive, so I asked the timer to clock him. He averaged 91 miles per hour for the mile, above the world stock car record at that time.

"Instead of expecting a reprimand, Marv drove up to camp, hopped out and exclaimed: 'Forget it, big boy, I've been waiting to do that a long time.'"

Ab described Marv as cool under fire [he once rescued his father from his burning racer] and ranked him among the best three fast drivers in the nation.

An Airlines Officer.

Marv began flying four or five years ago and now is first officer on the Western Airlines' northern leg out of Salt Lake City.

"I'm going to join the air corps reserve and fly for the army, if it wants me," he added.

Marv got most of his fast driving experience in an old speedster his dad sidetracked several years ago. He utilized every flat space available to pound the old crate along at breakneck speed. But he's never had an accident.

Ab's racing days hark back to the motorcycle speed bowl, but he still is going forward, gradually building up the endurance records, and he has an eye on John Cobb's measured mile record of 369 M.P.H., also established on the salt flats.

There's Some Good News in the Rubber Situation

★

I would like to talk to you about rubber and tell you some of the reassuring things as I see them today.

This is a good time to do it because you, like a good many other Americans, may be wondering if you will be able to buy new tires during the months ahead.

We, at Goodyear, are making this report to you because we feel it is our responsibility to keep you informed. You have helped us build our business and we want you to know the full facts as we see them here in Akron.

As I write this, we sincerely believe there will be enough tires for those who need them if everybody helps and something unforeseen does not develop.

Statistically, the rubber industry is in good shape today to care for present needs. The Government, through the Rubber Reserve Company, is importing more rubber than is needed for current requirements. Thus the Government and the rubber industry are co-operating in a sensible policy of storing up supplies of rubber for a "rainy day."

I'd like to emphasize that there is no shortage of rubber. No such condition exists as in some other basic materials needed for National Defense. There is, further, no shortage of production facilities in the rubber industry.

Goodyear is co-operating fully with the Government in an increasing number of defense activities. These include airplane parts and tires, barrage balloons and dirigibles, bullet-puncture-sealing gas tanks and hose, gas masks, and inflated rubber boats —as well as special tires for tanks, trucks. and motorcycles.

At the same time, we aim to serve the public by making as many automobile tires as we can to prevent a tire shortage and to maintain Goodyear quality throughout.

This is important because our test records show that good tires not only give more miles per dollar than cheap tires, but they use considerably less rubber per thousand miles traveled.

We hope you'll be able to buy Goodyear Tires whenever you need them. But we also want to show you how you can make your tires last longer. That will mean a saving to you, of course; and in addition it will help conserve the rubber so vital to our National Defense program. A few suggestions along these lines are printed below.

We are happy to offer you the advice and co-operation of the Goodyear Dealer in your neighborhood on any tire problem. We've taken a lot of care over the past forty years to select and train Goodyear Dealers so that they could help you get the greatest mileage from your tires, with the greatest safety, at the lowest cost per mile.

These days, particularly, they are ready, and as eager as we are, to serve you in every way they can. You'll find it well worth while to visit them regularly.

And remember, this is a time for all of us to use rubber wisely and to buy normally according to actual needs.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR TIRES LAST LONGER

Do not drive over 50! Tires wear out 62% faster at 70 miles an hour than at 50. Safe driving speeds also save gasoline, oil, money and lives.

Check tire pressures every week. Too little pressure breaks down sidewalls. Too much pressure wears out center of the tread.

Make sure your brakes are properly adjusted and your wheels balanced and in line. A wheel one-half inch out of line drags a tire 87 feet sideways in every mile.

Rotate your tires. Reverse the direction of the tires every 2000 to 3000 miles. Have a competent tire dealer do this and ask him to check your tires for cuts and bruises at the same time. This is good economy and may prevent a serious accident.

For added safety and economy, replace inner tubes with LifeGuards. This reserve tire-within-a-tire lets you use all the mileage in your tires without fear of a disastrous blowout accident. And with LifeGuards you can safely have your good tires regrooved and retreaded. You can install LifeGuards — the modern safety successor to the inner tube — in tires now in service or in new tires.

Have your tires retreaded by a competent dealer, if the casings are good enough. A good retread gives you thousands of miles of additional service at low cost and lessens the danger of skidding.

When you do buy a new tire, choose only a good tire of proved quality. Good tires give more miles per dollar than cheap ones, and they use less rubber per thousand miles traveled.

BUSTER, FENELON TRIUMPH IN TWO SARATOGA RACES

Jock Whitney's 2 Year Old Scores an Upset.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—Jock Whitney had the last laugh today as his horse, Buster, won the $9,675 United States Hotel stakes at Saratoga to become a contender for the 2 year old championship.

Whitney lost ownership of Amphitheatre at the Saratoga sales last summer to his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, by the flip of a coin. Later he purchased Buster for $11,500, and today he watched the son of Bull Dog score a victory over Amphitheatre, B. F. Whitaker's Requested, and four other juveniles.

Wins by Two Lengths.

Running the 6 furlongs in a creditable 1:12 2-5 over a fast track, Buster came from far back in the final dash and won by two lenghts from Requested. Amphitheatre, the odds-on choice after his victory in the Flash stakes here opening day, was third, a head farther back.

Buster's earnings in the race placed his total as a juvenile at $15,740. He paid $16.10 to win, $5,10 to place, and $2.80 for third in the $2 mutuels.

In the day's co-feature, the 15,163 fans attracted by the first perfect racing weather of the week old meeting, saw William Woodward's Fenelon, a steady handicap performer, capture $5,200 top money in the 39th Merchants and Citizens' handicap.

Fenelon Wins All the Way.

Fenelon scored by a head from the Millsdale stable's Andy K., which set the pace from the drop of the barrier over the 1 3-16 miles' route. He ran the distance in 1:58 4-5, and returned $5.60 as the favorite in the seven horse field. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Corydon was third, three lengths away.

BOY ANGLER WINS.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP).—Max Wexler's Boy Angler ran the fastest mile and a sixteenth of the Detroit race meeting in winning the $5,000 Godolphin handicap today before 11,643 at the Fairgrounds track. The 4 year old son of Burgoo King was clocked in 1:43 4-5, two-fifths of a second off the track record, and paid $5.20 for $2.

Boy Angler, taking the lead in the first stride, stayed ahead of its four rivals all the way and finished two and a half lengths ahead of Valdina Groom, which beat out Meggy.

The heavily played Spot Shot, favorite in the fourth race, broke down near the finish and was destroyed.

U. S. C. Chief Tells Plans on New Coach

No action to name a successor to the late Howard Jones as football coach at the University of Southern California will be taken until Aug. 9 or 10, R. B. Kleinsmid, president of the university, said yesterday in Chicago.

President Kleinsmid will join the funeral party for Jones in Indianapolis tomorrow. The funeral for the coach who died of a heart attack last Sunday will be held Tuesday in Middletown, O.

Upon returning to California, the president will confer with the faculty board, the athletic committee of the board of trustees, and Will Hunter, general athletic director, on a new coach.

Among those mentioned in informal conversation as a possible selection is Justin M. [Sam] Barry, long time associate of Jones. Barry was Jones' assistant at Iowa, and when the latter went to U. S. C. in 1925, Barry went along as an aid in football and as basketball coach.

RICHARDS SEEKS LEAD TONIGHT IN MIDGET RACING

Victory in the 30 lap main event in the midget auto races tonight would move Ray Richards into the lead in the point standing for the season title at Riverview speedway, on Addison street near Western avenue. Richards narrowed the lead now held by Ted Duncan by winning the feature contest last week.

AAA Sanctions Races at Hammond Track Aug. 17

The contest board of the American Automobile association has sanctioned the races to be held at Hammond Speedway on Aug. 17. This will be the first AAA sanctioned meet in the Chicago area during the last three years.

Complete finish confirmed by Kuprion camera. Time, :24, :48 1-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 4-5, 1:53. Two dollar mutuels paid: Wooden Indian, $4.40 straight, $3.00 place, $2.20 show; Kosse, $4.60 place, $2.60 show; Okapilida, $2.60 show. Winner trained by J. H. Skirvin. Went to post at 2:21. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

WOODEN INDIAN, allowed to remain out of serious contention for seven-eighths, started up on the inside when starting his move, came out in the final eighth and, wearing down the leaders, drew clear in the final strides. KOSSE, under steady restraint for seven-eighths, rallidein the drive but weakened in the late stages and pulled up sore. OKAPILIDA, away slowly and lacking early speed, saved ground to the stretch and made a determined effort in the drive.

At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

QUICK TOOL, forced to race wide when outrun early, rallied stoutly when shaken up in the last three-sixteenths, continued to lose ground when reaching contention, then, finishing stoutly, wore down LADY REYNARD, and drew out quickly. LADY REYNARD hurried into the lead, set a good pace to shake off strong contention from VALDINA FLARE, but gave way suddenly under punishment inside the last eighth. SPRING DRIFT was ridden hard and gained ground steadily in the final straightaway.

ANNIE ALONE, away fast and taken in hand after an eighth, slowly wore down WINLETTE under mild pressure and could not draw away. RITA JAY, outrun to the last three-sixteenths, came out for the final run and closed boldly under strong urging. WINLETTE had fine speed from the start, crossed to the inside approaching the turn, and weakened in the drive yet gave way very slowly.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Claiming. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Complete finish confirmed by Kuprion camera. Time, :22 4-5, :46 4-5, :59 2-5, 1:05 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Saves Nine, $8.20 straight, $3.80 place, $2.60 show; Bolus, $3.40 place, $2.40 show; Valdina Alpha, $2.60 show. Winner trained by D. E. Stewart. Went to post at 3:58. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

SAVES NINE followed the pacemaker under light restraint while racing wide, took command under urging, swerved over slightly near the end and held BOLUS safe. Latter, away fast, but taken back and kept restrained to the stretch, rallied in the drive and was holding on well at the close. VALDINA ALPHA had fine speed from the start, was kept out from the rails and, under pressure the final quarter, weakened in the late stages.

FIFTH RACE—Mile and an eighth. Fou year olds and up. Claiming. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

MR. SMITH, a factor from the start and on the inside to the last quarter, responded when called upon and got up in the final sixteenth but weakened in the late stages. MORDECAI, under a good hold to the stretch and saving ground the final three-eighths, got to the front in the drive but could not withstand the winner. AMERICAN BYRD, slow to respond, rallied in the final three-sixteenths and was rapidly overtaking the leaders.

SIXTH RACE—Three-quarters of a mile. Three year olds and up. Chicago handicap. Purse $5,000 added. Net value to winner, $4,250; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250.

Winner trained by E. Wyatt. Went to post at 5:08. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

TALKED ABOUT, away fast but placed under strong restraint before going three-sixteenths, responded willingly when called upon after coming out in the stretch, and, moving up gradually, headed SMACKED at the end. Latter cut out a fast pace under restraint, increased his advantage under urging in the stretch, and drifted out slightly when weakening in the late stages. AIR BRIGADE, taken to the inside early, closed strongly thru the stretch.

Winner trained by D. E. Stewart. Went to post at 5:41. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

MISTY ISLE, away slowly and rushed into contention on the inside, was taken in hand after a quarter, bore out around the turn, stood a drive gamely, and, shaking off SILVESTRA, held PINK GAL safe. Latter, outrun to the stretch and raced wide thruout, made a bid in the drive but could not get to the winner. SILVESTRA, well up from the start, lost ground the last half mile and weakened in the drive.

EIGHTH RACE—Mile and an eighth. Three year olds and up. Claiming. Purse $1,200. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Winner trained by H. Jacobs. Went to post at 6:13. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving, place same.

OFF SHORE, under stout reserve for seven-eighths, held on gamely in the drive and lasted for a lucky win. TOPEE, best and saved off the pace to the stretch, got to the front with a rush, then threatened to impede the winner as he persisted in bearing over, and Adams could not ride him out while straightening him several times in the last 50 yards. TIMEFUL, under good pressure while racing wide the final five-sixteenths, held on well.

STATE BICYCLE TITLE AT STAKE IN RACES TONIGHT

The Illinois amateur bicycling track champion will be determined at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Humboldt Park bowl in a special series of events sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization. Proceeds of the races will be donated by the CYO to defray the expenses of the team that will represent Illinois in the national track and road meet to be held in California this month.

Heading the list of seven events tonight will be the feature one mile Illinois state track championship final and the five mile state final, the last of four events to determine the state champion.

Saratoga Wins Final Event at Goshen Track

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 2 (AP).—The bay colt, Saratoga, owned by T. L. Gustin of Holicong, Pa., and driven by Tom Berry today won the $3,500 Village Farm stake, which featured the closing day program of the Grand Circuit trotting meeting at Historic track.

Bell Boy was the favorite, but broke from a pace in both heats, and Saratoga won without much trouble. Berry also drove Steward, owned by Joseph Burke of Plainfield, N. J., to the front in the 17 trot, winning in straight heats.

The free for all trot resulted in an upset when The Javadale, owned by Ed Stout of Pontiac, Mich., and driven by Will Caton, won.

Doctor Baker Wins.

Wayne Smart substituted for the injured Sep Palin behind Doctor Baker, favorite for the 12 pace, and won, finishing second to Bob Lee in the mile dash, and winning the dash of a mile and a sixteenth.

The veteran pacing gelding, Little Pat, owned by Biery farm of Butler, Pa., and driven by Charley Lacey, won his fifth winning race over the Goshen track. The free-for-all pace Blackstone beat him in the first heat, but Doc Parshall, driver of that horse, was taken down for beating the barrier before the start of the second, and Vic Fleming substituted for him.

HAMBLETONIAN FAVORITE

Charlotte, N. C., July 31 (AP).—R. Horace Johnston, whose trotting horse, Bill Gallon, will be a favorite in the Hambletonian at Goshen, N. Y., on Wednesday, is considered a freshman by veterans of the rig business.

Just three years ago to the day of the Hambletonian, which is to trotting as the Kentucky Derby is to thorobred racing, Johnston went to the Hanover farm sales in Harrisburg, Pa., to buy a colt. Most trotting horse racers spend years before they land a contender in the Goshen race.

Johnston, millionaire manufacturer, had been a horseman for 45 years but this was his first fling at trotting. He paid $1,800 for Bill Gallon, which sold under the name of Ashley Hanover and was by Sandy Flash out of Calumet Aristocrat.

Liked His Looks.

There wasn't much spirited bidding for Bill Gallon, Johnston recalls, and several of the others [their names were soon forgotten] sold for $6,000 or more.

"I just liked his looks," Johnston said. "Of course, I had years of experience with horses behind me but this was my first time with trotters. It was nothing in the world but luck—just luck."

A year later Johnston knew he had one in a thousand. As a 2 year old Bill Gallon was a champion and a leading money winner.

And this freshman of the rig business admits that if Bill Gallon wins he probably won't win another Hambletonian—but he won't say he'll quit trying.

Time Should Be 2:02.

"I've got the fastest horse in the race," he said, "and with a minimum of luck and the right track conditions Bill Gallon will come in first. We've licked the other entries in previous races and I don't see anything to stop us.

"The time? It should be 2:02."

Bill Gallon, trained and driven by Lee Smith [a freshman in the Hambletonian, too, and with little experience as a driver in the Grand Circuit] had a 1940 time of 2:04. He stands a little more than 15 hands and because of his trueness of gait, keeps his speed and seldom makes mistakes.

Layden Orders Eagles' Rookie Back to College

Stuart Clarkson was on his way back to Texas last night, his career as a professional football player delayed for a year by Elmer Layden, commissioner of professional football.

Clarkson walked into the training camp of the Philadelphia Eagles Monday when they began practice in Two Rivers, Wis. He had played three years with Texas Arts and Industry college in Kingsville, Tex., and fancied himself ready to be the Eagles' regular center.

Then his coach, Bud McCallum, heard about it. McCallum had been figuring on Stuart playing another year of center at Texas A. & I., which is in the Alamo conference. He told Commissioner Layden that his school had a four year eligibility rule. This was news to Clarkson and also to the Eagles, who told Layden they thought his college athletic career had run its course.

Layden weighed the evidence and yesterday ordered the Eagles to drop the young man from their roster. Clarkson had not signed a contract.

A PREDICTION: NO CHANGE IN DUCK HUNTING FOR '41

And Sunrise Shooting May Be Eliminated.

BY BOB BECKER.

After making another check of the 1941 duck crop in the Canadian provinces and collecting all the hints, tips, and rumors on the eastern seaboard concerning the 1941 waterfowl hunting regulations, we are ready to crawl out on the end of a limb and make a prediction that duck and goose hunters in the United States will get just about the same hunting season this fall that they had last year.

There is an encouraging increase in waterfowl reported by Ducks Unlimited. It looks as if close to 85,000,000 birds will come south on the fall migration. Hunters in many states have been asking that restrictions be lifted a little. But all the information coming to us from various parts of the United States indicates that we'll have the same old 10 ducks a day for a bag limit, with 20 in possession and about the same length of season.

No Baiting; No Live Decoys.

We'll make the added prediction that there will be no baiting and no live decoys. Another possibility, judging by the rumors coming from all points of the compass, is that there may be no hunting on any day of the open season until 7 a. m. In other words, we wouldn't be surprised if the regulations cut out sunrise shooting.

The most reliable information that American duck hunters can get from Canada on the 1941 hatch of birds comes from Ducks Unlimited, the organization of sportsmen that is spending thousands of dollars up there in the Canadian provinces to produce more birds by management of big marshes, the construction of dams to impound water and create nesting grounds, and other similar projects. Tom Main, manager of Ducks Unlimited, advises us that these projects plus the help of nature will show fine dividends in bird life this year. This means a bigger migration in the fall and, with any break in the weather, better hunting.

One Depressing Note.

There is only one depressing note in this rosy outlook—the redheads and the canvasbacks still are way behind the progress parade. The puddler ducks [mallards, pintail, teal, spoonbill, gadwall, etc.] are making steady increases. But the open water species continue to lag. They are not increasing their numbers as they should. If we wanted to get a little farther out on the limb we'd be willing to make a wager [a small one!] that the canvasback might be placed on the closed list, a regulation that we believe would get the approval of all sincere waterfowlers.

According to the latest report from Ducks Unlimited in Canada, 20 more restored marshes are being added this summer to the long list of such "duck factories" established by the organization in the Canadian provinces. All are designed to make the marshes ideal for the birds and enable them to grow bigger crops of ducklings.

WILSON, GRIMM OPPOSE BREWERS TOMORROW NIGHT

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 2 [Special].—Milwaukee fans who can recall when Jack Kloza, Bunny Brief, and Eddie Hope played fine ball for the Brewers will have another opportunity to watch these old favorites in action Monday when a team of Yesterday's Stars will engage the Brewers in a five inning preliminary to the night game with St. Paul. The preliminary game will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Brewer Manager Charlie Grimm will play first base for the Stars, Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Chicago Cubs, will catch, and Doug McWeeney will pitch. Ossie Lupinski, president of the Milwaukee Old Time Ball Player's association, has promised to complete the lineup with agile veterans.

The Brewers will conclude their home stand with night games against Minneapolis Tuesday and Wednesday.

CYO BOXERS TO DEFEND PERFECT RECORD SEPT. 17

When Chicago's Catholic Youth organization boxers clash with the champions of Hawaii the night of Sept. 17 in Soldiers' field they will be battling to keep intact a record unparalleled in the history of amateur boxing teams. The best that foreign and domestic competition could do against the Chicagoans in nine years was to reap a tie.

Tickets for the bouts Sept. 17 went on sale at the CYO center, 31 East Congress street, last week.

RAILROAD WORK RULES: WHAT IS DISPUTE ABOUT?

Position of Opposite Sides Explained.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With their 1,130,000 employés flatly refusing to accept revision of rules which govern the relations between management and workers, the nation's railroads have asked the mediation board at Washington to mediate the complex controversy.

This request is one of the major developments in the negotiations now under way in Chicago between the railroads and the workers on wages and working conditions.

Railroad executives declare that interpretations of the old regulations have been largely responsible for the so-called "featherbed rules" which they say have been both costly and burdensome. These "featherbed rules" have subjected the railroads to heavy penalties in payments for a few minutes' work, in some instances entailing payment for work not done and extending back over periods of several years, they explain.

Want Rules Modernized.

The railroads long have been pressing for revision of the rules, some of which had their origin 50 or 60 years ago. Representatives of the managements say they wish the rules modernized to take into account improvements and changes in railroad practice.

The unions on their side say that the rules are not burdensome.

"They have not been burdensome for the last 50 or 60 years, one union executive commented. "The rules have been a part of and a great contribution to the development of the best transportation machine that has ever existed. These rules are the results of negotiations between management and labor, and management has accepted and agreed to these rules."

This rules controversy is complex. All the railroads are not asking exactly the same changes. The western, eastern, and southeastern roads [grouped geographically for mutual coöperation] seek revision of rules governing employés belonging to the Big Five brotherhoods—the engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, and switchmen. Almost all are agreed that they desire revision of four principal rules.

Desire Clearly Stated Rules.

Much of the rail managements' bitterness that has developed in recent years toward the rules has resulted from awards, or decisions, made by the National Railroad Adjustment board, which has its headquarters in Chicago, in disputes between carriers and workers. The managements charge that the board frequently misinterprets rules, resulting in costly penalties and wage claims being awarded against them.

In asking that the rules be changed, the carriers declare they want them expressed in simple language which cannot be misinterpreted.

The four principal rules changes requested of the Big Five brotherhoods, follow:

1. Starting time of yard crews. The proposed new rule provides that crews may be started at any time. Under the old arrangement, the railroads say, there have been cases in which men have been paid for 12 hours' work in addition to their regular 8 hour day scale simply because they went to work five minutes ahead of the time set in the contract between union and management.

Switching Change Sought.

2. Road crews performing switching at initial terminal, intermediate yards, and final terminal. Under changes sought, it will be possible for a crew that operates a train over the road [main or branch line] to do minor switching, such as picking up or dropping a car, at towns en route or at terminals without penalties being exacted. Railroads frequently have had to pay a road crew a day's wages in addition to a regular day's pay for doing 15 minutes of switching at a point where no yard, or switching crew was available. In addition, they had to pay a day's wages to the yard crew that didn't do the work.

3. Handling of freight in passenger trains. Changes are sought to make it possible to include freight cars in passenger trains under certain circumstances without penalties from wage differentials existing between passenger and freight services.

Limitation on Claims.

4. Limitation on filing claims. Changes are sought to place time limits on filing claims. The railroads report that claims frequently are filed covering events that occurred as much as 15 years previously.

The railroads have proposed 11 new rules to the 14 nonoperating unions. Among the principal changes sought are provisions which would: eliminate restrictions placed on employés as to the character of work they perform; provide that services of employés may be used interchangeably as between positions, territories, and stations; set time limits on the filing of claims and grievances; establishing a basis for payment of overtime.

The railroad representatives will meet at the Morrison hotel tomorrow morning to discuss the requests of the 14 nonoperating unions for wage increases of 30 cents an hour. On Tuesday they will meet with the Big Five brotherhoods on the latter's request for a 30 per cent increase.

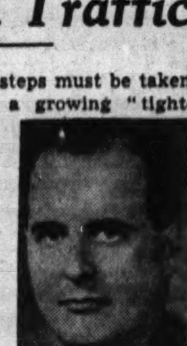
Form Groups to Expedite Rail Traffic

Declaring that steps must be taken now to prevent a growing "tightness" in the number of freight cars, the Midwest Shippers' Advisory board announced yesterday that it was setting up "vigilance committees" in 100 communities for the purpose of expediting freight car movements. Those groups also will seek out instances of unnecessary delay.



Fred A. Schleifer.

Fred A. Schleifer, chairman of the board, said that six committees will be formed in the Chicago district. There will be 10 men to a committee, each to be composed of railroad men, shippers, and freight receivers.

"Railroads in the territory served by this board are now handling more than 200,000 cars of freight each week," Schleifer said, "and it is indicated that this number will be increased. We have just had to revise upward by 5 per cent the number of loadings of coal cars to be handled in the area during the next quarter of this year."

20 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

The board previously estimated that there would be a 15 per cent increase in coal cars moved in the area over the 212,369 moved in the third quarter of last year. It is now estimated that 254,842 will be moved this year, a 20 per cent increase over last year.

The midwest board serves Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, western Indiana, and the northern peninsula of Michigan.

Schleifer said that freight car loadings for the entire nation are running at the rate of 910,000 weekly and it is time to get ready to handle within a few weeks a volume that will total more than one million weekly.

"Adequate railroad transportation will be available in the months ahead only if the fullest measure of coöperation is produced among shippers, the railroads, and receivers," he said. "The midwest board is firm in its conviction that voluntary coöperation in free enterprise is the only American way to find a solution of the transportation problems."

Coal Campaign Successful.

Schleifer said that the campaign to induce the public to buy coal early is bearing fruit. Coal shipments have increased. He said one big mining company had increased its July deliveries 85 per cent over July, 1940.

Careful use of freight cars alone will prevent some plants from closing, he declared. Among the suggestions made to shippers are the following: Order cars only when needed; load and unload promptly; load cars to capacity; remove all rubbish and dirt so as to make immediate re-use possible; load and unload six days a week.

NEW FAST TRAIN FOR LOS ANGELES TO START TODAY

The $2,000,000 streamlined train, City of Los Angeles, will depart from the North Western station this afternoon on its first trip to the west coast. The train, operated jointly by the North Western and Union Pacific railroads, will be the second streamliner to go into service recently, the City of San Francisco having made its initial westbound run July 26. Both trains will operate on a 39¾ hour schedule.

R. L. Williams, North Western chief executive officer, said completion of the two streamliners has released better and newer equipment for service between Chicago and Portland. He announced that an improved City of Portland will go into operation out of Chicago tomorrow.

Chicago Steel Production Scheduled Slightly Lower

Ingot steel production in the Chicago district is scheduled to begin this week at 101.1 per cent of theoretical capacity compared with 101.3 per cent last week.

BRAZIL'S TRADE GAINS DESPITE THE LOSS OF EUROPE'S CUSTOMERS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 2.—Brazil's trade in the first half of 1941 registered an impressive gain over the corresponding 1940 period despite the virtual ending of commerce with Europe because of the war.

United States purchases of strategic war needs, as well as of cotton and coffee, fewer imports and higher prices on export items were credited for the favorable trade balance. Imports decreased, total tonnage being 1,761,684 this year compared with 2,236,325 in the first half of 1940. Exports totaled 1,695,832 tons compared with 1,580,237 in the 1940 period.

Commerce in the so called strategic materials—castor seeds, iron, manganese and industrial diamonds—showed a large gain.

The United States was the principal purchaser, with 956,564 tons, compared with 583,074 in the 1940 period. South American republics also increased their dealings with Brazil.

GRAINS ADVANCE TO MEET HIGHER PRICE CEILINGS

Rye Climbs 4 Cents and Wheat 3.

Proposed price control legislation which traders said would put a ceiling on farm products far above existing levels resulted in a broad buying movement in the Chicago grain market yesterday.

All deliveries of wheat and rye and the distant futures in corn, oats, and soy beans sold at new seasonal high prices, with rye in the lead.

Closing prices, while slightly under the highest levels of the day, showed gains of 2⅝ to 3 cents in wheat and 4¼ to 4⅝ cents in rye. Corn gained ⅞ to 1¼ cents, oats 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents, and soy beans 2 to 2⅜ cents. Lard scored gains of 17½ to 20 cents per 100 pounds.

Estimated Chicago Ceilings.

Altho it was expected that congress would be required to define parity prices on grains, soy beans, and other commodities to be affected by the price control legislation, Chicago grain experts worked out a table on the basis of the July 15 parity prices reported by the department of agriculture giving the possible ceilings that might prevail here.

The ceiling prices, determined by adding 10 per cent to July 15 farm parity prices, plus freight and other charges to Chicago, compare as follows:

	Current price Sept. futures.	Possible ceiling Chicago.	—Farm price— 110% of parity.	Parity July 15.
Wheat ..	$ 1.08⅜	$ 1.43	$ 1.293	$ 1.176
Corn	.76¾	1.04	.939	.854
Oats	.39⅛	.64	.584	.531
Rye	.68⅜	1.17	1.054	.958
Barley ..	40@66	1.01	.905	.823
Cotton.lb.	*16.95	*19.14	18.14	16.49

*Basis New York.

No parity price has been established on soy beans because production of that commodity during the 1909-'14 base period was too small to be included in the list of major crops.

Undecided on U. S. Holdings.

What disposition will be made of the millions of bushels of cash corn and wheat taken over by the government on defaulted loans to farmers remains to be determined, brokers said. They observed, however, that the upturn in corn was checked at 77 cents for September as the result of large quantities of government grain being made available at that price.

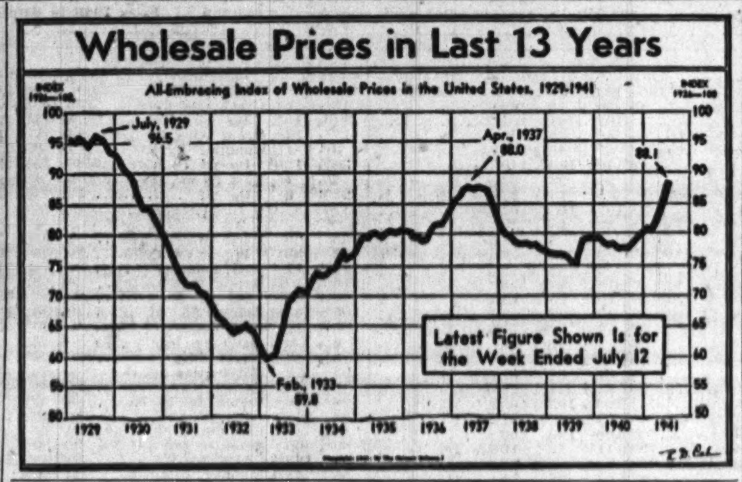
September wheat lost ground yesterday compared with the December because of the tight elevator storage situation and closed under the deferred delivery.

NEW PASSENGER MILE RECORD IS SET BY AIR LINES

A new six months record for revenue passenger miles flown by domestic air lines was established during the first half of 1941, Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, announced yesterday.

The total was 586,981,362, a 29½ per cent increase over the 453,077,175 passenger miles flown during the first half of 1940. It was the first half year in which the half billion mark was passed. June passenger traffic, with 130,679,716 revenue miles, established an all-time record for a single month.

Wholesale Prices in Last 13 Years



Pact to Avoid Strikes Cause of Five Tieups

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A nation-wide stabilizing agreement for AFL building trades unionists working on armament construction—designed to prohibit work stoppages for any reason—was blamed yesterday for "week-end holidays" at five big munitions projects.

Thousands of workmen employed in Ohio and Missouri failed to show up at their jobs only a few hours after the presidents of building trades unions had ratified the agreement worked out with national defense officials and approved by the war and navy departments.

Protest Overtime Rule.

The source of the complaint appeared to be in a provision to standardize overtime rates at one and a half times regular pay, whereas workers on many projects had been getting double time for week-end work.

The major spots affected were the $89,000,000 small arms ammunition plant and the $34,000,000 TNT plant near St. Louis; the $32,000,000 Plum Brook ordnance plant near Sandusky, O.; the $35,000,000 Ravenna [O.] ordnance plant, and a $10,000,000 munitions plant near Kansas City.

Consider Problems Today.

These interruptions were scheduled for consideration today at the summer meeting of the American Federation of Labor executive council, opening a two week session in Chicago, along with other labor problems growing out of the rearmament program.

AFL electrical workers agreed to return to work at the Ford Instrument company, Long Island City, N. Y., which has $100,000,000 of navy contracts, under an arrangement by which armament work is being exempted from a city-wide strike of electricians.

More than 2,000 production workers at the Crystal City [Mo.] plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, closed for nine days by a walkout of CIO glass workers, agreed to return to work tonight and tomorrow. A company proposal, accepted unanimously by the workers to end a protest demonstration following alleged discharge of a union member, included a provision for mutual coöperation but other terms were not disclosed.

British Motor Designer Gets New OPM Position

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—Alex Taub, designer and development engineer for Vauxhall, Ltd., British subsidiary of General Motors corporation, was appointed today by the Office of Production Management to assist the automobile industry in shifting its facilities from passenger car to arms production. Taub, a naturalized citizen, has been in the United States since the war halted British auto production.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

RISING PRICES.

Commodity prices have climbed sharply. Wages have gone up. Housewives are worrying over the high cost of living.

Salaried workers, investors of moderate means, persons living on pensions and annuities, and others with relatively fixed incomes are most seriously concerned with rising prices because it hits them the hardest blow.

The paramount economic question before this fixed income group—which embraces what is known as the middle class—is to protect themselves against the worst effects of an abnormal price rise.

The problem is to acquire purchasing power which will keep pace with rising prices. This cannot be accomplished by restricting investments to conservative securities as annuities and gilt edged bonds whose rate of return is comparatively low and fixed.

The choice of hedges narrows down to property which will appreciate in value as the general price level soars, or securities which will yield an increasing return under the stimulus of inflation.

The history of past periods of rising prices reveals that a variety of goods and investments have been tried—sometimes in desperation—as protection against spiraling prices. Some have bought productive land, others staples, such as wheat or sugar. Diamonds, gold, antiques, paintings, rare books, and other luxuries have been hoarded.

Of all these, the most frequently mentioned hedge nowadays is common stocks. The theory that stocks will appreciate and offset rising prices is based on the unproved premise that common stocks move in sympathy with commodities.

In the last war, when commodities climbed to steep peaks, common stocks slid downward. Conversely, the stock market boom of 1926-'29 was accompanied by an almost level trend of commodity prices.

Common stocks usually are depressed by higher production costs brought on by an abnormal price rise. Thus, despite a general price increase, common stock prices, which are largely influenced by prospects of corporate profits, are held back by the adverse effects of higher material, labor and tax costs.

Some protection against sharply rising prices may be obtained by prudent investment in selected common stocks of well integrated, highly mechanized companies in basic industries, and by decreasing fixed income investments. However, there is no formula for an infallible hedge against the severe effects of runaway prices.

ALUMINUM INTENDED FOR FRANCE MAY NOW BE SHIFTED TO RUSSIA

Richmond, Va., Aug. 2 (AP).—J. Louis Reynolds, vice president of the Reynolds Metal company, said today negotiations for sale of 2,000,000 pounds of aluminum to Russia had been completed except for approval by the Office of Production Management and the state department.

The metal, originally destined for France, has been stored in New Jersey since June, 1940. It was offered, Reynolds said, at prices below the company's regular price lists. The 2,000,000 pounds is worth $500,000 and is sufficient to make about 200 medium size bombers, Reynolds said.

Reynolds Metal, which has expanded production facilities during the last year, will be turning out finished aluminum at the rate of 15 to 17 million pounds a month by this time next year, compared with 4 million pounds produced last month, the executive said.

Big Fairbanks, Morse Income Gain Reported

Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Chicago manufacturer of a wide variety of motors, pumps, scales and other machinery, yesterday reported an increase in earnings for the first half of 1941. Republic Aviation corporation, reporting for the same period, announced a loss as a result of curtailment of operations necessitated by tooling for work on government plane contracts.

Fairbanks-Morse had consolidated profit of $1,382,499 for the six months ended June 30, equal to $2.30 a share, compared with $948,177, or $1.58 a share, in the first half of 1940. The company set aside $1,720,000 for federal income and excess profits taxes.

Republic Loss $318,940.

Net loss of $318,940 for the half year was reported for Republic Aviation by W. Wallace Kellett, chairman. In the corresponding 1940 period, the company had net profit of $842,161, equal to 75 cents a share on the common stock.

Kellett said the tooling and preparatory work incidental to plant expansion restricted output in the early months of 1941. The company expects to complete occupation of its new building early in the fall, he said. He predicted a sharp rise in deliveries in the last half of the year. Unfilled orders at the end of June were $68,692,242, compared with $12,274,000 a year earlier.

R. C. A. Earns 13c a Share.

Radio Corporation of America announced that its profit in the quarter ended with June was $?,571,921, equal to 13 cents a common share, after deduction of $2,318,900 for federal income and excess profits taxes under the 1940 revenue acts and provision of $825,000 for estimated additional taxes under the proposed tax law revision.

In the corresponding 1940 quarter net income was $1,238,328, or 3 cents a share. Six month profit rose to $5,306,494, equal to 27 cents a share, from $3,185,222, or 11 cents a share, in the first half of 1940.

Chicago Bank Clearings Rise for Week and Month

Chicago banks cleared checks totaling $1,742,300,000 last month, compared with $1,332,500,000 in July a year ago, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. Volume for last week exceeded the preceding week and the corresponding period last year. Totals were, respectively, $392,200,000, $380,600,000, and $303,600,000. The association's report follows [last three ciphers omitted]:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 51,800	$ 6,700
Tuesday	59,100	4,800
Wednesday	68,300	10,400
Thursday	65,100	5,800
Friday	71,100	5,200
Saturday	76,800	11,600
Total	$392,200	$ 44,500
Last year	$303,600	$ 27,200
July total	$1,742,300	$154,700
Last year	$1,332,500	$111,600

Diamond T to Build 10 Millions in Tank Transporters for Army

Poll on Shortages

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 [Special].—Nearly 6,000 manufacturers are being asked by the United States Chamber of Commerce, in a survey started today, to report on how their defense and nondefense orders are being affected by shortages of basic materials.

The chamber expressed the hope its survey might help to solve industry dislocations and avoid widespread unemployment. Already, it said, unemployment is being caused by "sudden stoppages in the flow of materials to industrial plants."

Diamond T Motor Car company, Chicago, has been awarded a $10,096,769 contract to build army tank transporters, the war department announced yesterday. Diamond T already had large orders for army trucks.

The tank transporter order was one of several awarded to various companies for transportation equipment costing more than 17 million dollars. The others included one for $4,281,987 of cargo body trucks, let to Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing corporation, Pontiac, Mich.

The war department also announced award of several small orders to Chicago area companies. These and the Diamond T contract raised to more than 22½ million dollars the total of orders placed with Illinois companies last week, according to the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Let Chicago Awards.

The contracts announced for Chicago area companies were:

Eugene Dietzgen company, levels and planetables, $15,615; Hallicrafters company, radio receivers, $8,099; Oak Manufacturing company, vibrators, $64,405; General Electric X-ray corporation, X-ray equipment, $6,200; Arrow Petroleum company, Forest Park, road construction at Camp Grant, $33,336; Welso Construction company, building construction at Camp Grant, $25,745; E. H. Marhoefer Jr. company, water treatment plant at Fort Knox Ky., $178,858; George Pagels company, tent poles, $34,320.

International Harvester company, truck parts, $172,219; Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, steel, $7,641; Lindberg Engineering company, electric furnaces, $96,500; Joseph T. Ryerson & Son, chrome nickel steel, $77,271; Star Hat and Cap company, cotton field hats, $23,500, and United States Tent and Awning company, theater tent top, $5,979.

Defense Plant corporation, a federal agency, authorized a lease agreement with Chrysler corporation, Detroit, under which the government will finance purchase of $403,022 of machinery and equipment for developing and servicing aircraft engines. Defense Plant corporation also arranged to finance a $665,000 expansion of ordnance production facilities at two eastern plants of Singer Manufacturing company.

Plane Engine Rites

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP).—Packard Motor Car company reached the production stage today on its Rolls Royce aircraft engine contracts and observed the occasion with ceremonies to which it invited top executives of the war and navy departments, representatives of the British and Canadian governments and agencies directing America's preparedness program.

Approximately 500 persons were shown thru the aviation engine plant which Packard has built since last September at a cost of 30 million dollars. The plant of more than 1,000,000 square feet of floor space is on the exact spot where Packard in the first World war built the famed Liberty aviation engine.

Old and New Exhibited.

Two of the Rolls Royce Merlin engines built with production parts were exhibited alongside one of the Liberty engines. The newest motor is a 12 cylinder, liquid cooled model of the same basic design as those powering RAF Spitfire and Hurricane fighter planes.

Packard's initial contract as announced last September calls for the production of 9,000 Rolls Royce engines. Three thousand of them are for the United States army air corps and 6,000 for the British. They are to cost approximately 300 million dollars.

Company officials declined to say when the new engines would be rolling regularly from the assembly lines or when peak production might be expected. It has been generally expected, however, that an output of approximately 1,000 engines a month would be attained early next year.

1,000TH TANK DELIVERED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 2 [Special].—The 1,000th tank manufactured by the American Car and Foundry company at its Berwick plant to fill United States and British war orders, was formally presented to the government today. It was painted pure white and surmounted by a miniature Statue of Liberty.

Berwick, which is working on an order for 3,680 tanks, held elaborate ceremonies to mark the day. Some 6,100 employés of the plant marched in a parade, and Berwick's two National Guard companies, now in federal service, returned to participate. Sixteen tanks took part in a sham battle.

The Berwick plant has been producing tanks for a year. Ten of the 13 ton machines, each valued at $40,000, come from the assembly lines daily, the plant operating 24 hours a day and seven days a week.

Coffee Quotas Increased After Rapid Price Boosts

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The Inter-American coffee board made an increase of 20 per cent today in the quotas for coffee imports into the United States, effective Aug. 11. The order followed complaints over the rapid increase in prices recently and this week's action by Brazil in raising its minimum coffee export price by 1⅜ cents.

LAKE IRON ORE TONNAGE SETS ANOTHER PEAK

Cleveland, O., Aug. 2 [Special].—Movement of iron ore set an all-time record during July with the shipment of 11,390,488 gross tons, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association reported today.

The season total to date, 40,216,408 gross tons, is the highest ever reached, with monthly records set continuously since the openings of navigation in April. Compared with Aug. 1, 1940, shipments are up 45 per cent.

Contributing to the record were 11 cargoes loaded in Canadian ships and the temporary relaxation of load line requirements, permitting heavier cargoes. With vessels now able to carry larger cargoes, it is estimated that the fleet will bring down 250,000 gross tons more before expiration of the summer load line season Sept. 15.

Government Rule Over Copper Trade Tightened

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The government tightened its control over copper today, ordering that after Aug. 6 no deliveries of refined copper shall be made except upon specific directions of E. R. Stettinius Jr., defense priorities director. Previously copper had been under a system of priority control that provided that nonarms orders might be filled after a stipulated amount of copper had been set aside for a pool and all military deliveries had been met.

TRADE FALTERS UNDER DRASTIC FEDERAL RULES

Priorities Curb Some Civilian Lines.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business trends were mixed last week. The biggest problem faced by the nation's factories was how to adjust operations to swift developments in governmental regulation of raw materials and prices.

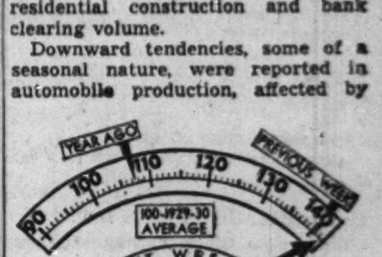
In some industries production was curtailed for lack of materials, and there were instances of plants shutting down completely, while in other fields factories which are helping to equip the military machine and have first call on supplies expanded their output.

Steel production increased to an average of 99.6 per cent of mill capacity, compared with 97.9 in the preceding week, and the cotton textile factories, busy on military orders, quickened their schedules.

Another Peak in Power.

The electric power industry, affected by growing demand from armament makers, produced more than ever before. Other business indices which moved higher were those for residential construction and bank clearing volume.

Downward tendencies, some of a seasonal nature, were reported in automobile production, affected by the ending of work on 1941 models in most plants; retail trade, influenced by the heat wave; wholesale transactions, engineering construction contract awards, and railroad freight car loadings.



Arrows indicate trend of Associated Press industrial index.

Silk processing and oil retailing were among businesses facing the roughest going as a result of various actions by President Roosevelt and federal agencies operating under his direction.

Freezing of all silk stocks to prevent use of silk for any but army and navy purposes left hosiery mills and other processors of civilian goods faced with the prospect of closing or drastically reducing operations and discharging most of their employés unless they can find ways to use substitutes successfully. About 175,000 workers are employed in the hosiery and silk manufacturing industry.

Fear Loss of Gasoline Jobs.

As a result of a federal order calling for closing of gasoline filling stations from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. daily in eastern areas where government officials say an oil shortage is developing, it was estimated 100,000 persons are in danger of losing their jobs.

President Roosevelt's message to congress asking authority to control prices and rents left the stock market unruffled, but caused an immediate slump in most commodity futures, with cotton dropping more than $6 a bale before a rally set in.

The week's changes in industrial activity, as reflected in the seasonally adjusted Associated Press index, were as follows:

STOCKS END 6TH RECOVERY WEEK A WEE BIT WEARY

Textile Issues Get a Boost on Silk 'Freezing.'

New York Aug. 2 (AP).—The stock market ended its sixth successive recovery week today with a display of weariness.

Profit selling in the recently bouyant rails and continued softness of steels clouded the list. On the other hand textile company issues were given a boost as the government froze all raw silk holdings and barred further processing of this staple as a defense measure.

Dealings were sketchy from the start and the close was decidedly irregular. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point but up .1 on the week. In every session except today the rail composite registered a new top since last May and, while it backed away .2 in the final proceedings, it held at net advance of .7 of a point.

Volume Up to 363,870 Shares.

Volume was raised to 363,870 shares mainly thru transfer of large blocks of low priced stocks. Ten of the 15 most active issues sold under $10 a share. The two hour turnover compared with 362,360 a week ago.

Steels had to contend with threats to production because of scrap shortage. Bethlehem weakened further on the company's disappointing earnings statements due to exceptionally heavy taxes. Other issues also slipped.

A better brand of war news gave the big board its only upturn of the week on Monday. Volume was just under a million shares and was equally active Tuesday altho the fact prices, on average, had reached the best mark since last January inspired enough cashing in to halt the swing. The list dipped slightly Wednesday and was unchanged Thursday and Friday.

In a mixed curb about 70,000 shares changed hands compared with 65,000 last Saturday.

CHICAGO PRICES DIP.

Chicago Stock exchange prices were slightly lower yesterday on transfers of 11,000 shares. There were 20 issues advancing, 28 declining and 22 unchanged. The week's volume was 136,000 shares, compared with 124,000 the preceding week and 69,000 in the corresponding week a year ago.

Peoples Gas reached a new 1941 high at 46¾, up ⅝. Volume leaders included Commonwealth Edison, 800 shares, 26⅜, off ⅛; Cities Service, 700, 5⅞, up ⅛; Libby, McNeill & Libby, 500, 5⅝, unchanged, and Illinois Central, 400, 10, unchanged.

Of the dually traded issues dealt in from 11 to 11:30 o'clock, Standard Brands was ¼ and Commonwealth Edison ⅛ lower than at New York. Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, and New York Central were ⅛ higher.

COTTON FUTURES RISE AGAIN IN HEAVY TRADING

Plans for Price Control Main Influence.

Cotton futures prices soared $3.60 to $4.05 a bale yesterday on expectations that price ceilings for the staple would be well above current levels. In one of the most active openings in several years, prices on the New York Cotton exchange rushed forward nearly $5 a bale, but later profit taking reduced the gains. All deliveries from December forward closed above 17 cents a pound.

Introduction of the price control bill which proposes ceilings on agricultural commodities at not less than 110 per cent of parity or prices prevailing on July 29, which ever is higher, started a broad buying movement.

[Parity price is that which gives the farmer the same buying power he had in 1909-'14.]

Indicated Ceiling 18.14 Cents.

The lowest possible ceiling on cotton under the present bill, it was indicated in trade circles, would be 18.14 cents a pound. Also supporting the advance was news of unfavorable weather in the cotton belt and threats of insect damage to crops.

Yesterday's steep advances in cotton futures nearly regained midweek losses resulting from President Roosevelt's price control message to congress. Most traders interpreted his message as a request for price control legislation which would give him virtual control of all commodity markets. Cotton immediately slumped as much as $6.15 a bale.

Early in the week cotton futures had established new 11 year high marks. Trading was encouraged then by reports of congressional support for freezing all government loan stocks for the duration of the war. Similar reports on Friday supported gains of 60 to 75 cents a bale from the preceding day levels. The advance was spurred by a favorable interpretation among traders of a private crop estimate.

Other Markets Affected.

Government domination was felt in other commodity markets last week. Silk trading was suspended at the request of Price Administrator Leon Henderson as a result of the far eastern crisis. Silk prices had soared to seasonal peaks at $3.37 a pound, until Henderson's announcement that a ceiling of $3.04 a pound would be placed on the staple.

Tin futures, which also had advanced sharply on the fear of shipping shortages and far eastern hostilities, were a target for price control. Prices broke 1 cent to 1¼ cents a pound Tuesday on Henderson's statement that a price ceiling was imminent for the staple and that the government's purchase price of 50 cents a pound was considered a fair one.

Coffee Futures Higher.

Counter to the general trend, coffee futures reached new 9 year high marks on the announcement by Brazilian authorities of new minimum prices above prevailing levels. World sugar futures reached seasonal highs on reports of shipping shortages and demand for Cuban supplies. Wool futures gained early in the week on active demand in the Boston market, but gains were later lost along with other declining staples.

Cottonseed oil, long slated for a price ceiling, finished lower as traders believed the government was about to make good its threat. Rubber, cocoa, and hides were lower and lead was unchanged.

FOUNDATION GETS GIFT OF MILLIONS IN KRESS STOCK

Gen. Wood Lists Purchase of Sears Shares.

Two gifts totaling 450,000 shares of common stock of S. H. Kress & Co., variety store chain, were received in March and May by the S. H. Kress Foundation, the Securities and Exchange commission reported yesterday. At current market quotations, the shares are worth $12,375,000.

Melville N. Rothschild, president of the National Bond & Investment company, Chicago, was listed as making gifts to trusts in June of 60,000 common shares of the company. Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., bought 5,500 shares of company stock.

Disposes of Coal Stock.

Carl E. Wickman, a director of the Truax-Traer Coal company, Chicago, disposed of 11,009 shares of common stock of the company.

Lawrence P. Fisher, vice president and director of General Motors corporation, disposed of 7,000 common shares. The British government acquired 10,000 shares of Shell Union Oil corporation common sold by Jean B. A. Kessler, of London, a director. At current prices the market value of the stock exceeds $150,000.

Several other substantial gifts of stock by officers and directors of companies during June were listed.

Hurley Reports Gift.

These included 10,000 shares of Electric Household Utilities corporation, Chicago, by Edward N. Hurley Jr., president; 1,000 shares of E. J. Brach & Sons, Chicago, by Frank V. Brach, vice president and secretary; 4,000 shares of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. common stock by Eugene du Pont, director, and 2,900 common shares of Bath Iron Works corporation by Archibald M. Main, vice president and director.

William H. Sommer, president of the Keystone Steel & Wire company, Peoria, Ill., gave away 4,000 shares of common stock of the company in May.

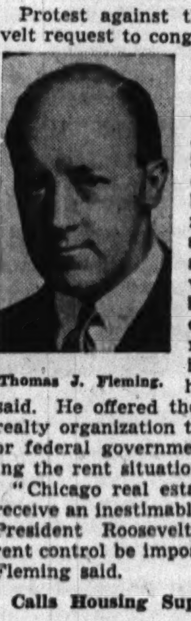
Chicago Realty Board Head Hits U. S. Rent Rule Plan

NO SHORTAGE OF HOUSING HERE, FLEMING AVERS

Says Control Would Hurt Real Estate.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]



Thomas J. Fleming.

Protest against the recent Roosevelt request to congress for power to control rents and commodity prices was voiced yesterday by Thomas J. Fleming, president of the Chicago Real Estate board. There is no housing shortage in Chicago and real estate values would be impaired seriously if a governmental rent ceiling were placed here, Fleming said. He offered the services of the realty organization to the city, state, or federal government in investigating the rent situation here.

"Chicago real estate values would receive an inestimable set-back should President Roosevelt's proposal for rent control be imposed on this city," Fleming said.

Calls Housing Supply Adequate.

"There should be no necessity for governmental control of rentals. Real estate interests of Chicago consistently have maintained the position that no advantage should be taken of these critical times. Undoubtedly there are smaller cities or areas over the nation where skyrocketing rents have been the result of new army camps or industrial plants that swelled the population to the point where housing shortages have become acute and where there is no local organized real estate board to curb the rise.

"But there is no housing shortage in Chicago, nor is there likely to be. For some time the supply of offices, houses, and industrial plants in Chicago was greater than the demand. And now, with the increase in business and industry, the supply still is adequate.

No Need for Regulation.

"Chicago properties even now are not able to produce an equitable return in many cases. Operating costs and taxes leave little for depreciation and even less for profit. There can be no need for regulation of rent under those conditions."

Fleming pointed out that decorators' wages have been boosted, coal prices have advanced, and costs of paint, lumber and other supplies necessary in upkeep of any building have gone up.

"In his message to congress the President pointed out that the index of basic commodity prices had advanced 50 per cent beyond its August, 1939, level and has increased 24 per cent since January of this year. By contrast, Chicago rentals have advanced very little," Fleming said.

Offers to Coöperate.

"The Chicago Real Estate board is willing to coöperate with the city of Chicago, the state of Illinois, or with the federal government in investigating the situation here. But we don't believe there has been any appreciable rent rise.

"Ours is a dual responsibility—to the property owner and to the tenant as well. For that reason, the Chicago Real Estate board must take a just and fair viewpoint, seeking what is best for the industry and for the welfare of the people of Chicago, because it is they who will suffer if real estate values fall and reap the benefits if such real estate yields a fair return."

PUBLISHING FIRM LEASES FLOOR OF MICHIGAN SQUARE

Ziff-Davis Publishing company, now at 608 South Dearborn street, leased the entire 7th floor of the Michigan Square building, 540 North Michigan avenue, containing 12,000 square feet, for 10 years, Hogan & Farwell, managing agent, reported yesterday. Modern executive, editorial, and business offices will be designed by James F. Eppenstein and associates. It was said that $25,000 will be spent in modernization. Publications to be housed in the new offices include Flying and Popular Aviation, Popular Photography, Radio News, and All Wave Radio, and the Ziff fiction group. Possession of the new quarters will be taken about Nov. 1.

333 BUILDING LEASE.

P. K. Libby, operator of a chain of lunch rooms, has leased space in the 333 North Michigan building and will move his general offices there from 3960 West Grand avenue.

Typical Palos Heights Home

A typical house in Palos Heights. Owned by William Moxness, it occupies a 120 by 120 foot lot at 12043 South 69th avenue. It has 5 rooms and with the land cost $9,500.

Last Section Is Opened in Palos Heights

With a building program six months ahead of original plans, the Robert Bartlett Realty company announced yesterday the opening of the last section of its Palos Heights development, comprising 160 acres, at the northwest corner of Harlem avenue and 127th street.

To date 288 homes have been built and occupied in the five year old community. Twenty-three homes are under construction and 18 more are under contract. Twenty-five of the completed homes were built this year. There are 637 sites sold which have not yet been improved.

The new section has been platted into 316 home sites, of which 149 already are sold. The average size of lots is 120 by 132 feet.

Palos Heights covers approximately one square mile between 119th and 127th streets, Oak Park and 74th avenues. It now has a population of 900.

Realty Miscellany

Great Lakes Mortgage corporation will move its general offices from 201 North Wells street to the Conway building, 111 West Washington street, on Aug. 11. It will occupy most of the east half of the fourth floor, which will be air conditioned and acoustically treated. Robert F. Wingard, president, said that the corporation has been mortgage loan correspondent for Metropolitan Life Insurance company for eight years. The directing personnel of the organization has been handling the Metropolitan mortgage business for the last 20 years. The company's territory covers all of Illinois and the Calumet steel belt of Indiana.

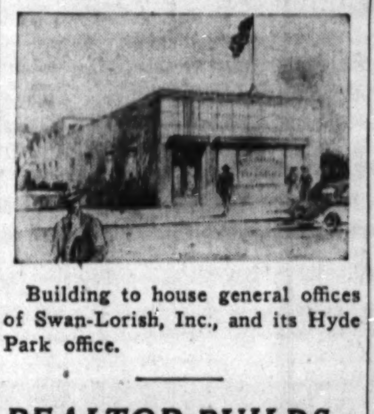
West Side Bowling Center Buys Land for Addition

Cascade Bowling center, 3825 West Madison street, yesterday acquired 200 feet of adjoining property from the Lambert Tree estate for $50,000. Carl H. Borak, president of Standard Securities and Management corporation, was broker for all parties. The first floor will be used by a garage company and the second story will be used for 32 bowling alleys, giving the Cascade center 64 alleys in all.

Sites for Ten South Shore Homes Bought by Syndicate

Purchase of 450 feet of vacant land on the south side of 72d street, 200 feet east of Jeffery avenue, and 250 west of Merrill avenue by Muriel Wolfe from the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was reported yesterday by Ben H. Silverman, broker. Wolfe represented a construction syndicate which plans to build 10 residences to order. They will cost from $12,500 to $15,000, Silverman said.

Hyde Park Realty Office



Building to house general offices of Swan-Lorish, Inc., and its Hyde Park office.

REALTOR BUILDS OWN OFFICES IN HYDE PARK AREA

Swan-Lorish, Inc., one of Chicago's largest realty management firms, is building at 1355 East 53d street, from plans by Luther and Christensen, to house the general offices of the firm as well as the Hyde Park office. The company also has offices in Kenwood, Woodlawn, South Shore, and Chatham districts.

A feature of the new building will be murals by Artist James E. McBurney, showing historical events in Hyde Park from the early days. The building, 30 by 100 feet, will have a polished stone front, with bronze trim. It will be air conditioned and will be completed by early fall.

LA SALLE, LAKE CORNER SOLD TO CHICAGO FIRM

The northeast corner of La Salle and Lake, 150 by 60, improved with a two story building, was sold by the Trust Company of Chicago, trustee, from the Northern Trust company and Charles M. Rogerson of Boston, for approximately $300,000. According to revenue stamps on the deed the price was $144,000, but in addition the buyer assumes delinquent taxes of over $150,000. These are to be paid at once, according to C. Etshokin of D' Ancona, Pflaum & Kohlsatt, attorney for the buyer.

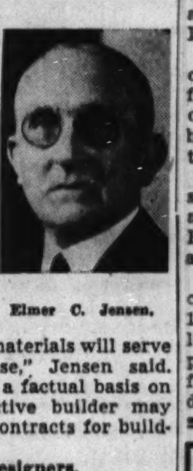
BUILDERS TO GET REPORT ON CITY'S MATERIAL STOCK

Building Congress Makes Chicago Survey.



Elmer C. Jensen.

Prospective builders, architects and contractors soon will have in hand a survey of available building materials in the Chicago area, Elmer C. Jensen, president of the Chicago Building Congress announced yesterday. The survey has been started by T. O. Morgan of the congress, and will be made public shortly.

"Our survey of available building materials will serve a two fold purpose," Jensen said. "First, it will offer a factual basis on which the prospective builder may rely in letting his contracts for building.

Aid to Designers.

"Second, and perhaps the more important, it will enable the designers in the industry to determine what alternate materials will be available to him for the particular type of construction job he is preparing.

"In every construction job the planner has a choice of several materials which might be used to equal advantage in turning out the finished product. With a knowledge of available materials, he would be able to offer his client sound advise as to the material which might be used to advantage with the least possible delay in carrying out the builder's purpose.

May Help Priority Timing.

"Without impairment of the national defense effort the continuing functioning of the building industry must be maintained as a major source for producing wealth. The information obtained thru this survey, it is hoped, will be valuable to the federal officials in timing their priorities on building materials."

WORK UNDER WAY ON NEW PLANT IN MORTON GROVE

Work is under way on a quarter million dollar unit of the new Bell & Gossett plant in Morton Grove, being built primarily because of the company's heavy armament orders. Containing 70,000 square feet of floor space, it will replace two Chicago plants, at 3000 South Wallace street, and 2925 South Halsted street. The company's North Chicago plant will be continued.

The new plant will be on a 20 acre site, and when future contemplated additions are built it will be one of the largest manufacturing plants in the suburban area, it was said. The property is on the west side of Austin avenue, a block north of Oakton street, and extends thru to the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, and Pacific railroad right of way.

The company makes hot water heating systems and specialties, and has large contracts from the government for army and navy supplies. Founded 25 years ago, it employs 350 persons. Several years ago E. J. Gossett, president, bought out the Bell stock interests and now owns stock control. The only other stockholders are C. E. Pullum, vice president and treasurer, and R. E. Moore, vice president in charge of sales.

FURRIER LEASES LOOP STORE.

Fred S. Walda & Co., furrier since 1906, has leased the store at 62 East Madison street from the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company.

Elmore Buys 543 Acres for Subdivisions

Purchase of 543 acres of farm land in the southern part of Cook county by the Elmore Real Estate Improvement company was reported yesterday by Grover C. Elmore. The land is to be subdivided into four developments, with home sites of 1 to 5 acres.

Two farms containing 320 acres on all four corners of the intersection of Stony Island avenue and Glenwood-Dyer road, were bought from the John Hancock Life Insurance company. It will be marketed in 1 and 2 acre tracts and known as Stony Island Avenue farms.

Eighty-five acres at the southeast corner of Stuenkel road and Crawford avenue, bought from the Chicago Title and Trust company, will be subdivided into 2½ and 5 acre tracts. It will be called Walnut Hills.

Elmore bought 80 acres at the southeast corner of Crawford avenue and Flossmoor road, a mile west of Flossmoor, and will subdivide into 1 acre tracts.

Fifty-eight acres at the northwest corner of Central Park avenue and 167th street, just outside of the south limits of Markham [and formerly part of that community], purchased from Herman Hunstock, will be subdivided into 1 and 2 acre tracts.

TEN NEW HOMES OF OUTSTANDING QUALITY
ARE NOW READY FOR SALE
IN SCARSDALE
6 rooms, 1½ baths, to 7 rooms, 3½ baths. Cash required, $1,800 to $3,900. Balance $80 to $125 monthly. The fraction of the monthly payments devoted to taxes, insurance, and interest is LESS THAN ONE-HALF of the minimum rental value of these homes. The remainder is applied to paying off the mortgage, which is the equivalent of putting the money in the savings bank.

These ultra high grade homes will be open for inspection today and every day this week from 1 to 8. Directions: Take Northwest Highway [Route 14] to first stoplight on entering Arlington Heights. Turn left 5 blocks to Scarsdale.

We also have several choice lots in Scarsdale on which we will build your home to order on basis of 20% cash, balance in moderate monthly payments.

TWO MORE
Families Choose
INVERNESS
In the past few days two more families purchased homes at Inverness—unique 1,484 acre community combining country freedom with suburban convenience.

Why are so many practical people buying homes and land here today? Because they see the saving in owning, not renting . . . of acting now, before prices rise . . . of living where each residence is surrounded by at least 1 acre and protected by prudent restrictions.

If you're paying $75 monthly rent . . . by all means see the new Inverness residences you can move into by fall. Inspect the Cape Cod farmhouse, over 100 ft. long, with nearly 2 acres on Ayrshire-lane . . . 4 bedrooms, 2 baths, 2 car attached garage.

Take a cool drive to the breeze swept hills and woods of Inverness today. Northwest Highway [Rt. 14] to Inverness 4—silo office between Palatine and Barrington.

Day by Day on the Farm
By BOB BECKER

The Season Turns.

August 2, 1941.

IN walking over the farm the last few days we couldn't help notice how nature is entering upon a new phase of the summer season. The species and colors of the wild flowers in field and wood, the way the birds are behaving, and the presence of ripening fruit on many of the trees and shrubs are just a few of the reminders that nature has passed thru what you might call the first cycle of summer and is now in the second cycle which slowly but surely leads toward the first days of autumn.

Cardinal Flowers Bloom.

Queen Anne's lace is in full flower, the beautiful sky blue flowers of wild chicory never will be any brighter nor stand on taller stems, the showy purple blossoms of the wild bergamot may be seen along the roadsides and in the fields, goldenrod now adds its rich golden color to the farm fields, and this week we saw the first cardinal flowers in the bed of a farm creek. These flowers tell the outdoor fan that the first half of summer is gone. And when we turn to the birds we find that their behavior repeats the story in an even more emphatic way because some of them already are tuning up their wings for their annual trip southward.

June is home month for most birds. July and August are really training months—the time of the year when the young of some species get ready for their first journey to winter rest grounds. For several weeks the young of some of the best known birds that raise just one brood each year have been wandering around the country in preparation for their migration.

Starling's a Vagabond.

Grackles, bobolinks, and red winged blackbirds are good examples of species which during July and August get together in small flocks and travel around the country with their young before leaving for the south. The starling doesn't make an extended trip each winter, but becomes a regular vagabond and roams thru the northern states looking for food. On our hike over the farm we saw one small flock of starlings. We noticed that the bobolinks had left the farm fields. We won't see these birds again until next spring.

The most welcome bird song that we heard was the distinctive call of the rain crow or yellow billed cuckoo coming from a thicket of hawthorns, wild crabs, and oakes. In June this same thicket was the scene of many concerts by the catbirds and the brown thrashers. Now these famous songsters are quiet. The catbirds have reared their young, and their nests are deserted. And except for the call of a bluejay, the challenge of a watchful crow, or the querulous cry of a screech owl after sundown there is little bird life to be heard.

YOU SEE THIS
on the lawn of a roomy ledge surrounded by stately trees, looking into its valley, with a frolicking stream and miniature water falls rushing out in the pool and then on to the river.
Cool breezes from over the rolling countryside join the "draw" of the valley, taking turns with the shade of giant beech trees and the scent of field and orchard, and as you sit down to drink it all in, the rustle of leaves and the happy chuckle and courage of that brook merges with you, and all is well.
In the near distance, to the West woods, to the South, an apple orchard, to the East and screening the South road, a wooded ridge with two guest houses. In the heart of all this the lovely home, designed for gracious living. Has vestibule, powder room, large living room, modern kitchen, also full basement with hot water heating plant and workshop. Three bedrooms and bath on second floor. This 20-acre place, $11,000. In a clean, prosperous naborhood outside nice town. May sell buildings with less land. Shown by appointment.

CHILDREN'S CAMP TURNS CAMPUS FOR ONE BIG DAY

Algonquin Goes Collegiate at Cost of $5.

Two hundred youngsters at Camp Algonquin brought college yells and songs out into the summer sun yesterday for their annual college carnival. This event climaxed activities for the second session of the 32d camp year.

The camp is operated by the United Charities on the Fox river, northwest of Chicago. An average of 1,200 children between the ages of 2 and 14, all of them in need of sunshine, are taken to the camp each year.

It was a typical college homecoming week-end at Algonquin. Beginning with a bonfire and pep meeting Friday night, the campers built up rivalry and enthusiasm for the parade, stunts, and races that filled yesterday's carnival program.

Hold Snake Dance.

All the food crates in camp provided fuel for the huge bonfire, around which the children circled in a snake dance. Also they had decorated their cottages with crêpe paper pennants and cardboard cut outs of the Missouri Tiger, Northwestern Wildcat, Minnesota Gopher, Illinois Indian, Wisconsin Badger, and other college symbols.

"All were the results of $5 worth of crêpe paper, some wood and cardboard, and a lot of ingenuity," explained Mrs. Astrid Save, superintendent.

In the parade, a group of girls who called themselves the Nebraska Cornhuskers had a cheer leader dressed like a corn cob. Another group, labeled Minnesota Gophers, had a tiny 3 year old girl for mascot. She wore a gold helmet. Several boys imitated Illini Indians. A girls' hill billy comb band represented the Kentucky Wildcats.

Some Other Colleges.

Other colleges represented were Iowa Hawkeyes, the Texas Longhorns, Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, and the Purdue Boilermakers.

Boat races, including regular rowing and paddling with pot lids, were held in the morning, and at 3 p. m. the groups competed in swimming races, foot relays, games, and stunts. Awards were presented at the flag lowering ceremony at 6:30 p. m. A special dinner for all made every one full and happy, whether his "college" had won any ribbons or not.

This group of about 300 underprivileged children and 40 needy mothers will return home tomorrow and Wednesday. The United Charities have others to take their places, all eager for a vacation on the grassy slopes of the Fox river. Your contributions help to maintain Camp Algonquin. Please send your gifts to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Tower.

FINDS CHICAGO'S WEATHER A BIT OF EVERYTHING!

The old saying "April showers bring May flowers" isn't true in Chicagoland. It should read, "April temperatures bring May flowers."

This statement was made by Robert J. Goodman, student observer of the official weather observatory on the campus of the University of Chicago in his thesis "Studies in the Climate of Chicago."

"Contrary to popular belief, April and May are not the rainy months," Goodman contends. "June is the wettest month of the year. This is based on 1916-'40 averages."

It's also getting wetter. "The annual average precipitation of 31.9 inches for the 1916-'40 period is slightly higher than is the annual average for the 1871-1916 period," the thesis said.

Goodman, examining the affect of the state of weather on certain businesses, found that snowstorms, for example, are a boom to barbers and that two days after a summer rain, the demand for sweet cakes goes up 35 per cent.

Summarizing Chicago's weather, Goodman said, "there is a wide range in monthly temperature, variable annual precipitation, shifting winds with relatively high velocities, and a continual procession of high and low pressure masses over the city."

OPEN STATE FAIR NEXT SATURDAY; NO FREE TICKETS

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—The Illinois state fair, which thousands will pay to see this year for the first time, opens Saturday, Aug. 9, for a nine day run.

Abolition of what amounted to a free gate policy was one of the main innovations established for the 89th annual exposition. In contrast to a year ago, when estimated attendance was 912,000 and less than 9,000 paid to get in, officials said no free tickets had been printed this year.

William V. Ward, manager, said the change was made to place the fair on a self-supporting basis, and that he expected it to have little effect on attendance estimated in recent years at 75,000 to 100,000 daily.

Opening day will be Youth day. Sunday, Aug. 10, will be Veterans' day. Governor's day, the year's major political rally, will be Thursday, Aug. 14.

Sliver from Steel Wedge Causes Death of Heir, 6

Arcadia, Cal., Aug. 2.—Anthony Ryan, 6 years old, heir of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Ryan II., sauntered to a vacant lot to watch two men fell a tree. A steel sliver from a woodcutter's wedge flew into his mouth, severed two arteries, and lodged at the base of his brain. He died yesterday despite four blood transfusions. The boy was born to Mrs. Ryan when she was Mrs. Prudence Cassell Cluett, wife of John P. Cluett, heir to the Cluett-Peabody fortune.

New Styles for College Wear

WASH APPAREL FASHIONS FOUND HARD TO RESIST

10,000 Items to Go on Display Today.

The combination of a new cut, a new color, and a new cloth will make several thousand styles in wash apparel dresses hard to resist this fall.

At least 10,000 new garments will be shown to buyers at the National Wash Apparel show opening today at the Palmer House. Buyers and the public are being warned to order and buy early, because, according to Glenn G. Hayes, executive director of market week, "shortages will exist, not only because it is difficult to get materials but also because a consumer spending spree seems to be in the offing."

A New Meaning.

Wash apparel does not mean now, as it did originally, cotton dresses that are tubbable. The market now includes the whole gamut of synthetic fabrics, including a vast range of styles made from rayons, rayon and cotton, and rayon and wool. Fully 75 per cent of the output for fall should be dry cleaned, Hayes pointed out.

New frocks feature the slim silhouette, with hips snugly fitted, even tho tailored pleats or a slight flare or fullness may be introduced. Natural shoulders are the rule, with plenty of drop yokes and raglan sleeves. The completed picture is a casual smoothness rather than the careless, flyaway look.

Two piece dresses are important. If not a skirt and blouse or skirt and jacket combination, peplums and tiers make the broken line.

The Tailored Models.

Many of the new fabrics, which are on the mannish side, fit into the two piece picture. For instance, cavalry tweeds, gabardines, coverts, herringbones, and twills all make up well in tailored styles. Velvety fabrics will be used for the afternoon dresses.

As for colors, the familiar grays, greens, blues, reds, and all shades of brown are here again, but with a new look, manufacturers insist. At least they have new, enchanting names such as dark victory, forest fire, desert gray, Chilean wine, burnt ginger, RAF blue, timber green, khaki gold, and soldier blue.

RESCUE 3 MINERS TRAPPED 2½ DAYS IN 4,000 FOOT PIT

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Aug. 2 (AP).—Three miners were rescued today after having been trapped since Wednesday night almost 4,000 feet underground by a cave-in in the Lake Shore gold mine.

They whiled away the time playing tic-tac-toe with chalk on the mine timbers, in the light of their flashlights. They were brought to the surface, laughing and joking. Their only visible ill effects were a scratched hand suffered by Griffith Jones, 38 years old, and a cut finger by Peter Cain, 37. The third man was Harry MacMillan, 37.

Their first hope of being saved arose Thursday when they heard rescuers working overhead. Last night a diamond drill pierced a hole into their chamber and soup and coffee were piped down and cigarets and chewing tobacco dropped.

Quake, Possibly Near Philippines, Noted in U. S.

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Fordham university's seismograph recorded a fairly severe earthquake today, probably in the vicinity of the Philippine Islands.

Quake Recorded in California.

Pasadena, Cal., Aug. 2 (AP).—California Institute of Technology's seismograph recorded an earthquake of some severity today, probably in or near the Solomon Islands of the southwestern Pacific. A second quake, apparently in the same area, was recorded later.

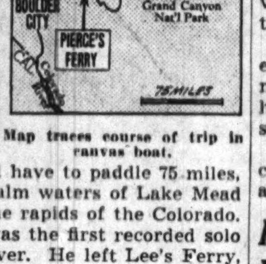
ENDS COLORADO RIVER VOYAGE IN CANVAS BOAT

Boulder City, Nev., Aug. 2 (AP).—Alexander Grant Jr., 26 years old, reached Pierce's Ferry last night after a perilous 17 day trip down the rapids of the Colorado river in a 5 foot canvas boat. He set out today for Boulder City. He will have to paddle 75 miles, but in the calm waters of Lake Mead instead of the rapids of the Colorado.



Map traces course of trip in canvas boat.

His trip was the first recorded solo down the river. He left Lee's Ferry, Ariz., July 15. Grant, who is from Dedham, Mass., was severely sunburned when he reached Pierce's Ferry and his body was covered with bites of rock spiders and other insects.

"My biggest trouble was with the spiders," he said. "I'd make camp for the night and they'd come out and attack me. They were big black ones, but apparently not poisonous. It was too hot to use my sleeping bag, so I'd stretch out on top of it and the spiders would pour out of the rocks. They annoyed me a lot more than the 175 rapids I had to shoot."

ORDERS MENTAL EXAMINATION OF PAROLED KILLER

Richard Wesolik, 16 year old parolee from the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles, was referred to an alienist by Judge Ralph J. Dady of Waukegan, sitting in the McHenry Circuit court at Woodstock yesterday. Wesolik beat to death Mrs. Margaret Jung on her farm near Woodstock last July 14. She was the wife of the farmer who sponsored his parole. He will be examined within the next 10 days by Dr. Egbert Fell of Rockford. Wesolik was indicted for murder by the McHenry county grand jury last Monday.

ILLINOIS TROOPS GO TO MANEUVER NEXT SATURDAY

Division Will Spend Three Weeks in Arkansas.

Camp Forrest, Tenn., Aug. 2 (AP).—The 19,000 men in Illinois' 33d division will start rolling one week from today for their three weeks of maneuvers in Arkansas.

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, division commander, said the two infantry brigades would take four days for the trip with each getting two days of practice marching for toughening purposes.

The 65th brigade, downstate Illinois troops of the 129th and 130th infantry regiments, will move out Aug. 9. They will ride two days and debark from their trucks only 24 miles from Okalona, Ark., its concentration area. They will march 12 miles an Aug. 11 and another 12 on Aug. 12.

Chicagoans March First.

The 66th brigade, Chicago troops of the 131st and 132d infantry regiments, will do its hiking on the other end of the long trek. They will start Aug. 12 and hike 12 miles to Lynchburg, Tenn., and do another 12 the next day to Fayetteville, Tenn. The following day they will be picked up by the trucks of the 108th quartermaster regiment which will have returned from its job of transporting the 65th to its destination.

The 58th field artillery brigade, the 122d, 123d, and 124th regiments, will leave Aug. 15 and arrive at Okalona only a few hours before the maneuvers start Aug. 17.

Stores Follow Troops.

The soldiers' regimental stores will roll right along with them during the maneuvers. Privately owned vehicles—use of army trucks is forbidden—will accompany each regiment to provide the troops with tobacco, sweets, toilet articles, and other odds and ends.

Lieut. Col. Laurence Smith of Quincy, Ill., formerly of the 130th infantry, took charge of the 16 post exchanges serving the division yesterday. He replaced Maj. Clifford Templeton of Chicago who has been assigned to the adjutant general's department of the army post exchange organization in Washington, D. C.

MORE VENEREAL DISEASE AMONG YOUNG DRAFTEES

The exemption of men 28 years old and older from the army draft has decreased slightly the number of rejections and has revised considerably the causes for such rejections, officials at the Chicago induction center said yesterday.

The 28 year group has been granted deferment since July 1. The period during which they were subject to call extended from November thru June—eight months.

Mental disorders remained the first cause of rejections in July, but rejections because of venereal disease showed a sharp increase. During the month 104 men, or 1.98 per cent of those examined, were turned down because of venereal disease. For the November-June period rejections for this cause constituted only .84 per cent of the men given examinations.

Army medical officers said rejections for venereal diseases had been expected to rise as the proportion of younger men increased.

An indication that the younger men have sounder teeth was found in the number of rejections attributed to dental faults. Rejections for bad teeth previously ranked second in importance. During July they dropped to sixth place—from 2.41 per cent to .78 per cent.

Following is a comparison of the percentage of men rejected for major causes, from November thru June, and during July:

	July. Per cent.	Nov.-June. exam.]
Mental	2.89	2.61
Venereal	1.98	.84
Bones	1.88	1.25
Eyes	1.43	2.17
Ears	1.41	1.30
Teeth	.78	2.41

Chronic alcoholism, which previously accounted for .47 per cent of those rejected, dropped to .06.

Medical officers said the increase in ear defects was not surprising, since many of them resulted from childhood ailments. Disorders of the eye showed a substantial decrease.

The 152 rejections for mental causes in July included 28 for illiteracy below the fourth grade level.

HUNT 3 BANDITS WHO ROBBED GIRL, DENTIST OF AUTO

Police yesterday sought three bandits who took an automobile from a dentist and his fiancée and then used the car in another holdup.

Two of the bandits entered the car in front of the home of Miss Amelia Reilly, 25 years old, at 523 Englewood avenue. The robbers picked up an accomplice and drove her and the dentist, Dr. Vincent J. Maurovich, 28, of 6019 South Honore street, to 58th street and Union avenue, where the victims were pushed out of the car.

Shortly afterward the same robbers held up the Terminal restaurant at 746 South Dearborn street. They took $500 from Miss May Taylor, 34, the cashier. Miss Taylor lives at 516 Englewood avenue.

Register for Draft? No, but He Enlisted Back in 1899

Tolono, Ill., Aug. 2 (AP).—C. F. Burnett of Riverside, Cal., a former resident of Champaign county, has informed the draft board here he didn't think it necessary for him to register for the draft. In reply to a letter asking whether he had registered, Burnett wrote: "I enlisted in 1899, was appointed warrant officer in 1926, and retired this year. I was born in 1879." The letter satisfied Mrs. Harriett Frank, chief clerk of the draft board.

Back from Iceland

RAYMOND STAPLETON.

Four navy men at home in Oak Park on furloughs after a trip to Iceland yesterday denied themselves the pleasure of talking about their trip. They said they had orders not to discuss the voyage of the troop transport S. S. Haywood on which they serve.

"With broadcasts and dispatches coming from Iceland, there doesn't seem to be much sense to the order for us not to talk," said Raymond Stapleton, 619 Clarence avenue, Oak Park. "But I don't want to risk losing future leaves and advancement. Anyway, I wasn't off ship during the seven days we were there."

"The weather was pretty nice, and there are some modern concrete buildings like the bank and university," said Edward Faltysek, 731 Clarence avenue. "A few of the Icelanders can manage a little English, but there wasn't much to do." The other Oak Parkers are Robert Murray, 1042 South Ridgeland avenue, and Edward Straight, 618 Highland avenue. All second class seamen, they left Chicago last December with a naval reserve unit.

POLICE REPORT A DECREASE IN ROBBERY CASES

Officials Credit It to Prompt Arrests.

A general decrease in robberies and other crimes during the first seven months of 1941 was reported yesterday to Commissioner Allman by Capt. William Stapleton, police statistics chief.

Robberies numbered 2,644 for the first seven months of the year, compared with 3,053 in the same period of 1940. Burglaries dropped more than 500. Fewer rapes and pickpocket thefts also were reported.

Murder Increase Explained.

Only the murder column showed an increase. This gain, Capt. Stapleton said, was synthetic. There were 132 murders in the first seven months of 1941, against 107 in the first seven month period last year. The increased showing resulted from classifying violent deaths under the system recommended by the federal bureau of investigation. In that system justifiable homicides are counted as murder; under the old police system they were excluded.

Comparisons for the first seven months of each of the last five years follow:

Year.	Murder.	Robbery.	Burglary.	Rape.	Larceny [Pick pocket].
1937	118	2,752	6,612	106	74
1938	107	3,927	6,915	90	47
1939	140	3,833	6,464	100	65
1940	107	3,053	5,877	100	65
1941	132	2,644	5,327	85	62

Quick Arrests Credited.

The decrease in robberies was brought about by prompt arrests and convictions, according to Lieut. Kyran Phelan, head of a robbery detail of 35 detectives.

"Last year we sent 60 men to prison, and 40 more were sent to prison this year," he said. Among those imprisoned were members of the Friday Night gang, which committed about 500 holdups, and members of the Stripper gang, which perpetrated about 150.

John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, said that picking pockets is a lost art in Chicago. Old time pickpockets shun the city, he said, and only newcomers take a chance.

ORDER PUBLISHER TO U. S. COURT IN FCC RADIO QUIZ

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2 (AP).—The federal District court today ordered James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner to appear in court Aug. 11 and explain why he ignored a subpena from the federal communications commission.

Stahlman failed to appear before the commission yesterday in connection with its investigation of newspaper ownership of radio stations.

Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun, who also was subpenaed, likewise failed to appear yesterday. FCC attorneys declined to say whether they would seek an order requiring Friendly to appear in court.

In its application for a "show cause" order against Stahlman, FCC attorneys said the Nashville publisher "is in possession of facts and information deemed relevant by the commission and essential to the proper carrying out" of the commission's investigation.

Mexican Officers to Study U. S. Mechanized Warfare

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Aug. 2 (AP).—Thirteen Mexican army officers have been assigned to military posts in the United States where they will study modern methods of mechanized warfare, which they will introduce into Mexico's defense program. The officers will leave soon for Fort Benning, Ga., Fort Riley, Kas., and Randolph Field, Tex.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

TOURISTS FIND A WIDE RANGE IN GASOLINE PRICES

It's as High as 29 Cents Near Grand Canyon.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 29 [by mail].—Motor tourists, covering the Rocky mountain states in unprecedented number this summer, are discovering that gasoline is the main expense item of a roving vacation in this section of the country. Distances are great, grades are long and steep, and fuel prices are high.

In Kaibab forest of tall pines near the north rim of the Grand canyon, in Arizona, we paid 29 cents a gallon for the regular grade of gasoline, our high during three weeks' travel. The fuel had a long truck ride to reach the filling station from the closest railroad. However, we also paid 23, 25, and 27.5 cents a gallon for other purchases in this state. The 23 cents was at Prescott, on a railroad. The Arizona state gas tax is 5 cents.

28 Cents at Grand Teton.

In Yellowstone National park we paid 27.5 cents a gallon. Near the Grand Teton National park the price was 28 cents. These parks are in Wyoming, which has a 4 cent state tax. One other purchase in this state was at 23 cents a gallon.

In Bryce canyon and Zion National parks, in Utah, we paid 26.5 and 26 cents a gallon on two tank refills. In Salt Lake City, the capital, it was 23.5 cents. The state tax is 4 cents.

In New Mexico, an oil producing state with a 5 cent excise, we paid 20, 20.2, 22, 23, 23.2, and 23.6 cents a gallon at different places, with no apparent explanation for the difference. In Colorado, with its 4 cent tax, we encountered prices ranging from 18.4 to 24 cents.

In Montana, with a 5 cent tax, we paid 22.6 cents. In Idaho, the rate was 25 cents, including a 5.1 cent state excise. In South Dakota, with a 4 cent state tax, we found prices of 20.3, 21.1, and 22 cents.

All of these prices are higher than those of the Mississippi valley states. The drop in fuel cost is found in Kansas, where we paid 17 and 18 cents, including a 3 cent state tax. In Missouri it's 18 and 18.3 cents, with a 2 cent tax, the lowest in the United States. In Iowa, with its 3 cent tax, we paid 19 and 21 cents a gallon.

No Time to Experiment.

In Illinois, three weeks ago, we paid as low as 16 cents, in Springfield, and to 18 to 19.9 cents in other sections of this state with a 3 cent excise.

All of these purchases were of familiar brands. We have had happy and also unhappy previous experiences in experimenting with cut price brands. On a long trip, caution excludes experimentation with fuels.

All of the quoted prices were for the regular grades. Actually, like many other motorists, we paid 2 cents more at a number of refills for the premium grade, for additional power in climbing mountain trails.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

Chicago, July 29.—Wonder how many motorists were victims of the trap at Mundelein. The stop sign was completely hidden by overhanging trees, and the police sat in their car waiting for the unlucky motorist to drive thru. My son and three of his friends happened to be the goats, but they were smart enough to turn the tables. He is quite a camera fan, and after he had donated four dollars, returned and took pictures, then returned to the police and told them they were turning them over to the newspaper. The case came up Saturday, July 19, at 7 p. m. During the week the trees had been neatly trimmed. The judge dismissed the case and returned the money. Also admitted the pictures were very good. The Lord only knows how long this has been going on. I'm betting many a motorist donated to the Mundelein fund. This was a Chicago Motor club sign. MRS. L. BRUNHARDT.

NOISY WEDDINGS.

Chicago, July 31.—Frank McLaughlin is justified in protesting the receipt of a ticket for blowing his auto horn especially in view of Mayor Kelly's instructions to the police not to interfere with the horn blowing of wedding parties.

Why should a citizen be penalized for blowing his horn and wedding parties be encouraged to make all the unnecessary racket desired, roaring their way thru traffic, confusing motorists and pedestrians, resulting in accidents, annoyance to the sick, etc.? The public is not interested in these weddings which should be private affairs.

If wedding parties are exempt, no motorist can be legally penalized. Unless all unnecessary horn tooting is prohibited, any driver has a legal right to toot his horn as long and as often as he wishes. A. F. R.

CLANG OF STREET CARS.

Chicago, July 29.—I note the police have been giving tickets to drivers who use their horns when not necessary. Go thru the loop some day and listen to the street cars clang their bells at cars in front of them even when these cars can't move due to the stop light being against them. But the street car company can do no wrong. They can also run red lights with immunity as they do all the time. J. J. JOHNSON.

$1,000,000 Colorado Highway Proves a Menace to Tourists

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 28.—[By mail.]—Ahead was a dark cloud obscuring peaks behind it, as The Tribune road car wound its way thru high ranges approaching Montrose, Colo., Jack Dempsey's home town. Rounding another hairpin bend in the so-called "million dollar highway," we were in a cloud. Hail clattered on the hood, windshield, and roof; snowflakes whirled thru the canyon, drifting into recesses between rock crags. Splattering onward thru mud, we were soon thru the cloud and again in bright warm sunshine.

The "million dollar highway," pride of southwestern Colorado, may have [but didn't] receive its name because it would cost more than a million dollars to make it safe for motor travel between Durango and Montrose. It rates as one of the most beautiful roads in America, offering varying scenes of mountains 12,000 and 14,000 feet high. But the driver has little opportunity to enjoy them during second gear climbs and descents on a shelf too narrow for two cars to pass, with many blind turns, and with no guard rails to mark the edge of safety over precipitous drops.

A Few Contrasts.

In Wolf creek pass, north of Pagosa Springs, Colo., and on the drive between Red Lodge, Mont., and Cooke, at the northeast entrance to Yellowstone park, The Tribune road car also rambled among peaks with huge snow drifts—and it was without the hazards of the "million dollar highway."

Almost as dangerous as the "million dollar highway" was Wyoming 22, recommended by a ranger at Grand Teton National park as the "slower, but more scenic" road to take en route to Salt Lake City. After viewing peaks that rise like carrots from the wooded shores of blue lakes, we followed his recommendation.

The ranger's description, it was discovered, was a gross understatement in two respects. In second gear, the car plowed thru loose rock, tearing off two brackets supporting the exhaust muffler. Then, on firmer gravel, we started a second gear climb with hairpin curves.

Over the Teton Range.

With stops for a boiling radiator to cool, we rose from Jackson, Wyo., a cow town and big game center with an altitude of 6,244 feet, to a pass at 8,431 feet over the Teton range to Idaho. The road was up a forested canyon. Over the points of tall pines we could see the Jackson Hole country behind us. Near the top of the climb, with the sun setting, the car heater was pleasant. In the long descent, in second gear, snubbing the brakes for further deceleration at the hairpin turns, the headlights went out due to a short in the wiring. With a foglight and a spotlight we continued the drop into Idaho.

There was another memorable climb in Arizona from the scorching hot Verde river valley. We descended into the valley from mile high Jerome, copper mining town of 2,295 population clinging to a steep mountain side. At Montezuma castle, a well preserved five story, 25 room dwelling of an extinct people in a cavity of a vertical cliff beside the river, a national park guide said the temperature was about 100 degrees in the comparatively cool shade.

In leaving the valley the highway heading toward Flagstaff led into Oak Creek canyon. We climbed on a good gravel road. Beside a splashing stream, the mesquite and sage were displaced by scrub cedars which in turn were displaced by tall pines. The canyon walls, 2,000 feet high, were rock strata of different colors.

Camp in Cool Canyon.

High in the cool canyon motorists were camped in tents, trailers, and cabins in the shade of redolent woods alongside Oak creek. We continued a few miles to Flagstaff, population 5,000 and altitude 6,896 feet, at the foot of the snow spotted San Francisco peaks, altitude 12,611 feet. It was a joy to breathe the cool, clean air only a few hours after having scorched in the Verde valley.

In southern New Mexico the climb to 9,500 foot Cloudcroft, population 3,000, in the tall and dense forests of the Sacramento mountains, will never be forgotten. The winding gravel road is well described by a billboard reading, "Let her boil, there's a gas station a mile ahead." This, of course, referred to radiator water. At several points on the cool crest you can look back where the highway left the San Andres mountains, 50 miles away, and crosses the hot, arid Tulerosa basin. In this basin, a mile below, you see a blanket of white, granular gypsum dunes, white sands in a path 8 to 10 miles wide extending for 28 miles.

Another pleasant climb, in northern New Mexico, is on the drive here from Santa Fe. The capital, founded in 1610, houses 20,000 Spanish, Nordic, and Indian inhabitants on cool slopes of Sangre de Cristo range. Taos, Indian and artist town of 965 population, likewise has a cool altitude of 7,000 feet, with breezes from nearby snow spotted peaks. Between these old settlements U. S. 64, Kit Carson highway, is in the canyon of the Rio Grande for about 20 or 25 miles. The sun reflects heat from walls of volcanic rock. The motor boils in the climb from the canyon to the high plateau. Then you smell a mountain cooled breeze and the thermometer on the instrument panel begins to fall. That's travel in the west.

NEWS AND VIEWS

M. E. Coyle, general manager of the Chevrolet Motor division of General Motors, last week was the honor guest at the Graduate School of Specialization, conducted by the division at Detroit. Coyle outlined the progress being made in converting the company's two big plants at Buffalo into aviation engine factories. He said that Chevrolet expects to be producing 1,000 Pratt and Whitney type engines for military service sometime next year. He said that beginning Jan. 1 the company will produce 1,000 four wheel powered trucks for the army a week.

The 100 members of the Chrysler club—the 100 salesmen who sold the greatest number of Chrysler cars at retail during the year ended June 30—are nearing the end of an 11 day cruise on the Caribbean. The party left July 26. Its itinerary included stops at Nassau, Cap Haitien and Havana. This is the seventh annual gathering of the club. David A. Wallace, president of the Chrysler division, and Charles L. Jacobson, vice president in charge of sales, headed the party.

W. R. Bamford, service director for the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation at Detroit, reports that a customer recently drove to the Dodge plant from Arcadia, Cal., stating that altho the car had given excellent service he wanted it looked over. "When did you buy it?" Bamford asked. "In 1922," he was told. The customer said that in 19 years he had driven the car 350,000 miles.

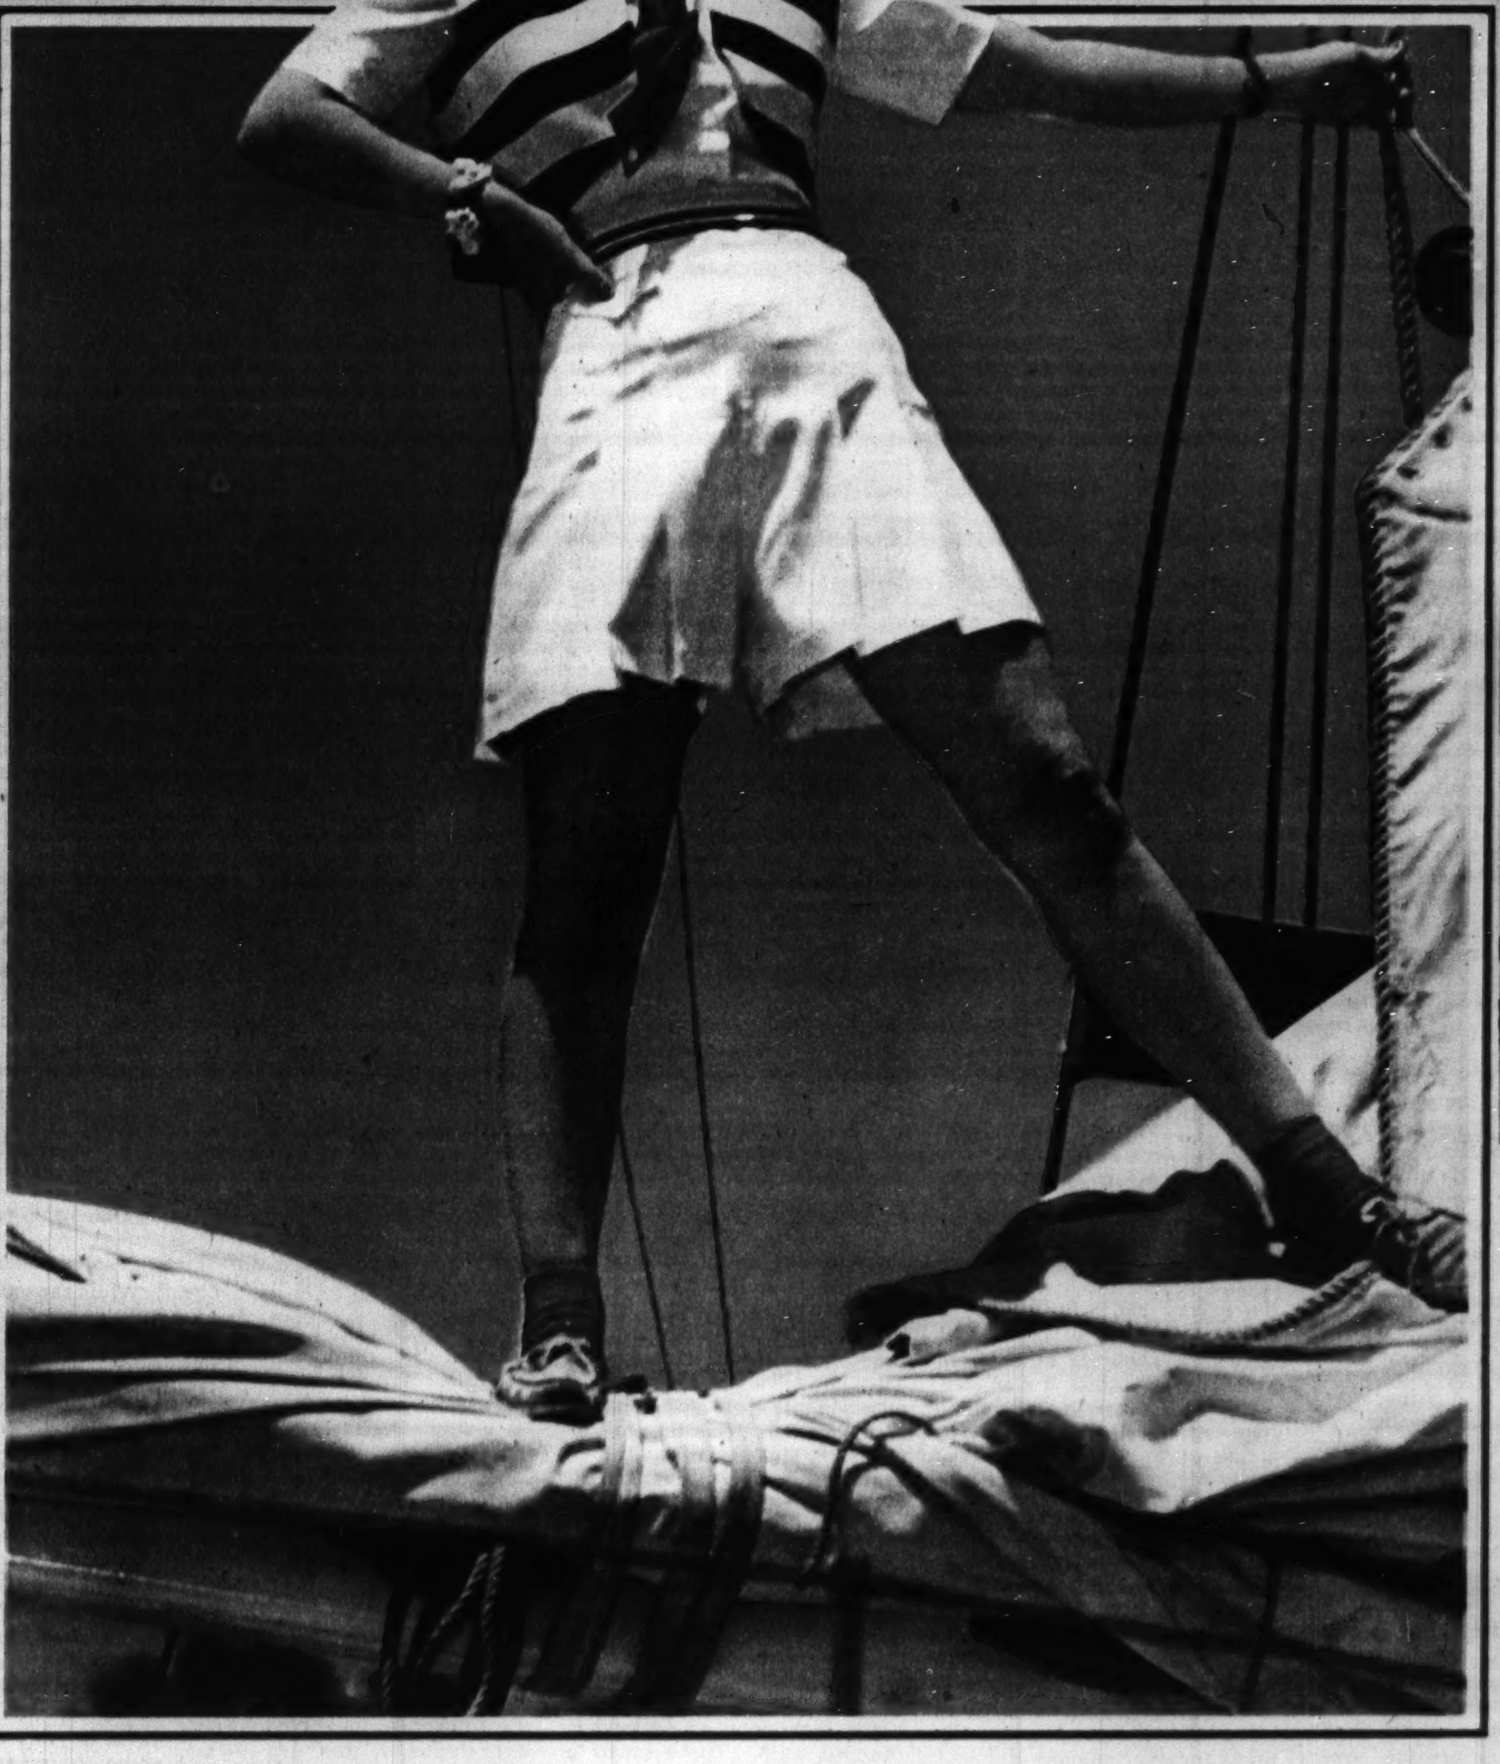
Boating BEATS THE HEAT

RECIPE FOR A WARM AUGUST DAY



TRIBUNE COLOR STUDIO PHOTO

By LLOYD WENDT
and
JOHN WARING

THESE HOT August days, while the middle west simmers, the lucky millions of Chicagoland turn to cool Lake Michigan for comfort, health, and recreation. They pack the generous sanded beaches that stretch for miles thru Chicago's great front yard from the glistening dunes of Indiana to the piney coves and peninsulas of the northland. They swarm by the thousands across the chill blue waters aboard the greatest fleet of inland pleasure craft anywhere in the world. There's nothing better than spanking before a fresh northeaster on the deck of a bounding ketch, with the spray of foamy whitecaps zipping across your cheek. Each year thousands more are discovering the pleasure. Chicago and suburbs now have seven fine yacht and sailboat harbors, 12 yacht clubs, and a score of junior and other boating organizations. From Chicago you can cruise to eastern Canada or to the gulf; to Pittsburgh or west to Kansas City by a vast lake and river system, all sounded, charted, and safe.

It isn't the millionaire with a sailing schooner or 200-foot Diesel yacht who dominates Chicagoland sailing, but the thousands of water lovers with their Snipe and cat boats, their outboard motors or collapsible kayaks, which latter craft they conveniently tuck into the apartment clothes closet when the day's outing is over. There is a thrill in hiking a cat-rigged dinghy over the sandbars that matches the excitement in a booming tack of a close-hauled big one. The stimulation is just as great, and the temperature, 12 degrees under shore on the average, 20 degrees below the torrid prairies inland, is just as invigorating.

You don't need a deal of money to enjoy the fun and relaxation Lake Michigan and nearby inland waters provide. Yachting, a term derived from the old Dutch word jacht, meaning pleasure or hunting boat, has long been regarded as a rich man's sport. But when the term is expanded, as it is today, to cover tiny canoes and rowboats, it's the most democratic of pleasures, and in Chicagoland most readily available. The prices of various craft cited here are from the quotations on new boats at last winter's boat and sports show. But yacht brokers say most people purchase their vessels second or third hand at figures 40 to 50 per cent below the list new prices.

In recent years canoe and kayak cruising has become extremely popular. The season lasts from May into September. They are paddled, sailed, or outboard powered. The paddled canoe or kayak, costing from $32 for a 10-foot single-passenger kayak to $117 for an 18-foot canoe, entails practically no upkeep costs. The canoe is hoisted aboard the family car or trailer after a cruise and kept in the garage. The kayak is handled likewise, or if it is a folding boat, costing between $60 and $90, it is tucked away in a couple of canvas bags and carried home like an oversize set of golf clubs.

The sailing rigs for the canoes and kayaks are also inexpensive, running from $22 for a rig of 25 square feet sail area to $43 for one of 65 feet. Outboard motors run higher, depending upon the horsepower required. The tiniest of motors delivers power equal to the rowing strength of five men and will cover up to 60 miles on a gallon of gas.

Kayak cruising has been called "knapsack yachting." Modern American kayaks can be paddled at four miles an hour for hours without special effort, or driven by an outboard engine up to about 12 miles an hour.

• • •

Both canoes and kayaks are strictly American inventions, having been used by Indians and Eskimos for hundreds of years. Light and easy to transport from home to lake or river, they are becoming very popular and it is estimated that 30,000 canvas-covered kayaks are now in use in North America.

The sports lover with a canoe, kayak, or small boat keeps to the inland lakes, rivers, canals, and lagoons, or near to the shores of Lake Michigan, but he has a lot of fun. He can poke into little unexplored coves and inlets and traverse quaint streams the bigger boats can't reach. He can have day-long trips, or even a vacation if he likes roughing it, for the big canoe or kayak will carry several hundred pounds of equipment, such as tent, clothing, food, and fishing gear. The bigger canoes and kayaks will carry three or four persons, and they are extremely seaworthy. In 1938 a kayak was sailed 3,000 miles across the Atlantic ocean.

Even more popular than the canoes and kayaks are the small motor boats, with either the

How We Almost Lost Our A.E.F.

Five Times in Four Months Germans Threatened to Cut Off Americans

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

WHEN THE ARMISTICE was signed, Nov. 11, 1918, there was great rejoicing among the allied troops in the war zones and among the people of the allied nations back home.

How America celebrated the glad news that the war had ended is well remembered today. The American people did not know then how close—how very close—it had come to losing its army in France. Thruout the fighting, censorship had kept from the public in this country the facts concerning the serious position in which our army had been placed.

Our bases in France were so far south and our training and fighting area so far east that a German victory could have cut off our troops as the British troops were cut off in Flanders in May of last year. In the case of the American troops in 1918, however, there would have been no Dunkirk to fall back upon, no swarms of ships and boats to snatch them from disaster.

A totally successful German drive from eastern France to the Atlantic coast naturally would have had to pass thru Paris, the French capital, which thruout the war was a main objective of the enemy. Since most of the railways from the south and east converged on Paris, American forces in those directions from the capital might have found it impossible to rejoin their comrades north and west of Paris in the event of the capture of this city.

• • •

The history of America's army during the World war is one of brilliant achievement. No braver nor more efficient soldiers than our Americans ever fought on any battlefield. Yet few people in this country ever have taken the trouble to contemplate the grave situation in which our army would have been put if the British and the French had collapsed then as the French collapsed in 1940.

From March 21 to July 18, 1918, the Germans conducted five major offensives on the western front, in three of which they actually broke thru the allied defenses. Any one of these German attacks, had it been completely successful, could well have cut the American troops in the fighting areas off from their base depots. An army with its lines of communication severed has left the choice of three alternatives:

It can attempt to cut its way out of the encircling enemy lines.

It can fight to the bitter end.

Or it can surrender.

After July 18, when the last of the five German offensives had run its course, the tide quickly turned in favor of the allies, because of the fresh American troops pouring into the war zone. There was little danger after this date of the allies losing, virtually no danger at all of the American army being bottled up.

The five major German offensives of 1918 were:

1. The second battle of the Somme, March 21 to April 8.
2. The battle of the Lys, April 9 to April 30.
3. The battle of the Chemin des Dames, or the third battle of the Aisne, May 27 to June 3.
4. The battle of Lassigny, or the battle of Noyon-Montdidier, June 9 to June 15.
5. The second battle of the Marne, or the battle of Champagne-Marne, July 15 to July 18.

The first three of these offensives, according to military writers, definitely were German break-thrus. Liddell Hart, British war historian, designates them as the March, April, and May break-thrus.

In the gray of dawn on March 21 the Germans, following the plan devised by Gen. Ludendorff, loosed a terrific bombardment of 6,000 guns along their line in front of St. Quentin, from La Fere on the south to near the region of Arras on the north. Midway thru this sector ran the Somme river. About 9 a. m. German infantry advanced behind a creeping barrage. Day after day, the Germans hammered the British, who were their opponents here. The German plan, as announced a day or two after the beginning of the offensive, was to pin the French and American armies against Switzerland. By April 4 the enemy had advanced to a depth of almost 40 miles, and were only about 12 miles from Amiens. By April 8 the Germans had taken a triangular strip of territory, nearly 10 miles deep, south of the Oise river.

General Gough's 5th British army had been compelled to make an extensive retreat. The Germans had captured 80,000 to 90,000 British, and nearly half of the French army had been engaged on this front. Despite their successes, the Germans were unable to pour enough troops thru the gap to make the break-thru permanent.

During this offensive there were eight American divisions in France and one regiment of still another division (roughly about 280,000 men), yet only 2,200 Americans took part against the Germans in this series of actions. These were men from medical, engineer, and air units. Of the eight American divisions in France at the time, four were stationed at the front, three were arriving in the Chaumont-Troyes training area, about 60 miles from the front, and one had been designated a depot division and was located south of Orleans, about 150 miles from the front. The American divisions at the front were the 1st, 2d, 26th, and 42d. In addition, there was one regiment of the 93d division up in front. In all, the Americans at this time held 17 miles of front line, in sectors not affected by the German offensive.

• • •

The second German attack, the battle of the Lys, began on April 9. In this offensive the enemy again struck at the British. The line of attack extended from near Lens on the south to near Ypres on the north. Gen. Ludendorff is believed to have intended the assault as a diversion, but due to its amazing early success he quickly converted it into a major operation.

A rapid retreat by Portuguese forces in front of the Lawe river created a gap thru which the Germans poured. It was not until April 30 that the advancing enemy finally was halted in the region of the important railroad junction of Hazebrouck. They had advanced to a depth of about 10 miles. It is the opinion of the British, according to Col. Girard L. McEntee of the United States army, and so stated in his "Military History of the World War," that next to the crisis of the Marne of 1914 the climax of the war was April 12, 1918, the day that the British commander, Gen. Haig, published his famous order:

"There is no other course open to us but to fight it out. Every position must be held to the last man. There must be no retirement. With our backs to the wall and believing in the justice of our cause, each one of us must fight to the end. . . ."

While the battle of the Lys was being fought there still were only eight American divisions in France (280,000 men), altho a ninth, the 77th, was being disembarked at Boulogne. Three of the divisions occupied quiet front line sectors some considerable distance from the action, and the remainder were in training 50 to 150 miles from the front. The total of the front line held by the Americans at this time was 30 miles. Members of American medical and air units to the number of 500 were actually engaged in the battle of the Lys. As this offensive was in progress the artillery of the 1st American division, on April 18, fired upon an enemy attack on Amiens.

• • •

The third German offensive, the battle of the Chemin des Dames, or the third battle of the Aisne, began at 1 a. m. May 27, on the sector extending from the Oise river near Noyon on the north to near Rheims on the south. Crossing this sector roughly at a right angle ran the Aisne river and its main tributary, the Vesle. The attack was intended as a feint to attract allied reserves to this area, while the enemy prepared a final and decisive blow against the British at Hazebrouck.

So successful was the offensive at the start that by noon of the first day the enemy was crossing the Aisne, by that evening the Vesle. By May 30 the Germans had forced their way to the Marne river, about six miles northeast of Chateau Thierry. Maximum penetration was attained by the enemy on June 2 and 3—a depth of more than 30 miles.

In the meantime, however, American troops in appreciable numbers had been hurled into the fray, both at the sector under attack and elsewhere, in an effort to stop the Germans. It is to the credit and honor of these troops that they did hurl the enemy back.

On May 28, the day after the offensive started, the 1st American division, under Gen. Bullard, began an attack on the village of Cantigny, at the apex of the huge Amiens salient and about 50 miles west of the center of the enemy push. Cantigny was of great strategical importance, since, occupying high terrain, it gave the Germans a superb point of observation. The Germans had strengthened their position at Cantigny with strong entrenchments. They had massed a large number of machine guns there and placed reserve artillery in the woods at the rear.

Since the front to be advanced upon in the American attack was little more than a mile wide, the assault was an assignment for a single regiment. The 28th infantry was chosen for the work. Reinforced by a battalion of the 18th infantry, a company of the 1st engineers, the divisional artillery, French artillery, tanks, aviation, and flame throwers, it struck at the Germans at 6:45 a. m. on the 28th.

Assisted by a rolling barrage and by concentrated artillery fire against the enemy rear area, the American doughboys swept into Cantigny, and dug themselves in. That same day and on the following day the Germans struck back. But both counterattacks failed—the Americans kept Cantigny.

On the day that the Germans reached the Marne, May 30, Gen. Pershing placed at the disposal of the French the 2d division, under Gen. Bundy, and the 3d division, under Gen. Dickman. The 2d division had to be brought up to the front from Gisors, about 30 miles northwest of Paris, and the 3d division from near Chaumont, nearly 100 miles from the front.

The 3d division was rapidly shifted in the direction of the Marne, its motorized machine gun battalion rushing on ahead and arriving in time to defend the two bridges at Chateau Thierry. The division reached the vicinity of Jaulgonne, and two of its brigades helped the French hurl the Germans back across the river near that place.

The 2d division was hurried up from the west to block the principal road between Chateau Thierry and Paris. It went into action against the Germans on June 4, repeated its attack on June 10, 11, 21, and July 1 and 2, capturing the strongly held enemy positions of Vaux, Bouresches, and Belleau Wood, all west of Chateau Thierry. It held its gains against numerous counterattacks by the Germans until it was relieved on July 9 by the 26th division under Gen. Edwards. The casualties of the 2d division in this series of fights were 9,500. The division took 1,600 prisoners.

Against the German offensive which began May 27 about 27,500 American soldiers were employed. These included the 2d division and part of the 3d division, as well as some troops from the 28th division, brought down from the north. The taking of Cantigny, in which troops of the 1st division played heroic rôles, is not considered a part of the battle of Chemin des Dames, altho it was accomplished at the time of the beginning of the battle.

When the enemy's third offensive was launched on May 27 there were in France or arriving in France 18 American divisions (roughly 500,000 men). Of these, four divisions were in the front line, including the 1st, near Cantigny, and the 26th, 42d, and 32d, in quiet sectors to the southeast. The 2d and 3d, it should be borne in mind, were brought up to the front after the attack had started.

Of the 18 American divisions in France at the beginning of this offensive, seven were far to the south or east of the point of attack. The 41st, a depot division, still was south of Orleans. Ten divisions were west or north of the sector of the offensive. Had the Germans been completely successful in the battle of Chemin des Dames, and thus been able to split the allied forces in a successful break-thru at Chateau Thierry, eight American divisions, or about 280,000 men, would have been isolated from the rest of the United States army in France. These would have included all of the best trained and most formidable divisions at this time, except the 1st and the 2d. If the Germans had been able in their smash at the allied lines near Chateau Thierry to push on and capture Paris they therefore would have cut off completely at the south and east the following American divisions: 26th, 42d, 32d, 5th, 3d, 80th, 41st, and 6th. The front line held by Americans at the beginning of the German attack was about 35 miles long.

• • •

While the valiant American 2d division was hammering the Germans in front of Belleau wood, Bouresches, and Vaux, the fourth German offensive was started. This was the seven-day encounter known as the battle of Lassigny, or Noyon-Montdidier, which was begun on June 9. The American 1st division of about 27,000 men, well hardened in its fight around Cantigny, saw action in this series of fights. The attack was made on a 20 mile front between Montdidier on the west and Noyon on the east. The Germans were unable to make great gains in this series of actions, altho the center of the French resistance was pushed back six miles. By June 11 the Germans had been halted completely.

At the beginning of the battle there were 25 American divisions in or arriving in France (about 725,000 men). Seven occupied front line sectors for a total distance of 36 miles.

General Ludendorff

General Pershing

Had the Germans broken thru on the Noyon-Montdidier line and pushed on to Paris and beyond, 12 of the 25 American divisions would have been cut off on the south from the rest of the expeditionary force. Had the enemy, on the other hand, cracked thru the allied defense and swept on to the channel they would have cut off nine American divisions on the north. Four of the 25 American divisions at the time were far to the south, one still south of Orleans, and three south of Langres, opposite the Swiss frontier. These would have been among the 12 divisions cut off at the south.

The final of the five German attacks of 1918, the second battle of the Marne, represented the dying offensive efforts of the enemy. This attack, launched July 15, was made on two sectors, one, 25 miles wide, just east of Rheims, and the other, 20 miles wide, slightly west of this city. By this time the Germans had learned to respect highly the fighting qualities of the Americans, and the fact that troops from this country were pouring into France in large numbers made the enemy anxious to score a successful break-thru before it would be too late. Ludendorff also desired to keep his troops on the offensive to bolster the morale of his country.

The German forces east of Rheims attacked westerly in the direction of Chalons and Epernay, while those on the west struck eastwardly toward Epernay, the object being to wipe out the Rheims salient.

This time the French were prepared, having obtained information as to the hour of the attack from German prisoners. Opening their artillery preparation 40 minutes before the Germans started their bombardment, the French met the foe head-on, slowed up the German infantry advance soon after it had started. At noon of the 15th, after about six hours of fighting, the German attack was almost completely halted. By July 20 the allies at this point had regained all lost territory.

At the west of Rheims the enemy met with some success, 14 of the German divisions being able to cross the Marne at the extreme west of the sector. So powerful, however, was the counterattack of the allies that on the 17th these enemy divisions were hurled back across the river.

The day that saw the final repulse of Ludendorff's troops west of Rheims, July 18, marked the beginning of a great allied offensive in that area. This was an offensive that rapidly gained momentum, brought on actions on other sectors, and finally resulted in the rout of the kaiser's armies.

Eighty-five thousand Americans were engaged in the second battle of the Marne. These embraced the 3d and 42d divisions and part of the 28th. As the battle was in progress there were 29 American divisions (approximately 825,000 men) in or arriving in France, 10 of which were at the front, holding about 63 miles of line. Eleven of the divisions were located from 50 to 250 miles west of the front and south of a line running east and west thru the Troyes area.

If the Germans had been successful in this offensive, broken thru the allied defenses around Rheims, and pushed southward they would have been able to isolate a dozen or possibly as many as 15 American divisions from the rest of the army. A number of these divisions already had seen action and could have been depended upon to put up stiff resistance, but others were new to the country and still undergoing training. Of the dozen or more divisions that might have been cut off to the south three were designated as depot divisions.

• • •

Here it has been shown that in a period of 119 days in 1918 the allied lines on the western front on five successive occasions were seriously threatened. On every occasion the allied troops were able to keep the Germans from breaking thru or to block the gaps thru which they had broken. Had the allies failed at any one of the five times there might not have been a glorious victory.

How close America came to losing its army in France can be measured only by the slim margin of power displayed by the allies over the Germans—not only in one great battle but in five. The American troops, it is obvious, helped save themselves in those critical days.

It is only after we study the military disasters in Europe in 1940 that we can fully appreciate the grave situations of 1918.

HOW'S YOUR PRONUNCIATION?

● Many of us take pride in the belief that we pronounce correctly the words that we employ in everyday speech. Yet often we may be wrong without knowing it, for our friends and acquaintances are reluctant to put us right. Here are ten words (with definitions) frequently mispronounced. Try them yourself and then turn to page nine and ascertain how many of them you have spoken correctly.

1—Colander: noun; vessel of metal or earthenware with bottom perforated for use as sieve.
2—Debouch: verb; to emerge into open space; in military usage, to march out from wood, defile, or other confined space.
3—Deign: verb; to deem worthy; to condescend.
4—Forte: adjective; loud or powerful (usually a musical term): noun; one's strong point; that at which one excels; in music a tone or passage played loudly.
5—Gounod: proper noun; name of a French musical composer.
6—Hangar: noun; shed; stable; penthouse; shelter for aircraft.
7—Hauteur: noun; haughty manner; arrogance.
8—Hereford; noun; animal of breed of cattle originating in Herefordshire.
9—Ingénue: noun; ingenuous or naive young woman; actress representing such.
10—Lwow: proper noun; province and city (Lemberg) in Poland.

Hollywood.

MOVIE PEOPLE have been kidded a lot about changing their names—but the interesting thing is that most names seem to be well chosen, and they stick. Most people don't remember Harriet Lake, but they do know Ann Sothern; comparatively few ever heard of Constance Keane, but a swift publicity campaign has made everybody acquainted with Veronica Lake.

• • •

Harriet Lake started her career in the movies but didn't get anywhere. Florenz Ziegfeld saw her at a party and offered her the second lead in Marilyn Miller's "Smiles." After this show she was a faintly chubby ingénue in other musicals, and finally had the rôle of Mary on the road in the immortal "Of Thee I Sing," the best musical comedy ever written.

Ann and Husband Roger Pryor.

This led to a second chance at the movies. Harriet Lake decided that this would be a fresh start, right down to having a fresh name. She picked Ann because her mother's name was Annette, and Sothern because it's a fine, respectable acting name. Under contract to Columbia, she rattled around in many studios, almost always as a sticky-sweet young heroine—a lady.

Then she got a contract at RKO and had more of the same. She was working often enough, but she didn't think she was becoming very important, so she deliberately dropped out of pictures for a year—a year spent in touring with the band of her husband, Roger Pryor—and came back determined to have one more major change. She'd play no more ingénues, but character parts that would stick in people's minds.

She took a job with Metro in a modest film, "Maisie"—and Maisie was the perfect character. The forthcoming "Ringside Maisie" will be the fifth in a series—which is by no means ended—about a dizzy babe with a heart of gold.

The name of Ann Sothern has now reached the real importance that goes with real stardom—which is the willingness of a studio to spend big money. The Maisie films are not superduper productions, but soon to be released is Norman McLeod's screening of Gershwin's "Lady Be Good," and this really is a top-budget affair, with Ann in a rôle that fits her perfectly.

In the works is another superduper, "Panama Hattie," the title rôle of which might well have been written for good old Maisie instead of for good old Ethel Merman, Broadway's best saleslady of songs. It begins to look this time as tho Miss Sothern's change were permanent. She has found what she can do best, and the results are satisfactory to everybody.

"Do another Maisie? Why, of course I will," she says.

Ann comes from a family of somebodies. Her grandfather was Simon Lake, noted inventor of submarines and other underwater gadgets. Her father was a Minneapolis produce broker, and her mother, Annette Yde-Lake, a singer of repute. Ann—or Harriet—was born 32 years ago in Valley City, N. D.—which was a stopover on one of her mother's concert tours. She grew up mostly in Minneapolis and was headed for a musical career practically from the beginning.

She also had an early theatrical career, giving shows with the neighbor kids in the back yard; but, since almost every American has given some kind of childhood show, this item should be ruled out of any actor's biography as having no historical importance. However, Ann kept on with theatricals in school and learned about backstage on concert tours with her mother.

By the time Ann reached college age she was a good pianist and singer, she had traveled a lot, and the family had moved to Seattle, where she had a couple or three years at the University of Washington. Then came sound, and its coming brought Mme. Yde-Lake an offer to go to Hollywood and teach the movie mugs how to speak. The offer was accepted, and Ann went along, it being her summer vacation.

To keep busy while Mommy was teaching, Ann got a job dancing in a local chorus. Here a talent scout spotted her, got her a successful test at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and launched her career. It wasn't a swift career. She played occasional bits, spent a great deal of time on the cutting room floor, spent more time posing for leg art and modeling fashion pix. Ziegfeld saw her, and his offer sounded lots better than anything she'd been given to do at M-G-M.

So Harriet Lake—or Ann—was a musical comedy ingénue for several seasons. She was pert, purty, and pleasant and had a nice voice, but as I remember her she wasn't as much in demand as, say, one of her contemporaries named Ginger Rogers. When "Of Thee I Sing" ended its tour she got a wire from Columbia studios offering her the lead with Edmund Lowe in a singie-talkie-dancie called "Let's Fall in Love." It was right here that Harriet determined she'd have a complete change and a new and better career in the movies than her first one had been. It was right here that she became Ann Sothern.

• • •

She did fine. Paramount borrowed her for "Melody in Spring," Sam Goldwyn borrowed her for "Kid Millions," Twentieth Century borrowed her for "Folies Bergere," and her home studio also had plenty of assignments. Then Ann decided there'd be another change.

"I will never play another sweet leading rôle on the screen as long as I live," she vowed.

And, by golly, she hasn't. Altho assignments were plentiful, she knew she was slipping, so she quit the flickers and spent a year touring and wondering what she should do about herself and asking people what they thought she ought to play.

• • •

Metro offered her another contract. She was not keen about it, for she remembered her first undistinguished movie career on that lot. At a local broadcasting studio one night she met Spencer Tracy, and Spence got to talking about how happy he was at Metro. They treated him well and, he felt, handled him right. He was much more content than he had been at Fox, where, because of his stage hit in "The Last Mile," he was condemned to spend most of his time in Sing Sing or trying to stay out of it. Tracy's enthusiasm sold her and she took the job.

It was, I think, a one-picture deal to be one Maisie, a honky-tonk girl stranded in Big Horn, Wyo., with a cold-hearted ranch manager named Robert Young.

"I took it," she says, "because by now I knew that any girl in Hollywood who thinks she is going on and on playing ingénues or pretty romantic parts is in for the surprise of her life. When her beauty fades she fades, too, right off the screen.

"Maisie" was a hit, and M-G-M quickly whipped up a long-term deal which still is in force. Things had come around full cycle and she was back where she started in Hollywood—but she wasn't posing for the still men any more as Easter bunnies and Fourth of July firecrackers.

Now things have come a little more than full cycle; Ann, after many straight comedies, finds herself in musical comedy again. When you see "Lady Be Good" you'll get a bang out of her singing "The Last Time I Saw Paris"—the Jerome Kern number which Metro bought and sort of edged into a show that once was Gershwin's.

• • •

When Sothern is working there are two evidences of her presence on the lot—a wicker rocking chair and a colonial dressing room. She found the rocker in the prop department when she was making the first "Maisie" and insisted on having it instead of the usual canvas camp chair. The rocker is a matter of luck with her now. The dressing room—a portable cubicle, as are all stage dressing rooms—used to belong to Joan Crawford. Joan got a new one, and the old one was given to Ann.

Ann and Husband Roger Pryor live in a colonial house in Beverly Hills. Roger spends much time flying. Ann likes flying and always travels by air, but she won't go with her husband. She can't, or won't, explain why. Her own hobbies are gardening and collecting china. She's mad about deep-sea fishing and a few weeks ago caught a mighty respectable 259-pound marlin. She doesn't like to drive cars, because she hates traffic, and she can't cook.

She and Roger shun night clubs, because to them a night club is a place to work, not to have a good time in. They try to attend a circus on wedding anniversaries, because it was at a circus that Roger proposed. She's a born brunet, but has been a reddish blonde for some time. Ann Sheridan is one of her closest friends, and Helen Hayes is her favorite actress.

Ann gives a helping hand in "Gold Rush Maisie."

And shadow-boxes in "Ringside Maisie."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

THEDA BARA

WILLIAM HOLDEN

CAROLE LOMBARD

Some movie names are dreamed up by producers and publicity men, others by the actors, and some are the result of contests. But no matter how goofy the name or how goofy the manner in which it was chosen, it sticks and becomes obvious and natural, like naming a high parking place Inspiration point.

There was nothing more fanciful, for instance, than juggling the spelling of Arab Death; yet Theda Bara fitted the gal as tho she'd been born with it.

• • •

New names fit if the actors who have adopted them succeed. When one William Beedle came into the movies, for instance, he had to have a new handle quick. A Paramount publicity man happened to know a reporter on the Los Angeles Times named William Holden.

"That's a good name, and I can fix it so we can borrow it," he said. So William Beedle became William Holden.

• • •

Carole Lombard picked her screen name as a tribute to a man and woman she admired very much—the Harry Lombards, who were close friends of her mother and her when she was a small girl named Jane Peters. Harry Lombard lost both legs because of an illness, but he never became an invalid. His bedroom was made into a reception room, a bar was installed, much entertaining was done, and nobody ever acted as tho Lombard was a cripple.

This gayety and courage deeply impressed young Jane, so when she got a job with Mack Sennett she asked if she could use the name of "the two most wonderful people I know." She thought up the Carol herself, and later a numerologist told her to put an "e" on it.

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you please print in your Sunday column the name and composer of the piano piece which Mary Astor played in her rôle as a concert pianist in "The Great Lie." I thought it was very expressive and added much to the picture. The piece began with three chords and was played in the last scene. I would be much obliged if you could supply this information and where I can procure a copy of the piece. I enjoy your column very much. Yours truly, M. O.

Mary Astor

Dear M. O.: Tschaikowsky's B-Flat Minor Piano Concerto No. 1 was the selection played by Mary Astor in "The Great Lie." You probably can obtain a copy at any reliable music store. Glad to be of service.

Dear Madam: There have always been two things I liked about The Tribune for years:

(1) Archie Ward's column, and

(2) Criticism of movies by Mae Tinée.

But after reading your say about the "Boys Town" series makes Mr. Ward's column on the sports page the only thing left in The Tribune I like to read.

I'm really dumfounded to read the verdict on "Men of Boys Town" by you, when I heard so much good about it. I've seen it three times already, and I learn something more good every time I see it.

Wake up, Mae.

Still on the sport page we have a real person, Archie Ward, still keeping that part of the paper as it should be.

Sad to say, you're passée as a critic in my mind. Sincerely,

EDWARD R. ROCHE.

Dear Mr. Roche: "Archie," take a bow!

SEE YOUR HAIR SPARKLE WITH EXTRA HIGHLIGHTS

Dull . . . Drab . . . Color-Dimmed By Dulling Film Illustrates soap-washed hair. Soap forms clouding film ("bathtub ring")... which covers highlights, color, loveliness.

Sparkling Highlights . . . Glowing Color . . . Up to 33% More Lustre Illustrates hair shampooed with Drene. No dulling film—so hidden loveliness is revealed.

Coiffure by Gene Pesce, Chicago's Smart Suburban Stylist

EXTRA highlights in your hair set off all your glamor . . . emphasize your natural loveliness.

But so much of the lustre of your hair remains hidden when you wash it with soap, or soap shampoo. That's because soap always combines with minerals in water to form a dulling film that hides the color and highlights in your hair.

Drene Shampoo is thrillingly different! Does not form this dulling film! As a result, scientific lustre-meter tests in our laboratories prove hair shampooed with Drene reveals up to 33% more lustre and color-brilliance than when washed with even the finest soap.

Gentle Drene super-cleanses. Removes embarrassing loose dandruff as effectively as those shampoos advertised as special "dandruff removers." And what's more, Drene does not leave a beauty-dulling film on hair as soaps and prepared soap shampoos do.

Try Drene . . . and see how your hair sparkles with extra highlights! Get Drene from any cosmetic counter, or ask your beauty operator to use it.

Refuse substitutes . . . no other shampoo contains Drene's safe, super-cleansing, beauty-revealing ingredient. It has been patented for Drene!

SKIS ON THE SKYLINE

At left: British ski troops returning to their base after maneuvers in the cloud-blanketed snow fields.

By GUY MURCHIE

● This is the second of a series of articles on Iceland by a Tribune foreign correspondent who was the first American newspaper man to visit the island after its occupation by the British. Last Sunday the author described the adventures of a convoy Iceland bound.

Reykjavik, Iceland.

IT WAS a May morning in the north of Iceland. A low, fleecy blanket of cloud covered the narrow fjord from mountainside to mountainside as the 24 British Tommies of the ski patrol left camp.

They were a special reconnaissance and anti-parachutist unit, part of the British Icelandic garrison. I had been lucky in persuading the lieutenant in command to make this final additional trip of the season for The Chicago Tribune—enabling me to be the first American observer of the only British troops participating in this unusual form of warfare since the Archangel campaign in 1919.

We started out over the tundra, which was knaggy with grotesque brown hummocs. There was no snow left in the valley, and the men picked their way slowly over the difficult ground, hefting their full packs and slung rifles, with skis and poles over one shoulder. Ahead the mountain came down in bare folds from the snow line to meet the sea behind us, where a fishing town lay strewn, its wharfs busy with unloading smacks and racks near by with drying cod. Only a little snow showed below the clouds like white fingers reaching under the mountain bedclothes, but we knew there were large snowfields higher up, and we had hopes the top would be dazzling in sunshine.

It was several hours' climb, and the lieutenant called a halt often to give the men a chance to rest from their 70 pounds of equipment. At the first halt they peeled off their heavy woolen shirts, but continued to sweat in cotton underwear. I had less to carry, but felt the weight of the Tribune color camera and other photographic chattels I had to carry in the form of two suitcases, especially after we got into the deep snow. The soldiers took turns toting their Bren gun, snow shovel, tent, and other special apparatus.

• • •

The vegetation when we reached the first snow patches was grayish green reindeer moss, with tiny red Alpine flowers known as saxifrage here and there. There are no reindeer in Iceland, and probably the largest wild animal is the fox, but the long-haired Icelandic sheep thrive on this dry moss. The isolation of this land, which seems to have kept most species of animals from it, has had much less effect on migratory birds. With the help of the lieutenant I was able to identify by sight or call the following: Golden plover, snow bunting, snipe, wimbrel, rock pipit, red shank, ptarmigan, and raven.

A short distance below the cloud level we halted and the men put on their skis, resuming the climb up the steep slope of snow in a zigzag course with the help of ski poles. There were occasional islands of solid rocky ground where the snow had melted, and, being skiless, I plodded from island to island, trying to keep pace with the troops. When we rose into the full density of the cloud bank this method became impracticable, for one couldn't see clearly more than 20 yards—and I kept close to the soldiers, filing upward in a mysterious white world in which there was no horizon and nothing but white snow and white mist mingling imperceptibly in every direction. The lieutenant held his compass in his hand and led the way by dead reckoning. With vision limited to 10 yards and the landscape camouflaged by new and unfamiliar patches where the rocks of the scree showed thru the melting snow, it was almost impossible to find the way. Several of the men joined in a discussion as to which was the way to the snow trenches the patrol had dug on a high shoulder a few weeks earlier.

When we stopped for lunch we were still lost and the dense cloud appeared to cover the whole top of the mountain. It seemed to have risen with us as we climbed. I shared a bottle of milk and some mutton sandwiches with the lieutenant while the men ate their own sandwiches and biscuits and sipped from their canteens. While I was photographing some unusual ptarmigan tracks, which revealed every primary feather of both wing tips as the bird took off from the snow, the lieutenant donned his white-hooded snow suit and set off alone exploring for familiar landmarks. He returned 10 minutes later after orienting our position to his satisfaction and ordered the patrol to proceed in a new direction. The men were all in their camouflaged white suits now and very difficult to see at 10 yards in the mist and snow. I went on ahead and took pictures of them swooping past me in single file down a little ravine—about the worst possible conditions for photography, but a chance I didn't want to miss.

When we found the snow fortifications at last, the men erected their tents and set up the Bren gun, and the lieutenant put them thru maneuvers. Standing in snow trenches with their white hoods over their heads and firing forward over a thick parapet of packed snow, the troops would be almost impossible to see or hit by an enemy advancing with rifles and machine guns. Experiments show that between two and three feet of packed snow will stop a bullet, so the ski patrol makes its forts about four feet thick. Against grenades, mortar shells, and artillery, of course, other measures must be taken.

The principal function of the British ski patrol is reconnaissance, which requires speed of movement, invisibility, and efficiency in signaling. These qualities it has. The men can cross a mountain slope almost as swiftly and silently as birds. They have flags for signaling by day and Aldis lamps for night.

• • •

Rounding up parachute invaders is a second function in which the men are being trained. They are taught how to put on or remove their skis and snow suits within a few seconds, to take cover among rocks or snow and be in position for instant firing. With the aid of a dog sledge, which they sometimes bring along on patrols, they can haul a light mortar and plenty of ammunition.

There are 10 sledge dogs available for them at present—large, grayish, wolflike dogs, mostly of the husky breed, which can pull as much in a day as three men. It is hoped that there will be whelps this year to increase the number of dogs for next year. The number of men on ski patrol will be increased, too, probably, by the quicker method of ordering them transferred from other duties.

Quite a number of men now equipped with skis are Norwegians. There is, in fact, an entire Norwegian ski company of 58 officers and men under British command, most of them merchant sailors and whalers who have lost their ships since the war began. Born and reared in Norway, they are natural skiers, and since the skiing season opened last November they have perfected their technique on skis and combined it with infantry tactics.

End of the ski trail. Troops use ice-covered streams as ski paths. One soldier has broken thru the thin crust.

The lieutenant in command of the ski troops.

As more Norwegians escape from their occupied country, more ski material is given to the British army. Some Norwegians have been aided in escaping by British raiding expeditions like the famous Lofoten Islands raid, but many others get away on their own resources.

• • •

Among those who escaped last autumn were two Norwegians in a rowboat. They had no sail—nothing but oars—and the boat was in bad condition, with zinc patches over holes in its sides and bottom. The men first had to evade the Gestapo agents known to be patroling the coast in fishing boats disguised as Norwegian fishermen. Then there were storms and days of fog and doubt as to their position on the sea. Finally at the end of the third week the men saw land and rowed into a little harbor in the Shetland Islands. They were received enthusiastically, and now their battered little boat is being preserved with a view to placing it in a national museum as a symbol of the sufferings and courage of Norwegians under the Nazi yoke.

Returning with the ski patrol down the mountain was naturally much more exciting than the slow climb up had been. Having no skis of my own, I persuaded one of the soldiers to let me ride with him on his skis, standing just behind him. My shoes were already full of ice water and so slippery that it was almost impossible to stay on the skis, but by holding tight on to the soldier I managed to stay on at times for a half minute or so—clutching the Tribune color camera in one hand and using one foot as a brake as we whizzed downward thru the clouds, with occasional rocks zipping past us out of the white nothingness ahead.

With the rifle on the soldier's back almost sticking into my mouth and our speed increasing every second, it was just a matter of time before we lost our balance and plunged into the snow.

After half a dozen of these plunges, which the equipment we were carrying did not make very comfortable, my Tommy host offered to lend me his skis, saying he would just as soon walk the rest of the way down the mountain. I accepted, and fared much better after that, skiing alone down the tracks left by the other ski troops until suddenly swooping thru the bottom of the cloud into clear air. By that time there were so many bare patches of lava rock that steering was difficult—but we glided down a winding stream bed for another mile, keeping to the side so as not to break thru the thin crust in the middle. The farther down the mountain we went the thinner became the crust arching over the stream, and presently the soldiers began to fall thru it, a mishap involving a sudden blow from the sharp edges of the crust, followed by a drop into the roaring icy water below, then a frantic clambering among the chunks of broken crust with tangled skis to get out.

When all the men had at last removed their skis and formed a column of twos they were in a merry mood from the informality of their adventures. The lieutenant had to speak to them severely to restore discipline—and in chastened silence we marched homeward over the hummocs.

BOATING BEATS THE HEAT

Additional pictures of popular types of sailing craft appear on pages six and seven.

outboard or inboard types of motors.

More than half of the 1,500,000 small boats and yachts in the United States and Canada are outboard-powered. With these craft it is possible to cruise and fish in more comfort and at greater speed than in the lighter canoe or kayak. Some outboard boats are kept at home in the garage, others in private yards or those of the Chicago park district or various boat clubs. In the latter event the operating cost of a power boat runs from $25 to $100 a year, including insurance, fuel, spring overhaul, and storage, the cost depending upon the size of the boat and its usage. The smaller dories and skiffs may simply be pulled up on the beach, tied to small piers, or lifted out on floats to reduce the maintenance cost.

For this class of boats prices run from $50 to $96 for a 12-foot outboard boat, which will accommodate three to five persons, to better than $200 for an 18-foot craft. Motors can be bought at almost any price between $25 and $350, depending upon the size. Inboard runabouts run from $625 to better than $4,000, depending again upon the size, accessories, and nature of appointments. Skiffs and dories, boat and motor, are as low as $160 to $400 for the 12-foot size, suitable for four persons.

The man who has a power boat generally wants to go places, and to go in comfort. A 30-foot cruiser is expected to compress all of the comforts of home into its limited space, including icebox and shower baths. The power cruiser owner likes to take his friends on week-end jaunts on the lake, to pull into a friendly yacht harbor for sociability, and to fish in luxury from the deck of his floating home. And there are thrills a-plenty plowing thru the waves at 30 miles an hour aboard a snug cabin cruiser.

But the thrills count little against the larger enjoyment of a comfortable cruiser with its galley, berths, icebox, radio, baths, and sun porch. Ask a man who has one, if you're prepared to give up an afternoon or evening. He'll even make the deck swabbing, brass polishing and endless paint brush work seem like the finest of sports. He and his family or friends cook in the galley and sleep in the snug berths, but they really live outside in the open air on a cruise, on deck in the sunshine or under cool awnings. There they watch the Great Lakes shipping parade past, survey the coastlines of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Michigan, hail passing yachts—and, by night, pick out the flashing colored gleams of navigating beacons. They sweep into a colorful harbor or rest quietly in some cool, secluded inlet.

The cost of a 20-foot cruiser, with berths for two to four persons, seating from three to six, runs from about $1,000 to $1,700. A 30-foot boat costs $1,900 to $3,800 and sleeps four to six, while a 36-footer, sleeping a similar number, costs between $4,000 and $6,250 new. Upkeep varies with the size of the boat. A 28-foot cruiser's insurance, fuel cost, paint and engine repairs, mooring and storage amounts to around $400 a year. On a 30-footer it might run $50 more, and for a 36-foot boat total $600. There are a dozen yacht yards in Chicago, on the north and south branches of the Chicago river and on Navy pier, where these boats may be stored in winter.

Those who claim to be the true water lovers go in for sailing yachts, either racing or cruising type. The modest-sized auxiliary cruiser has slightly less space below deck than a motor cruiser of similar class, but has more room on deck. It is generally more seaworthy than the cruiser, because of the deep keel, and its cruising range is greater, but it can't make as good speed.

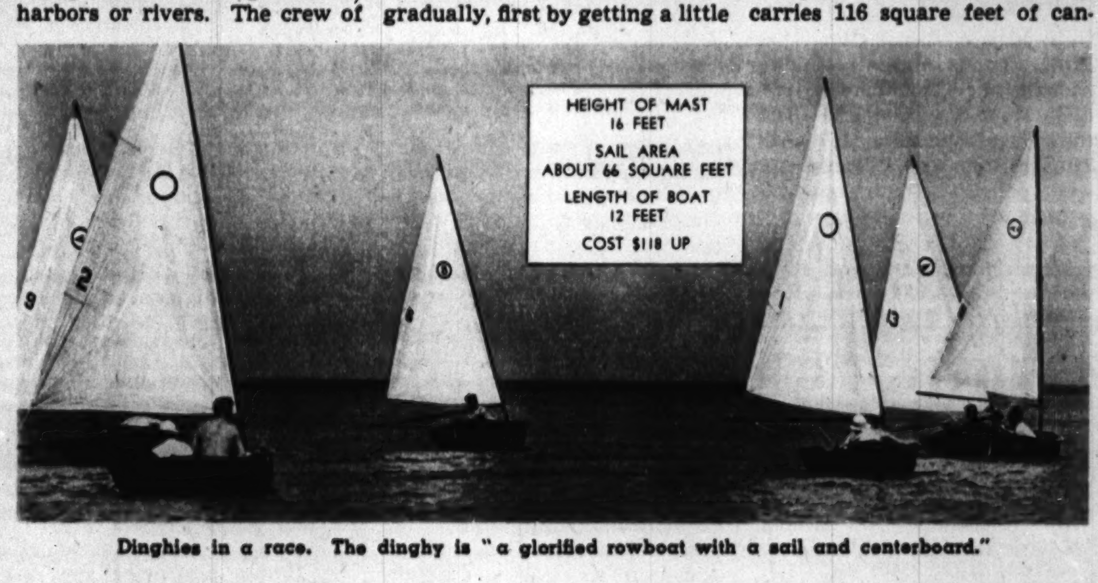
The master of a sailing vessel wrestles with navigation problems and the wind. Usually he is not on a cruise for comfortable relaxation, but for excitement and adventure, altho many people assert that is the best kind of relaxation. The cruising sail yachts are equipped with auxiliary motors capable of pushing them six to nine miles an hour whenever calms develop or upon encountering crowded harbors or rivers. The crew of a sailing cruiser need not learn celestial navigation of the sea for Great Lakes voyages, but they take compass readings and soundings, cast a weather eye to the windward, and come home feeling close kinship to the ancient Vikings and Christopher Columbus. A 20-foot sailing cruiser, with berths for two, costs about $1,200, and prices run up to $6,000 for a 35-foot boat. The upkeep is similar to that of a cabin cruiser.

But it is the racing people who have the real fun on the water, to hear them tell it. Whether it is the speed demons in racing motor boats who only make use of every fifth wave, or the sailboat enthusiasts who happily use themselves as peripatetic ballast and live only for their boats, this tribe provides the spectacular in sailing. The racing man learns how to get the last erg of energy out of his motor or the last inch of power out of his sail. His wife, if she has a real love for sailing, would rather reef the mainsail than lead the grand march at a presidential ball. His friends like sailing, too. They must, to remain his friends.

You can become a race fiend gradually, first by getting a little cat-rigged dinghy costing from $118 to $350. These boats have only a mainsail and can be handled by one man, altho they are raced by a crew of two, both wearing life jackets. They'll carry three or four persons in protected waters. The dinghy is a glorified rowboat with a sail and centerboard. This is a slot thru which you drop the keel when you are out of shallow water. The keel prevents the boat from side-slipping when the sidewise pressure of the wind is on the sail. It appears to run the boat in a groove, straight ahead.

After the dinghy comes the sloop, which has a jibsail forward or in front of the mainsail. After hoisting your mainsail to run into the wind you hoist the jib to give your boat balance. Sloop-rigged boats are also considered one-man boats, altho, coming to beach, one may have plenty of trouble handling the sheets—lines which control the sail—and bringing up the keel, if a good breeze is blowing.

The most popular boat of any sailing class in the Chicago region is the sloop-rigged Snipe class. This boat weighs about 450 pounds, is 15½ feet long, carries 116 square feet of canvas, and costs between $195 and $315.



Dinghies in a race. The dinghy is "a glorified rowboat with a sail and centerboard."

The Star class, which provides the most frequent and interesting races on Lake Michigan (anyway from the standpoint of a landlubber, who can watch the pretty craft from shore), follows closely upon the Snipes in popularity. A Star class boat carries 265 square feet of canvas and a mast 31 feet above deck. It is 22 feet long, weighs about 3,000 pounds, and can be purchased new at from $950 to $1,500.

Regular races are run for the Star class boats, and a string of them may be seen almost any week-end tacking about a semicircular course, gracefully keeling to the wind, with the sails popping and the crew hanging for dear life from the gunwales.

The big races, such as the Bermuda race in the east and the famous Mackinac races, are run by yawls and schooners and cruise yachts, with the latter put into their own division a few years ago. The yawl carries a jib, mainsail, and mizzen sail aft. It is chiefly distinguishable from the ketch by the position of the mizzenmast, which on the ketch is a little farther forward. The schooner has a jib, foresail, and mainsail, and nowadays usually carries Marconi or jib-headed type rigging.

Increasing interest in yachting and boating in the Chicago area is beginning to tax the capacities of the harbors, and the Chicago Plan commission is surveying the possibilities of increasing the accommodations. At present only Burnham lagoon has unused facilities for boats; the rest are all filled. The registration of vessels in the United States custom office shows a local ownership of 2,000 craft large enough to require special harbor facilities. An extensive expansion of small boat harbor space just north of Navy pier has been proposed.

• • •

Yearly dues at Chicago's yacht clubs range from $3 and $5 and up to $60. Chicago's boat clubs charge from $10 to $29 annually. Three nearby Indiana yacht clubs and two north shore suburban clubs have dues from $5 to $16 yearly.

But you need not own a boat nor join a club to enjoy Lake Michigan yachting. Between today and Sept. 14 a total of 22 races has been scheduled with the Lake Michigan Yachting association, 10 of them in the immediate Chicago area. Next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday the Lipton, Nutting, and Germann cup races, for Tumlaren and 110 One-design boats (both in the sloop-rigged racing class), will be run off Belmont harbor under the auspices of the Chicago Yacht club. You can watch from shore, enjoying vicariously a soothing, calming sport almost as old as man himself.

COMES THE YAWN!

By ELEANOR NANGLE

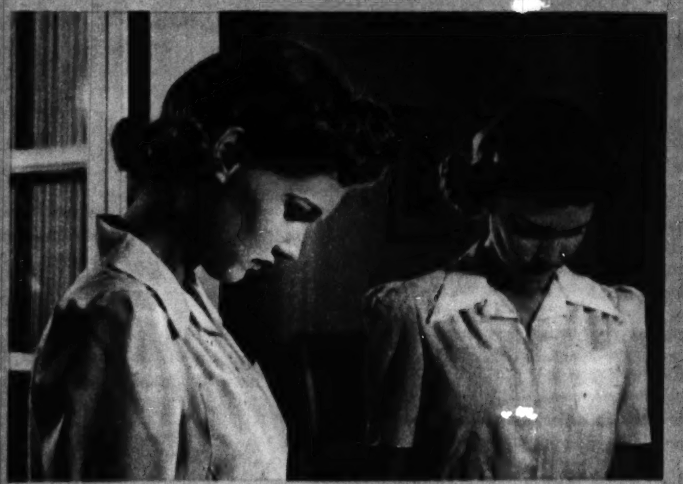
(Tribune photos by Andrew Pavlin.)

THERE'S NOT much about a tiring day at the office that a long, luxurious, catlike stretch that ends in a soul-satisfying Y-A-W-N won't cure. But the yawn, like restful sleep, will elude the tired typist unless she first unkinks her neck.

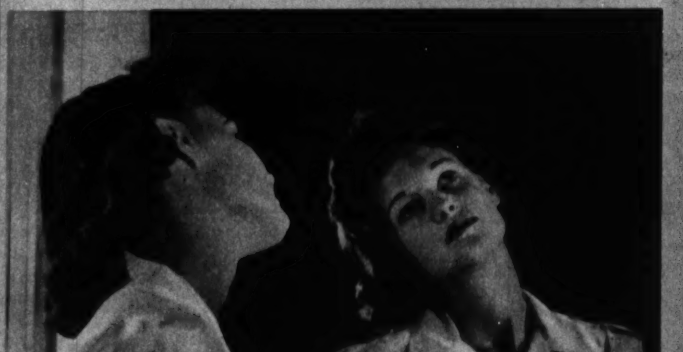
Nervous tension and muscular fatigue always hit the working girl right square in the back of the neck. In most cases her posture as she works isn't what it should be. She rounds her spine and her shoulders and leads downward with her chin. The result of this steady, badly synchronized pull on head and shoulders and the natural tension that jitters produce in that highly sensitive area is that the back of her neck literally becomes a bottleneck that jams up the easy, proper play of nerves and muscles. Unkinking her neck is probably the most important of all steps toward relaxation that the tired typist must learn.

There is nothing to be gained by exercising tensely. Stretching exercises will make you come all unwound, where the old-fashioned physical jerks, done tensely, will only tie you into bigger and better knots.

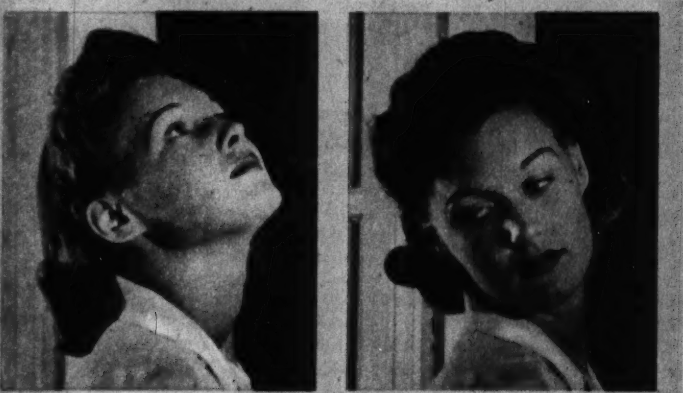
When you're tired, stretch, up and up and up. Then fall forward from the waist. (We showed you this stretcher last Sunday.) Then sit before a mirror and do some special head rotation to unkink the bottleneck. The crown of your head should make a complete rhythmic circle. When you do this properly you automatically sit erect but not stiff, and your head lolls luxuriously. Do this eight or ten times, slowly and smoothly, and then come to rest with it upright. The pictures show you how.



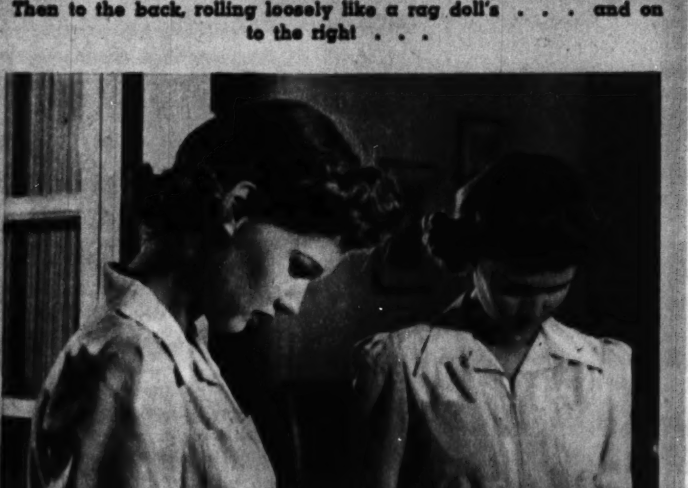
Do your head rotation relaxing exercise seated before a mirror. Sit erect but not stiff and let your head roll forward . . .



Then, limply and slowly, let it roll to the left . . .



Then to the back, rolling loosely like a rag doll's . . . and on to the right . . .



And your limp head is right back where it started. Do it again, this time from right to left. Only your head moves; don't involve neck or shoulder muscles.

Cool Follow-Up for Hot Competition

By MARY MEADE

AFTER A GAME of tennis or golf on a warm summer day it's pleasant to relax with a glass of iced tea and a doughnut or cookie if the game hasn't lasted until time for a scheduled meal.

Mother, wife, sister, or daughter — whichever is responsible for subduing hunger in your particular family—will be blessed for setting out the tea things in readiness. If she has baked a batch of peanut and chocolate chip cookies she'll be especially blessed by the grateful sports fans.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT SQUARES

(Four dozen)

1 cup shortening
½ cup white sugar
1½ cups brown sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 7-oz. bar semisweet chocolate
1 cup chopped salted peanuts

Cream shortening until light. Gradually beat in white sugar and ½ cup of the brown. Beat until fluffy. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, water, and vanilla. Blend thoroly. Sift dry ingredients together three times and add to first mixture, stirring well. Spread evenly in two greased 8x12-inch pans, smoothing out the dough with a spatula. Sprinkle with chocolate which has been cut into small pieces (or use the little chocolate drops made especially for cookies). Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually add remaining brown sugar, continuing to beat thoroly. Spread meringue on top of chocolate layer and sprinkle peanuts over it. Bake in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 25 minutes. Allow to stand until almost cool. Carefully cut with a sharp knife into two-inch squares. Remove from pan with a spatula. Leave cakes exposed to air overnight before serving.

The nuts may be sprinkled with the chocolate over the dough, leaving only the meringue for topping, if desired.

Tall glasses, a bowl of ice cubes, a few mint leaves, and a pot of hot double-strength tea are the requisites for the refreshing drink. Hooking the doughnut onto the side of the tea glass is a cute trick if you can find some little glass hooks.

Crunchy with peanuts and bits of chocolate, these cookie squares are ideal to serve with tall glasses of iced tea.

Father and son relax after a game of tennis, finding appetizing refreshments, iced tea and doughnuts, at the tea bar.

Perfect Poems

This poem, another in the series being printed each Sunday in the Graphic Section, is from "Fifty Perfect Poems," selected and edited by Charles A. Dana and Rossiter Johnson.

ULYSSES—By Alfred Tennyson

It little profits that an idle king,
By this still hearth, among these barren crags,
Matched with an aged wife, I mete and dole
Unequal laws unto a savage race
That hoard, and sleep, and feed, and know not me.
I cannot rest from travel: I will drink
Life to the lees: all times I have enjoyed
Greatly, have suffered greatly, both with those
That loved me, and alone; on shore, and when Thru scudding drifts the rainy Hyades
Vexed the dim sea: I am become a name;
For always roaming with a hungry heart,
Much have I seen and known; cities of men
And manners, climates, councils, governments,
Myself not least, but honored of them all;
And drunk delight of battle with my peers,
Far on the ringing plains of windy Troy.
I am a part of all that I have met;
Yet all experience is an arch wherethru
Gleams that untraveled world, whose margin fades
Forever and forever when I move.
How dull it is to pause, to make an end,
To rust unburnished, not to shine in use!
As tho to breathe were life. Life piled on life
Were all too little, and of one to me
Little remains: but every hour is saved
From that eternal silence, something more,
A bringer of new things; and vile it were
For some three suns to store and hoard myself,
And this gray spirit yearning in desire
To follow knowledge, like a sinking star,
Beyond the utmost bound of human thought.
  This is my son, mine own Telemachus,
To whom I leave the scepter and the isle—
Well-loved of me, discerning to fulfill
This labor, by slow prudence to make mild
A rugged people, and thru soft degrees
Subdue them to the useful and the good.
Most blameless is he, centered in the sphere
Of common duties, decent not to fail
In offices of tenderness, and pay
Meet adoration to my household gods,
When I am gone. He works his work, I mine.
  There lies the port: the vessel puffs her sail:
There gloom the dark broad seas. My mariners,
Souls that have toiled, and wrought, and thought with me,
That ever with a frolic welcome took
The thunder and the sunshine, and opposed
Free hearts, free foreheads, you and I are old;
Old age hath yet his honor and his toil;
Death closes all: but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done,
Not unbecoming men that strove with gods.
The lights begin to twinkle from the rocks:
The long day wanes: the slow moon climbs: the deep
Moans round with many voices. Come, my friends,
'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.
Push off, and sitting well in order smite
The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds
To sail beyond the sunset, and the baths
Of all the western stars, until I die.
It may be that the gulfs will wash us down:
It may be we shall touch the Happy Isles,
And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.
Tho much is taken, much abides; and tho
We are not now that strength which in old days
Moved earth and heaven; that which we are, we are;
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

Help your Skin to New Loveliness

GO ON THE CAMAY "MILD-SOAP" DIET!

This exciting beauty idea is based on the advice of skin specialists themselves—Brides everywhere are winning new loveliness with its aid.

"I FOUND the key to new loveliness in the Camay 'Mild-Soap' Diet," says this charming Camay bride. "I was thrilled to find what it could really do for my skin."

How true that is of so many women, the beauty of their skin lies unrevealed—hidden by improper cleansing. And many fail to use a beauty soap as mild as they should.

"I knew the very first time Camay's gentle lather touched my skin," says Mrs. Jertson, "that here was a wonderfully mild beauty soap."

How right Mrs. Jertson is! Camay is not just a mild beauty soap. It's milder—milder than ten other popular beauty soaps tested. And because skin specialists advise a fine mild soap—we say, "Go on this 'Mild-Soap' Diet with Camay."

Start now—today! Every single day give your skin Camay's gentle cleansing care night and morning! Do this for 30 days. But do it constantly—for it is the regular daily routine that gives you the full benefits of the "Mild-Soap" Diet.

From the very start notice how fresh and stimulated your skin feels! And at the end of a few short weeks expect to see a lovelier, more naturally alluring complexion! Get 3 cakes from your dealer's today. Start on the "Mild-Soap" Diet tonight.

This lovely bride is Mrs. James Jertson, Brookfield, Wisconsin. Like thousands of other brides, she credits Camay and the Camay "Mild-Soap" Diet with helping her to a lovelier complexion. Mrs. Jertson, whose beauty surely makes her an expert, says, "My skin is so lovely I'm simply delighted. I recommend the 'Mild-Soap' Diet to all my friends."

THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Go on the Camay "MILD-SOAP" DIET

✓ Camay is milder by actual recorded test—in tests against ten other popular beauty soaps Camay was milder than any of them!

Work Camay's milder lather over your skin with a gentle massage—paying special attention to the nose, the base of the nostrils and the chin. Rinse with warm water and follow with 30 seconds of cold splashings. How fresh your skin will feel!

Then while you sleep, the tiny pore openings are free to function for natural beauty. In the morning—one more quick session with this milder Camay and your face is ready for make-up. Follow this routine faithfully, night and morning!

Graphic Little Theater PRESENTS Robert Montgomery in "HERE COMES MR. JORDAN"

1 Joe Pendleton (Robert Montgomery), a good boxer and a hopeless saxophonist, lets his musical urge overrule his vigilance as a pilot while flying to a championship fight. The plane crashes, but before it hits, Heavenly Messenger 7013 (Edward Everett Horton) takes him to the Heavenly Express. There Mr. Jordan, the Heavenly Ambassador, is preparing to escort a group heavenward.

2 "Look, Mr. Jordan," protests Joe. "I don't like to cross you, but I'm fighting for the championship tonight, and I'm not ready to die. Get me back there." Jordan (Claude Rains) looks over his list. "You are quite right, son," he smiles. "I'm not scheduled to call for you until 1991. No. 7013, you're too anxious to make a good score—take Joe back."

3 The chastened 7013 takes Joe back to the wreck, but to their horror they find Joe's body has been removed and cremated. "What'll I do?" moans Joe. "I'm not dead, but I've got no body!" "We'll just have to find one," says 7013, none too confidently. But they do—the body of a man being murdered by his wife and his secretary. Joe slips into Mr. Farnsworth's body.

4 "Hello, dear, what are you two up to?" Joe says to the astonished Mrs. Farnsworth (Rita Johnson) and her co-plotter (John Emery). Thereafter Joe is Farnsworth to the world—but he still wants that title fight.

If everybody knew that wieners could be as good as these, more people would have fun meals indoors and out.

Little Oscar on the band identifies wieners so good that they're relished by almost everybody. If you (or any of your family) have never tried Oscar Mayer Wieners, you don't know how delicious, tender and satisfying good wieners can be.

Oscar Mayer Wieners are famous for mild, juicy flavor. They're nourishing and appetizing. Because they follow a rigid formula day in and day out, they're always of the same fine quality. The moment you eat an Oscar Mayer Wiener you know what we're trying to tell you when we say they're processed under scientific control from choice U.S. Government inspected meat, no cereal.

Favorites on picnics or wiener roasts—in camps—for quick, easy, informal meals at home, they're convenient and economical (4 or 5 generous servings to the pound). They're already well-cooked, ready to roast, broil or heat through in a hurry in water brought to the boiling point.

Get the regular or skinless kind from your dealer, and remember—the wiser buyer says "Oscar Mayer."

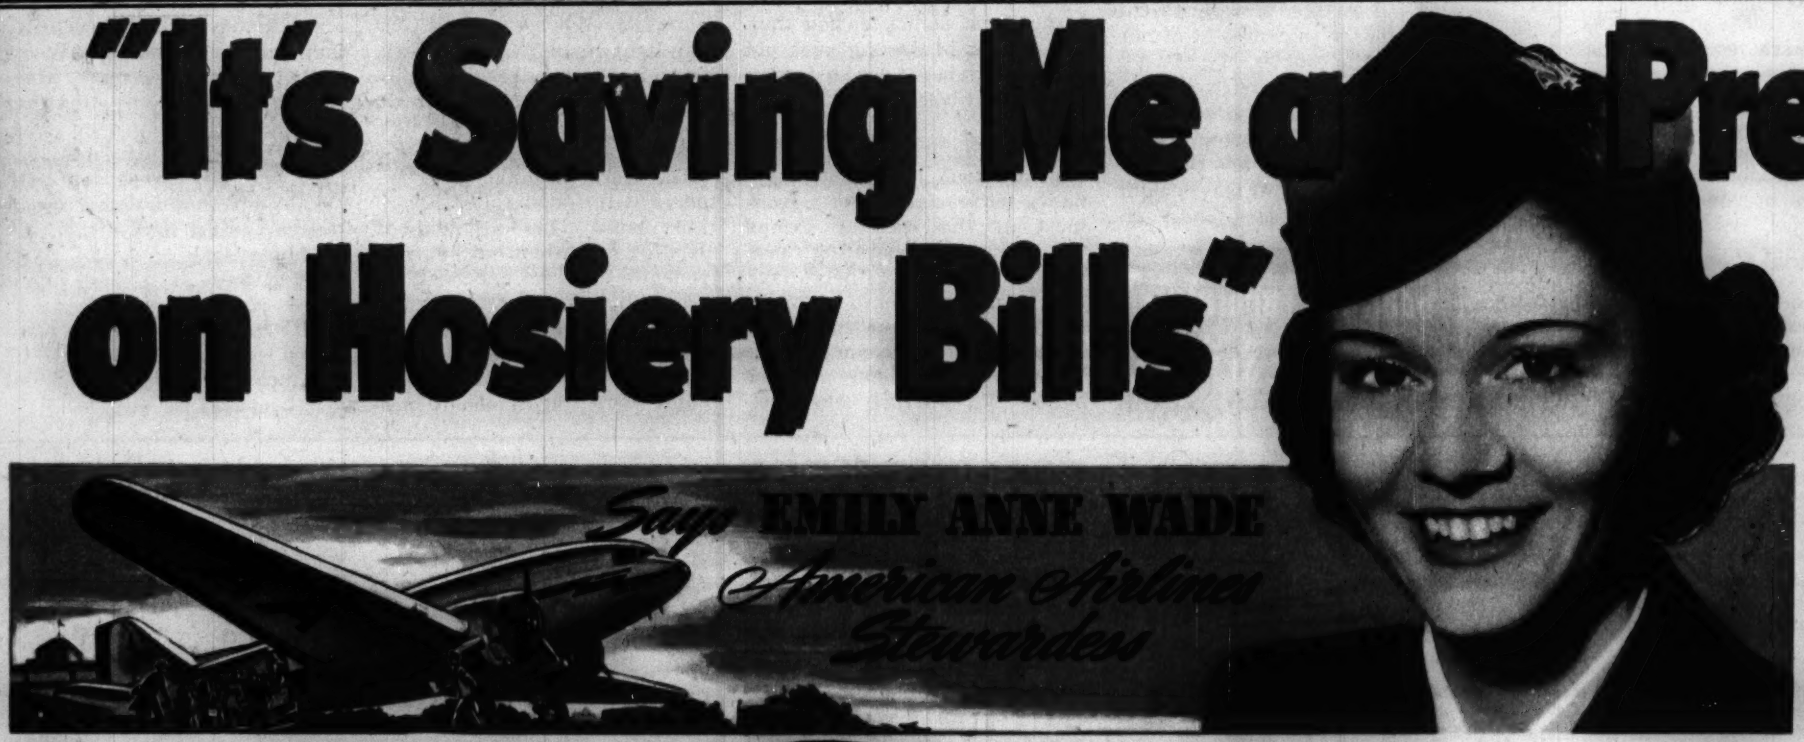
"It's Saving Me a Pretty Penny on Hosiery Bills"



Says EMILY ANNE WADE
American Airlines Stewardess

MISS WADE--IF YOU DON'T MIND MY CURIOSITY--HOW DO YOU STEWARDESSES ALWAYS MANAGE TO LOOK AS IF YOU JUST STEPPED OUT OF A BANDBOX?
WELL, MRS. DODGE--WE HAVE TO. SMARTNESS IS JUST AS STRICT A REQUIREMENT WITH US AS EFFICIENCY!

PERSONALLY, I GIVE A LOT OF CREDIT TO THOSE WONDERFUL NEW DREFT SUDS FOR HELPING TO KEEP MY UNIFORM BLOUSES AND STOCKINGS FRESH AND CLEAN.
DREFT? OH--I'VE HEARD ABOUT IT. IS IT REALLY AS WONDERFUL AS THEY SAY?

WELL, I KNOW ONE THING. SINCE I'VE BEEN WASHING MY STOCKINGS THE DREFT WAY, THEY SEEM TO LAST AGES LONGER--AND I'VE BEEN SAVING A PRETTY PENNY ON MY HOSIERY BILLS!

YES, MISS WADE! Our Scientific Laboratory Tests Prove You May

GET AS MUCH AS 20% MORE WEAR

by Washing Your Stockings the DREFT Way!

The Dreft way to wash stockings is to do your hosiery in Dreft after each wearing—instead of neglecting them. Our scientific tests prove that this may add as much as 20% more wear—or save you the equal of about six pairs of stockings a year!

YOU KNOW--OUT WHERE I LIVE, THE WATER IS VERY HARD--AND WASHING STOCKINGS IS A PROBLEM.
THEN YOU CERTAINLY SHOULD USE DREFT! I'VE HEARD THAT DREFT MAKES OCEANS OF SUDS IN HARDEST WATER. AND NEVER FORMS ANY OF THAT HARD-WATER FILM THAT MAKES STOCKING COLORS LOOK SO DRAB!

I HOPE YOU ENJOYED YOUR TRIP, MRS. DODGE.
I MOST CERTAINLY DID! AND I CAN'T THANK YOU ENOUGH FOR YOUR TIP ON DREFT SUDS. SAVING DOLLARS ON MY STOCKING PURCHASES WILL BE LIKE "FOUND MONEY" FOR ME!

205 Smart Girls!

On active duty at present, are 205 American Airlines Stewardesses—probably the largest single group of smart, trimly-turned out young ladies in the country! It's significant that so many of them give Dreft suds a great deal of credit for helping to keep their washable uniform blouses and stockings fresh and bright!

"I SHOULD SAVE AS MANY AS 6 PAIRS A YEAR!" Says Miss Hazel Brooks, Senior Stewardess, American Airlines

Miss Brooks' position makes her responsible for setting the high standard of appearance which all American Airlines Stewardesses are required to meet. Recently, she wrote us:

"Washing my stockings in Dreft after each wearing seems to increase their life amazingly! I look forward to matching your test record of saving 6 pairs a year!"

Try This Remarkable New Patented Suds for Washing Advantages No Soap Flakes Can Offer!

WHEN a washing suds is granted patents by the Government, you know it must be different! And the fact is, patented Dreft is different from any soap you ever used!

What does Dreft's difference mean to you? It means these important washing advantages not even the finest soap flakes can give:

(1) SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS ...Dreft suds are so wonderfully mild, they won't sting the way soapsuds do when accidentally splashed in your eye. Dreft was the first suds to be completely non-alkaline! So think of how gentle it must be on stockings!

(2) SUDS THAT NEVER FORM "HARD-WATER SCUM"...not a trace of this clinging, dull film to hide colors! In your hard water, Dreft washing can leave stocking colors fresher and brighter than the finest soap flakes money can buy!

(3) INSTANT COOL-WATER SUDS! In the right cool water for washing stockings, Dreft makes suds faster than any soap you ever used!

(4) RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER ...actually 5 times more suds than any soap... to help you get stockings clean without unnecessary rubbing!

(5) A PACKAGE LASTS TWICE AS LONG! Package for package, in hard water, Dreft goes twice as far...lasts twice as long as fine-fabric soap flakes! And that's real economy!

In short, money can't buy a better stocking suds than Dreft! And to help get the longest wear out of your stockings, do them in Dreft after each wearing, instead of neglecting them! We've made scientific tests that prove this simple Dreft way of washing hosiery may add as much as 20% to their wear! And this means the equal of saving about six pairs a year!

How Lessons of War Affect European Tank Designs

By STANLEY JOHNSTONE

MOST of the new European tanks, as the photographs reproduced here conclusively demonstrate, are low, squat machines with almost no side area above their tractor treads. They carry an enormous weight of armor in proportion to total weight, have this protecting armor concentrated in the thickest possible belt at the front, and are provided with cannon that are consistently heavier than those of equivalent American tanks.

This design is functional above all. It has been adopted because the hot breath of war has proved it to be the best. The Nazi panzer divisions and heavy tank units, as yet unstopped in battle, have used this type of tank for light, medium, and heavy units, for anti-tank tanks, and for tractor-mounted anti-tank cannon. Their success has driven British, Italian, and Russian designers to the same general formula.

It is my belief, however, that American tank designers have failed to appreciate these lessons. After studying official photographs of the latest American medium tanks that are now coming off production lines, I have come to the conclusion that information driven home by participation of German, Italian, and Russian tank units in the Spanish war, and British units in the campaigns in Belgium and France during 1940, has been missed or misunderstood by Americans.

• • •

The new American tanks are high, slab-sided vehicles. Their total area to be protected is much greater than similar areas of new German, Russian, and British tanks. Since there is a definite limit to the weight allowance for armor in any tank, the tank with the most area must spread its armor thinner than a tank with less area. Consequently the new American tanks must be less heavily armored than European tanks.

With this in mind, consider the four major reasons for using a squat tank body hidden down between the tracks with only a single turret projecting above the tractor belts. They are:

1. The squat tank can have its armor thicker over its entire area and can have its frontal armor, which is most exposed to enemy fire, considerably thicker than can a higher machine.

2. The low tank presents the minimum target to enemy fire.

3. A low tank has a low center of gravity and provides the sturdiest and most rigid platform for heavy cannon.

4. It is easier for a low tank to take advantage of cover in terrain, a roll in ground, low scrub growth, low trees, etc., than a higher structure.

• • •

It is all too easy to assume that a tank is a motor-powered vehicle that can be constructed to carry any weight of guns or armor desired. As a matter of fact, a tank, like any other craft, be it airplane, automobile, vessel, or railroad train, is strictly limited by its motive power and its desired performance. If power is ignored, performance and maneuverability suffer. If a tank is made too heavy for its power, its performance suffers again.

The definite limitations of tanks have been studied out and determined by many engineers. These differ in degrees, but in the majority are alike. For the purpose of presenting the problems of a tank designer—so that you can understand the differences in tanks and tank armor and armament—I am adopting the German standards as set out in the German military publication Die Technische Krieg (Technical War)—published in August, 1939.

The Germans say that the main weight factors in tank construction are: 1. the chassis, consisting of the power unit, the gears, running gear or steel and rubber tractor tread, the bogies or small supporting wheels over which the tread turns, and the fuel tanks and fuel load; 2. weight of gun or guns, ammunition, radio equipment; 3. crew—two, three, or four men with their side arms and personal equipment such as gas masks, head gear, radio phones, packs, etc. (the Germans place this at 220 pounds per man); 4. weight of armor.

The over-all gross weight of any tank, the Germans say, should be determined by the area of the tread that is in contact with the ground when the tank is standing at rest on level ground. Traction, speed, maneuverability are factors affected by the weight on this tread, and the maximum that should be allowed is .5 kilogram per square centimeter of tread. This is approximately six pounds for each square inch of tread. The engineers who set this limit were not interested in the total area of the tread, but only the area in contact with the ground.

By this standard if the grounded tread of a tank is 10 feet long and one foot wide, this would allow the total weight of the completed tank to be just over 8½ tons. This is computed by taking the total area of the track in contact with the ground—20 square feet, since there are two tracks to each tank. Twenty square feet equals 2,880 square inches, which at six pounds an inch allows 17,280 pounds of weight. A 15½ ton tank would need tracks 12 feet long by 18 inches broad; a 28 tonner, the size of America's new medium tanks, needs treads 21 feet 6 inches long by 18 inches broad.

It is, the writer explained in Die Technische Krieg, perfectly possible to put more than six pounds of weight per square inch of grounded tread, but this would be overloading the vehicle. It would not operate efficiently on wet ground or climb as steeply over obstacles when only a small portion of its normal grounded area is in contact with a traction surface. The six pound per square inch limit is far lighter than that for a motor car, but a tank is expected to negotiate terrain that would be impossible for any car to cross.

Of all the items comprising a tank the armor is the only one subject to adjustment. The others, including crew, chassis, and desired armament, are musts. When they have been totaled and this sum subtracted from the allowable weight of the tank, the remainder is the weight available for armor protection. Because the allowable armor weight in a tank will be a small proportion of the total weight, tank design should have at all times the goal of keeping the finished product as light as possible to leave the minimum area for front, back, and side armor plate.

• • •

The ideal tank, the German writers say, is one that has a deck flush with the running gear and only requires a low, completely armored, full-turning gun turret set on top. By keeping the main body of the tank to the level or near level of the running gear and bogies, this essential side machinery can be utilized to give a large amount of protection along each side. It is thus possible to cut down on the thickness of armor behind the bogies, springs, shock absorbers, and treads.

Assume that a total weight of 10 tons is available for armor, of which two tons are required for the turret. This leaves eight tons for front, sides, and rear. In a tank measuring five feet wide between the treads, and 15 feet long, with a thin wedge front and rear two feet deep and the main section three feet six inches deep, there is a surface of 126 square feet to armor.

This would allow the use of considerably thicker armor than would a tank that had a deep front and rear of possibly six feet, and was seven feet high at a maximum point and 15 feet long. In this case the total area requiring armor would be 258 square feet. The first tank therefore would have enough armor to give more than twice the thickness that the latter tank would have.

In addition to the armor thickness, another highly important point in tank design is that of balance. High, slab-sided tanks are usually topheavy, while low, squat tanks can hardly be turned over, no matter how they are abused in driving over obstacles, or wallowing thru ditches and bogs.

The new American tanks, just now coming into service with tank divisions, have shown topheavy tendencies. Reports from most of the training camps where men are operating these vehicles show that there have been a large number of instances in which they have turned over, injuring their crews and putting themselves completely out of action. In wartime such incidents would cost the crew their tank and in all likelihood their lives. The United States should not be building topheavy tanks.

The Germans also studied the kind of armor a tank should carry. It should not be too hard because this makes the metal brittle and it thus has a tendency to shatter when hit by high-velocity projectiles. It cannot be too soft because it would not then stop missiles effectively. And unlike naval armor plate, which has a hard outer surface backed by a thick fused springy softer steel to give body to the armor belt and help take up the shock of projectiles, tank armor plate must be toughened all the way thru.

In France I saw French tanks made with armor of cast steel. The turrets and body of these tanks were cast instead or made from rolled and case hardened materials. When war came German light cannon (5 centimeter, firing a 3.3 pound shell) easily holed French tanks with as much as 7 centimeters (2¾ inch) of armor.

The German tanks were armored with tough rolled Krupp tank plates. These are made of an alloy of chrome, nickel, molybdenite, wolfram, and steel. Its composition and treatment are intended to produce resilient toughness rather than a brittle hardness. And these Krupp plates were impervious to projectiles of French and British two pounder guns. Shells from 37 millimeter guns firing 1.1 pound shells glanced off them like rain.

As for armament of tanks, the Germans appear to be far ahead of the rest of the world. Tests made in 1937 and 1938 showed that it was easy to provide armor that would turn 37 millimeter shells which were considered standard anti-tank guns. Consequently the Germans went to heavier guns immediately, and by the time they made their campaign in the summer of 1940 their tanks were fitted with several types of heavy weapons specially designed for fighting other tanks.

• • •

These included in caliber 5 cm. (1.97 inch) firing a 3.3 pound shell; 77 mm. (3.03 inch) firing a 15 pound shell) 88 millimeters (almost 3½ inch) firing a 19 pound shell; up to a 150 millimeter gun (5.9 inches) firing a 90 pound shell. In between was the 105 millimeter gun (4.13 inches) firing a 31 pound shell. These guns were mounted in full swiveling turrets on various types of heavy tanks intended for breaking thru well established defense lines and for giving battle to the heaviest British, French, or Belgian tanks encountered.

The heaviest type of American tanks now in quantity production are fitted with a modernized version of the 75 mm. gun of 1914-'18 days. While this modern gun has a higher velocity than the old fieldpiece, it is not a high-velocity weapon when compared with naval guns that also shoot against armor plate. Unless the American tank 75s have velocities comparable with naval guns they will not be effective against tank armor.

Photographs of armor plate used in these tests were reproduced in the book Technical War. These showed that a plate which caught and held a 37 millimeter shell after partial

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

THERE IS ONE argument in the world of dogs which seems to continue year after year. That's the question of whether cross-bred dogs are more intelligent than pure-breds. We have heard and taken part in this never-ending debate many times. No matter where you go, you'll find this myth about the superior brain power of the cross-bred.

Quite recently some new and interesting facts have been brought to light about the intelligence of these groups. One of the European nations participating in the present war has made careful tests of mongrels as well as many breeds of pure-bred dogs to determine their value for military uses. The tests prove the superiority of the pure-bred over the mongrel in intelligence, stamina, and tractability.

The dog authorities of this European nation gave canine intelligence tests to more than 5,000 mongrels and 7,000 German shepherds as well as a number of other breeds. The mongrels were at the bottom of the list in the analysis of intelligence and usefulness.

The complete table showing the breeds and number of dogs tested and the percentage found fit for army service is as follows:

	Number tested	Fit for service
Airedale terrier	276	32%
Boxer	286	32%
Doberman pinscher	196	32%
Giant schnauzer	74	28%
German shepherd	7,488	22%
Mongrels	5,305	10%

The report of the tests by army officers stated in part that the above list proves clearly that the usefulness of dogs is considerably greater in breeds which for many generations have been used for performing various jobs in aiding their masters. The Airedale, for example, has been a working terrier and has learned to obey commands and work for its master. The German shepherd is a member of the herding group of dogs which for centuries have aided their masters in the field. In the last war it was used for Red Cross work on the battlefields, and now is doing a splendid service in guiding the blind.

Such a pure-bred breed naturally is more tractable than a mongrel of uncertain parentage which has no working background. The other three breeds tested (Doberman pinscher, giant schnauzer, and boxer) are workers which have been used primarily for police and protection duty here and abroad.

Early in the present war there was agitation to eliminate pet dogs in England and other countries to conserve food supplies. Now the pendulum is swinging the other way and the English are encouraging dog ownership, especially among farmers. The British ministry of food has started a rat extermination campaign in which farm dogs are expected to help.

"Most of our native breeds," states the report, "have sporting instincts which make them capable of warring on rats and other farm pests.

"Rats eat $75,000,000 worth of our food each year, and in a single winter 100 rats in a wheat rick will destroy nearly a quarter of a ton of wheat. . . . In fact, a case has just been reported where a farmer was fined $250 for allowing rats to eat nearly 500 bushels of wheat, so our dogs have every opportunity of earning their keep."

Take Your Pictures on Paper

HAVE YOU ever tried taking pictures on paper instead of on film? It can be done, and it is a worth-while experiment for several reasons.

You have probably heard about the paper negative process used by many pictorialists to prepare strikingly different prints from ordinary negatives. The process permits an unusual amount of retouching, and a great variety of effects can be created in place of straight print.

By taking pictures on paper instead of on film you get a paper negative in place of a film negative, and you can get started on the paper negative process in an easy and simple way. But even if you don't plan to do a great deal of retouching and are not particularly interested in pictorial print control, it will be still worth while to try taking pictures on paper, because the paper is considerably cheaper than film and gives nice results.

Contrary to popular belief, photographic paper is fairly fast negative material. You won't have to expose all day to make a picture. If you use a fast bromide paper your exposures in bright daylight will range in the neighborhood of 1/5 or 1/10 sec. at a lens opening of f:4.5. Indoors you can make exposures of ½ sec. if you use a flood lamp or two for illumination. All of which goes to show you that many types of pictures can be taken on paper with the greatest of ease.

• • •

When your paper negative is developed you handle it like any other negative. You can use it for making either contact prints or enlargements. In both cases the printing light will have to penetrate the paper base. The fibers in this base will be printed along with the image on the paper negative, adding a slight pattern or texture effect to the picture. It is exactly this effect that many pictorialists seek when they turn to paper negatives.

Quiet subjects like this lake scene are easy to photograph on paper instead of on film. Fast bromide paper has plenty of speed to record outdoor subjects of this type at exposures of 1/5 or 1/10 sec.

As mentioned before, you should use the fast bromide papers. Select a single weight paper, and use a soft grade, because it reproduces a longer range of different tones than the harder grades. It is easiest to use the paper in cut film holders, but it can also be used in roll film cameras by cutting strips from large sheets and by fastening these to the backing paper of a roll film. The best results will be obtained with the larger camera sizes, because in enlargements from paper negatives the pattern of the paper base is also enlarged. If the blowup is too large this paper pattern can become disturbing.

When you develop your paper negative, remember that it is to be a negative, not a print. You should view it by transmitted light to judge its tone values. Use a soft working developer, and make your prints on soft paper.

After your paper negative is dry you can retouch it easily with a pencil or with charcoal. Place it face down on a retouching stand or on a sheet of glass with a light behind it and do your retouching on the back of the negative. It is very simple to darken light areas in the negative. If certain portions are too dark you can increase their light transmission considerably by rubbing a little oil on the paper. You must be careful when applying the oil, because the oiling can be easily overdone. However, mistakes can be corrected by removing the oil with benzine or carbon tetrachloride. If the entire negative is too dark, better make a new one instead of trying to oil the whole sheet of paper. It is next to impossible to do an even oiling job on a large sheet, and your final print will be spotty.

• • •

The paper negative is less transparent than film, and consequently your printing time, especially if you are making enlargements, will be relatively long. You can abbreviate it by substituting a flood lamp for your regular enlarging lamp. The paper negative has the advantage that it can stand a lot more heat than film.

Try this paper negative method. You will find it is amusingly different from straight photography.

THIS IS CAMP FORREST

PRESUMABLY every one in Illinois has heard of Camp Forrest, Tennessee, for it is there that most of the National Guard troops of their state are in training.

The camp lies just outside the sleepy little town of Tullahoma, which is 77 miles by road in a southeasterly direction from Nashville. It is located on a fairly flat stretch of ground, but around it on all sides the terrain is rolling. Underfoot is clay that turns into a sticky mud in rainy weather and forms an abundance of dust in dry weather. The land of the camp formerly was forested, but only a few straggling small trees remain. In preparing the camp for its soldier occupants countless numbers of stumps had to be pulled from the ground.

Camp Forrest has been constructed upon the site of Camp Peay, a former Tennessee National Guard training center named for Austin Peay, who served as governor of that state from 1924 to 1928. The present name of the camp was bestowed upon it last Jan. 24 by the war department in honor of Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest, a Civil war cavalry leader.

Considerable objection was raised to the naming of the camp for General Forrest on the grounds that, altho he had been a capable military commander, he nevertheless had been charged in some quarters with ruthlessness. Long has it been a disputed point among historians as to whether or not he was personally responsible for the Fort Pillow massacre. This was the alleged slaughter of Negro troops by Confederate soldiers April 12, 1864, after the fort on the Mississippi river had surrendered. General Forrest at one time was the head of the original Ku Klux Klan, a secret organization of reconstruction days, that had no connection, however, with the society of the same name of recent years.

Camp Forrest covers 80,000 acres if one takes into consideration its maneuvering grounds and its artillery ranges. Its parade ground, in the center of the camp, is two miles long and a quarter of a mile wide. Hundreds of stumps had to be pulled out of it to make it fit for parading.

Eighteen million dollars or more has been spent on the camp, which now quarters close to 30,000 officers and men. There are approximately 1,300 buildings on the camp grounds, including 408 barracks, 158 mess halls, 168 day halls, a score or more of administration buildings, and a 1,000-bed hospital. To provide water for the camp there are 86 miles of pipe. The water supply is drawn from the nearby Elk river.

A majority of the troops at Camp Forrest are of the 33d division, from Illinois. These are commanded by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, who also is camp commander. The 33d division, which is a part of the 7th corps, includes the 65th infantry brigade, made up of the 129th and 130th infantry regiments; the 66th infantry brigade, made up of the 131st and 132d infantry regiments; the 58th field artillery brigade, made up of the 122d, 123d, and 124th field artillery regiments; and other troops, such as military police, a signal company, and engineer, medical, and quartermaster regiments.

Also stationed at Camp Forrest, and a part of the 7th corps, are the 168th, 181st, and 191st field artillery regiments and the 107th cavalry regiment.

The 7th corps is a part of the 2d army, which has headquarters at Memphis, Tenn., and is commanded by Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, a strict disciplinarian, as can be vouched for by several hundred young soldiers who happened upon him while he was engaged in a round of golf.

The 7th corps is made up of the 27th, 33d, and 35th divisions. With the addition of the 5th and 6th divisions and 2d cavalry division it forms the 2d army. Troops of this army are scheduled for grand maneuvers and army games this month in Arkansas and Louisiana.

How Europe Builds Her Tanks

penetration also resisted the 75 mm. shell. The plate was partly penetrated by the 75 mm. shell, but the shell casing was not strong enough to withstand the shock and the majority of the shell was shattered outside.

While Germany and other European countries are specifying a full rotating turret for all heavy armament on tanks, the standard American tanks are carrying their 75 mm. cannon in virtually a fixed fitting. The American 75s have a horizontal traverse of only a few degrees. Once a tank is stopped the gun can be swung from side to side thru an arc of not more than 30 degrees. If a greater traverse is required the entire tank must be moved. The Germans need move only their turret to follow a moving target thru 360 degrees.

An American light tank, going into action ahead of infantry during maneuvers, shows how its high silhouette makes it stand out as target.

Almost all the shells used from tank guns are armor-piercing, with an explosive charge to shatter them once they have penetrated the armor of another tank. The Germans also use an incendiary shell which upon bursting inside an enemy tank throws a flaming chemical thruout the interior and causes fire that will drive out any of the crew unharmed by the shell burst. In German propaganda films of the campaigns in Poland and in France were scenes showing some of these incendiary shells causing fierce fires in enemy tanks.

It also became apparent from these same films that the Germans use tracers on shells of quite large guns which are firing at point-blank range. This provides the gun aimers with a reference trail and permits immediate correction of aim. In one of these films a scene taken from inside a German tank shows the muzzle of a 75 millimeter gun on the tank firing at range of a few hundred yards at a French tank. The tracer shells were easy to follow and when after two shots the gunners found the range the hits could be counted.

All the newer tanks are divided into compartments, exactly as a modern battleship is divided by bulkheads. The fuel and motor or motors are separated from the crew stations and operated by remote control. This is done to prevent fumes from the power plant from overpowering the men within the confined tank area, and also to prevent possible explosions of a mixture of gasoline or crude oil fumes that could be present within the tank if the motor compartment were not sealed off.

Because weight is such an important factor in an efficiently designed tank virtually all manufacturers today utilize airplane motors for tank power. The Germans are said to use both air-cooled and liquid-cooled aero engines; the British use Napier and Rolls engines in their tanks, and in the United States virtually all the tanks are using air-cooled radial aircraft motors. Some of our lighter tanks use 250 horse power nine cylinder Continental aircraft engines.

• • •

Heavier tanks in the 28 ton class are said to be using 450 horse power Wright nine cylinder air-cooled radials. The newer tanks are all using the nine cylinder Guiberson Diesel radial air-cooled aero motor, which has the advantage of using a crude oil rather than a high-test gasoline as fuel. Consequently the danger of firing the fuel by enemy shooting is less. The Diesel engine is delivering approximately 400 horse power.

The term lightning war has been used so much in connection with tank fighting that many persons have gained the idea that tanks move at high speeds. A few light machine-gun-carrying vehicles that roll on a tractor tread do move rapidly—up to 60 miles an hour over good roads or perfectly level fields. But these are the exception and your heavy tank, approaching 30 tons or more, travels only about a third as fast at its best speed.

In the war of 1914-'18 the tanks of that day moved only four miles an hour. A marching infantryman could often make better time on good roads because of breakdowns, tread failures, etc. But even those slow moving tanks could rattle, groan, thump, and smash their way over almost any obstacles and thru almost any kind of muck, mud, or shell holes.

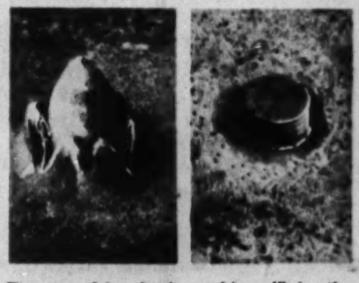
The modern heavy tank cruises at 15 miles an hour, over almost any kind of country. The medium tanks make a little better speed. The huge 50 and 60 ton defense-smashing tanks that broke the French lines at Sedan and bore the brunt of the battering advances in the Flanders fighting a year ago, and presumably now in Russia, are slower still. These monsters are said to roll at 10 miles an hour, carrying short-barreled howitzers up to 150 mm. and several 105 or 88 mm. guns.

These machines are primarily tank killers or fort smashers. Generally they are supported by cannon mounted on tractor-trucks. On their rolling treads these trucks keep up with the advance and are available either as anti-tank weapons or as anti-aircraft defenses for the big, slow moving tank killers which have no armament to fight off enemy aircraft or dive bombers.

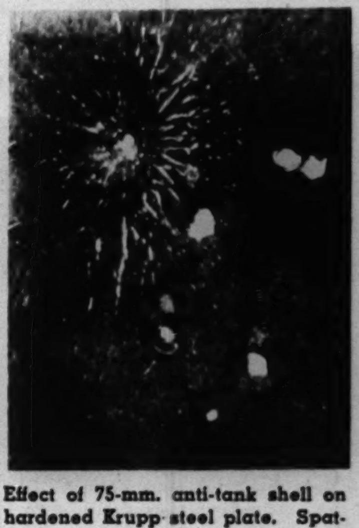
• • •

The Germans have several calibers of guns mounted on trucks—from 88 to 150 mm. The 88 mm. and 105 are high velocity weapons with a long barrel. Each is mounted so that it can fire at point-blank range against tanks, or it can be swung up to 85 degrees to take on enemy airplanes. With their high velocity these guns can shoot up to 30,000 feet. This same high velocity makes them deadly against even the most heavily armored tanks.

The weapon can be put into action in a very few seconds merely by switching to the desired ammunition—high explosive timed shells against aircraft or armor-piercing against tanks—and cranking the gun thru its arcs of traverse or elevation to point it as desired. It is not taken off the truck, and no time is needed to anchor trails or other bracing devices to the ground. Its ammunition is hauled along behind the main vehicle in a trailer.



Front and back view of insufficiently hardened tank armor plate pierced by anti-tank shell well made to prevent its breaking up on contact.



Effect of 75-mm. anti-tank shell on hardened Krupp steel plate. Spatter effect is from splinters of shattered shell which punctured armor but did not penetrate.

A second article on tank tactics as developed by the Germans and now adopted by American, British, and Russian forces will appear in an early issue.

Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, chief of German army, uses turret of heavy tank as speaking rostrum. Notice 150-mm. and 75-mm. guns mounted in turret, with heavy steel slab protecting gun port.

Don't Be Fat!

HERE'S THE MOST AMAZING WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT YOU'VE EVER READ ABOUT

No Strict Diet Lists; No Strenuous Exercises; No Distasteful Drugs

In every section of the country today, women have marveled at the wonders of a safe, easy reducing method—which requires no strict diet lists; no strenuous exercises; no drugs. Increases energy as weight goes down. It's the identical method Dr. Damrau of New York used in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, and was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month.

Unbelievably Easy To Follow

All you do is mix ¾ glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Then eat sensibly—which means you avoid overeating; thus reducing caloric intake considerably. Then this happens: First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire for fattening foods—but you needn't suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process not only aids nature in consuming excess fat but also increases your energy.

That is why weight is lost naturally; why you not only look better but actually feel better; have more energy.

Do This One Important Thing!

Be sure to use only genuine Welch's Grape Juice, selected by Dr. Damrau in his convincing test. Because Welch's is always full strength, it is delicious when diluted—very economical to use. Start this proved reducing method today and watch your energy go up as your weight goes down.

Sensational Facts About Amazing Welch Way To Reduce

Dr. Frederic Damrau of New York made a revealing test on a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed his instructions implicitly. By following this simple, pleasant Welch way to reduce, these people lost an average of 7 pounds per month. Chart below shows actual weight loss registered.

I'm on my way to SUNBURN Relief

Wise girl! LINIT (Starch from Corn) is an inexpensive, effective demulcent. The bland, milk-like water of the LINIT Bath helps to soothe sun-seared skin and to bring quick relief that's oh, so welcome. Let your sunburned skin enjoy this inexpensive luxury! Swish a cupful or more of LINIT in a tub of tepid water. Relax while your burned body is comforted. When you pat yourself dry, a misty "veil" of LINIT remains on your skin to help allay inflammation, and to prevent further irritation.

The LINIT Face Mask soothes, refreshes complexions burned by sun or wind; makes your skin feel softer, smoother, lovelier. Directions on every package.

VITAMIN CHART
Sunkist

Plan the vitamins into your meals

Get them from delicious oranges and other appetizing foods—the natural way!

FOR A HEAD START on your vitamins, begin at breakfast with fresh California orange juice in eight-ounce glasses!

There's all the vitamin C your family needs for abounding health. There, also, are valuable amounts of vitamins A, B_1 and G; calcium, and other essential minerals.

Then get further supplies of these from a variety of good things to eat. For all the vitamins are found in foods—all are obtainable in three meals a day.

IT'S IMPORTANT to have plenty of vitamin C every day, because your body can't store it. It is rapidly lost in open cooking. But you get it fresh in orange juice—an excellent, natural source!

APPETIZING dairy products, eggs, meats, whole-grain cereals, fruits and vegetables are foods you should use liberally—to supplement the vitamins and minerals of oranges.

FOR VARIETY you can get the daily equivalent of your orange juice in refreshing fruit cups, salads and desserts. Mail the coupon for the free booklet of over one hundred recipes.

ASK YOUR DEALER for trademarked Sunkist Oranges. They are the finest produced by 14,000 cooperating growers in California and Arizona. Best for Juice—and Every use!

Prehistoric Glories of Maya-land

THE TEMPLE OF WARRIORS, one of the most remarkable of Mayan ruins in Yucatan, Mexico, where all the photos on this page were taken by David D. Duncan of Miami. The temple, flanked on one side by a court of a thousand columns, rises abruptly from the jungle.

THE CASTILLO, or pyramid, at Chichen Itza, nearly a hundred feet high and ascended by ninety-two steps. Within it is a smaller temple, over which the exterior was built.

Ry-Krisp
Ry-Krisp
Enjoy Delicious Ry-Krisp
as bread at every meal

Famous "Judge of Beauty" tells why men prefer women with a slim, youthful figure

"It isn't simply that a slim, well-formed woman is more alluring, more graceful and can dress more attractively. It goes deeper than that. When a woman keeps herself trim and slender, it means she has pride, that she isn't letting herself go, that she's young mentally as well as physically. Usually she has more sparkle, more zest for life, too. When being slim means so much and when the Ry-Krisp plan makes reducing so easy, I can't see why any normal woman need be fat and unattractive."

John Robert Powers

John Robert Powers, famous the nation over for the lovely models he has discovered and trained.

Her Figure Is Her Fortune

Slim, attractive Anne Scott is one of the famous Powers' models. She weighs 115 pounds. Her measurements are:

Height 5' 8"
Bust 34"
Waist 25"
Hips 35"
Thighs 19"

Try the Ry-Krisp plan if you want a slim, attractive figure.

Free Reducing Booklet

Gives Ry-Krisp plan for losing about 7 pounds a month. Just send 1c postcard, stating if book is for man or woman. Address Ry-Krisp, 745G Checkerboard Sq., St. Louis, Mo.

Want People to Sing Your Praises? Just Serve Delicious New Ry-Krisp

Appetites perk up — praise comes quickly—when new Ry-Krisp is served. Always fresh and crisp, these tempting golden brown wafers have a rich rye flavor that appeals to the fussiest appetite. Each new Ry-Krisp wafer is scored so that it breaks easily into two handy squares—just the right size for preparing appetizers.

Naturally new Ry-Krisp is popular in reducing diets because each wafer has only 23 calories. But it's every bit as popular with people who have no figure worries. Grand with soups, salads, cheese, spreads . . . a delicious every-meal bread. Wholesome, too. Supplies vitamin B_1, and bulk to help keep you regular. Enjoy it soon.

Ry-Krisp Salad Plate...Tomato aspic molded in individual rings, the centers filled with egg salad. Slices of ready-to-eat sausage, ham, tongue or other meat spread with soft cheese, then rolled and held together with toothpicks...served with toasted Ry-Krisp wafers.

AND YOU HEARD THE BIG FELLOW CALL THE OTHER ONE "J.C.", EH?
THAT'S RIGHT!
OKAY, MISTER, LET ME HAVE YOUR WORK CLOTHES. I'M GOING DOWN ON THE SCAFFOLDING WITH YOUR PARTNER.
I'M GOING TO HAVE A LOOK INTO THIS BIG FELLOW'S OFFICE.
HE'S LOCATED ON THE NINTH FLOOR. OKAY, HERE GOES!
I TOLD YOU THOSE BUILDING CLEANERS SAW TOO MUCH. THEY'RE UP ON THE ROOF NOW WITH A COUPLE OF COPS.
OKAY, GET GOING. YOU KNOW WHAT TO DO!
WE'RE WORKING JUST BELOW THE NINTH-FLOOR WINDOWS NOW, SO IT WILL BE PERFECTLY NATURAL FOR US TO STOP THERE.
OKAY, COPPER, DON'T MOVE — AND REACH FOR THE SKY!
HERE, WE ARE, MR. TRACY. THAT'S THE BIG FELLOW IN THERE NOW.

SECURITY—INDEPENDENCE IN THIS CAMAY-OXYDOL CONTEST

GRAND PRIZE $30.00 A WEEK FOR LIFE

Other Big Cash Prizes Every Week from August 3 to September 13

Each Week for 6 Weeks { 1..$1,000.00 Bill
25..$100.00 Bills

JUST WRITE A LAST LINE FOR THIS JINGLE!

Safe Oxydol washes clothes white
Mild Camay helps keep your skin right
Don't take it from me
Use both and you'll see

Write out your last line and send it together with 1 Camay wrapper and 1 Oxydol box-top, any size, (or facsimiles), to Camay-Oxydol Dept. 1, Box 25, Cincinnati, Ohio. Print your name and address.

Security, Independence, Freedom from Money Worries

—the means to enjoy life as you've dreamed of it. $30.00 every week, a "pay check" for the rest of your life, beginning October 15, 1941, guaranteed by The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee. Or you may choose $25,000.00 in one lump sum. No letter to write! Just write a last line for the jingle above, and you may win.

Lots of Big Money Prizes Every Week for 6 Weeks

Besides the grand prize of $30.00 a week for life, there are 26 other big cash prizes each week: A crisp $1,000 bill and 25 one hundred dollar bills, awarded every week for 6 weeks! You can see—the more entries you send, the more opportunities you have to win one of the weekly cash prizes. At the end of the contest, one of the weekly cash prize winners gets the grand prize.

No Letter to Write!

So easy to enter! All you do is supply a last line for the jingle above and send it in with an Oxydol box-top and a Camay wrapper (or facsimiles.) You can get handy entry blanks at your dealer's or use a plain sheet of paper, if you prefer.

Get in on This Record Contest

Think what it will mean to win such a big, valuable grand prize—made possible only because two great soaps join forces. So try for that lifetime income of $30.00 every week. It means security, luxuries, independence—and you may be the winner.

Winners Announced on Radio—"Guiding Light" and "Woman in White" programs. See your local newspaper for time and stations.

FREE $30 A WEEK FOR LIFE!
OXYDOL

Hints on How to Win!

Your last line may be about Camay or Oxydol, or both, or neither.

A trial of Oxydol and Camay, as these soaps are improved today may suggest many last lines. That is one reason for the contest—to induce you to try these better soaps.

In your washer, Oxydol's the soap that gets clothes snowy white with maximum speed!

In tub, washer or dishpan, gives up to 3 times the suds of many soaps, cup for cup, and is kinder to hands than a whole group of well-known washday soaps, tested repeatedly. Amazingly "sneeze-proof," too—with no loss of sudsing speed, washing performance or mildness.

Today's Camay—with its greater mildness—is an important help to every woman who wants her skin to be lovely.

For Camay is milder by actual recorded test—in tests against ten other popular beauty soaps, Camay was milder than any of them. So let this milder Camay help you to a lovelier skin.

Get the handy entry blank from your dealer, or use a plain sheet of paper.

FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE RULES

1. Print or write plainly your "last line" for the Camay-Oxydol jingle, using sufficient words to complete it. Your last line may contain any idea you think completes the thought of the jingle, but the last word should rhyme with "white" and "right." You can get the handy entry blank from your dealer, or write on one side of a sheet of paper. Print plainly your name and address.

2. Mail to Camay-Oxydol, Dept. 1, Box 25, Cincinnati, O. You can enter each contest as often as you like, but each entry must be accompanied by 1 Oxydol box-top, any size, and 1 Camay wrapper (or facsimiles).

3. There will be six weekly contests, each with a separate list of prizes. Opening and closing dates:

CONTEST	OPENS	CLOSES
First	NOW	Aug. 9
Second	Aug. 10	Aug. 16
Third	Aug. 17	Aug. 23
Fourth	Aug. 24	Aug. 30
Fifth	Aug. 31	Sept. 6
Sixth	Sept. 7	Sept. 13

4. Cash prizes in each weekly contest are one $1,000 bill and twenty-five $100 bills. The winner of the grand prize of $30.00 a week for life (to be selected from the winners of the $1,000 weekly prizes) will receive an annuity policy worth $30.00 a week ($1,560 per year). This policy will be issued by The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee and paid for by Procter & Gamble. The grand prize winner may take $25,000 cash instead of $30.00 a week for life.

5. Entries received before Saturday, August 9, will be entered in the first week's contest. Thereafter entries will be entered in each week's contest as received. Entries for the final contest must be postmarked before midnight, September 13, 1941, and must be received by September 26, 1941.

6. Entries will be judged for originality, suitability, and aptness of thought. The judges' decisions will be final. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in case of ties. No entries will be returned. Entries, contents, and ideas therein become the property of Procter & Gamble.

7. Any resident over 18 years of age of continental United States, Hawaii, or the Dominion of Canada may compete except employees of Procter & Gamble, their advertising agencies, and their families. Contests subject to all federal, state, and Dominion regulations.

8. The grand prize winner and the winners of the final weekly contest will be announced on or about October 6 on the following network radio programs: Oxydol's "Woman in White" and Camay's "Guiding Light." Winners of weekly prizes will be announced approximately two weeks after the close of each contest. All winners will be notified by mail. A complete list of winners will be available after October 13.

HEY, YOU CHICKS! AIR RAID SIREN! YOU MUST HAVE BEEN DOING SOME TALL GABBING NOT TO HEAR THAT!
THIS IS A BREAK! WHEN THEY GO TO THE SHELTER, I CAN SLIP OUT... THEY'LL NEVER KNOW I HEARD A THING!
WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOU TWO GALS? DON'T TELL ME YOU'RE SCARED SILENT BY A LITTLE OL' BOMB RAID! HIYA, TERRY!
HI, DUDE!
WHAM! MUST HAVE GOT THE POWER PLANT! THAT AUXILIARY GENERATOR SHOULD COME ON IN A MINUTE OR TWO!

UNCLE SAM TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON IMPORTANCE OF WHOLE WHEAT FOR YOU AND YOUR FAMILY!

Uncle Sam wants civilians as well as Army to be properly fed. More nourishing diets, especially for modest income families were held to be a national need at the recent National Nutrition Conference For Defense. Leading authorities have long recommended whole wheat breakfast cereals—for their wealth of energy, minerals and precious vitamin B_1. Shredded Ralston is such a cereal... nourishing whole wheat... ready-to-eat... in the convenient bite size... with a truly delicious flavor! And Shredded Ralston is surprisingly economical, costing less per ounce than most nationally advertised ready-to-eat cereals—only half as much as some!

Something New in Appetizers and Soup Croutons—Shredded Ralston, Buttered and Salted!

When served like salted nuts, Shredded Ralston adds to enjoyment of fruit or tomato juice and other beverages. So delicious, too, in soups. Marvelously easy to prepare.

RECIPE: Melt ½ cup butter in pan. Add contents of 1 package Shredded Ralston and 1½ teaspoons salt. Heat thoroughly, stirring constantly, several minutes. Makes 6 cups.

THE BIG DAY OF THE AERO MODEL MEET ARRIVES-
HOP RIGHT IN, TOMMY- WE'RE GOING TO DRIVE YOU TO THE FAIR GROUNDS-THAT SURE IS NICE OF YOU FOLKS TO DO THAT FOR ME-
$200.00 GRAND PRIZE
ARE YOU POSITIVE THAT CONTRAPTION IS GOING TO WIN THAT $200.00 PRIZE, TOMMY?
OH, YES, MRS. GREEDY- I JUST KNOW IT WILL-
AT THE FAIR GROUNDS-
HIS NAME IS TOMMY REED- BUT YOU CAN MAKE THE CHECK OUT IN MY NAME WHEN HE WINS- HE'S MY WARD
WHERE CAN TIM BE? HE PROMISED TO MEET ME HERE-
LADIES AND GENTLEMEN! HERE THEY ARE- THE PROOF OF AMERICA'S BUDDING AERONAUTIC GENIUSES- THESE YOUNGSTERS WHO WILL ONE DAY BE OUR GUARANTEE OF SECURITY-
THEY'RE GOING TO START, MAW-
SO LITTLE BRITTLE LEGS THINKS HE'S GONNA WIN- HA! HA!
-SECURITY OF OUR COUNTRY'S DEFENSE WHEN DANGER THREATENS- AND SECURITY OF COMMERCIAL PROGRESS IN TIMES OF PEACE- WE WILL NOW SEE THE RESULTS OF THEIR EFFORTS, WHICH CLOSELY RESEMBLE THE RESULTS OF THEIR LARGER COUNTERPARTS IN DESIGN AND WORKMANSHIP- AS WELL AS THE INNOVATIONS THESE BOYS HAVE INTRODUCED-LATER
-AND NOW, FOLKS- WE HAVE THE LAST CONTESTANT- THE MODEL BUILT BY TOMMY REED-
I WONDER WHERE TIM COULD BE-
THERE SHE GOES- HEADING INTO A BEAUTIFUL RISING SPIRAL!
I NEVER THOUGHT TIM WOULD FAIL ME-
LOOK! THERE'S TIM- HE'S BEEN HIDING IN THE FUSELAGE ALL THE TIME-
WHAT'S HAPPENED? SHE'S LOSING ALTITUDE!

BRENDA STARR REPORTER
By Dale Messick
BRENDA TELLS HER STORY
I-A-ER—WELL, I GUESS MY FACE IS A LITTLE RED .... OR SHOULD BE .....
YOU SEE I WAS ONE OF THE REPORTERS WHOM DETECTIVE TRAVERTS JR. HAD LOOKING FOR SPIES
I'LL HAVE TO ADMIT HE HAD ME FOOLED AT FIRST.....
TELL EVERYONE HOW YOU ALONE DISCOVERED I WAS NOT THE REAL DETECTIVE
WELL, THE DAY I WENT TO THE HOSPITAL TO INTERVIEW THE SUPPOSEDLY REAL DETECTIVE, I SPENT THE MORNING OF THAT DAY IN THE MORGUE * AT THE PAPER CENSORED
* MORGUE: PICTURE FILE
PORING OVER EVERYTHING I COULD FIND ABOUT THE DETECTIVE STUDYING HIS PICTURES, HIS CLOTHES, AND, IN PARTICULAR THE UNUSUAL PIPE HE SMOKED.....
THIS PIPE HAD BEEN GIVEN TO THE DETECTIVE BY KING LEO OF TAZMANIA HE WAS VERY PROUD OF IT AND CARRIED IT WITH HIM ALWAYS....
A MOOSE WAS CARVED ON THE IVORY BOWL OF THE PIPE. THESE DETAILS WERE CLEAR IN MY MIND.........
AS I ENTERED HIS ROOM AT THE HOSPITAL, HE WAS SMOKING THE FAMOUS PIPE..., NATURALLY, I LOOKED CLOSELY AT IT AS I TALKED WITH HIM ....
SUDDENLY I REALIZED IT WAS NOT THE SAME PIPE, BECAUSE THE CARVING ON THE BOWL WAS NOT A MOOSE....... BUT A REINDEER
MY FATHER HAD REFUSED TO PART WITH HIS PIPE, SO I HAD TO FIND ANOTHER ONE WHICH I THOUGHT WAS A CLOSE ENOUGH DUPLICATE....
HOWEVER, NOT CLOSE ENOUGH FOR BRENDA STARR'S EAGLE EYE .... GO ON, TELL WHAT HAPPENED NEXT......
I BECAME SUSPICIOUS AND WAS CONVINCED HE WAS NOT THE REAL TRAVERTS
IMPULSIVELY, I SPRANG FORWARD! LIKE THIS .... AND PULLED HIS NECK BRACE OFF ......
EEEEEEK.
ONLY STARR WOULD DO A THING LIKE THAT!
Copyright, 1941, by The Chicago Tribune.
DON'T BE ALARMED! IT WAS MY FATHER WHO HAD THE BROKEN NECK.... NOT I. AND NOW, I'M ASKING ALL PRESENT HERE TONIGHT IF YOU THINK THAT I AM QUALIFIED TO TAKE MY FATHER'S PLACE AS A DETECTIVE?
WHO'S ALLRIGHT?
TRAVERTS, JR.
COME ON, EVERYONE, THREE CHEERS!
HURRAH!
AND JUST SUPPOSING, BRENDA, YOU HAD BEEN MISTAKEN AND PULLED THE NECK BRACE OFF THE OLD BOY?
YES I'VE SHUDDERED ABOUT THAT SINCE, TOM

WE'LL HAVE TO KEEP OUR EYE ON JUDY.
THAT'S EASY, SKEEZIX.
YOU DON'T NEED TO WATCH ME.
YOU KNOW, NINA, I'M IN A RUT. HOW CAN A FELLA PLAN FOR THE FUTURE IF HE CAN'T SEE ANY FUTURE!
YOU ARE YOUNG AND SPRY. PLENTY CAN HAPPEN EVEN YET.
WE'RE COMING, JUDY.
WHAT ON EARTH HAPPENED, JUDY!
I REACHED TOO FAR AN FELL IN!
NEVER MIND, WE'LL HANG YOUR CLOTHES UP TO DRY.
I CAN SUPPORT MYSELF BUT THAT'S ALL. I'VE BEEN WORKING TWO YEARS. I HOPED I'D BE MAKING MORE MONEY.
I HAVEN'T EVEN SUPPORTED MYSELF BUT FROM NOW ON I'M GOING TO, SKEEZIX.
THERE SHE GOES AGAIN!
ARE YOU HURT, JUDY!
IT HURTS ALL OVER BUT NOT VERY MUCH ANY ONE PLACE.
IT JUST JOLTED YOU A BIT.
YOU'LL BE ALL RIGHT, JUDY.
IT LOOKS AS IF WE'D HAVE TO CONSIDER JUDY'S PRESENT INSTEAD OF OUR FUTURE, NINA.
GOODY! I'M GOING TO GET A PRESENT!

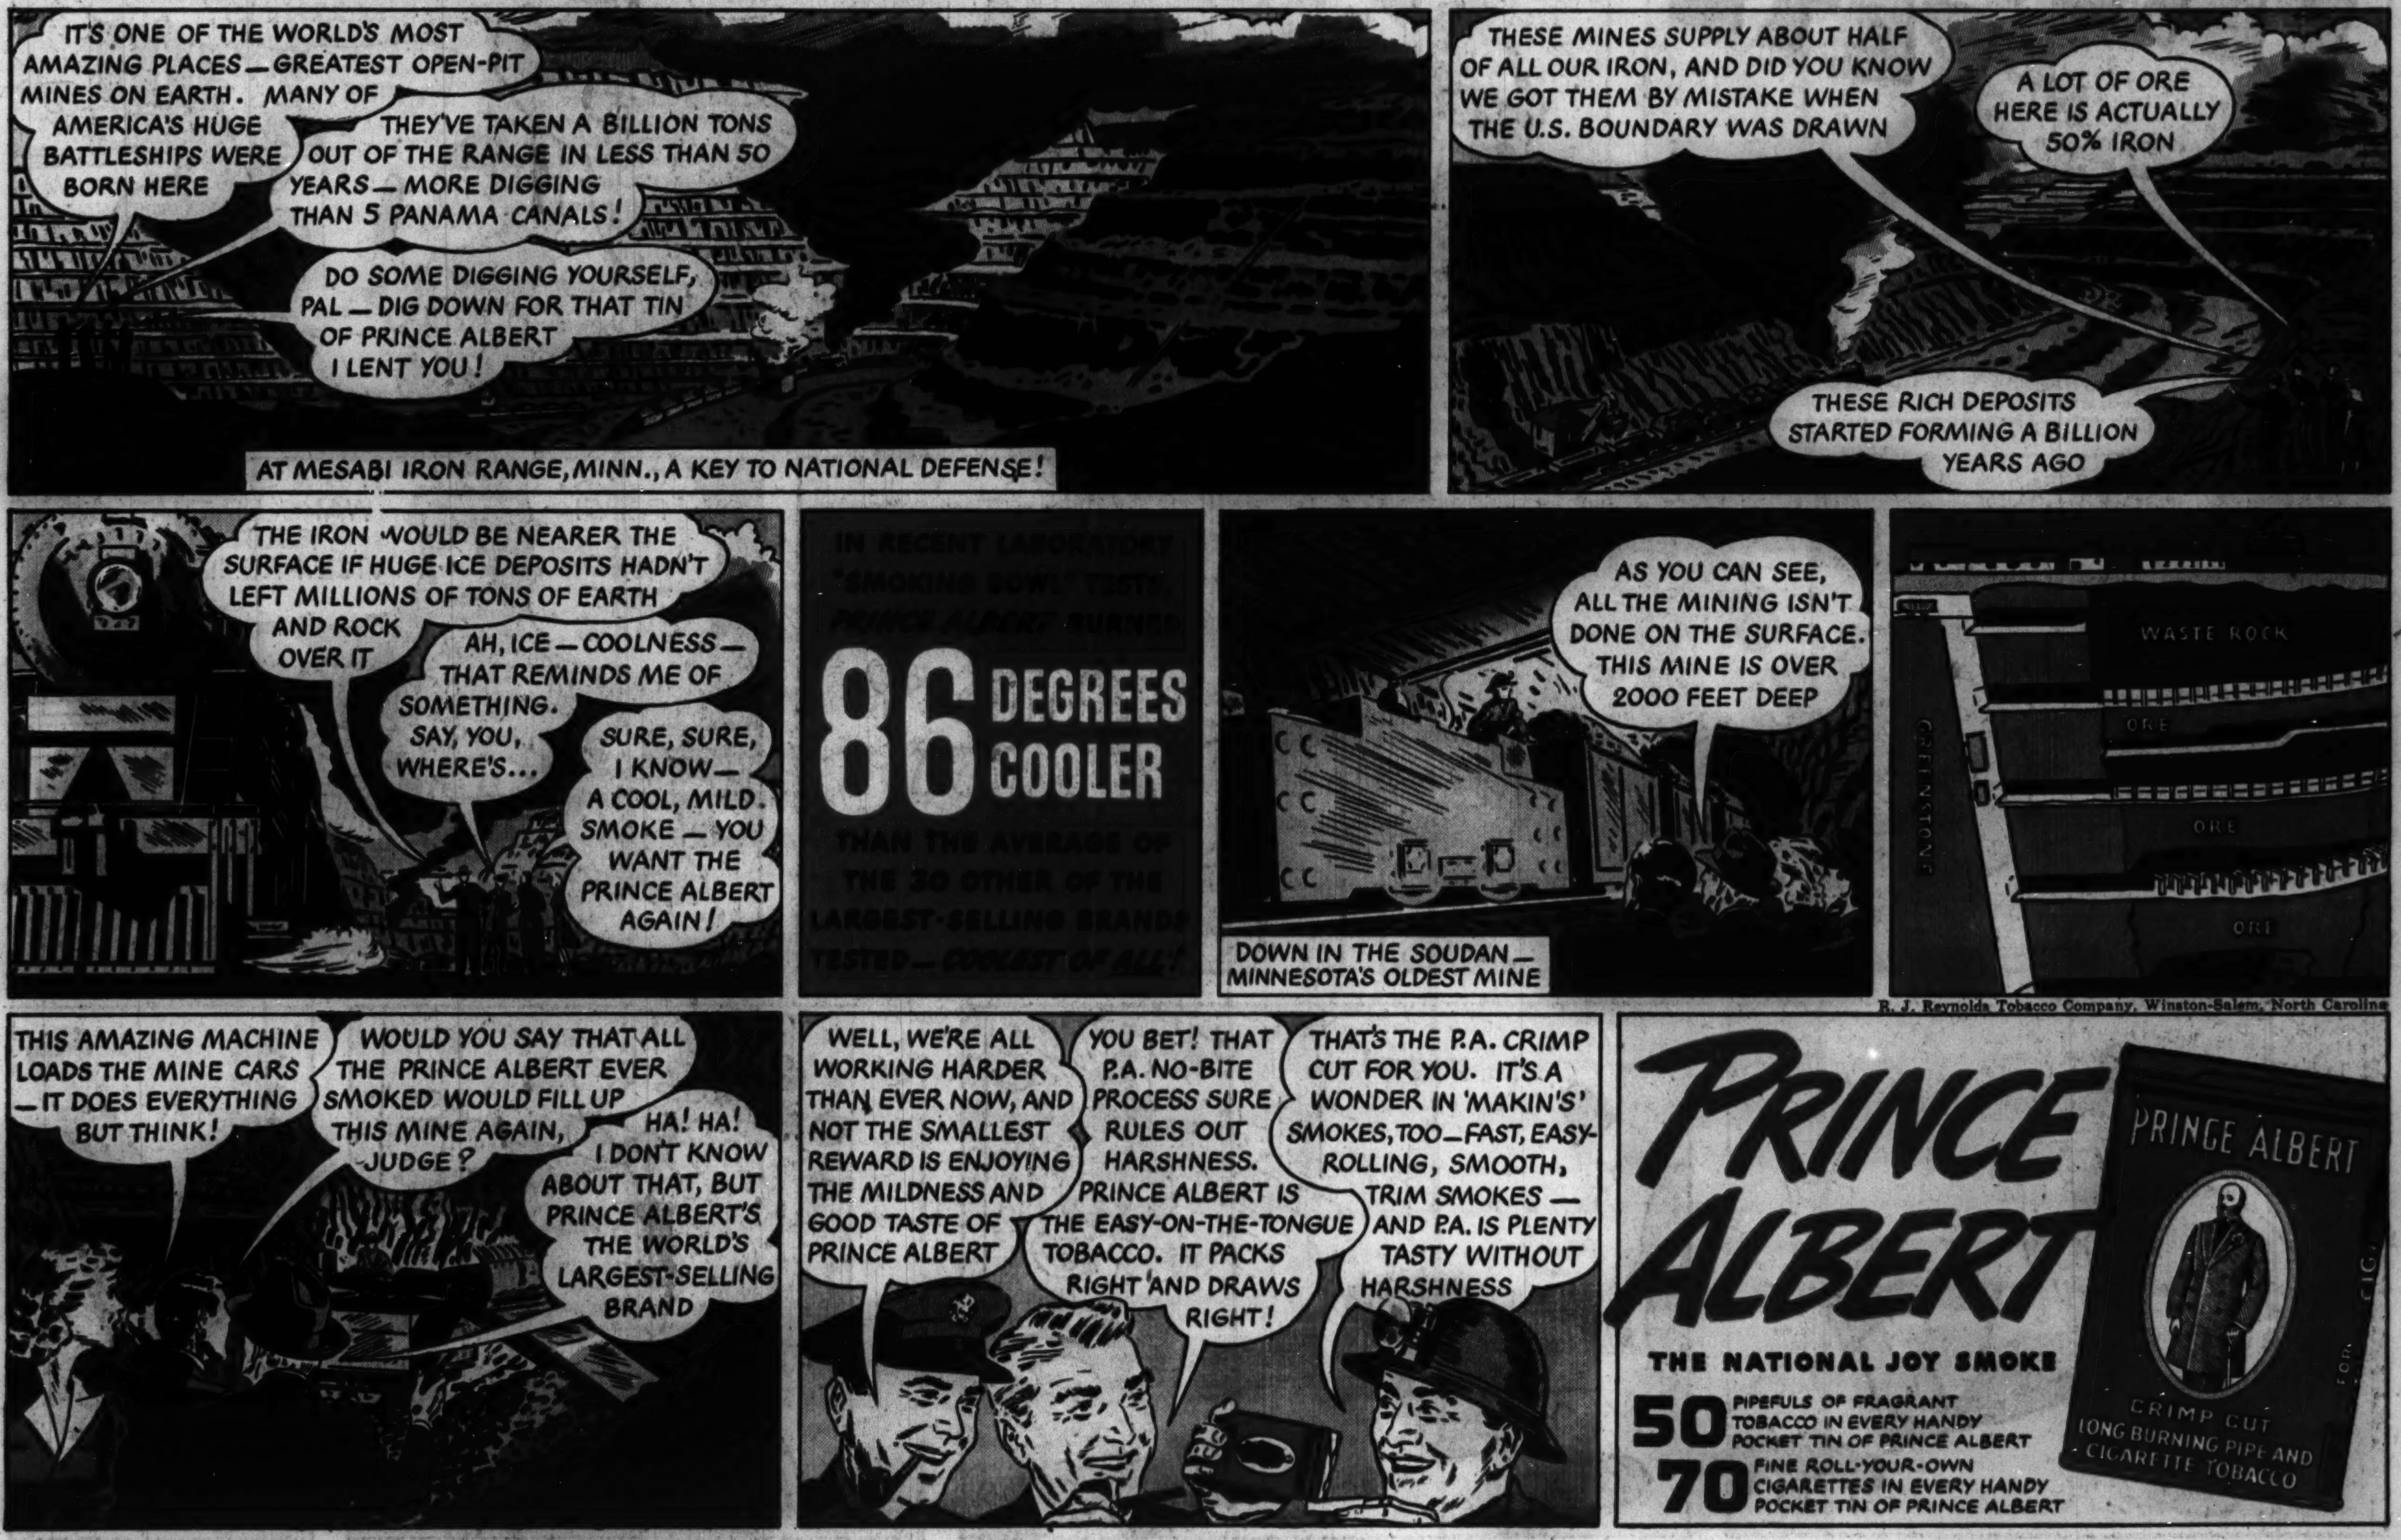
WONDERS OF AMERICA — World's Most Spectacular Mine



IT'S ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST AMAZING PLACES—GREATEST OPEN-PIT MINES ON EARTH. MANY OF AMERICA'S HUGE BATTLESHIPS WERE BORN HERE
THEY'VE TAKEN A BILLION TONS OUT OF THE RANGE IN LESS THAN 50 YEARS—MORE DIGGING THAN 5 PANAMA CANALS!
DO SOME DIGGING YOURSELF, PAL—DIG DOWN FOR THAT TIN OF PRINCE ALBERT I LENT YOU!
AT MESABI IRON RANGE, MINN., A KEY TO NATIONAL DEFENSE!
THESE MINES SUPPLY ABOUT HALF OF ALL OUR IRON, AND DID YOU KNOW WE GOT THEM BY MISTAKE WHEN THE U.S. BOUNDARY WAS DRAWN
A LOT OF ORE HERE IS ACTUALLY 50% IRON
THESE RICH DEPOSITS STARTED FORMING A BILLION YEARS AGO
THE IRON WOULD BE NEARER THE SURFACE IF HUGE ICE DEPOSITS HADN'T LEFT MILLIONS OF TONS OF EARTH AND ROCK OVER IT
AH, ICE—COOLNESS—THAT REMINDS ME OF SOMETHING. SAY, YOU, WHERE'S...
SURE, SURE, I KNOW—A COOL, MILD SMOKE—YOU WANT THE PRINCE ALBERT AGAIN!
IN RECENT LABORATORY "SMOKING BOWL" TESTS, PRINCE ALBERT BURNED 86 DEGREES COOLER THAN THE AVERAGE OF THE 30 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS TESTED—COOLEST OF ALL!
AS YOU CAN SEE, ALL THE MINING ISN'T DONE ON THE SURFACE. THIS MINE IS OVER 2000 FEET DEEP DOWN IN THE SOUDAN—MINNESOTA'S OLDEST MINE WASTE ROCK
GREENSTONE
ORE
ORE
ORE
THIS AMAZING MACHINE LOADS THE MINE CARS—IT DOES EVERYTHING BUT THINK!
WOULD YOU SAY THAT ALL THE PRINCE ALBERT EVER SMOKED WOULD FILL UP THIS MINE AGAIN, JUDGE?
HA! HA! I DON'T KNOW ABOUT THAT, BUT PRINCE ALBERT'S THE WORLD'S LARGEST-SELLING BRAND
WELL, WE'RE ALL WORKING HARDER THAN EVER NOW, AND NOT THE SMALLEST REWARD IS ENJOYING THE MILDNESS AND GOOD TASTE OF PRINCE ALBERT
YOU BET! THAT P.A. NO-BITE PROCESS SURE RULES OUT HARSHNESS. PRINCE ALBERT IS THE EASY-ON-THE-TONGUE TOBACCO. IT PACKS RIGHT AND DRAWS RIGHT!
THAT'S THE P.A. CRIMP CUT FOR YOU. IT'S A WONDER IN 'MAKIN'S' SMOKES, TOO—FAST, EASY-ROLLING, SMOOTH, TRIM SMOKES—AND P.A. IS PLENTY TASTY WITHOUT HARSHNESS

Take It From The Rayon Experts, Lady, This Go-Gettin' Washday Soap Is "Rayon-Safe"!

Now, "Rayon-Safe" Super Suds Does Your Whole Wash—from Heavy Laundry to Dainty Rayons, Smart Cottons!

THE BARGAIN OF THE YEAR, ladies! Just like getting two soaps in one! Super Suds does your whole job on washday! It's "Rayon-Safe"!

GO-GETTIN' SUDS for tub or washer that soak even Deep Down Dirt out of grimy shirts and greasy work-clothes! Plentiful, rich suds that wash soil and perspiration quickly and safely out of your washable rayons. Super Suds does both!

YES, AMERICA'S FOREMOST RAYON EXPERTS, the Better Fabrics Testing Bureau, and the United States Testing Co., have hundreds of tests on record proving that Super Suds is "Rayon-Safe".

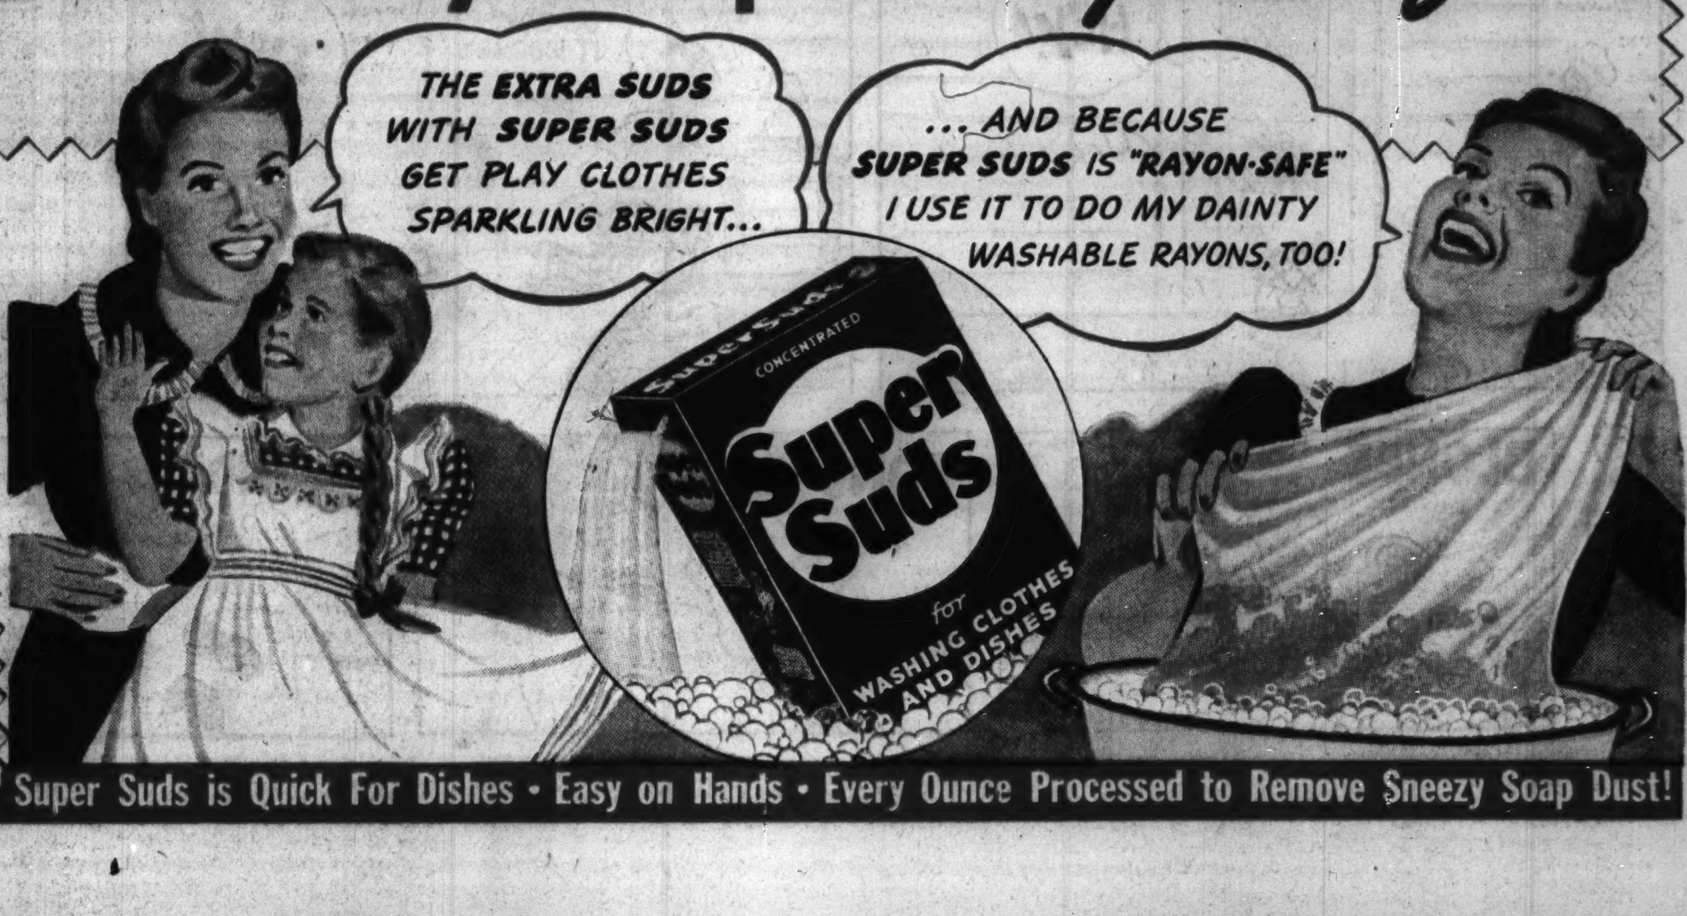
NOW! DO WASHINGS FASTER, EASIER, CHEAPER, because Super Suds does all the work of getting big family washings sparkling clean.

AND BECAUSE IT'S "RAYON-SAFE", Super Suds washes your dainty rayon garments clean and fragrant, with safety! Any color that's washable is safe in Super Suds.

EXTRA SUDS FOR DISHES TOO! Wonderful grease-cutting suds that make dishes and glassware sparkle. Buy Super Suds first thing to-morrow!

DIRECTIONS FOR WASHING RAYONS WITH "RAYON-SAFE" SUPER SUDS

1. Test a small patch in plain water for color-fastness. If color runs, it's not washable.
2. Wash rayons separately, by hand.
3. Use lukewarm suds as follows: Pour warm water over Super Suds, then add cold water to get lukewarm suds.
4. Do not soak rayons. Wash quickly and gently. Do not rub, wring or twist.
5. Rinse thoroughly, gently, in clean, lukewarm water. Roll in towel, but don't leave there.
6. Shape garment over ironing board before ironing.
7. Use a moderate iron.
8. Insist on a guarantee of washability when you buy rayons, or other synthetic fabrics.



THE EXTRA SUDS WITH SUPER SUDS GET PLAY CLOTHES SPARKLING BRIGHT...
... AND BECAUSE SUPER SUDS IS "RAYON-SAFE" I USE IT TO DO MY DAINTY WASHABLE RAYONS, TOO!

SPEND 8 MILLIONS IN ROAD BUILDING

DEFENSE PLANS ARE LIKELY TO INCREASE TOTAL

North Area Jobs to Cost $1,496,000.

State highway improvements to cost a total of $1,496,952 are now under way or are soon to start in northern and northwestern Chicagoland, it was announced last week by Walter A. Rosenfield, Illinois director of public works.

These are a part of the Chicagoland total of $8,350,000 in paving and improvements being made or on schedule for the immediate future, Rosenfield said. Most of this work is already under contract, and the rest will be as soon as right-of-way and other problems can be ironed out.

Promise of even more state road work to come was given by recent congressional passage of an emergency appropriation which will give Illinois about $5,000,000 for defense highway work. This work includes access roads to military and naval reservations and routes regarded as strategically important to the national defense.

For Military Needs

As soon as this additional money becomes available, much of it will be used to improve the streets and highway in and near the Fort Sheridan military reservation, it was indicated. Large paving projects are already under way near the Kankakee and Elwood ordnance plants south of Joliet, and more are being planned.

The biggest of the northern Chicagoland projects covered by Rosenfield's survey is the $430,500 subway in Lake Forest that will take route 59A traffic under the North Western and the North Shore tracks in the vicinity of Barat college.

A kindred project is the subway beneath the Milwaukee railroad, also on route 59A in Lake Forest, which will cost $176,212. Grading and safety signal work will cost several thousand dollars additional at both places.

Paving for Wilmette

Next in size among the undertakings is Sheridan road paving in Wilmette, which will cost a total of $116,997. Work is under way on a stretch .84 of a mile long from the northern city limits south to Washington avenue, which will cost $74,115.

However, right of way difficulties are preventing the start of work on a .35 of a mile expanse from Central avenue south to Linden avenue. The trouble has been in obtaining new right of way in exchange for old, so that a bad turn in Sheridan road can be unkinked.

A $200,000 improvement of Sheridan road from Westleigh road in Lake Forest to Clay street in Highwood is expected to start in the next few weeks. This calls for 1.95 miles of concrete paving 40 feet wide, and four flashing light signals to protect its users from cross traffic at grade intersections.

In McHenry county, work is well along on the paving of State route 176 between routes 47 and 31 near Crystal lake. This paving is 5.51 miles long and will cost $200,771.

Resurface River road.

Another northern Chicagoland project that is nearing completion is the resurfacing of River road from Maywood north to Des Plaines. The distance is 8.8 miles, and the total cost $286,302.

Other projects in the same area, all of which are already started are:

Soo line subway in Des Plaines, $2,387.

Paving of State routes 21 and 62 on Elston and Avondale avenues and Gettysburg street in Chicago, $45,103.

Bituminous resurfacing of Milwaukee avenue from Wheeling to Niles, $64,829. This is being accomplished without serious interference with heavy week-end traffic, according to the Chicago Motor club.

Lighting system for Mannheim road-Milwaukee railroad subway in Franklin Park, $9,229.

Widening and paving of Talcott avenue in Chicago, between Canfield and Bryn Mawr avenues, $49,214.

Curbs and gutters on Harlem avenue between Wellington avenue and Irving Park road, $12,799.

Resurfacing of Central avenue from Lake street to North avenue in Chicago $53,321.

THEY'RE CLASSY AT NORTH PARK; LIVE IN FLATS

5 Boys Keep Each Apartment Tidy.

All North Park college men are "smooth boys," according to the standards of the rah rah college days. Back in the era of the rolled stocking and the coon skin coat only the "slick operators" on campus lived in apartments and could invite the team up for a bull session. Every Joe College at North Park has an apartment, for the men's dormitory, at 3301 Foster avenue, is a 24 apartment building of four room apartments housing five students each.

Each suite has two rooms for lounge and study and two for sleeping. Each has its own bath, but the kitchens have been torn out and every one eats in the dining hall in the women's dormitory.

The boys really keep their rooms tidy, too. There are no overflowing ash trays on the desks, piles of socks and sweaters in the corners, or collections of Petty girls and shots of Dorothy Lamour lining the walls.

Do Own Housework.

Each group does its own housework—making beds, dusting and sweeping, and picking up clothes. Many do their own laundering and pressing.

The student council which governs the building has set up a variety of punishments for violators of the spick and span rule. "For failure to make beds or keep room orderly, the fellows guilty may be compelled to make all the beds in the apartment and do the weekly cleaning of the apartment," the building's constitution reads.

Repeated violations may bring a monetary fine or the guilty lad may be forced to pay a more ambitious one to make his bed and clean up his share of the apartment. The latter arrangement is unusual, however, for most of the boys find it's fun to do the odd tasks they scorn at home. North Park girls say the training the boys are getting will make them wonderful husbands.

Gas Logs in Fireplaces.

All apartments are furnished with early American maple furniture. Each has three single beds and a double decker, all with deep, soft mattresses. A gas log in each fireplace is a gathering point on cold winter evenings and supplies the background for long talks on life and love and religion.

The constitution says that "A reasonable number of properly framed pictures may be hung on the walls." Most of these are candid snaps of the girl back home. Potted plants bloom in many of the windows.

Altho no cooking is allowed in the rooms, there's a cafeteria in the basement of the building which serves meals or snacks all day. Gene Lundberg, a student, has painted Swedish scenes along two walls and North Park scenes along another. "Coke daters" like to identify the persons painted in the various college scenes.

Call on "Snappy Service."

Instead of raiding the ice box after a date the boys put in a call for "Snappy Service," the little man who delivers at all hours, always bringing his wares in a wagon or baby buggy.

Except for the watchful eye of two or three faculty counselors who live in one of the apartments, the building is entirely student-governed. A representative from each apartment is elected to the senate and the senat elects a working council.

Social, recreational, house and maintenance, and discipline committees are appointed by the senate. The social and recreational committees plan the activities which take place in the social and game rooms in the basement. The house and maintenance group makes apartment inspections.

No one is especially anxious to be appointed to the discipline committee, but once on the group, all work conscientiously toward setting good examples and following up infractions of rules. Serious cases are referred by the committee to the senate.

Students Make Rules.

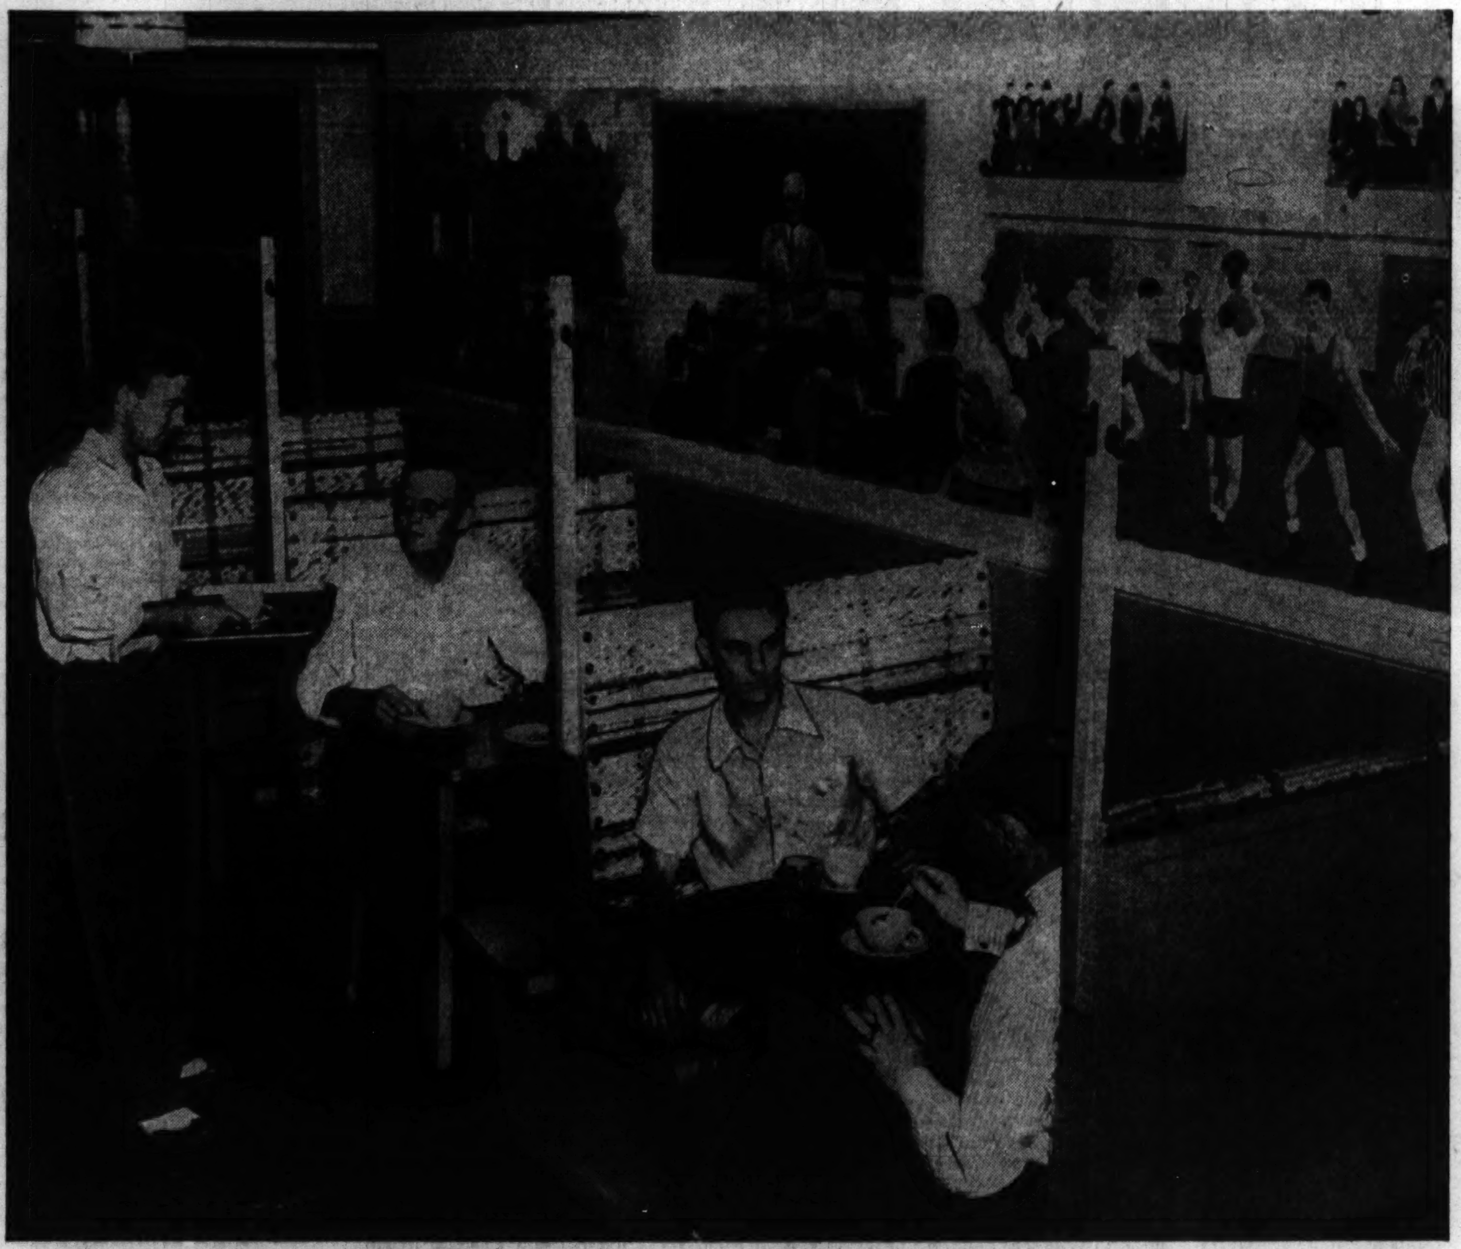
All rules and regulations as to hours are set by the students with the approval of the faculty. Seven o'clock to 10:30 o'clock Monday thru Thursday are study hours.

All men under 23 years of age must be in by 11 o'clock on week nights and 12 o'clock on week-end evenings unless they have late leaves. Girl callers may not be entertained in the apartments without faculty consent.

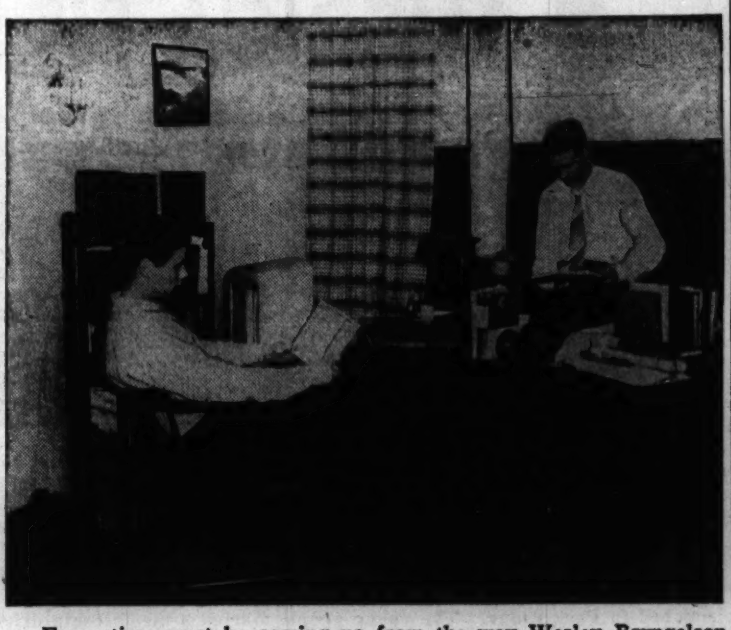
North Park college is one of the few United States colleges to provide apartment living arrangements for its men students. When the old men's dormitory was remodeled into a science hall the school planned to build a new dormitory. A good price was offered on an apartment building and the college snapped it up.

The building was opened last fall and the constitution was set up. This summer a small section of the building is being used by women students but with the opening of the fall session, the "smoothies" will move in again, bringing pictures of new girl friends and slips of plants from home to brighten up the window sills.

Men Students at North Park College Do Housework in Their Apartments



A cup of coffee goes good in the morning, but the cafeteria in the men's apartment building at North Park college does most of its business in cokes. In the picture, left to right: Gordon Bjurquist, Olof Lief, Mannie McDowell, and Paul Fryhling. Instead of having a men's dormitory, North Park college, 3225 Foster avenue, furnishes its men with four room apartments.



Exam time must be coming up from the way Wesley Bryngelson and Leslie Strand are hitting the books in their apartment at North Park. Wes and Les have used some interior decoration ideas of their own and pushed theid desks almost together in front of the windows.

"You're an old smoothie," the young lady in the picture on the dresser seems to be saying to Grant Franson as he makes his bed in his apartment. Grant knows from past experience that it's wise to make his bed promptly and well for there are fines for being a lazybones.

NORTH PARK
NORTH PARK

Bull sessions go on into the wee small hours around the fireplaces in North Park apartments. Co-operative studying often turns into a talk fest as Gordon Bjurquist, Mannie McDowell, and Olof Lief are finding out. Many's the college graduate who freely admits that a good part of what he learned in college he learned in shooting the bull.

Shorty, Train Engine, Is a Proud Father

Shorty is a snub nosed locomotive on the Chicago and North Western railroad. When it passes into the heavenly roundhouse where all good locomotives go, it will leave behind a memorial, a model Shorty made by Paul Duncan of Des Plaines.

The Duncan children watched Shorty from their house on its way from Barrington to Chicago each morning. They got such a kick out of the locomotive's stunted size that they persuaded Daddy Duncan to make a model of Shorty for posterity.

Duncan spent most of his spare time for two years working on the miniature and a month ago entered it in a model railroad contest. It won first prize.

Built Like Real Train.

The model was built from plans for a real locomotive. Duncan cut them down to an HO gauge, about 3.5 millimeters to the foot. Shorty Jr. is about half the size of a toy train and a real jeweler's piece. It runs by electricity. It has a headlight the size of a child's thimble which really works, and a tiny bell which tinkles.

Shorty Jr. is exactly like its senior. Its number is 391, the same as the large locomotive. The perforations on the side of the firebox are those characteristic of Chicago and North Western locomotives.

Only the wheels, motor, gears, tender trucks, and couplers were purchased. Duncan made the rest of brass and nickel plated it. A type designer by profession, Duncan works with the most minute objects and tools. He has made two model ships and once won a prize for a hand carved radio cabinet whose design was copied from the stained glass windows of the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago.

Built in Living Room.

Duncan's tools are too delicate to store in the basement, so he keeps some of them in a desk in the living room and the others in the attic. All of his work was done on the living room desk and Mrs. Duncan made no objection to the clutter. "He had so much fun I just couldn't object to it," she said.

Duncan made Shorty Jr. for the children to play with. "Now that he's won a prize I guess we'll have to put Shorty Jr. in a glass case," he says.

KAUFMAN, HART PLAY GIVEN AT WILLIAMS BAY

"George Washington Slept Here," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, is being staged every evening this week by the Belfry Players of Williams Bay, Wis. This is the fourth play of the current summer season. Directed by Leonard De Menna, the cast includes Edward Lukarski, Hyman Chester, Harriet Plous, Bernie Wechter, Franklin Cook, Louise Framberg, Eve Lynne, Phil Fogle, Ann Libberton, Gladys Tyler, Ken Darre, Pete Partee, Robert Pope, John and Jean Libberton, Margaret Holley, and George Graham.

Ball Tournament.

A lineball tournament will be held at the Albany Park Boys' club, 4710 North Central Park avenue, Wednesday. Meyer Visotzky is director of the club.

AMERICAN HOME TO BE FEATURED AT FLOWER SHOW

Flower arrangements for the American home will be featured in the 13th annual flower show of the Algonquin Garden club Tuesday from 2 to 9 o'clock in the gymnasium of the Algonquin grade school. Any one may enter an exhibit in the show and no admission charge will be made for visitors.

Entries in the American home group include arrangements for the breakfast table, porch, coffee table, bedside table, dinner table, and cocktail hour. Other classes include an exhibit by gardeners 14 years old or younger, one for fruits, and one for vegetables. All entries must be in the hands of the exhibit committee by 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Hal M. Horton Jr. is chairman of the flower show committee. She is being assisted by Mrs. D. W. Rattray, Mrs. Bert C. Ottoson, Mrs. William Molahn, and Mrs. Edward Sevcik. The decorating committee includes Mrs. Clarence J. Ebel, Mrs. Arthur Boyer, and Mrs. Donald Bailey.

Mrs. George F. Starr is president of the club, Mrs. George R. Janak is vice president, Mrs. Glen H. Ritt, secretary, and Mrs. Eric Gustafson, treasurer.

Expect 2,000 at Picnic of Drug Club on Sunday

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the 35th annual picnic of the Chicago Drug club to be held in the Royal Oaks park at 87th street and Kean avenue next Sunday, it was announced by Harry W. Praffke, president.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

LAST week was a busy one for Mrs. Mary A. Beuel, 3848 Cicero avenue. On Tuesday she observed her 62d wedding anniversary. Friday was her 85th birthday. Present at the latter occasion were her four daughters, Mrs. George Ehemann, Mrs. Anthony Schaefer, Mrs. Dominic Wilhelm, and Mrs. Fred Sommers, 10 grandchildren, and 7 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Beuel was born in Chicago at North avenue and Wells street in 1856 and lived there until 1871, when her family was driven out by the great fire. She has lived at her present address for the last 29 years. Her husband, John, has been dead several years.

Mrs. Mary A. Beuel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Glienke of 2629 Narragansett avenue are celebrating their silver wedding anniversary with a honeymoon trip to Canada and Niagara Falls. The first World war spoiled their plans for one following their marriage. Mr. Glienke is president of the Riss Park Civic association.

Buzz's mother and father hated to see his wavy dark hair clipped, but you can't blame Buzz for being happy. No self-respecting heman likes to be mistaken for a girl—even if he is only four months old. Buzz, who is Robert O. Smail Jr., of 7268 Clarence avenue, was so nicknamed because of his passion for the sound of his mother's vacuum cleaner, Newly elected officers of Edison Park post, No. 541, of the American Legion include Allan H. Lewis, commander; Russell L. Frye, senior vice commander; George R. Bialk, junior vice commander; William A. MacFarland, finance officer; B. J. Schneider, adjutant; Dr. C. S. Bromberg, service officer, and Fred W. Sass, sergeant at arms.

Gardens of six members of the Garden club of Mayfair will be visited by the club at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. The gardens are those of James E. Riggs, 4919 Kilbourn avenue; C. H. Sharman, 5027 Kilbourn avenue; Thure Palmblad, 5053 Kilbourn avenue; A. C. Rochow, 5059 Kilbourn avenue; S. M. Sopocy, 5104 Kilbourn avenue, and E. W. Schroeder, 5118 Kostner avenue.

Herbert L. Alberts of Park Ridge was awarded the D. A. R. saber for general efficiency at the end of the six week encampment at Fort Sheridan of the Reserve Officers Training corps. Alberts, a student at the University of Illinois, was one of 302 college reservists to receive practical training in the operation of all types of anti-aircraft weapons.

Urge Thru Bus Line Now for Division Street

A Division street bus line extending from Austin boulevard to Lake Shore drive to replace the two street car lines now in operation along the thorofare is being pressed by northwest side civic groups and business organizations in an effort to eliminate the transportation gap thru Humboldt park.

The proposal for a bus line to run the entire length of Division street would relieve a problem to residents and workers of the densely populated Humboldt park area who, in order to continue their east or westward travel, must either walk more than a mile thru the park or transfer four times to other streetcars.

Prohibit Cars in Park.

Under the present setup the Division street car runs north on State street from the loop and west on Division to California avenue. A city ordinance prohibits the operation of street cars thru park district zones, and there is a break in the line from California to Grand avenue, eight blocks away. The latter shuttle line continues to Austin boulevard, the western city limits.

The proposed change is included in the traction unification plan now pending in the city council, but since passage of the bill has been repeatedly postponed, the neighborhood groups are seeking immediate and separate action. An ordinance sponsored by Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st] was passed by the council permitting the use of surface buses thru Humboldt park as long ago as April, 1938.

Officers of the Polish National alliance gave their tentative approval last week to the plan. A meeting of the executive board of that organization will be held this week to consider drafting a petition to the Illinois Commerce commission recommending the change. It is expected that the commission will begin hearings in the near future.

Leaders in Drive.

Present at last week's meeting were O. F. Duensing, executive director of the Augusta Boulevard Development council; Harry G. Weimer, public affairs chairman of the Logan Square Kiwanis club, and officers of the Polish National alliance, including I. K. Rozmarek, president. Also interested in seeing the trolley arrangement eliminated are the Polish Roman Catholic union, the Polish Women's alliance, and the Polish Alma Mater.

Mr. Duensing said an official of the Chicago Surface lines had assured cooperation in bringing about the change.

At present the nearest street car lines running parallel with Division street are at Chicago avenue and North avenue, both four blocks away. It was also suggested by Mr. Duensing that the substitution of buses for street cars would relieve traffic congestion.

M'CUTCHEON FAN GIVES FODDER AS BACK DROP FOR 'INJUN SUMMER'

Since John T. McCutcheon's cartoon, "Injun Summer," first appeared in 1912, it has been a favorite of Farmer Emil Juhnke. He, his wife and family will be on hand at Soldiers' field Aug. 16 to see it come to life on the huge stage of the Chicagoland Music festival.

But Mr. Juhnke will have more than a passive interest in the spectacle because the corn shocks on the stage will be those transplanted from the fields of his farm at Elgin and Elmhurst roads.

Last fall Mr. Juhnke harvested a bumper corn crop and laid away a surplus of stalks in his barn. The supply was intended as fodder for his hogs, but Mr. Juhnke didn't mind parting with them when he learned they would help the festival. "There's no doubt about it," he said as he supervised the loading of 3,000 stalks on a Tribune truck, "John McCutcheon's the best cartoonist in the world."

EPWORTH GROUPS IN RALLY TODAY AT DES PLAINES

Members of Epworth leagues thruout Chicagoland will attend the Epworth League day programs at the Methodist camp grounds in Des Plaines today. Activities will start at 3 o'clock with a recreation period. A hillside inspiration service will be held under the direction of Miss Ellenada Nabor, first vice president of the Federation of Epworth Leagues of Chicago.

After a picnic supper circle at 5:30 o'clock, a "giant super sing" and evening youth assembly will be held. The Rev. Truman Potter will speak.

C. Kenneth Gibbs is president of the Federation of Epworth Leagues of Chicago. Miss Barbara Daniels, Miss Nabor, Miss Vera L. Morse, Henry Hendrickson, and Miss Nodle Sampson are vice presidents. Alva Schroeder is recording secretary and Miss Pauline Zaio is corresponding secretary. Harold S. Wang is treasurer and Karl A. Rose is adviser.

Among the district presidents who aided in making arrangements for the program are Roy E. Erickson, northern district; William De Grasse, southern district; Miss Daniels, western district; Miss Fleda A. Jones, Greater Chicago-Lexington conference; Borghild Nerhus, Chicago district—Norwegian-Danish, and Gordon Nelson, Chicago district — central northwest conference.

Women's Civic Club Plans Outing Aug. 14 in Forest

A picnic will be given by the Northwest Women's Improvement and Social club at 10 o'clock Thursday, Aug. 14, in Caldwell woods. Mrs. Bertha Buckholtz is in charge of arrangements and she is being assisted by Mrs. Hazel Braum and Mrs. Linda Westberg.

Present Wilde Play Last Time at Lake Zurich Today

"The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde, will be presented by the Lake Zurich playhouse for the last time tonight. Mary Elizabeth Aurelius, associate director of the playhouse, is director of the play and Henry Kurth designed the settings. "These Are My Jewels," by Henry Barbour and Ruth Mackay, will be presented on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings. Barbour is a script writer for radio station W-G-N.

Auxiliary of Tobacco Unit Holds Outing Wednesday

The Illinois Auxiliary of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors' club for women will hold its summer outing on Wednesday at Roselle Country club, according to Mrs. Jacob J. Van Buren, 5109 Cornell avenue president. Mrs. Michael Bloom, 515 Belmont avenue, is chairman in charge of arrangements for the outing.

OLD SETTLERS JOIN TOMORROW IN 67TH OUTING

Only 25 Year Residents of County Eligible.

Great-grandmas and great-grandpas from all Chicagoland will turn out tomorrow to trade tales at the 67th annual Old Settlers' picnic and reunion to be held in Harms park, Western and Berteau avenues. Any one over 40 years old who has lived in Chicago or Cook county for the last 25 years is eligible to register as an Old Settler and will receive a souvenir badge showing the year of settlement.

Gold medals will be awarded to the oldest man and the oldest woman settler attending. Medals also will be presented to the one longest employed in the same concern and still working there; to the oldest pensioned person; to the settler living longest in the same house; to the one with the largest living family; and to the married couple whose ages total the largest figure. Bouquets will be presented to the ten oldest couples taking part in a dancing contest.

Leaders in Plans.

H. F. Chaveriat is chairman of the Old Settlers' picnic and reunion committee. Officers from the northwest side include: L. O. Greiner, 5936 North Kilpatrick avenue, vice chairman; R. P. Stover, Park Ridge, executive secretary, and F. J. Pfustler, 2536 Cullum avenue, assistant secretary.

Among the committee members from the northwest side are:

Reception—A. V. Lathomus, 4309 North Wolcott avenue, chairman; Robert Fenske, 3228 North Tripp avenue; John Herrmann, 6046 Nassau street; Frank Ihrcke, 4607 North Drake avenue; Hans Keller, 1578 North Clybourne avenue; John Lenz, 4142 North Leavitt street; Henry Lind, 5734 Newport avenue; Traugott F. Junior America First Starts Membership Drive in Park Ridge

AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE

A junior committee of the America First committee has been launched in Park Ridge. The young people started a membership drive last week. Among those carrying the message of America Comes First were Jack Harms, Marcia Lunde, Arleen Lang, Joan Skoglund, Jo Ann Van Ransselaer, June Kropp, Betty Skaggs, Blaine Gutmacher, and Jean McMurry.

HOMES IN BUFFER AREAS CONFUSE ZONING OF CITY

Industrial Expansion Reveals Trend.

Conflict between residences and industries is helping to complicate the task of providing Chicago with a workable new zoning ordinance. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council subcommittee that is preparing the new ordinance, declared that in some instances the defense program has been hampered by inconsistencies of the existing zoning law which the new one is to replace.

"There have been several cases," Lindell said, "where industries forced to expand by the receipt of defense orders could not do so conveniently because residences had encroached upon them.

"The old ordinance set up so-called buffer zones, specifying that industries could not build within certain distances of dwellings. This distance varied from 400 to 2,000 feet, according to the nature of the industry.

Home Owner Suffers.

"There was nothing in the old ordinance, however, to prevent the owner of industrial property from using it as homesites. That is in fact what happened.

"Land speculators bought up cheap industrial zones, subdivided them, and sold lots to prospective small home owners, who in many cases did not learn until after they bought that they were not in residential zones.

"This had no immediate effect on industries. But when the defense program came along and many of them were faced with the necessity of expanding quickly, they ran up against the buffer zone provision of the old ordinance.

"It was necessary on several occasions for the city to waive this provision to expedite defense work. This was done, however, only in cases where it was clearly indicated that industry had prior rights; that is, where it could be shown that the area in question had been zoned for industry and usurped for residences."

Start Zoning Review.

Ald. Lindell cited the case of the Wisconsin Steel company plant on 106th street east of Lake Calumet, which had to get a special dispensation before it could install needed plant enlargements, all because a small residential subdivision had gone in just south of 110th street.

Discovery of the unexpected prohibition set up by this situation started the framers of the new zoning ordinance on a review of the whole industrial picture. It pointed to the need of steps to avoid recurrence. The new ordinance will prohibit the use of land for any other purpose than that for which it is specifically zoned.

Another case in point is that of the Revere Copper and Brass company, also a defense industry. When this concern began to enlarge its plant at Fullerton and Natchez avenues, nearby residents tried to block the move, arguing that any increase of industrial use would depreciate their property. The city ruled against them.

Place for Everything.

"Intelligent zoning is merely good municipal housekeeping," Ald. Lindell said. "In trying to provide Chicago with the best land use code possible, we are merely following the principle of 'a place for everything and everything in its place.'

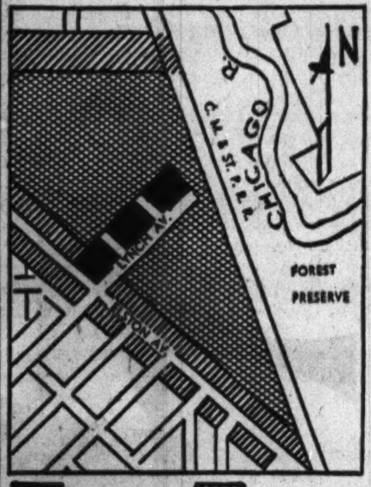
"One of our big objectives in drawing the new code is to provide for the orderly use of property in only those districts to which such uses should be confined.

"Failure earlier to observe so fundamental a rule is responsible for the fact that property values in Chicago are speculative. In one sense Chicago property has no value, because of the breakdown of our zoning laws. These lowered property values will be enhanced as soon as prospective owners can be sure of the future character of the neighborhood in which they contemplate buying."

St. William Parishioners to Picnic This Afternoon

Members of St. William church, Wrightwood and Sayre avenues, will gather this afternoon for their annual picnic in Elm Tree grove, 6549 Irving Park road. The Rev. P. F. Loeffel, pastor, will be in charge of the affair.

Mills, Homes Mingle



The residence zone shown above developed in the midst of an industrial area, creating a problem for both types of land use, according to the men framing the new zoning ordinance. The homesites lack adequate protection from industrial environment and factories are deprived of expansion rights.

'NEATEST' PRIZES GO TO 5 FARMS IN McHENRY COUNTY

Given Awards in Pure Milk Contest.

Five farms in McHenry county won "neatest and cleanest" prizes in their districts in the eighth annual Neatest Dairy Farm contest sponscored by the Pure Milk association. the Josephine N. JUNIOR AMERICA FIRST IN PARK RIDGE TO DANCE

Plans for a dance in the American Legion hall in Park Ridge Friday evening are being made by the junior America First chapter of Park Ridge. The junior chapter of high school and college age young folks was formed last week at a meeting in the home of Oscar Goetz an active member of the Park Ridge America First. In their first week they have enrolled more than 100 members and expect to have 600 early this week.

Jean McMurry is chairman of the chapter with Jack Harms and Miss Betty Skaggs as co-chairmen. Blaine Gutmacher is treasurer; Miss Jo Ann Van Rensselaer secretary, and Miss Dorothy McKellar.

Patronesses for Friday's dance include Mrs. A. D. McKellar, Mrs. B. F. Wupper, and Mrs. J. C. Harms.

Howard G. Swann of the University of Chicago will be the main speaker Wednesday evening at a meeting of the Park Ridge chapter of the America First committee. The meeting will start at 8:30 o'clock in the South Park fieldhouse, Cumberland avenue and Talcott road. Headquarters of the Park Ridge chapter are located at 102 North Main street.

BARN IS SETTING FOR LAKE ZURICH FLOWER EXHIBIT

Proceeds of Fete to Aid United Service Fund.

Flowers will bloom in a light blue barn for the Lake Zurich flower show and USO benefit to be given Saturday by the Lake Zurich Community Woman's club and the USO. The flower show and entertainment will be held from 2 o'clock to 11 o'clock on the Frank N. Reed farm near Forest lake, northeast of Lake Zurich.

The Reeds' barn, considered by farmers to be one of the finest in Lake county, has been cleaned and given a coat of light blue paint for the flower show.

Soldiers Aid Program.

A group of soldiers from Fort Sheridan and the Goodman theater group at the Lake Zurich playhouse will present dramatic skits. A collegiate band from Lake Forest will play and a fashion show will be presented. A garden walk thru the pines on the Reed farm has been arranged and a gypsy queen will be on hand to tell fortunes.

Flower show entries are open to all flower lovers and exhibits may be placed Friday evening and until 11 o'clock Saturday morning. There will be no entrance fee for exhibitors.

Mrs. Walter S. Lovelace, Evanston; Mrs. J. W. McAllister, Kenilworth, and Miss Elizabeth Holland, Barrington, will be the judges.

Members of Committee.

Members of the committee for the flower show and benefit include: Mrs. Frank N. Reed, Mrs. R. George C. Boa, Mrs. Armon J. Crawford, Mrs. Neil J. Coltrin, Miss Margaret Fink, Mrs. Paul G. Gerth, Mrs. Harry O. Johnson, Mrs. Charles H. Kaspar, Mrs. A. G. Schwerman, Mrs. George Umbenstock, and Mrs. Charles H. Wendell.

Mrs. Whitney Rockenbach is president of the Lake Zurich Community Woman's club; Mrs. W. E. Redmon and Mrs. J. D. Fink, vice presidents; Mrs. J. L. Clements, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul Gerth, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. W. F. Salem, treasurer.

2 PORTAGE PARK CORNERS TO GET NEW STOP SIGNS

Stop signs will be installed soon on the corners of Irving Park road at Long avenue and Berteau avenue at Long avenue as the result of petitions presented to Alderman P. J. Cullerton [38th] by the Portage Park Community club. The installation has been approved by the city council.

The intersections were found to be dangerous during the summer months because almost all adults and children who use the recreation facilities in Portage park, 5330 Berteau avenue, must cross at these corners.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Folks, step up and meet Private N. W. Sider. He's the typical draftee from our town. Maybe you'll recognize him from this description as your brother, son, husband, or sweetheart.

He's 24 years old, has had two and a half years of high school education, used to be a machinist or a truck driver. When he wasn't working you used to be able to find him on the nearest baseball diamond. But today you'll probably have to go as far as Fort Bragg, N. C., or Fort Eustis, Va., where he's putting his knowledge of machinery to use in the field or coast artillery.

Take Eugene Sentowski for instance. He used to live at 838 Wolcott avenue, but since July 15 his address has been Field Artillery Replacement center, Fort Bragg, N. C. He was an assistant foreman in a machine shop, but now he's learning to operate a howitzer, and on the side he strums a mandolin for the boys in his barracks.

Don't get the idea that the entire northwest side has been transplanted to the south, tho, or that everybody's in the artillery. Many of the draftees are in the infantry, the air corps, the armored division, and the engineers. A lesser number has been assigned to the signal corps, quartermaster, medical, and ordnance branches. They've scattered to Texas, Idaho, California, Louisiana, New Jersey, Maryland, Wyoming, and Missouri.

Next to machinists and truck drivers, the largest vocation groups include the salesmen, typists, store clerks, stock men, and store managers. Other northwest side draftees left jobs as teachers, bottlewashers, lawyers, cab drivers, gas station attendants, and gardeners.

Nathan Hoff, 4719 Drake avenue, who left recently for Fort Eustis, was a liquor salesman. Herman Zipp, formerly of 4048 Division street, and now at the air corps base at Scott field, Ill., used to be a butcher for Armour and company.

John Bramwell, 2901 Washtenaw avenue, a former Golden Gloves boxer, is now stationed at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. The experience of Matthew Pult, 3330 Lincoln avenue, as a landscape gardener, may prove valuable to the army in camouflaging the big coastal batteries at Fort Eustis.

Robert Schroeder, 2537 Campbell avenue, used to be pretty handy with tax injunctions when he worked for the Chicago Title and Trust company, but now he's piloting a tank in the third armored division at Camp Polk, La. His buddy, Francis Tharaldson, 1741 Troy street, was a typist for a book bindery.

What do the draftees do in their spare time? If they follow their former pursuits, most of them play baseball and basketball. Or maybe they play the accordion or collect stamps or fish or take photographs. One draftee listed his hobby as weight lifting. Now he's unloading 100 pound ammunition boxes at the Aberdeen Ordnance depot, Maryland.

Ten northwest side draftees have been assigned to the Infantry Replacement center, Camp Wolters, Texas. They are Frank Dusza, 2935 School street; James Zdon, 3838 George street; William McCormick, 1621 Meade avenue; Ralph Mottashed, 1236 Central avenue; Raymond Moline, 4737 Shakespeare avenue; Joseph Potrzuski, 2108 Oakley avenue; Daniel Eisenberg, 3220 Division street; Adolph Wojtarowicz, 2944 Ridgeway avenue; Chester Wisniewski, 2639 Monticello avenue, and Ronald Busse, 3300 Sacramento avenue.

Two former employés of the telephone company are continuing their work in the communications field in the Army Signal corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J. They are Walter Urban, 2745 Campbell avenue, and John A. Striepling, 6215 Navajo avenue. Also assigned to the Signal corps is Edward Osika, 1657 Campbell avenue, a former tavern manager.

Robert Donahue, 6935 Hobart avenue, has been assigned to the Quartermaster Replacement center, Camp Lee, Va. John Loprino, 2136 Kedvale avenue, was recently stationed at the Infantry Replacement center, Camp Roberts, Cal. At the Quartermaster Replacement center at Fort Warren, Wyo., is Edward Stone, 5947 Eastwood avenue.

At the same camp, Lee A. Becker, 6622 Ponchartrain boulevard, has been promoted to corporal in Company M of the Quartermaster Training regiment. Completing his basic military training, James M. Birkeland, 3238 Beach avenue, has been appointed specialist in Company G.

Recently stationed at Camp Polk, La., are Frank R. Cavallo, 5021 Henderson street, who has been assigned to the 32d Armored regiment, 3d Division Machine Gun company, and Arthur Olsen, 3835 Addison street, who is also with the Third Armored division.

George Stencel, 3613 Oakdale avenue, and Stephen Ketchmark, 4426 Kasson avenue, have been assigned to the Ordnance Replacement Training center at Aberdeen Proving ground, Md.

Private Henry C. Zielazny, 1923 Wolcott avenue, has been chosen to attend a special motorcycle mechanics course at the armored force school at Fort Knox, Ky. He is a member of the 33d Armored Regiment [light tanks], a unit of the 3d Armored division.

Bernard S. Paul, 2119 North avenue, a former instructor of chiropody, has been promoted to corporal in Company G, 1st Quartermaster Training regiment, Fort Francis E. Warren, Wyo.

B'nai Sholom Preparing for High Holiday Season

Jacob L. Baker will chant the high holiday services at Hibbard auditorium, 3244 Ainslie street, which will be conducted under the auspices of Congregation B'nai Sholom. Mr. Baker will be cantor at the services on the evening of Sept. 21 and at the morning and afternoon services on the following two days. He will also chant the Yom Kippur on Sept. 30 and the all-day service of Oct. 1.

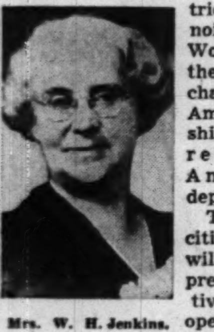
DISTRICT CLUB UNITS TO STRESS PATRIOTIC WORK

Three Departments Plan Service and Study.



Mrs. W. H. Jenkins. [Heinsen Photo.]

A patriotic year has been planned for the 37 clubs of the seventh district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs by the new district chairmen of the American citizenship, international relations, and American home departments.

The American citizenship group will gain an appreciation of active, alert, and coöperative patriotism; the international relations department meetings will center in a study of international politics since Versailles with an eye to their effect on present events, and the American home department will work toward the maintenance of ever-full cookie jars in army training camps in this area as well as improvement of homemaking methods.

Plans Service Bureau.

Snowy-haired, vivacious Mrs. W. H. Jenkins, 1325 Hood avenue, has been a member of the Irving Park Sorosis for only two years but is already one of its most active members. As a former teacher of social sciences and dramatics, Mrs. Jenkins has a thoro background for her new work as chairman of the seventh district American citizenship department.

Mrs. Jenkins' pet project for this year is the formation of an American citizenship service bureau for the seventh district. She has already started gathering books, pamphlets, and other material on citizenship problems to be loaned out to clubs for use in citizenship programs.

Her departmental program includes study classes on comparative citizenship; stress of patriotic days and understanding of the lives of great Americans; an Americanization program stressing study of the urbanization problem of the Negro; and a study of what the present crisis will mean to American women.

Married Woman's College.

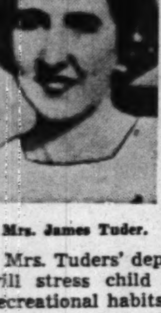
Mrs. David H. Leach. [Heinsen Photo.]

"I have many hobbies," says Mrs. David H. Leach, 4505 North Kenton avenue, who is starting her second year as chairman of the international relations department, "and most of them were opened to me thru club work." Mrs. Leach likes to write poetry and short articles, travel by auto, and keep a garden. She is a member of the Mayfair Woman's club.

Mrs. Leach feels that club work as done by member clubs of the Illinois federation is "married woman's university." Last year she held monthly meetings of seventh district international relations chairmen at her home. The discussions resulted in a greater understanding of South American problems and an appreciation of pre-World war international relations, she says.

All important international events since Versailles will be studied this year with a continued emphasis on South American relations. Events of the moment will be discussed at the close of the year's program.

Cookies for Soldiers.

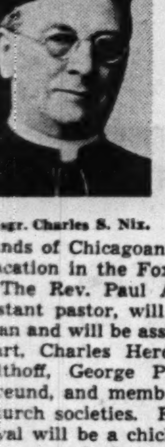


Mrs. James Tuder.

Each district club will have certain days to send cookies to the training camps according to a cookie jar campaign worked out by Mrs. James Tuder, new district American home chairman. Mrs. Tuder, a resident of Franklin park and member of the Franklin Park Woman's club, also hopes to organize distribution of magazines to the camps.

Mrs. Tuders' departmental program will stress child guidance in good recreational habits and the emotional problems of family life. She has served as recreation chairman for her local PTA and has made a hobby of recreation methods.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH OF M'HENRY TO HOLD TWO DAY FESTIVAL



Msgr. Charles S. Nix.

The Very Rev. Msgr. Charles S. Nix, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, McHenry, has announced that the annual parish summer festival will be held on the church grounds next Saturday and Sunday.

The two day carnival will be a homecoming for the former members of the parish and also a rally for thousands of Chicagoans who spend their vacation in the Fox river region.

The Rev. Paul A. Tuchlincky, assistant pastor, will be general chairman and will be assisted by Nic Weingart, Charles Herdrich, William H. Althoff, George P. and George J. Freund, and members of the various church societies. Feature of the festival will be a chicken and duck dinner served Sunday from 11 to 3 o'clock by the Christian Mothers' sodality under the direction of Mrs. Helen Weber.

In Contests for Music Festival

When the west and northwest area sectional contest in the Chicagoland Music festival opens at 7 o'clock Tuesday night in the Graemere hotel, these four singers will be among the 202 contestants. Miss Schultz, 18 year old mezzo soprano, resides at 214 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park; Miss Adamowski, 22, a coloratura soprano, at 3054 Milwaukee avenue; Miss Pankiewicz, 26, lyric soprano, at 2435 North McVicker avenue, and Mr. Gabler, 24, lyric tenor, at 3455 West 13th place.

RECALLS, AT 98, SPREAD OF RAIL NET OVER WEST

Sarah Conlon Traveled with Construction.

The pioneer women who went about their housekeeping amid the dangers of Indians, bitter winters, and food shortages have been eulogized in history and in Hollywood. The women who won the west in sunbonnets and covered wagons have been commemorated in town square monuments from Iowa to California.

Mrs. Sarah Conlon, 1426 Rosemont avenue, who celebrated her 98th birthday recently, never kept house in the wilderness or rode in a covered wagon. But she belonged to a special group of women pioneers who, tho unsung and unknown, contributed to this country's development when railroad fortunes were being made. As the wife of a section boss she traveled thru the middle west wherever new rails had to be laid or old rails replaced.

Her three sons and three daughters were all born at different points. "But all the places were in Illinois," Mrs. Conlon says. "They had a home state even if they didn't always live in the same house or the same town." The Conlons often resided on the northwest side or in the northwest suburbs.

Born in Kentucky.

Mrs. Conlon was Sally Brady of Coon Hollow, Ky., when, at 27, she married John Conlon. She would have been married long before that, she says, but she never could make up her mind to leave her mother. Then John Conlon came along and she deserted Coon Hollow to ride trains between jobs in Indiana and Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and the Dakotas. Back home in Kentucky, she'd help her mother to card wool, weave it and spin it. She helped to make candles.

The new life was different. She had to buy cloth at the store, and light came from lamps. Her husband brought her to Chicago the year after the fire, and for the first time she had to buy fruit and vegetables.

"It seemed awful to buy stuff we just picked at home," she recalls. "I told my husband I didn't like the place and wouldn't stay. I've been here just about all the time since."

Brothers Were Foes.

Her husband has been dead 34 years. But Mrs. Conlon, at 98, has all but six of her own teeth and she gets around. Her white hair is clipped short, and her brown eyes brighten when she tells about Indians coming to see one of her babies, "the white papoose."

She had one brother in the Confederate army, one with the Union. She saw Lincoln and still likes to talk about how much better this country might have been if he had lived thru the reconstruction period. Mrs. Conlon says that riding on trains, eating at railroad restaurants, and moving from one place to another were all wonderful experiences. She wouldn't trade them. But she would like to ride in an airplane.

Mrs. Conlon lives with her son, John Conlon Jr. Her other children are William of Milwaukee; Edward, Fargo, N. D.; Mrs. Mary Zehfus, 4820 Barry avenue, and Mrs. Margaret Young, living in Nebraska. The third daughter is dead. There are 22 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Antioch Bride

In a ceremony at her home on Petite lake near Antioch, Miss Virginia R. Floren recently became the bride of W. J. Murphy of Round Lake. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Floren of 1135 Lathrope avenue and Mr. Murphy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick S. Boyd of Round Lake. [Dickey Photo.]

NO. WEST EAGLE SCOUT WILL AID STATE PROGRAM

Represents Council at Springfield Fair.

Eagle Scout William O'Brien of Troop 24 has been chosen to represent the Northwest Suburban council at the Eagle Scout Service camp at the state fair in Springfield next Saturday.

O'Brien will assist in conducting the boy scouts' program in the pageant which will be presented Saturday afternoon as part of the third annual Youth day program. The pageant, which eight youth agencies in the state are coöperating in presenting, will have as its theme, "Youth Champions Democracy."

The program will begin at 1:15 o'clock with a parade to the grand stand of the fair grounds and a grand opening flag ceremony. Scouts of the Northwest council will be assigned to the third act of the pageant, entitled "The Nation." This will depict scouting's part in the defense program. In this act they will demonstrate first aid, signaling on two human pyramids, the fireman's carry and scout carry drill, resuscitation squad drill and a spectacular scout-staff scaling event.

The final group of scouts from the Northwest Suburban council will leave today for Camp Oh-Da-Ko-Ta, Burlington, Wis. Donald E. Kyger is scout executive. Richard Cutler of Troop 26, Skokie, and George Hager of Troop 21, Barrington, have been chosen as honor campers for the third and fourth weeks of the camp. Thomas Cook and Thomas Wetmore of Troop 15, Skokie, were awarded the honor during the first two periods of the camp.

202 TO COMPETE IN MUSIC FETE VOCAL CONTESTS

Sectional Event to Start Tuesday.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Two hundred and two vocalists who reside on the west or northwest sides of Chicago are entered in the sectional voice contest of the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. This is a record number of entrants for this part of the city and tops the north side by 23 and the south side by 54.

Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the ballroom of the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue, and at the same time and place Wednesday night the sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be judged.

The public is invited. Admission is 25 cents. The north side contests were held last week and the south sectional try-outs will be Thursday and Friday nights at 7 o'clock in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive.

GIRL SCOUT DAY CAMP TO START IN GOMPERS PARK

Tin can cookery, puppet plays, and morning bird hikes will be part of the fun northwest Girl Scouts will have at their day camp which starts Tuesday at the Gompers park picnic grounds, 4222 West Foster avenue. The camp will be held from 10 o'clock to 4 o'clock each Tuesday and Thursday until Aug. 28.

Mrs. Harold Northway, 6851 Hobart avenue, is city-wide day camp chairman and Mrs. Felix Jacques, 6133 Fletcher avenue, is director of the northwest day camp. She is being assisted by Mrs. Frank Moskal, 4426 North McVickers avenue.

SAND SCULPTORS TO DISPLAY ART AT NORTH AVENUE

Parks Sponsor Annual Contest Friday.

Several hundred children from the north and northwest sections of Chicago will gather next Friday at North avenue beach for the annual sandcraft picnic sponsored by the park district.

Members of park fieldhouse artcraft groups will take part. The groups of six youngsters each will be divided into juniors and seniors. The former range from 7 to 10 years of age and the latter from 11 to 14.

There will be limitation on subjects this year. Modeling may be done only with hands, a wooden paddle, and water. No colored sand, earth mixtures, or implements other than paddles will be permitted.

Contestants will do their sand modeling in a series of pits 10 feet square. Each pit will be labeled with the name and address of the park. Modeling will start at 10:30 a. m. and continue for an hour. There will be no prizes awarded but candy, cookies, and balloons will be given to all.

After a picnic lunch, Chief Whirling Thunder, full blooded Winnebago Indian and member of the park district artcraft staff, will entertain the children. Community singing will follow.

Parks which will be represented include Avondale, General Bell, Brooks, Chase, Chopin, Gladstone, Gompers, Green Briar, Independence, Indian Boundary, Kelvyn, Lake Shore, Mozart, North Mayfair, Welles, Rosedale, Almira Simons, and Shabbona. Miss Alice Beyer, artcraft superviser, will be in charge.

Enrollment Gains.

Freshman enrollment for the winter term at North Park college, 3225 Foster avenue, is now 55 above the figure for this time last year.

CARRIE J. BOND MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Popular Melodies Slated on Chicagoland Hour.

Three popular songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond will be presented in medley form as a highlight of the Chicagoland Hour over W-G-N from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday. Marion Claire, soprano star of the program, Attilio Baggiore, featured tenor, and Guest Contralto Ruth Slater will join the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler in presenting the musical portion of the program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will sing Victor Herbert's "For I'm Falling in Love" and DeLeath's "The Madonna Lullaby." She will also be heard with Baggiore in a medley of Herbert numbers. Baggiore will sing Toselli's "Serenade" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavallo.

The orchestra will present Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite" with a background by the chorus and the "Gypsy Baron Overture" by Strauss.

The complete program follows:

Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore, and chorus.

The Chicagoland Hour is produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

JOAN MERRILL TO JOIN ZANY TRIO, TOM, DICK, HARRY

Joan Merrill.

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" will again add half an hour of entertainment to listeners' lives from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The trio will play host to Joan Merrill, newcomer to the world of radio, stage, and screen who sings at the Rhumba Casino. Miss Merrill has had about all the stage and screen experience a young lady might wish, having made tours with the shows of Harry Richman, Dave Apollon, and Rudy Vallee. But something new is in store for her when she works with radio's zaniest trio.

Music highlights Monday will include "How Did He Look?" sung by Miss Merrill, "Evil Eye," a story about a man who puts the curse on every one, this to be sung by the trio. With the circus in town the boys also will do the sad, sad story of "The Acrobat's Daughter."

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" is produced by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N dance orchestra is under the direction of Robert Trendler who also is often called upon to help out on the dialog.

Guild to Meet.

Plans are being made for a meeting of the home arts guild of the Women's Benefit association to be held on Wednesday, Aug. 13, at the De Paul Day nursery. Mrs. F. W. Eickelberg is chairman of the guild.

A Radio Scout

Bob Elson, pitcher for W-G-N Retrievers, scouting opposition practice in disguise. The Retrievers meet the W-G-N Radio All-Stars Thursday night at Spencer Coals field, 4200 North Central avenue.

PIERRE MONTEUX WILL CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Concert Will Be Aired Over W-G-N.

Pierre Monteux, noted French conductor, will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert at Ravinia to be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program will emphasize French music, presenting Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Symphony in D Minor," by Franck, and Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla-Khan."

Monteux, director of the San Francisco symphony for six years, has had a varied musical career. After graduation from the Paris conservatory, he joined the Cologne orchestra, eventually becoming assistant conductor. In 1911 he toured Europe with Serge Diaghileff's Ballet Russe as one of the principal conductors. Between tours he gave concerts in Paris called "Les Concerts Monteux," at which he introduced many modern compositions.

His tour with the Ballet Russe brought him to the United States for the first time in 1916. He received a post at the Metropolitan opera from 1917 to 1919 which he resigned to succeed Henri Rebaud as conductor of the Boston symphony.

After five years in Boston, Monteux devoted a decade to conducting the historic Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland. Because of his many positions Monteux has been called "the traveling salesman of music."

In this country he has conducted at New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles as well as Boston and San Francisco. This will be his first Chicago appearance.

The Budapest string quartet will follow Monteux at Ravinia, presenting a program of chamber music Tuesday, Aug. 12, to conclude Ravinia's broadcast season.

John Weigel, who announces the Chicagoland Hour, will present the musical commentary.

NURSES TO TELL THEIR PARTS IN WORK OF ARMY

An explanation of what makes the wheels go around in the United States army nursing service will be presented at 2 p. m. next Wednesday, Aug. 6, during the "Your Army" broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Two army nurses, Second Lieutenants Zella E. Weist and Clara R. Oberg, will be interviewed by Announcer Ward Quall. They will describe the social life, educational requirements and duties of women who serve in the Nursing corps of the army medical division.

"Your Army," a presentation of the W-G-N special events department, each week will take its listeners behind the scenes of different branches of the United States army. So far air corps and ROTC life has been described. Tentatively scheduled are programs dealing with the medical, quartermaster, hostess, cooking, and air cadet corps.

ELSON AND ANSON DUEL IN W-G-N GAME THURSDAY

Andy Frain in Bull Pen as Reserve Pitcher.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob [Glass Arm] Elson vs. Bill [Swing It!] Anson!

That's the super-hurling setup for the softball game next Thursday evening between the W-G-N Radio All-Stars and the W-G-N Retrievers, regular members of the Chicago Editorial league. The game starts at 9 p. m. under the lights at Spencer Coal Field, 4200 North Central avenue, a preliminary is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Receipts will go to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Free Ice and Camp Algonquin funds. But there is no charity in the remarks being made by the players about their rivals in the fortcoming battle.

The feud boiled over yesterday after the baseball committee heard rumors that a bribe had been offered Elson to quit the Retrievers and join the All-Star pitching lineup.

Chairman Heidrich Rules.

"He plays with the Retrievers all season," ruled Chairman Milton Heidrich, "and a Retriever he'll be on Thursday. Or else. End quote."

Anson, who imitates Jack Benny, Charley McCarthy, Tom, Dick, and Harry, and other celebrities on his W-G-N radio programs, has been impersonating Bob Feller and Ted Lyons all week.

A healthy replacement for Anson, in case Bill has to go to a radio station and play some phonograph records, was found last night in Andy Frain, whose ushers serve at W-G-N studio shows and all big time events. Frain is providing a full crew for duty at Spencer Coals field.

Two Girl Mascots.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor; Bud Vandover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Vandover [Tom, Dick, and Harry], Guy Savage, Jack Brickhouse, Jess Kirkpatrick, Spencer Allen, Charles Victor, Alan Scott, Producer Paul Fogarty [Ask-It-Ball], Charles Flynn [Harold Teen], Ed Prentiss [Capt. Midnight], and Olan Soule, heard in several dramatic rôles will be among the Stars in action.

Uncle Harry Hosford of A. B. C. club fame will manage the Stars. Lucy Gilman, comely actress in "Painted Dreams," will be mascot and bat-girl. Alice Goodkin, also on W-G-N dramatic shows will do the same for the Retrievers. Dorothy Gregory of Citizens of Tomorrow and other shows, will be official scorer.

Tickets for the game are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower. Prices are 50 cents [including tax] for adults, and 10 cents for children. The tickets also may be obtained at the gate.

HAROLD TEEN TO PRODUCE EPICS IN HOLLYWOOD

The movie moguls of Hollywood had better look to their laurels. American youth, in the person of Harold Teen and his breezy, carefree friends, have decided to produce motion picture epics and rush to fame and fortune. The steps they have taken to get their names in lights and on the lips of the American public will be revealed in entertaining, comical drama during the "Harold Teen" program on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Harold, who manages to kick around the English language with a freedom that would make Shakespeare blush, has decided to become an author and write moving, inspiring movie scenarios and cast his pals Shadow and Beezie in important supporting rôles. Teen, of course, will have the lead; Lillums will be his true love, and Cynthia will be the vamp. How successful they are in their artistic endeavors will be told in light-hearted, slap-haphazard comedy next Tuesday night.

"Harold Teen" is the new dramatic series based on the famed Chicago Tribune comic strip of the same name. Charles Flynn plays the title rôle. Bob Jellison is Shadow, Marvin Mueller is cast as Beezie, while Loretta Poynton is Lillums, and Beryl Vaughn, formerly a movie starlet, plays Cynthia.

LaFollette, Kilpatrick to Discuss U. S. Responsibility

William H. Kilpatrick, educational authority, and Philip F. LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will discuss "America's Responsibility in the World Today" on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:25 a. m. today. Dean Ernest O. Melby of Northwestern's school of education will be the chairman of the discussion.

Northerners to Present a Little Known Song

A little known but beautiful song, only once before played in the United States, will be the featured number on the Northerners broadcast over W-G-N next Tuesday from 9:30 to 10 p. m. The selection, titled "Priere," by Massenet, was first played by the Northerners in March, 1940, and has been scheduled for the Tuesday program after many listeners have written requests to hear it again. The male octet will sing it.

Mary Small Will Sing "Confidentially Yours"

"Confidentially Yours," popular ballad, will be Mary Small's solo during her broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. Mary and the Boy Friends chorus will sing "Maria Elena" and the choir the well known Negro folk air, "Shortnin' Bread." Then the entire ensemble will blend their voices in the soft, sentimental song which has been sweeping the country, "Intermezzo."

Mr. D.F. McMahon
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon,

"To become permanent, it is necessary to move."

That is the slogan, as you might remember, that we adopted when we opened our first subsidiary shops as extensions of Blums-Vogue. And that is the slogan we are using today in connection with our new, greatly enlarged Blums-Evanston shop which is to open in the near future in a new location opposite the Evanston Woman's Club.

Blums-Evanston, during its eight years in its present location at 709 Church Street, has become one of the North Shore's most popular women's apparel shops. Its business has grown steadily, until now it is necessary for us to house it in quarters more than twice its present size. And we believe that when we have finished remodeling the new building, it will be so exquisitely and attractively done it will be a showplace in its own right.

In merchandising, we have keyed this shop to those who live in and around Evanston, and in the North Shore suburbs. For here we will offer an enlarged collection of distinctive Blum fashions, furs, hats, and accessories for city and suburban life ... plus a new feature: shoes of our own design and the nationally famous Delman line exclusive with us in this territory.

In advertising, we have found that the North Metropolitan section of The Chicago Tribune reaches our largest audience with a minimum of "waste circulation". We expect to continue our use of this medium, since it not only brings us new customers, but helps us maintain contact with our old friends and customers.

Sincerely yours,

Pres.
Blums Inc.

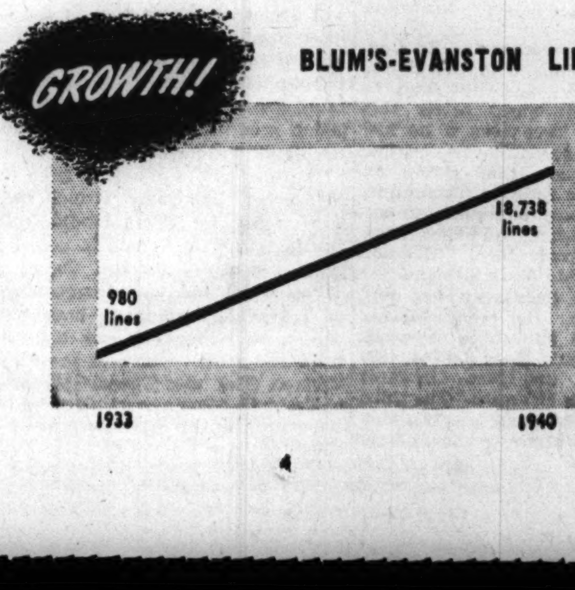
Progress of Evanston shop linked to advertising concentrated in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

IN the accompanying letter, another merchant tells how Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising has helped build sales and aided his store's progress.

Are you taking maximum advantage of this low-cost method of reaching your best customers and prospects? Last year 796 neighborhood enterprises, large and small, located thruout Chicago and the suburbs, used Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising to increase their patronage and profits.

One or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—is edited for and read exclusively by the people best able to trade with you. You cannot find a more effective, economical way to reach and produce response from the people right on your side of town.

To build store traffic, speed turnover and step up your profits, ask a Tribune representative to give you complete information about this low-cost business-building plan. Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.



BLUM'S-EVANSTON LINAGE IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE METROPOLITAN SECTIONS 1933-1940

Blum's-Evanston opened for business in 1933. Each year since, the store's newspaper advertising schedule has been concentrated in Chicago Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections. Space used to date exceeds 100,000 lines.

TRAFFIC DEATHS AMONG CHILDREN SHOW BIG JUMP

Up 44 Per Cent Over Toll of 1940.

Death to Chicago's pedestrian children from traffic accidents in the first half of this year rose 44 per cent over the same period in 1940. Twenty-five youngsters, all under 16 years, were killed last year from Jan. 1 to June 30, as compared to 36 deaths for the first half of 1941.

These figures have been released by the Chicago Motor club which recently completed a survey with Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee. A month by month tabulation of child deaths for the two periods follows:

	1940.	1941.
January	0	4
February	4	5
March	3	6
April	3	4
May	7	10
June	8	7

Studies made in other years show that child traffic deaths increase 68 per cent during July and August. This increase, traffic men say, is due to the fact the two months are the school vacation period, which brings a slackening of safety education among children.

Where Death Occurred

Six pedestrian younsters were killed on the northwest side from January thru June this year. Nine were killed on the south side, six on the north side, eight in the west area, and seven in the southwest section.

Northwest Side.

As a means of fighting the steadily rising death toll, particularly during the vacation months, the motor club has launched a $500 back yard contest appealing to fathers and mothers to set aside a portion of their property for the use of children.

Grand Prize of $100.

A grand prize of $100 will be awarded for the most useful yard in Cook county. Sectional prizes of $25 each are to be given to the owners of yards designed to keep youngsters off the streets. Entry blanks may be obtained from the motor club offices, 66 East South Water street.

Traffic dangers are being reduced during the school term by the safety patrol boys, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said.

"Educational leaders thruout the Chicago area have given their support to a number of excellent safety programs for children," he declared. "With their aid the school safety patrol is steadily reducing the dangers to and from school. But during the vacation months and after school hours these programs are relaxed and the children are on their own.

"Parents must coöperate. The most logical way is to guide the child's normal activities into safe places. A back yard play yard keeps them off the street.

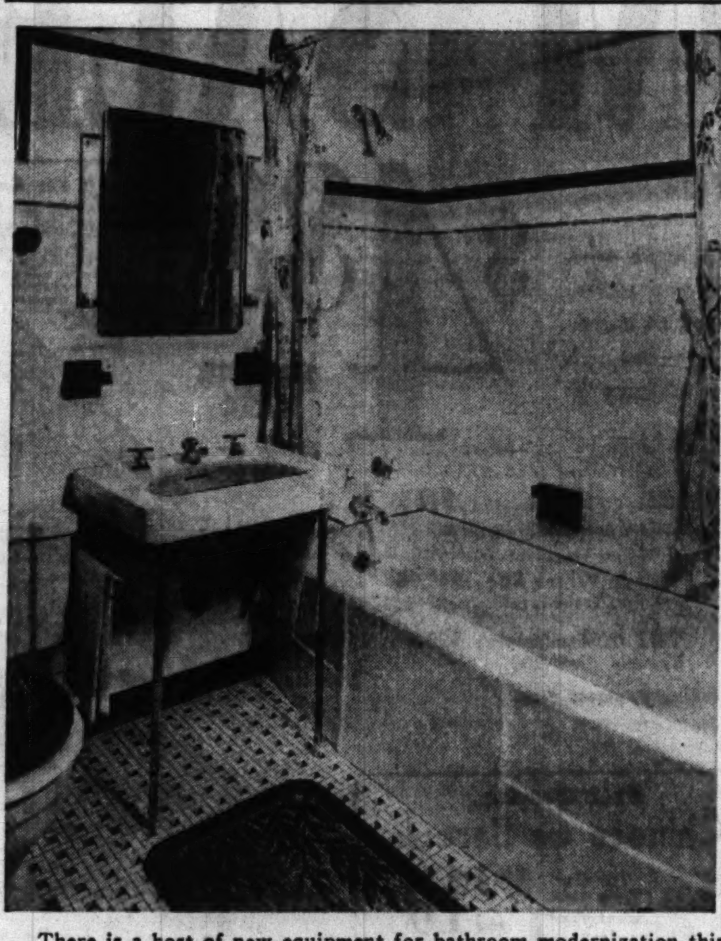
Chariot Race to Highlight Picnic of K. of C. Today

A chariot race will highlight the annual picnic of the Father Perez council, No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, today at Sunset grove, 135th street and Archer avenue. George A. Wahl is general chairman of the outing. There will be athletic events and dancing. Buses for the grounds will leave 63d street and Ashland avenue, starting at 9:45 o'clock.

Former Toluca Residents Will Have Picnic Sunday

The Chi-Uca club, an organization of 2,000 persons residing in the Chicago area who claim Toluca as their home town, will hold a picnic next Sunday in Kegel's grove, Archer avenue and 89th street.

Bathroom Modernized



There is a host of new equipment for bathroom modernization this late summertime—colored plumbing fixtures in tastefully matched sets, improved showers, faucets, valves, and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dinovo, 11200 South Talman avenue, took advantage of the miracles modernizing magic can work in bathrooms and kitchens and achieved some fine results in their home.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 4.

Scales on fern leaves or fronds should be sprayed with nicotine and fish oil soap, or any recommended preparation. If in doubt as to whether scales are present try removing one with the finger; if it moves easily it is a scale, and if it cannot be readily removed it is a spore case.

Plant a calla lily for indoor growing. It is a good house plant and likes a rich soil. When the roots are well developed give plenty of water.

Watch indoor plants for attacks of mealybugs, and if any are seen knock them off with a spray of water under pressure of the fingers. The bug has a cottony coat surrounding it. A nicotine solution also will kill them.

Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Tender water lilies are rapidly assuming their best flowering habit, and those interested in these plants should visit park basins and note the best kinds. At the Garfield park flower garden a fine collection, including many of the newest hybrids, may be seen. Note the varieties: August Koch, Pink Pearl, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri, the two latter being new and among the largest flowering kinds.

Many gardeners fail to have a knowledge of proper watering practices. Unless the weather is extremely dry, it should be necessary to water only twice each week, but it must be a thoro job. The ground should be soaked to a depth of five inches.

Evaporation is rapid during periods of extreme drouth and the gardener should study his soil and know how it reacts to water. Clay soils naturally retain moisture longer than sandy, loamy soils; the latter requires more attention than the former.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Prepare the new lawn, because fall made lawns are more likely to succeed than spring made lawns. First, thoro preparation of the soil is essential. A heavy soil may be lightened by incorporating sifted ashes into it; use enough to do some good. Humus worked in also will aid such soils, but if it cannot be drained easily a line of tile may be necessary.

Light, sandy soils may be made to hold water more readily by adding humus, which also aids in the manufacture of plant food. Work the soil into a fine seed bed, without lumps, and see that drainage is away from the house. Buy the best grade of seed.

Thursday, Aug. 7.

Gardeners who build up shrub and flower beds until the plants are raised above the surface of the lawn will find that such beds drain off water rapidly. Keep plants grown in hedge form rather below the bed than above it and water will be retained where it is needed.

Friday, Aug. 8.

Outdoor flowers should be growing rapidly at this time, but remember that annuals give more flowers when the withered blooms are kept out. If there seems too much foliage on nasturtiums and similar plants, remove part of it. Keep roses well watered and sprayed.

Cases where dahlias have made a good growth and suddenly wilted are common and yet it is not easy to find the cause. Borers enter the stems and cause the stems to wilt and each borer must be cut out and destroyed. New plants for the indoor window garden can be started now. A seed bed can be prepared in a partially shaded spot; make the surface fine and water well with a sprinkling can to provide a moist soil. Sow the seeds when the soil can be worked without sticking. Transplant the seedlings into flats or small pots and shift whenever necessary.

Saturday, Aug. 9.

Plants from cuttings also may be made in sandy soil. Prepare a spot next to the seed bed and make arrangements for shading. Keep the cutting bed from drying out thru careful attention to watering. When making cuttings remove a part of the leaves to prevent too rapid evaporation. A small pan holding about three inches of sand makes a good medium in which to root cuttings.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

YOUNG ORPHANS WIN SUPPORT OF AN OLDER ONE

Henry Nierman to Help Annual Outing.

Henry F. Nierman.

Henry F. Nierman as chairman of the newly formed alumni committee of the Orphans' Automobile Day association is seeking former residents of orphanages to assist with this year's orphans' outing in Lincoln park on Aug. 20. Each year the association entertains 5,000 orphans and 2,000 older folks.

A description of Henry Nierman today would designate him as an average American enjoying the comfort and security of his own business and his family. At 48, he is the proprietor of a print shop at 3306 North California avenue, which is also his home address. And he is the father of three sons, 6, 14, and 20 years old, and two daughters, 18 and 19 years old. That's Henry Nierman now. Back in 1900, he was 7 years old, just getting his second teeth and entering Angel Guardian orphanage at Ridge and Devon avenues.

Recalls Own Youth.

The red brick orphanage was his home for seven years. His playmates were the 799 other orphans there. When he was 14, he left Angel Guardian, but he didn't forget it. When he first read of the annual outings provided by the Orphans' Automobile Day association, he thought of what a treat such an excursion would have been back in 1900. Recently, he decided he should contribute his services and joined the association—the first orphan to do so in 30 years.

Nierman is mailing circulars to as many former orphanage residents as he can find. Fifty orphanages will participate in the outing, and Nierman believes that if many of the committee members are former orphans themselves there will be greater understanding of what the day's activities mean. The youngsters will be taken to Lincoln park and will have their noon meal there.

37 Year Project.

Charles J. Retterer as president of the association appointed Nierman to his new post. Both Nierman and Retterer are anxious to have people know that being a former orphan is not a requirement for contributing to the cause, however.

The association was set up 37 years ago after an automobile dealer, A. J. Banta, had taken some youngsters on a trip to the park. He told members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association about the satisfaction of giving so much pleasure to the children and the idea grew.

It branched out from the automobile trade to the Chicago Motor club and to funeral directors—all groups having cars for transportation. The automobile is more common than it was 37 years ago which is just one more good reason why more and more youngsters may participate in the outing, Nierman believes.

"Of course," he says, "it takes a lot of coöperation. I'm new at this job, but I'd certainly like to do everything I can to give the kids a grand time."

JEWISH COUNCIL RENAMES CAMP FOR GOV. HORNER

As a memorial to the late Gov. Horner, Camp Wooster, near Round Lake, has been renamed Camp Henry Horner and will be dedicated this afternoon by the Young Men's Jewish council. Gov. Horner was one of the founders of the camp.

The camp provides vacations for more than 1,500 underprivileged boys. It spreads over 60 acres of wooded land. Organized in 1912, the camp is owned by the Young Men's Jewish council.

The dedication services will include a talk by Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the Criminal court, who was a lifelong friend of Gov. Horner.

AUGUST IS GOOD MONTH TO TAKE STOCK OF HOME

Heating or Plumbing May Need Attention.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

For August—and the summer—home improvements:

Have you noticed that sinks and lavatories, pipes and radiators, boilers and bathtubs are presenting a united and streamlined front for the security homes of 1941 and 1942?

We are even seeing new trends in decoration which adapt red, white, and blue color schemes for bathrooms, basements, and kitchens. One can obtain bathroom fixtures in red and blue or use white fixtures with accessories in red and blue. Or perhaps you choose a blue tub, a white shelf back lavatory and closet, and accessories in red and white. Indeed, equipment, fixtures, fittings, and decorations for all these rooms are now manufactured in so many handsome shades of blue and red and off tones of white that a defense color scheme is simple to achieve if one is building or remodeling a kitchen, basement, or bath.

Adjustable Showers.

If you have an old type large showerhead in your bath you can investigate the new, small water saving styles. One comes mounted on a ball joint so you can adjust it at any angle you wish, and adjust the water, too, from a stinging spray to a gentle flood. Or if you haven't a shower in your bathroom a master plumber can install one in short order, with no drain on the budget or cut in the plaster or wall decoration.

Inexpensive gadgets are available which contribute joy to a shower bath. Chromium plate towel racks can be placed high on the wall within easy reach; a second soap dish, placed higher up on your wall, will eliminate groping and stooping for the shower bather, and a long grab bar covered with gleaming chromium plate gives a firm, safe hold.

China Easily Cleaned.

If you would condition your water this month, soften its hardness, remove its iron and dispel its cloudiness there are many types of equipment on the market to perform these tasks. What size and type water conditioning equipment you need depends on the number of gallons of water you use per day and the amount and kind of impurities in your water.

Every month we are more aware of the increasing help that modern fixtures and equipment contribute to ease in house maintenance.

The new vitreous china lavatories clean as easily as a china dish and cut on household routine. The low, built-in tubs are infinitely easier to keep fit than the older types on legs. The double compartment, double drainboard sinks with handy retractable hose to speed up cleaning of vegetables and washing and rinsing of dishes is another labor saver. Some of these new ones have a flat shelf at back for glassware.

Automatic Heating.

Automatic heating is available with all kinds of fuel. You can install a stoker with your present boiler or furnace or convert your present heating system for oil or gas fired use. If you are in need of a new boiler or furnace check on those specially designed for different types of fuel.

Should you decide this month to paint the woodwork in some room—woodwork which must take considerable abuse—there's an enamel on the market with a new synthetic oil base. This is highly resistant to stains, crayon markings, and the hard traffic that woodwork sometimes has to withstand when there's youth in the home.

Now comes ready made, in four pastel shades, a washable wallboard prefinished at the factory. Nice for some attic bedroom you may be wrestling out of previously neglected space. This wallboard, in buff, green, gray, or coral, eliminates the need for futher decoration, and its boards, made of fiber, provide strong, smooth, attractive surfaces.

NAME CHAIRMEN OF RECREATION SESSION NOV. 18

Chairmen of the conference committees for the annual city-wide recreation meeting to be held Nov. 18 were named last week by Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head of the general planning group.

The chairmen are V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, head of the evening program committee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the liason commitee; Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, state chairman of the American Artists Professional league, reception committee, and August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the public schools, chairman of the day program committee.

Recreational leaders from all parts of the nation will attend the seventh annual conference at the Hotel Sherman. More than 5,000 persons are expected to take part. The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission.

CHURCH FOLKS TO HOLD REUNION IN MUNDELEIN

It will be something like a reunion for hundreds of the Chicagoans who will attend the fourth annual carnival and chicken dinner of Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein next Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. J. H. McTigue, pastor of the church, was formerly stationed at St. Kilian's, St. Jerome's, and All Saints churches in Chicago, and many of his former parishioners will be on hand next week-end, it was indicated. Games and other entertainment have been planned. The committee on arrangements includes James Gaul, James Markham, John K. Dorsey, and Joseph Epstein, all of Chicago.

GRANDMAS MAP PROGRAMS FOR FALL MEETING

National Club to Hold Rally in Chicago.

When members of the Chicago chapter of National Grandmothers' Club, Inc., meet these days, they don't talk about their grandchildren—at least not exclusively. They devote considerable time to discussion of plans and programs for the national convention at which the Chicago chapter will be the hostess club the first week-end in October at tht Morrison hotel. And prominent in the plans and the planning is Mrs. Marie K. Brown, 7712 East Lake terrace, national president of the organization.

Mrs. Brown is by way of being the founder of the organization, all because she celebrated becoming a grandmother by inviting other grandmothers to breakfast with her.

Met At a Breakfast.

The breakfast took place in Bloomington, Ill., in the spring of 1934. Mrs. Brown had established herself as the first woman public relations representative of a railroad when she organized the first all-woman conducted tour over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1923.

Since then she has headed the women's division of the B. & O., and it was as a business woman that she was addressing a business and professional women's convention in Bloomington when she heard she had become a grandmother. She announced her news and invited all the grandmothers in her audience to breakfast with her next morning.

The breakfasts continued thru the annual conventions, and the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., was launched in 1938. Now the organization has an official badge, a publication, and a platform.

Badge a Gold Circle.

The badge is a gold circle with a brown enamel background. Tiny bars hang from the badge, and each bar bears the name of a grandchild. "Autumn Leaves" is the club paper.

The platform, or objects of the organization, include campaigning for better entertainment for children, assisting in research on children's diseases, and working to perpetuate the peace and liberty enjoyed in this country.

Mrs. Brown, who has resided in Rogers Park for the last 20 years, has enjoyed business success, but she says, "To be a grandmother is the crowning experience of life." She has a son and a daughter, and each has a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Dorothea Sullivan, 4434 North Monitor avenue, is president of the Chicago chapter and will head the coming pre-convention committee meetings.

Park Lifeguards to Hold Ninth Annual Dance Friday

Chicago park district lifeguards will hold their ninth annual ball Friday evening in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. Paddy Driscoll, park district beach manager at Oak street and recently appointed coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team, will be a special guest.

Plan Track Meet.

An interproject track and field meet will be held Wednesday at the Jane Addams housing project.

N. U. VACATION THEATER USED AS DRAMA LAB

AddSuburbanTouch to Shakespeare.

The Northwestern university summer theater, housed in the school of speech building on the Evanston campus, serves the two-fold purpose of providing a laboratory for summer session speech students and entertainment for the public. Organized at the opening of summer session each year, the staff and players produce a series of plays which range from Shakespeare to modern compositions. Performances are held Wednesday thru Saturday evenings each week of summer school.

Six plays were announced this season. With five given, the curtain will open on the final production, Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," on Wednesday evening. The bard's blank verse follows the modern high school dialog used in last week's production, the world première of "Ever Since Eve" by the writing team of Florence Ryerso nand Colin Clements. But whether the plot concerns the problems of editing a high school paper as in "Ever Since Eve" or the problems of married life in Padua, the N. U. players do the show from making costumes and props to selling tickets and ushering.

No Royalties to the Bard.

The summer playbill always includes vehicles especially adapted for use in secondary schools because many of the students are high school speech teachers. Hence the choice of "The Taming of the Shrew." High school students like the comedy. Moreover, Shakespeare doesn't collect royalty.

Casts are selected by tryout at the beginning of the summer session. Students are appointed for props and scenery and costumes. Others are selected for the posts of assistant director, stage manager, and assistant stage manager. Presiding over all activity is Theodore Fuchs, director of the university theater.

Speech school faculty members supervise. They include Alvina Krause, a director; Lee Mitchell, scenery designer; Berneice Prisk, costumes; Clement Ramsland, director and classroom lecturer; Walter Scott, literaure lecturer and drama adviser, and Winifred Ward, director of the children's theater which is jointly sponsored by the school of speech and the Evanston public school PTA. The best play of the children's winter season is usually selected for production on the summer schedule. This year the play was "Tom Sawyer," directed by Geraldine Brain.

Makes Prompt Book.

Clement Ramsland directs "The Taming of the Shrew," and his first duty for the task is the preparation of a prompt book. This begins as a large scrapbook. In the middle of each blank page is pasted a page of lines from the play. The result is several inches of margin around each sheet of lines, and thereon the director must write in all of the changes and business he plans.

Richard Saunders is Petruchio, and June Musgrave is the shrewish Katherine. Barbara Will is Katherine's sister, Bianca, and Warren Ward is Baptista, their father. Selection of characters must precede the next step in the play production which is the designing of the costumes.

The director confers with Miss Berneice Prisk at that point and she inventories what there is on hand. A student sewing crew makes new gowns or wigs, and fit and alter stock outfits. Men's tailored costumes are purchased or rented. Miss Prisk has been with the theater since 1929 and has done more than 200 shows in that time.

Evanstonian Shakespeare.

Scenes for "The Taming of the Shrew" are strictly Evanstonian. Designed by Jack Hubbard, they include Fountain square, an Orrington avenue garden party, an Evanston church, and a popular spot just outside the city limits.

Stage lighting is controled from a switchboard which could be duplicated in schools using homebuilt equipment. Fuchs, the theater director, is the author of "Stage Lighting." The theater furnishes grotesque makeup, but students must have their own greasepaint and powder for straight rôles.

Students in the winter session must try out for the Studio theater first. If their performance in that organization is sufficiently meritorious, they are allowed to try out for the University theater. However, this routine is somewhat relaxed in the summertime.

St. Margaret Mary's Club Plans Golf Tournament

The Young People's club of St. Margaret Mary's parish will hold a golf tournament and supper-dance today at Elmgate Country club in Glenview. The tournament will start at 1:30 o'clock and the dance at 7 o'clock. Miss Helen Steinmuller is in charge of reservations. Robert Faber is club president.

Volunteer Firemen to Give Show at Morton Grove

A two day fire show will be staged Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 16 and 17, by the Cook County Suburban Volunteer Firemen at Linne woods, Morton Grove.

University Theater Will Have Modern Sets for 'Taming of the Shrew'

Richard Saunders, a student in Norhwestern university's school of speech, ties on a big patchwork hat and becomes Petruchio for the university theater's final summer season production, "The Taming of the Shrew." By way of rehearsal, he embraces a dummy dressed up in his Kate's wedding clothes. Modern sets showing Evanston scenes have been designed for the show opening Wednesday and playing thru Saturday evening in the theater at the speech school on the Evanston campus. June Musgrave has the role of Petruchio's Kate.

Makeup is applied to show up effectively under the stage lights and to carry out the illusion in special character roles. John Harlan is applying the grease paint preparatory to doing a blackface part while Dave Hyatt, head makeup man of the theater, directs the procedure. Lighting has become increasingly important. Miss Helen Picking and McDonald Held operate the switchboard designed by the university theater director, Theodore Fuchs. This board can be duplicated by groups who must build their own lighting equipment.

Costumes for all Northwestern university theater shows begin upon Miss Berneice Prisk's drawing board. Miss Prisk has been with the theater since 1929 and has costumed more than 200 shows in that time. Besides such items as frocks and skirts and coats, Miss Prisk does stylized wigs and masks.

Miss Prisk's designs are carried out in the theater workroom which is fully equipped with heavy duty sewing machines, a dummy for fittings, cutting tables, and boxes of buttons, hooks, and trimmings. Miss Virginia Kral, left, and Miss Faye Kingsbury are sewing for women in "The Taming of the Shrew" cast. Men's tailored clothing isn't made in the show. It is bought, borrowed, or rented.

SKOKIE HIGHWAY WILL GET 7 NEW TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Seven traffic acuated signals will be installed along Skokie highway in Cook and Lake counties, it was announced last week by the Illinois state highway department.

Installation will get under way as soon as agreements are completed with municipalities for the furnishing of electricity. The lights are to show green at all times for Skokie traffic except when vehicles on the cross roads pass over the automatic actuators which will change the signals.

The lights are to be installed at the following intersections along Skokie highway: Berkley road, Clavey road, Lake-Cook county line road, Tower road, Winnetka road, Gross Point road, and Main stret. Several of the intersections have been the scenes of numerous accidents.

Guest Preacher.

The Rev. Irving A. West of Zanesville, O., will be guest preacher at this morning's services of the Second Presbyterian church of Evanston.

Legion Notes

The annual picnic of Custom House post of the American Legion, assisted by the Chicago branch of the National Custom Service association, will be held today at Schiller Woods grove, Irving Park road and River road. Joseph A. Ziemba, collector of customs, has been invited to act as judge of the sports events.

Officers recently elected by Marshall Field & Co. post are H. A. Williams, commander; V. H. Jensen, senior vice commander; R. C. Elliott, junior vice commander; G. E. Jacobs, adjutant; Ira Gay, chaplain; H. J. Lutterloh, historian, and J. C. Robbins, sergeant at arms. The new officers will be installed at a dinner Sept. 9 at the Merchants and Manufacturers club in the Merchandise mart. The program will include a floor show and dancing.

Civil Service post recently elected Daniel K. Sherman, commander; John McMahon, senior vice commander; John Linehan, junior vice commander; Lee Naftalin, finance officer, and John Butala, sergeant at arms.

HIGHLAND PARK TO HAVE COURSE IN LIFESAVING

The park board of Highland Park, in coöperation with the American Red Cross, has added a water safety and lifesaving course to the summer program. Classes will be held at the Central avenue bathing beach the week of Aug. 11 to 15. Any one 12 years old or over may register at either Central avenue or Roger Williams beaches. There will be two groups: juniors, 12 to 16 years old, and seniors, over 16. Classes will meet from 9 o'clock until noon on the five days of the course.

Woman's Band to Present Concert in Park Tonight

The Chicago Woman's Concert band, conducted by Lillian Poenisch, will play a concert at 8 o'clock this evening in the Lincoln park band shell. Soloists will be Genevieve Kaleth, trumpeter, and Luigi Lo Monaco, baritone.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

THE Rev. William F. Orrick, assistant rector at St. Luke's church, Evanston, has been appointed diocesan advisor to Gamma Kappa Delta, Episcopal young people's organization, it was announced last week by Bishop Wallace E. Conkling. The Rev. Mr. Orrick is a graduate of Seabury-Western Theological seminary, Evanston, and before going to St. Luke's church was priest in charge of St. Thomas' church of Morris, Ill. He has been active in youth work for several years, serving as counselor of the young people's group at St. Luke's, and as an advisor of the Craig club, Episcopal student organization at Northwestern university.

POSSIBILITY of the establishment of another coast guard station in Our Town was seen recently with the introduction of a bill in congress by Representative George A. Paddock [10th] asking for authorization to construct a station at Waukegan. The nearest stations to Waukegan at present are at Kenosha, Wis., 20 miles north, and Wilmette, 16 miles south.

Two Our Town couples recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversaries. They are Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Schilling, 2013 Addison street, and Mr. and Mrs. August Heintz, 1441 Willow street.

The largest commencement class in the history of Moody Bible institute will be graduated Tuesday evening. The class consists of 152 young men and women. Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of Moody church, will deliver the commencement address.

ELAINE WERTHEIMER of Highland Park recently won a place in the violin section of the National High School orchestra of the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., where each summer outstanding high school musicians gather for study under well known instructors.

One Evanston cadet at The Citadel, military school at Charleston, S. C., is among six Illinois youths who will wear gold stars of academic excellence this fall. He is Dan M. Fort, junior at the school.

A lineball tournament will be held at the Albany Park Boys' club, 4710 North Central Park avenue, Wednesday. Meyer Visotzky is director of the club.

Auxiliary of Tobacco Unit Holds Outing Wednesday

The Illinois Auxiliary of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors' club for women will hold its summer outing on Wednesday at Roselle Country club, according to Mrs. Jacob J. Van Buren, 5109 Cornell avenue president. Mrs. Michael Bloom, 515 Belmont avenue, is chairman in charge of arrangements for the outing.

Old Settlers Await Their 67th Outing

Tomorrow will be a day with a past.

It will be the official day for Chicago's old folks who can reminisce about such items of lore as the straw on the floor of the cable cars, or the great fire of '71, or "Little Egypt" of the 1893 World's Fair, or the muddy farmlands just north of Fullerton avenue.

For 67 years one day of each summer has been set aside for the Old Settlers' Picnic and Reunion.

Tomorrow's outing at Harm's park, Berteau and Western avenues is expected to draw 3,000 old timers.

Medals for Oldest.

As in other years, gold medals are to be awarded to the oldest man and woman settler present; to the one longest employed in the same concern and still working there; the oldest pensioned person; the one living in the same house the longest; the one with the largest family living, and to the married couple whose combined ages total the greatest number of years.

Bouquets also will be given to the 10 oldest couples dancing at the old settlers' ball, and prizes will be awarded to those with the best costumes.

The outing is sponsored by the Chicago Turners. H. F. Chaveriat, 1616 Ogden avenue, is chairman. Other officers of the arrangements committee are L. O. Greiner, vice chairman; R. P. Stover, executive secretary; Mrs. E. M. Rueck, secretary; F. J. Pfustler, assistant secretary, and A. W. Rayner, treasurer.

On Reception Committee.

North side members of the reception committee include A. V. Lathomus, George Banse, Dr. Karl A. Beuerlein, Herbert Burt, William Deuss, Emil Eitel, Karl Eitel, Max F. Ernst, August Fleck, George Hacker, Phillip Korrell, John Lenz, Oscar Mayer, George Michel, Dr. H. A. Moje, Louis Monninger, Conrad Neumann, J. A. Packert, Melchior Schneller, Traugott F. La Follette, Lyons to Talk in Evanston

Evanston will join the all-out movement to keep America out of war at a massmeeting to be held Thursday evening in the suburb's high school auditorium. Former Gov. Philip F. La Follette of Wisconsin and Richard J. Lyons, former Illinois state representative, will share the platform.

The rally, which will include a parade thru the town advertising the event on Wednesday evening, will be sponsored by the Evanston America First chapter. Gen. Robert E. Wood, America First national chairman, will preside.

Will Use Loud Speakers.

Plans to accommodate an overflow crowd were announced last week by Mrs. Edward W. Kimbark, Evanston chapter chairman. The high school auditorium has a capacity of 3,300 persons, but those unable to get seats will be able to listen thru loud speakers which will be installed outside the hall.

The doors will be open at 7 o'clock. There will be a program of band music until 8 o'clock and from 8 to 8:30 there will be community singing led by Desault R. Kirk, Chicago and Milwaukee Opera company singer, who will give several solos. Admission is free.

The parade Wednesday evening will assemble on Chicago avenue, south of the main entrance to Calvary cemetery, at 6:30 o'clock. Eight neighboring chapters will take part. Three are Chicago units, Lincoln Park, Rogers Park, and Loyola.

Chapters from Suburbs.

The other five are north suburban chapters, including Wilmette-Kenilworth, Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, and Lake Forest. A cash prize of $30 will be awarded for the best decorated float and $20 will be given to the owner of the best decorated private car in the parade.

La Follette, who was governor of Wisconsin from 1931 to 1939, will speak at the Thursday rally on "The Course of True Americanism." He will follow a short talk by Lyons, who is a resident of Libertyville. Lyons campaigned in the 1940 primaries for the Illinois gubernatorial nomination. One of his slogans was "Adequate defense but not one son nor one cent for foreign wars."

Miss Suzanne Hazelet is in charge of the Highland Park America First chapter during the absence this summer of Mrs. Phillip Johnson, chairman, who is touring California with her husband. Miss Hazelet is a student at Colorado college and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

M'CUTCHEON FAN GIVES FODDER AS BACK DROP FOR 'INJUN SUMMER'

Since John T. McCutcheon's cartoon, "Injun Summer," first appeared in 1912, it has been a favorite of Farmer Emil Juhnke. He, his wife and family will be on hand at Soldiers' field Aug. 16 to see it come to life on the huge stage of the Chicagoland Music festival.

But Mr. Juhnke will have more than a passive interest in the spectacle because the corn shocks on the stage will be those transplanted from the fields of his farm at Elgin and Elmhurst roads.

Last fall Mr. Juhnke harvested a bumper corn crop and laid away a surplus of stalks in his barn. The supply was intended as fodder for his hogs, but Mr. Juhnke didn't mind parting with them when he learned they would help the festival. "There's no doubt about it," he said as he supervised the loading of 3,000 stalks on a Tribune truck, "John McCutcheon's the best cartoonist in the world."

The deadline for all festival entries both in Cook county and outside Cook county is tomorrow night at 6 o'clock. All signed entry blanks must be in festival headquarters office, 4th floor, Tribune Tower, at that time. This includes out of Cook county vocalists, all bands, choruses, solo instrumentalists, baton twirlers, and flag swingers.

DEFENSE PLANS ARE LIKELY TO INCREASE TOTAL

North Area Jobs to Cost $1,496,000.

State highway improvements to cost a total of $1,496,952 are now under way or are soon to start in northern and northwestern Chicagoland, it was announced last week by Walter A. Rosenfield, Illinois director of public works.

These are a part of the Chicagoland total of $8,350,000 in paving and improvements being made or on schedule for the immediate future, Rosenfield said. Most of this work is already under contract, and the rest will be as soon as right-of-way and other problems can be ironed out.

Promise of even more state road work to come was given by recent congressional passage of an emergency appropriation which will give Illinois about $5,000,000 for defense highway work. This work includes access roads to military and naval reservations and routes regarded as strategically important to the national defense.

For Military Needs

As soon as this additional money becomes available, much of it will be used to improve the streets and highway in and near the Fort Sheridan military reservation, it was indicated. Large paving projects are already under way near the Kankakee and Elwood ordnance plants south of Joliet, and more are being planned.

The biggest of the northern Chicagoland projects covered by Rosenfield's survey is the $430,500 subway in Lake Forest that will take route 59A traffic under the North Western and the North Shore tracks in the vicinity of Barat college.

A kindred project is the subway beneath the Milwaukee railroad, also on route 59A in Lake Forest, which will cost $176,212. Grading and safety signal work will cost several thousand dollars additional at both places.

Paving for Wilmette

Next in size among the undertakings is Sheridan road paving in Wilmette, which will cost a total of $116,997. Work is under way on a stretch .84 of a mile long from the northern city limits south to Washington avenue, which will cost $74,115.

However, right of way difficulties are preventing the start of work on a .35 of a mile expanse from Central avenue south to Linden avenue. The trouble has been in obtaining new right of way in exchange for old, so that a bad turn in Sheridan road can be unkinked.

A $200,000 improvement of Sheridan road from Westleigh road in Lake Forest to Clay street in Highwood is expected to start in the next few weeks. This calls for 1.95 miles of concrete paving 40 feet wide, and four flashing light signals to protect its users from cross traffic at grade intersections.

In McHenry county, work is well along on the paving of State route 176 between routes 47 and 31 near Crystal lake. This paving is 5.51 miles long and will cost $200,771.

Resurface River road.

Another northern Chicagoland project that is nearing completion is the resurfacing of River road from Maywood north to Des Plaines. The distance is 8.8 miles, and the total cost $286,302.

Other projects in the same area, all of which are already started are:

Soo line subway in Des Plaines, $2,387.

Paving of State routes 21 and 62 on Elston and Avondale avenues and Gettysburg street in Chicago, $45,103.

Bituminous resurfacing of Milwaukee avenue from Wheeling to Niles, $64,829. This is being accomplished without serious interference with heavy week-end traffic, according to the Chicago Motor club.

Lighting system for Mannheim road-Milwaukee railroad subway in Franklin Park, $9,229.

Widening and paving of Talcott avenue in Chicago, between Canfield and Bryn Mawr avenues, $49,214.

Curbs and gutters on Harlem avenue between Wellington avenue and Irving Park road, $12,799.

Resurfacing of Central avenue from Lake street to North avenue in Chicago $53,321.

ST. DOMINIC'S PARISH TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

The annual picnic of St. Dominic's parish, 357 West Locust street, will be held Wednesday in Harms park. Designated as the homecoming festival of St. Dominic's, the event annually draws members of the parish and also many former pupils of the parish school. Edward Gauna is chairman of arrangements. His assistants are: Thomas Powers, Vic Scimeca, Mrs. Hannah Powers, Mrs. Edward Kelly, Mrs. Gertrude O'Malley, Mrs. Eva Shine, Mrs. Mary Kostas, Miss Mary Jane Dougherty, and Sam La Scola.

Church Dinner.

The fourth annual chicken dinner and carnival of the Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein, will be held Saturday and next Sunday. Dinner will be served at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. The Rev. J. H. McTigue is pastor of the church

HOMES IN BUFFER AREAS CONFUSE ZONING OF CITY

Industrial Expansion Reveals Trend.

Conflict between residences and industries is helping to complicate the task of providing Chicago with a workable new zoning ordinance. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council subcommittee that is preparing the new ordinance, declared that in some instances the defense program has been hampered by inconsistencies of the existing zoning law which the new one is to replace.

"There have been several cases," Lindell said, "where industries forced to expand by the receipt of defense orders could not do so conveniently because residences had encroached upon them.

"The old ordinance set up so-called buffer zones, specifying that industries could not build within certain distances of dwellings. This distance varied from 400 to 2,000 feet, according to the nature of the industry.

Home Owner Suffers.

"There was nothing in the old ordinance, however, to prevent the owner of industrial property from using it as homesites. That is in fact what happened.

"Land speculators bought up cheap industrial zones, subdivided them, and sold lots to prospective small home owners, who in many cases did not learn until after they bought that they were not in residential zones.

"This had no immediate effect on industries. But when the defense program came along and many of them were faced with the necessity of expanding quickly, they ran up against the buffer zone provision of the old ordinance.

"It was necessary on several occasions for the city to waive this provision to expedite defense work. This was done, however, only in cases where it was clearly indicated that industry had prior rights; that is, where it could be shown that the area in question had been zoned for industry and usurped for residences."

Start Zoning Review.

Ald. Lindell cited the case of the Wisconsin Steel company plant on 106th street east of Lake Calumet, which had to get a special dispensation before it could install needed plant enlargements, all because a small residential subdivision had gone in just south of 110th street.

Discovery of the unexpected prohibition set up by this situation started the framers of the new zoning ordinance on a review of the whole industrial picture. It pointed to the need of steps to avoid recurrence. The new ordinance will prohibit the use of land for any other purpose than that for which it is specifically zoned.

Another case in point is that of the Revere Copper and Brass company, also a defense industry. When this concern began to enlarge its plant at Fullerton and Natchez avenues, nearby residents tried to block the move, arguing that any increase of industrial use would depreciate their property. The city ruled against them.

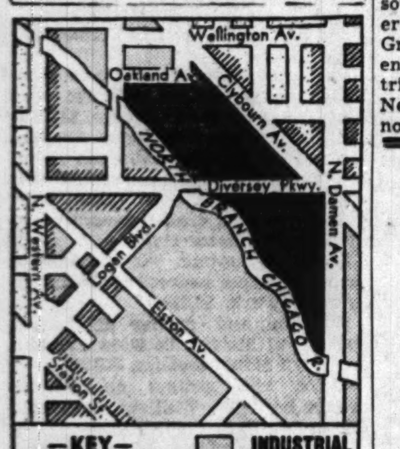
Place for Everything.

"Intelligent zoning is merely good municipal housekeeping," Ald. Lindell said. "In trying to provide Chicago with the best land use code possible, we are merely following the principle of 'a place for everything and everything in its place.'

"One of our big objectives in drawing the new code is to provide for the orderly use of property in only those districts to which such uses should be confined.

"Failure earlier to observe so fundamental a rule is responsible for the fact that property values in Chicago are speculative. In one sense Chicago property has no value, because of the breakdown of our zoning laws. These lowered property values will be enhanced as soon as prospective owners can be sure of the future character of the neighborhood in which they contemplate buying."

Mills, Homes Mingle



The aldermen preparing the new zoning ordinance say the Trumbull housing project shown here is an example of poor zoning practice. The apartment buildings are in a territory where industrial space is scarce.

SHIPS AND BIRDS TO GROW FROM SAND AT BEACH

Children to Show Art Skill on Friday.

One of Chicago's largest art shows of what certainly is one of the world's most fleeting art forms—sand sculpture—will be staged Friday at North avenue beach.

Three hundred boys and girls from north, northwest, and west side parks will model wet sand statuary. The only tool they will be permitted to use will be a paddle which takes the place of the customary sculptor's chisel.

The display will be a no-jury, no-critic, no-prize show, but popcorn and ice cream will be awarded liberally —and evenly—to each sand sculptor. It will be the sixth annual park district sand art show for youngsters.

May Pick Own Subjects.

There will be no restrictions on types of subjects to be modeled. Last year, for example, one of the most popular masterpieces was a sandy version of Christopher Columbus' ship Santa Maria. Favorite subjects, park district officials say, are airplanes, submarines, ships, birds, and animals.

Modeling will be done on a group basis, each group composed of six young sculptors representing their neighborhood fieldhouse. Each group will model in a 10 foot pit, and will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, before the sun gets too high in the sky. The sculptors all will be less than 15 years old.

On South Side, Too.

The same contest for the south and southwest sides of the city will be held Wednesday at Jackson park beach.

The North avenue beach show Friday will be directed by Miss Alice Beyer, park district artcraft supervisor, and Florence Kiefer, assistant. North side parks to be represented include Chase, Green Briar, Indian Boundary, Lake Shore, and Welles.

EPWORTH GROUPS IN RALLY TODAY AT DES PLAINES

Members of Epworth leagues thruout Chicagoland will attend the Epworth League day programs at the Methodist camp grounds in Des Plaines today. Activities will start at 3 o'clock with a recreation period. A hillside inspiration service will be held under the direction of Miss Ellenada Nabor, first vice president of the Federation of Epworth Leagues of Chicago.

After a picnic supper circle at 5:30 o'clock, a "giant super sing" and evening youth assembly will be held. The Rev. Truman Potter will speak.

C. Kenneth Gibbs is president of the Federation of Epworth Leagues of Chicago.

Among the district presidents who aided in making arrangements for the program are Roy E. Erickson, northern district; William De Grasse, southern district; Miss Daniels, western district; Miss Fleda A. Jones, Greater Chicago-Lexington conference; Borghild Nerhus, Chicago district—Norwegian-Danish, and Gordon Nelson, Chicago district — central northwest conference.

KAUFMAN, HART PLAY GIVEN AT WILLIAMS BAY

"George Washington Slept Here," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, is being staged every evening this week by the Belfry Players of Williams Bay, Wis. This is the fourth play of the current summer season. Directed by Leonard De Menna, the cast includes Edward Lukarski, Hyman Chester, Harriet Plous, Bernie Wechter, Franklin Cook, Louise Framberg, Eve Lynne, Phil Fogle, Ann Libberton, Gladys Tyler, Ken Darre, Pete Partee, Robert Pope, John and Jean Libberton, Margaret Holley, and George Graham.

WILMETTE BOWL CONCERTS DRAW RECORD CROWDS

Cuban to Conduct Next in Series Wednesday.

The Illinois WPA orchestra will play the fifth of a series of Starlight Symphony concerts in Wilmette bowl Wednesday evening. This is the sixth season the orchestra has appeared in the suburb's lake side amphitheater.

José Echaniz.

All attendance records will have been broken at the close of the concert series Aug. 27, members of the suburban music committee predict. More than 20,000 persons attended the first three concerts. The audience at the July 23d concert exceeded 8,000, setting a record.

Conductor from Cuba.

José Echaniz, noted Cuban pianist, now an American citizen, will conduct the Wednesday evening program. Miss Irma Cooper, soprano who was voted "the best woman singer" in the 1940 TRIBUNE's Chicagoland Music festival, will appear as soloist. She will sing the aria, "Plus grand dans son obscurité" from "The Queen of Sheba" by Gounod.

The program follows:

Overture to "William Tell"...........Rossini
Serenade, for string orchestra.........Haydn
Symphony No. 4, in D minor, Opus 120

GLADIOLI SHOW DRAWS ENTRIES FROM FAR PLACES

John R. Hopkins, Chicago industrial advertising man who makes a hobby of growing 530 varieties of gladioli at his home in Deerfield, is chairman of the show the Midwest Gladiolus society is holding at the Garfield park conservatory on Saturday and next Sunday.

"We began as a group of amateurs, hoping to have a gladiolus exhibit here in Chicago," he said. "There hasn't been one for about five years. The idea caught on faster than we'd dreamed, and now we're going to have the biggest show in the country. There'll be 5,500 entries, and some will be coming by air express from Vancouver, Seattle, Vermont and Connecticut."

Hopkins began growing gladioli six years ago and describes the hobby as "a form of insanity that gets worse every season." He raises 8,500 blooms and exhibits at shows in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. He won 158 blue ribbons last year. He says that 50,000 blooms can be grown on one acre.

Expect 2,000 at Picnic of Drug Club on Sunday

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the 35th annual picnic of the Chicago Drug club to be held in the Royal Oaks park at 87th street and Kean avenue next Sunday, it was announced by Harry W. Prafke, president. Frank H. Ahlborn and C. T. Broling, co-chairmen of the committee in charge, promise numerous games, contests and races, with plenty of prizes and free refreshments.

RECALLS, AT 98, SPREAD OF RAIL NET OVER WEST

Sarah Conlon Traveled with Construction.

The pioneer women who went about their housekeeping amid the dangers of Indians, bitter winters, and food shortages have been eulogized in history and in Hollywood. The women who won the west in sunbonnets and covered wagons have been commemorated in town square monuments from Iowa to California.

Mrs. Sarah Conlon, 1426 Rosemont avenue, who celebrated her 98th birthday recently, never kept house in the wilderness or rode in a covered wagon. But she belonged to a special group of women pioneers who, tho unsung and unknown, contributed to this country's development when railroad fortunes were being made. As the wife of a section boss she traveled thru the middle west wherever new rails had to be laid or old rails replaced.

Her three sons and three daughters were all born at different points. "But all the places were in Illinois," Mrs. Conlon says. "They had a home state even if they didn't always live in the same house or the same town." The Conlons often resided on the northwest side or in the northwest suburbs.

Born in Kentucky.

Mrs. Conlon was Sally Brady of Coon Hollow, Ky., when, at 27, she married John Conlon. She would have been married long before that, she says, but she never could make up her mind to leave her mother. Then John Conlon came along and she deserted Coon Hollow to ride trains between jobs in Indiana and Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and the Dakotas. Back home in Kentucky, she'd help her mother to card wool, weave it and spin it. She helped to make candles.

The new life was different. She had to buy cloth at the store, and light came from lamps. Her husband brought her to Chicago the year after the fire, and for the first time she had to buy fruit and vegetables.

"It seemed awful to buy stuff we just picked at home," she recalls. "I told my husband I didn't like the place and wouldn't stay. I've been here just about all the time since."

Brothers Were Foes.

Her husband has been dead 34 years. But Mrs. Conlon, at 98, has all but six of her own teeth and she gets around. Her white hair is clipped short, and her brown eyes brighten when she tells about Indians coming to see one of her babies, "the white papoose."

She had one brother in the Confederate army, one with the Union. She saw Lincoln and still likes to talk about how much better this country might have been if he had lived thru the reconstruction period. Mrs. Conlon says that riding on trains, eating at railroad restaurants, and moving from one place to another were all wonderful experiences. She wouldn't trade them. But she would like to ride in an airplane.

Mrs. Conlon lives with her son, John Conlon Jr. Her other children are William of Milwaukee; Edward, Fargo, N. D.; Mrs. Mary Zehfus, 4820 Barry avenue, and Mrs. Margaret Young, living in Nebraska. The third daughter is dead. There are 22 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Chapel Ceremony

[Moffett Photo.]

Miss Louise Van Deventer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fielding Van Deventer of Evanston, and David Milton Boyd Jr., son of Mrs. Josephine D. Boyd and David Milton Boyd of St. Louis, were married in a recent ceremony at the First Presbyterian church chapel in Evanston. Both Mr. and Mrs. Boyd were graduated from the University of Colorado this spring. They are residing in Philadelphia.

LAKE SHORE CLUB RED CROSS UNIT ENTERS 2D YEAR

Red Cross women volunteers of the Lake Shore club, one of the newest units in the Red Cross organization, have completed their required year of activities under direct Red Cross supervision and are now launched as a full fledged unit.

Mrs. R. S. Dean is chairman, and 100 north shore women are enrolled. Mrs. Charles G. Hutter is co-chairman. Workers assemble at the club every Thursday. Besides the items turned out at the clubrooms, members take out work to do in spare moments at home.

Various chairmen are: Mrs. Donald J. Beaton, production; Mrs. Richard Whitney, finance; Mrs. A. W. Miller and Mrs. George Schmidt, sewing; Mrs. George Seaman and Mrs. Paul Hastings, dressings; Mrs. Charles Stresenreuter and Mrs. J. W. Fox, knitting; Mrs. Henry W. Neville, publicity.

COLLEGE TERM TO ENTER ITS FINAL 2 WEEKS

The third and final two weeks' summer session at National College of Education, Evanston, will open tomorrow morning. Students will meet in an assembly at 10:30 o'clock. "The Teacher and Her Problems" is the subject of talks to be given by three faculty members, Miss Clara Belle Baker, Miss Miriam Brubaker, and Miss Edith Maddox. Miss Edna Dean Baker, president of the college, also will speak.

Special events on the two weeks program include an informal acquaintance hour in the Alumnæ club Thursday afternoon, a 6:30 o'clock buffet supper on Aug. 12 in the home of President Baker, and an assembly in the school library at 10:30 o'clock the morning of Aug. 14.

This is the first time that a third summer session has been offered at National college. Sixty students have been enrolled for the last course. The total summer enrollment has been more than 400. The National Children's school closed Friday.

PARISH TO NOTE SILVER JUBILEE OF ITS PASTOR

Parishioners of St. Vincent's church, 1010 Webster avenue, have designated the evenings from Wednesday thru Monday, Aug. 11, as carnival nights in celebration of their pastor's silver jubilee on the De Paul campus. The Rev. Michael M. Ries came to the campus in 1916 after his ordination in St. Mary's seminary at Perryville, Mo. He has taught in both De Paul academy and university and became pastor of St. Vincent's eight years ago. The carnival will be held on the grounds back of the church.

IS YOUR ADVERTISING LAGGING BEHIND CHICAGO'S EXPANDING BUYING?

You can make more sales at lower cost with Tribune advertising

DOES your selling drive take into account Chicago's growing industrial activity? With bigger pay rolls swelling retail sales, low pressure promotional methods cannot deliver the market impact which the present upswing invites.

To step up your efforts in keeping with opportunities in Chicago, build your program around the Tribune. With over 1,000,000 net paid every day of the week, the Tribune now delivers on week days from 600,000 to 640,000 more total circulation than other Chicago daily newspapers. And on Sunday from 290,000 to 725,000 more than other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

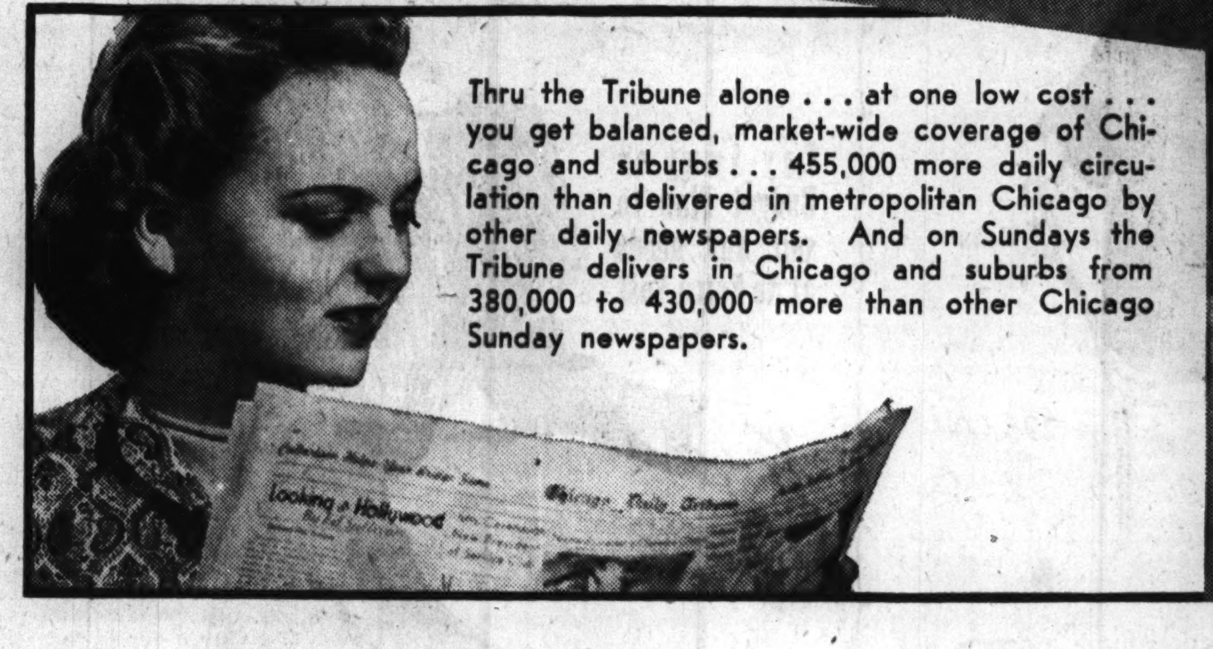
In every income group of interest to advertisers the Tribune has far more circulation in Chicago and suburbs than other newspapers. And, in addition, it reaches hundreds of thousands of prospects in the adjacent territory.

The editorial qualities which build deepest interest among readers produce the best returns for advertisers. As the newspaper which has best demonstrated its ability to widen the Chicago market for its own product, the Tribune can give you the most help in widening the market for your product.

This fact is proved by Chicago retailers who placed 51% more advertising in the Tribune during the first six months of this year than they placed in any other Chicago newspaper. It is affirmed by general advertisers who in the same period gave the Tribune a 37% lead.

When you can have more, why take less? When you use the Tribune, you put more punch into your selling and pile up more volume at less cost per unit sold. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

A Tribune representative or your advertising counsel will be glad to give you more information on how you can increase sales in Chicago at lower advertising cost by making the Tribune your basic medium.



Thru the Tribune alone . . . at one low cost . . . you get balanced, market-wide coverage of Chicago and suburbs . . . 455,000 more daily circulation than delivered in metropolitan Chicago by other daily newspapers. And on Sundays the Tribune delivers in Chicago and suburbs from 380,000 to 430,000 more than other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

CAMP PROVIDES SUMMER TREAT FOR CRIPPLED

Peacock Is a Memorial to Two Mothers.

Crippled and handicapped boys and girls who have become accustomed to being spectators at games become participants at Peacock camp, 20 acres of sloping woodland on the west shore of Crooked lake near Lake Villa.

Swimming, baseball, outdoor cooking, ping-pong, handicrafts—all are on the program. Of course, the rules have to be changed a little. A fellow who can bat but can't run finds a chap who can run but can't hit the ball, and together they make one player on the baseball team.

Other activities may require a little planning, but each camper has a part in the fun. The entire program of Peacock camp is designed to provide a normal outing experience for handicapped young folks of 14 to 18 years of age. Peacock directors say it is the only charitable camp for adolescents in the Chicago area.

Can Take Only a Few.

"At best, we can take only a few of the boys and girls who need this vacation," says Miss Victoria Vacha, summer camp director since 1938 and a physiotherapist at Spalding school for crippled children in the winter term. "We can take only 22 at a time, and we have just two periods a summer, the first five weeks for the boys and the second for the girls." Camp opens as soon as Chicago schools close for the summer vacation. It closes when the schools begin in September.

The campers are recommended by Chicago orthopedic clinics and charitable organizations. Applications are limited to those whose need is greatest, but even then there are four times as many requests as places. The young people come from all sections of the city and suburbs. The young patients may be spastics, victims of bone infections, polio, tuberculous bones, arthritis, or they may be congenital cripples.

Opened in 1935, the camp was established by four women as a memorial to their mothers, Mrs. Emilie Lehmann Peacock and Mrs. Harriet Crangle Parker. Mrs. Peacock's daughters, Mrs. M. V. Reynolds, Mrs. G. W. Reynolds, and Mrs. W. W. Haerther, have homes near the camp and serve on the board of directors.

Was a Residence.

The camp house, a pink stucco building with wide windows and comfortable rooms, was a residence belonging to the Peacock sisters. Mrs. Parker's daughter, Mrs. H. Foster Straw of Lake Forest, is president of the camp organization.

The founders began experimentally, hoping to find the group of crippled children most in need of the service of a camp. Little children came first, but within a few seasons it became evident that the adolescent handicapped boys and girls were most neglected, so Peacock was restricted to 14 to 18 year olds.

"Adolescence is a difficult period at best," according to Miss Vacha. "But the cripples have all of the problems of other boys and girls along with their handicap. Tragedies are most acute in this period.

"We help them to discipline themselves for the shocks coming. One of our dreams is to work out a placement program here in camp—but that is just a dream so far."

Produce Own Show.

Each camping period is enlivened by a show produced by the campers themselves. The girls are rehearsing now for their matinée on Aug. 21.

Fresh fruit and vegetables served at Peacock help to build up the city youngsters. The boys drink 10 gallons of milk a day, and the 22 girls are nearly as hearty. A day begins with a breakfast of fruit, cereal, bacon and eggs, and cocoa. Any child may get a snack in the kitchen whenever he wishes.

The first camp opened with 16 beds. A few more cots have been squeezed in until the capacity is 22 campers, four teachers, and three maintenance staff members. The camp day begins at 7:15 a. m. unless it's raining—then the rising hour is 8 o'clock. Every camper has a little task to do, and when he has completed that he has his morning free to "meditate or vegetate until lunch," according to Miss Vacha.

Have a Rest Period.

A rest period follows lunch, and there's a trip to the swimming hole at 2:15 o'clock. Transportation is by truck. Back home, the campers play games or work on their handicraft projects. After dinner the evenings are given over to campfires and marshmallow roasts.

Nearly all of the campers are recovering from surgery or resting before another trip to the hospital. All must be able to climb stairs, however, because the sleeping rooms are on the second floor. "We can't do anything for the wheelchair patients right now, because we have no elevator and no facilities for care," Miss Vacha says.

Members of the men's club of B'nai Zion will go on their fourth annual excursion to Milwaukee on Wednesday, sailing from Navy pier at 9:45 o'clock in the morning and returning 12 hours later. Abraham L. Lapin and Dr. Myron I. Lifschutz are chairmen of the trip. Hyman D. Heyman is president of the club.

If We Used the Dew from Rose Petals...

As did the beautiful Theodora Ducas, daughter of the Eastern Emperor, back in the year 1081. . . . But wait, perhaps you never heard of Theo? She was one of the FIRST glamour girls. She married the Doge of Venice in that year and moved bag and baggage to the Doge's home town.

But she hadn't been there long before she noticed her former schoolgirl complexion slowly but surely taking on that lifeless "middle age" appearance. The Water of Venice, it seems, WAS HARD AS NAILS!

Now Theo loved the Doge and wanted to keep him, so she tried Vial after Vial of priceless perfumes, but the bloom in her cheeks remained only a memory! Finally in desperation she sent out her slaves to collect the morning dew from flowers and lo, after continuous use of this softest of waters, the schoolgirl complexion returned. . . .

And so, if you want your linens to have a beauty treatment, linens that have been dulled by Clinging Lime Soap Curds—the result of using ANY home soap and hard water—you'll send them to Skokie where they'll be bathed gently in water as soft as that taken from Rose Petals. . . . Try that glorious, NEW

NO MAN'S LAND STAYS IN ORPHAN ROLE TILL SEPT.

No Man's Land, the orphan of the north shore which was almost adopted by Wilmette until the state Supreme court decided against it, will continue to be an orphan territory at least until after Labor day.

The legal battle for the 22 acre No Man's Land between Wilmette and Kenilworth has see-sawed for many months between independence and annexation. The state legislature at one time had passed a bill approving annexation to Wilmette, but the bill didn't take. It was declared invalid by the Supreme court on the ground that the title did not explain the purpose of the act.

Another Bill Fails.

Another bill was introduced in the state legislature but failed to pass at the close of the session June 30, which made No Man's Land an orphan again.

A petition asking Kenilworth to annex it recently was presented to that suburb's village board by No Man's Land residents. The Kenilworth board is not scheduled to meet until after Labor day and no decision has been made yet on whether the village, itself dependent on Winnetka for fire protection, will add the tract to its territory.

Owned by Gage Family.

Practically all of No Man's Land ground is owned by the Gage family, headed by Stanley K. Gage of Wilmette. The Gage interests brought legal proceedings against the Wilmette annexation.

The tract has a population of some 75 persons and is made up of one apartment building, a cluster of hot dog and barbecue stands, a row of stores, several gas stations, an auto salesroom, and a movie theater.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

A Latin teacher, a bookkeeper, an upholsterer, and a bellboy were among 10 north siders recently transferred to the coast artillery at Fort Eustis, Va. Ray Frederick, 25, of 1836 Birchwood avenue, was teaching classes in Latin, history, and English at De La Salle High school when he went into the army. Harry Reiblein, 25, 1770 Cullom avenue, was keeping books. Elmer Ross, 22 years old, 303 West Division street, was employed as an upholsterer and Carl Rundquist, 24 years old, 2031 Wilson avenue, exchanged a bellboy's uniform for an army outfit.

Other north siders sent to Fort Eustis were Louie Owens, 24, of 6507 Newgard avenue; Seymour Weinstein, 25, 6644 Newgard avenue; Mylett Tanker, 27, 6120 North Oakley avenue; Robert Olson, 24, 5015 North Damen avenue; William Lewis, 26 years old, 7440 North Damen avenue, and Samuel Robins, 25, 7512 Rogers avenue.

Robins is a brother-in-law of Louis Zara, Chicago writer. Weinstein was doing graduate work at Wisconsin university when he went into the army. Owens, who went to Marquette and Notre Dame universities, was in advertising when the army called and describes being selected as his most exciting experience.

◆

William Krause, 26 years old, 647 Junior terrace, and Carl Bergren, 24 years old, 6418 North Oakley avenue, have been sent to the signal corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J. Krause, who has a bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago, was managing an outdoor parking lot before going into service. Bergren was a counting department clerk.

◆

Private Rollin C. Johnson has been transferred from Chanute field, Illinois, to Moffett field, California. He was graduated from the airplane mechanics course of the Air Corps Technical school at Chanute field. He is the son of Mrs. Florence Johnson, 825 Cornelia avenue.

CARRIE J. BOND MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Popular Melodies Slated on Chicagoland Hour.

Three popular songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond will be presented in medley form as a highlight of the Chicagoland Hour over W-G-N from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday. Marion Claire, soprano star of the program, Attilio Baggiore, featured tenor, and Guest Contralto Ruth Slater will join the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler in presenting the musical portion of the program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will sing Victor Herbert's "For I'm Falling in Love" and DeLeath's "The Madonna Lullaby." She will also be heard with Baggiore in a medley of Herbert numbers. Baggiore will sing Toselli's "Serenade" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavallo.

The orchestra will present Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite" with a background by the chorus and the "Gypsy Baron Overture" by Strauss.

The complete program follows:

"Gypsy Baron Overture"............Strauss
Orchestra.
"For I'm Falling in Love".........Herbert
Marion Claire.
"Serenade" ....Toselli
Attilio Baggiore.
Medley of Victor Herbert songs:
"Rose of the World"..............

"Just A' Wearyin' for You"....Ruth Slater
"A Perfect Day"..........................
Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore, and chorus.

The Chicagoland Hour is produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

JOAN MERRILL TO JOIN ZANY TRIO, TOM, DICK, HARRY

Joan Merrill.

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" will again add half an hour of entertainment to listeners' lives from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The trio will play host to Joan Merrill, newcomer to the world of radio, stage, and screen who sings at the Rhumba Casino. Miss Merrill has had about all the stage and screen experience a young lady might wish, having made tours with the shows of Harry Richman, Dave Apollon, and Rudy Vallee. But something new is in store for her when she works with radio's zaniest trio.

Music highlights Monday will include "How Did He Look?" sung by Miss Merrill, "Evil Eye," a story about a man who puts the curse on every one, this to be sung by the trio. With the circus in town the boys also will do the sad, sad story of "The Acrobat's Daughter."

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" is produced by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N dance orchestra is under the direction of Robert Trendler who also is often called upon to help out on the dialog.

PLAY BY W-G-N WRITER TO OPEN AT LAKE ZURICH

"These Are My Jewels," a modern comedy dealing with the life of a 40 year old woman whose cross is a family of social climbers, will be introduced Friday, Aug. 8, at the Lake Zurich playhouse in Lake Zurich for a three day run.

The playwrights are Henry Barbour, W-G-N continuity writer, and Ruth MacKay, author of the best selling novel, "Money Without Men." Before coming to W-G-N Barbour was a script writer with the University Broadcasting council, while Miss MacKay has written numerous short stories and magazine articles as well as her novel.

Mueller and Soule Win Highest De Molay Honors

Marvin E. Mueller and Olan Soule, W-G-N actors, have been selected by the grand council of the Order of De Molay to receive the highest honor of the organization, the "Legion of Honor Degree." The investiture will take place on Aug. 11 at the Chicago Commandery, 32 West Randolph street.

PIERRE MONTEUX WILL CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Concert Will Be Aired Over W-G-N.

Pierre Monteux, noted French conductor, will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert at Ravinia to be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program will emphasize French music, presenting Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Symphony in D Minor," by Franck, and Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla-Khan."

Monteux, director of the San Francisco symphony for six years, has had a varied musical career. After graduation from the Paris conservatory, he joined the Cologne orchestra, eventually becoming assistant conductor. In 1911 he toured Europe with Serge Diaghileff's Ballet Russe as one of the principal conductors. Between tours he gave concerts in Paris called "Les Concerts Monteux," at which he introduced many modern compositions.

His tour with the Ballet Russe brought him to the United States for the first time in 1916. He received a post at the Metropolitan opera from 1917 to 1919 which he resigned to succeed Henri Rebaud as conductor of the Boston symphony.

After five years in Boston, Monteux devoted a decade to conducting the historic Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland. Because of his many positions Monteux has been called "the traveling salesman of music."

In this country he has conducted at New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles as well as Boston and San Francisco.

The Budapest string quartet will follow Monteux at Ravinia, presenting a program of chamber music Tuesday, Aug. 12.

John Weigel, who announces the Chicagoland Hour, will present the musical commentary.

HAROLD TEEN TO PRODUCE EPICS IN HOLLYWOOD

The movie moguls of Hollywood had better look to their laurels. American youth, in the person of Harold Teen and his breezy, carefree friends, have decided to produce motion picture epics and rush to fame and fortune. The steps they have taken to get their names in lights and on the lips of the American public will be revealed in entertaining, comical drama during the "Harold Teen" program on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Harold, who manages to kick around the English language with a freedom that would make Shakespeare blush, has decided to become an author and write moving, inspiring movie scenarios and cast his pals Shadow and Beezie in important supporting rôles. Teen, of course, will have the lead; Lillums will be his true love, and Cynthia will be the vamp. How successful they are in their artistic endeavors will be told in light-hearted, slap-haphazard comedy next Tuesday night.

"Harold Teen" is the new dramatic series based on the famed Chicago Tribune comic strip of the same name. Charles Flynn plays the title rôle. Bob Jellison is Shadow, Marvin Mueller is cast as Beezie, while Loretta Poynton is Lillums, and Beryl Vaughn, formerly a movie starlet, plays Cynthia.

Susanne Fisher Will Sing on Chautauqua Program

Susanne Fisher, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be the guest soloist with the Chautauqua Symphony orchestra during the concert at 3 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC. Albert Stoessel will conduct the orchestra.

ELSON AND ANSON DUEL IN W-G-N GAME THURSDAY

Andy Frain in Bull Pen as Reserve Pitcher.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob [Glass Arm] Elson vs. Bill [Swing It!] Anson!

That's the super-hurling setup for the softball game next Thursday evening between the W-G-N Radio All-Stars and the W-G-N Retrievers, regular members of the Chicago Editorial league. The game starts at 9 p. m. under the lights at Spencer Coal Field, 4200 North Central avenue, a preliminary is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Receipts will go to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Free Ice and Camp Algonquin funds. But there is no charity in the remarks being made by the players about their rivals in the fortcoming battle.

The feud boiled over yesterday after the baseball committee heard rumors that a bribe had been offered Elson to quit the Retrievers and join the All-Star pitching lineup.

Chairman Heidrich Rules.

"He plays with the Retrievers all season," ruled Chairman Milton Heidrich, "and a Retriever he'll be on Thursday. Or else. End quote."

Anson, who imitates Jack Benny, Charley McCarthy, Tom, Dick, and Harry, and other celebrities on his W-G-N radio programs, has been impersonating Bob Feller and Ted Lyons all week.

A healthy replacement for Anson, in case Bill has to go to a radio station and play some phonograph records, was found last night in Andy Frain, whose ushers serve at W-G-N studio shows and all big time events. Frain is providing a full crew for duty at Spencer Coals field.

Two Girl Mascots.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor; Bud Vandover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Vandover [Tom, Dick, and Harry], Guy Savage, Jack Brickhouse, Jess Kirkpatrick, Spencer Allen, Charles Victor, Alan Scott, Producer Paul Fogarty [Ask-It-Ball], Charles Flynn [Harold Teen], Ed Prentiss [Capt. Midnight], and Olan Soule, heard in several dramatic rôles will be among the Stars in action.

Uncle Harry Hosford of A. B. C. club fame will manage the Stars. Lucy Gilman, comely actress in "Painted Dreams," will be mascot and bat-girl. Alice Goodkin, also on W-G-N dramatic shows will do the same for the Retrievers. Dorothy Gregory of Citizens of Tomorrow and other shows, will be official scorer.

Tickets for the game are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower. Prices are 50 cents [including tax] for adults, and 10 cents for children. The tickets also may be obtained at the gate.

TINNEY TO BEGIN 'SIZING UP NEWS' SHOW ON W-G-N

Cal Tinney.

Cal Tinney, humorist and columnist, will start a new series of philosophical, amusing news commentaries titled "Sizing Up the News," on W-G-N and 73 other Mutual stations beginning tomorrow. Tinney's broadcasts will be heard each Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 7:15 p. m.

Tinney, whose syndicated column, "Man of the Week," appears in 26 newspapers, promises that his new radio series will be refreshing and entirely different. "My program," he said, "will put special emphasis on personalities in the news and try to look for the reasons which account for the facts you read in your newspaper and hear on the average radio news show."

Sam Balter's "Inside of Sports" program, under the same sponsorship, will be heard on W-G-N and Mutual each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m.

Steindel, Weber Concerts on W-G-N from Park

W-G-N will air two concerts of the Grant park series this week presenting Walter Steindel and his symphony orchestra tonight and Henry Weber and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra Thursday. Both programs will originate at the giant band shell at the foot of 11th street on the shores of Lake Michigan and will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Weber will conduct the W-G-N orchestra heard each week on the Pageant of Melody at 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays and on the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. on Saturdays.

"UNION NOW" IS SUBJECT TONIGHT ON W-G-N FORUM

The question of a merger between the governments of the United States and Great Britain will be debated on the "American Forum of the Air" over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 tonight. The discussion, conducted by Theodore Granik, will be titled "Shall the United States Form Now a Federal Union with the British Commonwealth?"

Supporting the principle of a Federal Union in the debate will be: Clarence K. Streit, author of "Union Now," and Dr. Frank Kingdon, educator. The negative position will be upheld by Congressman Stephen A. Day of Illinois, author of "We Must Save the Republic," and Congressman Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota.

CHILDREN LEARN DIGNITY OF WORK AS THEY PLAY

Glencoe Tries New Idea in Recreation.

Canned beans, pickled beets and sauerkraut may be on Glencoe school pantry shelves next winter if there is a bountiful harvest in the city lot size garden in Glencoe's North playground.

The garden, planted and tended by Glencoe school children, is one of this season's new developments in the year 'round community coördinated program. A chicken yard, stocked with three ducks and four rabbits so far, is an adjunct of the gardening activity.

Reassembling a log cabin for an outdoor museum is the principal activity at South playground, while toy repairing goes on at Central playground. Supervisors are on duty at each play lot and oversee the special project development.

All activities are planned to avoid the sharp cutoff of play at the close of the school year. Three groups cooperating in developing the plan are the Glencoe schools, park district, and playgrounds. Paul Misner heads the Glencoe schools, Robert Everly is superintendent of parks, and Howard Copp is community coördinator and director of playgrounds.

Teach Dignity of Work.

Altho this is the 10th season for the summer program sponsored by Glencoe Playgrounds, Inc., it is the first year in which there has been a definite effort to teach the children the value, dignity, and satisfaction of productive activity as a means of recreation. The coined name of the program is "workreation."

Mr. Misner explains that residents of Glencoe are asking, "How can children come to appreciate the value and dignity of work in communities where there are no wood boxes to fill, no dishes to wash, no babies to tend?"

Kenneth E. Howe, science counselor of the Glencoe schools, opened the gardening season in his science groups last spring. Sixty children set about raking and planting the vegetables. They worked at weeding, hoeing, and watering until school closed and changing groups of a dozen or more boys and girls have kept on since. Vacation trips interrupt, but there are always workers on hand.

Study Food Raising.

Mr. Howe says the garden project is first a study in raising food; second, it is to be an experience in canning and preserving, and third, an experience in collecting surpluses and thereby learning about conservation and welfare.

The children, with supervision, will do the canning in the North school kitchen. Their surpluses, both fresh and canned, may be turned over for use in public welfare work. The chicken coop and yard near the garden plot will be the foundation for a poultry and small animal center for the entire school system.

The log cabin, donated by Mrs. Fred Hill of Glencoe, has been a children's community project in building. They marked all logs while the building was on its original site and then took them apart. Now they are putting the logs together again, and when the building is completed it will house an outdoor museum to be used in connection with the Glencoe wild flower sanctuary. Boys and girls will collect and prepare nature specimens and they will assemble and prepare craft cases, also.

The toy project began last Christmas when old and broken playthings were collected for repairing. The donations exceeded the need, but they were stored, and now children work daily in their little center fixing and painting toys for next Christmas.

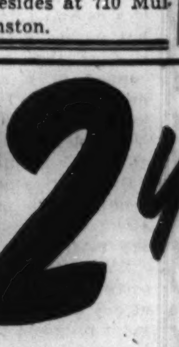
POLICEMAN WITH N. U. DEGREE HAS A NEW POSITION



Sergt. A. Wesley Brown Jr.

Sergt. A. Wesley Brown Jr., assistant director of the Evanston police department's accident prevention bureau, has been appointed to the training staff of the Northwestern university traffic institute. Brown was graduated from Northwestern with a bachelor of science degree in liberal arts in 1933. He joined the Evanston police force in December, 1934, and became a sergeant in June, 1940. He has attended two short courses and one academic year course in traffic control and accident prevention at the university.

A former Big Ten wrestling champion, he has served as the institute's instructor in physical education and self-defense and Northwestern's wrestling coach since 1936.

Brown is married and has two children. The family resides at 710 Mulford street in Evanston.

TRAFFIC DEATHS AMONG CHILDREN SHOW BIG JUMP

Up 44 Per Cent Over Toll of 1940.

Death to Chicago's pedestrian children from traffic accidents in the first half of this year rose 44 per cent over the same period in 1940. Twenty-five youngsters, all under 16 years, were killed last year from Jan. 1 to June 30, as compared to 36 deaths for the first half of 1941.

These figures have been released by the Chicago Motor club which recently completed a survey with Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee. A month by month tabulation of child deaths for the two periods follows:

	1940.	1941.
January	0	4
February	4	5
March	3	6
April	3	4
May	7	10
June	8	7

Studies made in other years show that child traffic deaths increase 68 per cent during July and August. This increase, traffic men say, is due to the fact the two months are the school vacation period, which brings a slackening of safety education among children.

Where Death Occurred

Six pedestrian younsters were killed on the northwest side from January thru June this year. Nine were killed on the south side, six on the north side, eight in the west area, and seven in the southwest section.

Northwest Side.

January—Girl, 14 years old, at Elston avenue and Irving Park road.

February—Boy, 11, at 4211 North Pulaski road.

April—Boy, 5 on Diversey avenue just east of Narragansett.

May—girl, 7, at 2436 North Austin avenue.

June—Boy, 13, at Irving Park road and Nordica avenue, and girl, 4, at 5224 Dakin avenue.

South Side.

January—Boy, 12 years old, on Doty avenue at 128th street, and girl, 4, at Cottage Grove avenue and east 42nd street.

February—boy, 3, at 37th and State streets.

March—Boy, 9, at 3021 Wentworth avenue.

April—Girl, 6, at 8141 Exchange avenue; boy, 3, on West 37th street between Wells street and Princeton avenue.

May—Girl, 6, at 6540 Minerva avenue; boy, 2, in alley at the rear of 3147 Rhodes avenue, and boy, 13, at South Park Way and East 37th street.

Southwest Side.

March—Boy, 5 years old, on Hoxie avenue, just south of East 106th street, and boy, 8 at California avenue and West 35th place.

April—Boy, 8, 5935 South Marshfield avenue.

May—Boy, 7, at Halsted and 78th streets; boy, 2, at 4848 Federal street; boy, 3, in alley at the rear of 4219 South Princeton avenue, and boy, 10, at West 67th and Halsted streets.

North Side.

January—Girl, 4 years old, at 1440 Thorndale avenue.

February—Boy, 9, on Clark street south of Hood avenue.

March—Boy, 9, at 825 Fullerton avenue.

May—Girl, 5, at Wisconsin street and Dayton avenue.

June—Boy, 5, on Seminary avenue just south of Byron street, and girl, 6, at 2261 Lincoln avenue.

West Side.

February—Boy, 7 years old, at 1130 Blue Island avenue, and boy, 10, at 741 North Oakley avenue.

March—Boy, 6, at Washington boulevard and Kildare avenue, and boy, 10, at Sacramento boulevard, several feet north of Washington boulevard.

May—Boy, 5, 1319 South Peoria street.

June—Girl, 6, at Lotus avenue and Madison street; girl, 7, at Lotus avenue and Madison street, and girl, 4, at 1362 South Sangamon avenue.

As a means of fighting the steadily rising death toll, particularly during the vacation months, the motor club has launched a $500 back yard contest appealing to fathers and mothers to set aside a portion of their property for the use of children.

Grand Prize of $100.

A grand prize of $100 will be awarded for the most useful yard in Cook county. Sectional prizes of $25 each are to be given to the owners of yards designed to keep youngsters off the streets. Entry blanks may be obtained from the motor club offices, 66 East South Water street.

Traffic dangers are being reduced during the school term by the safety patrol boys, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said.

"Educational leaders thruout the Chicago area have given their support to a number of excellent safety programs for children," he declared. "With their aid the school safety patrol is steadily reducing the dangers to and from school. But during the vacation months and after school hours these programs are relaxed and the children are on their own.

"Parents must coöperate. The most logical way is to guide the child's normal activities into safe places. A back yard play yard keeps them off the street.

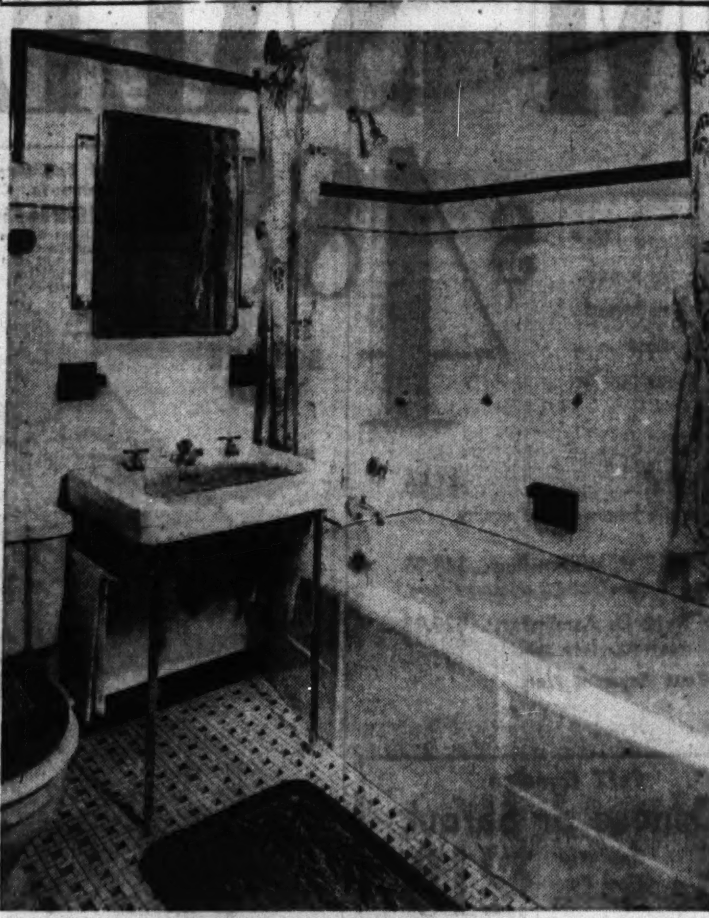
Chariot Race to Highlight Picnic of K. of C. Today

A chariot race will highlight the annual picnic of the Father Perez council, No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, today at Sunset grove, 135th street and Archer avenue. George A. Wahl is general chairman of the outing. There will be athletic events and dancing. Buses for the grounds will leave 63d street and Ashland avenue, starting at 9:45 o'clock.

Former Toluca Residents Will Have Picnic Sunday

The Chi-Uca club, an organization of 2,000 persons residing in the Chicago area who claim Toluca as their home town, will hold a picnic next Sunday in Kegel's grove, Archer avenue and 89th street.

Bathroom Modernized



There is a host of new equipment for bathroom modernization this late summertime—colored plumbing fixtures in tastefully matched sets, improved showers, faucets, valves, and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dinovo, 11200 South Talman avenue, took advantage of the miracles modernizing magic can work in bathrooms and kitchens and achieved some fine results in their home.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 4.

Scales on fern leaves or fronds should be sprayed with nicotine and fish oil soap, or any recommended preparation. If in doubt as to whether scales are present try removing one with the finger; if it moves easily it is a scale, and if it cannot be readily removed it is a spore case.

Plant a calla lily for indoor growing. It is a good house plant and likes a rich soil. When the roots are well developed give plenty of water.

Watch indoor plants for attacks of mealybugs, and if any are seen knock them off with a spray of water under pressure of the fingers. The bug has a cottony coat surrounding it. A nicotine solution also will kill them.

Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Tender water lilies are rapidly assuming their best flowering habit, and those interested in these plants should visit park basins and note the best kinds. At the Garfield park flower garden a fine collection, including many of the newest hybrids, may be seen. Note the varieties: August Koch, Pink Pearl, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri, the two latter being new and among the largest flowering kinds.

Many gardeners fail to have a knowledge of proper watering practices. Unless the weather is extremely dry, it should be necessary to water only twice each week, but it must be a thoro job. The ground should be soaked to a depth of five inches.

Evaporation is rapid during periods of extreme drouth and the gardener should study his soil and know how it reacts to water. Clay soils naturally retain moisture longer than sandy, loamy soils; the latter requires more attention than the former.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Prepare the new lawn, because fall made lawns are more likely to succeed than spring made lawns. First, thoro preparation of the soil is essential. A heavy soil may be lightened by incorporating sifted ashes into it; use enough to do some good. Humus worked in also will aid such soils, but if it cannot be drained easily a line of tile may be necessary.

Light, sandy soils may be made to hold water more readily by adding humus, which also aids in the manufacture of plant food. Work the soil into a fine seed bed, without lumps, and see that drainage is away from the house. Buy the best grade of seed.

Thursday, Aug. 7.

Gardeners who build up shrub and flower beds until the plants are raised above the surface of the lawn will find that such beds drain off water rapidly. Keep plants grown in hedge form rather below the bed than above it and water will be retained where it is needed.

Friday, Aug. 8.

Outdoor flowers should be growing rapidly at this time, but remember that annuals give more flowers when the withered blooms are kept out. If there seems too much foliage on nasturtiums and similar plants, remove part of it. Keep roses well watered and sprayed.

Cases where dahlias have made a good growth and suddenly wilted are common and yet it is not easy to find the cause. Borers enter the stems and cause the stems to wilt and each borer must be cut out and destroyed. New plants for the indoor window garden can be started now. A seed bed can be prepared in a partially shaded spot; make the surface fine and water well with a sprinkling can to provide a moist soil. Sow the seeds when the soil can be worked without sticking. Transplant the seedlings into flats or small pots and shift whenever necessary.

Saturday, Aug. 9.

Plants from cuttings also may be made in sandy soil. Prepare a spot next to the seed bed and make arrangements for shading. Keep the cutting bed from drying out thru careful attention to watering. When making cuttings remove a part of the leaves to prevent too rapid evaporation. A small pan holding about three inches of sand makes a good medium in which to root cuttings.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

YOUNG ORPHANS WIN SUPPORT OF AN OLDER ONE

Henry Nierman to Help Annual Outing.

Henry F. Nierman.

Henry F. Nierman as chairman of the newly formed alumni committee of the Orphans' Automobile Day association is seeking former residents of orphanages to assist with this year's orphans' outing in Lincoln park on Aug. 20. Each year the association entertains 5,000 orphans and 2,000 older folks.

A description of Henry Nierman today would designate him as an average American enjoying the comfort and security of his own business and his family. At 48, he is the proprietor of a print shop at 3306 North California avenue, which is also his home address. And he is the father of three sons, 6, 14, and 20 years old, and two daughters, 18 and 19 years old. That's Henry Nierman now. Back in 1900, he was 7 years old, just getting his second teeth and entering Angel Guardian orphanage at Ridge and Devon avenues.

Recalls Own Youth.

The red brick orphanage was his home for seven years. His playmates were the 799 other orphans there. When he was 14, he left Angel Guardian, but he didn't forget it. When he first read of the annual outings provided by the Orphans' Automobile Day association, he thought of what a treat such an excursion would have been back in 1900. Recently, he decided he should contribute his services and joined the association—the first orphan to do so in 30 years.

Nierman is mailing circulars to as many former orphanage residents as he can find. Fifty orphanages will participate in the outing, and Nierman believes that if many of the committee members are former orphans themselves there will be greater understanding of what the day's activities mean. The youngsters will be taken to Lincoln park and will have their noon meal there.

37 Year Project.

Charles J. Retterer as president of the association appointed Nierman to his new post. Both Nierman and Retterer are anxious to have people know that being a former orphan is not a requirement for contributing to the cause, however.

The association was set up 37 years ago after an automobile dealer, A. J. Banta, had taken some youngsters on a trip to the park. He told members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association about the satisfaction of giving so much pleasure to the children and the idea grew.

It branched out from the automobile trade to the Chicago Motor club and to funeral directors—all groups having cars for transportation. The automobile is more common than it was 37 years ago which is just one more good reason why more and more youngsters may participate in the outing, Nierman believes.

"Of course," he says, "it takes a lot of coöperation. I'm new at this job, but I'd certainly like to do everything I can to give the kids a grand time."

JEWISH COUNCIL RENAMES CAMP FOR GOV. HORNER

As a memorial to the late Gov. Horner, Camp Wooster, near Round Lake, has been renamed Camp Henry Horner and will be dedicated this afternoon by the Young Men's Jewish council. Gov. Horner was one of the founders of the camp.

The camp provides vacations for more than 1,500 underprivileged boys. It spreads over 60 acres of wooded land. Organized in 1912, the camp is owned by the Young Men's Jewish council.

The dedication services will include a talk by Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the Criminal court, who was a lifelong friend of Gov. Horner.

AUGUST IS GOOD MONTH TO TAKE STOCK OF HOME

Heating or Plumbing May Need Attention.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

For August—and the summer—home improvements:

Have you noticed that sinks and lavatories, pipes and radiators, boilers and bathtubs are presenting a united and streamlined front for the security homes of 1941 and 1942?

We are even seeing new trends in decoration which adapt red, white, and blue color schemes for bathrooms, basements, and kitchens. One can obtain bathroom fixtures in red and blue or use white fixtures with accessories in red and blue. Or perhaps you choose a blue tub, a white shelf back lavatory and closet, and accessories in red and white. Indeed, equipment, fixtures, fittings, and decorations for all these rooms are now manufactured in so many handsome shades of blue and red and off tones of white that a defense color scheme is simple to achieve if one is building or remodeling a kitchen, basement, or bath.

Adjustable Showers.

If you have an old type large showerhead in your bath you can investigate the new, small water saving styles. One comes mounted on a ball joint so you can adjust it at any angle you wish, and adjust the water, too, from a stinging spray to a gentle flood. Or if you haven't a shower in your bathroom a master plumber can install one in short order, with no drain on the budget or cut in the plaster or wall decoration.

Inexpensive gadgets are available which contribute joy to a shower bath. Chromium plate towel racks can be placed high on the wall within easy reach; a second soap dish, placed higher up on your wall, will eliminate groping and stooping for the shower bather, and a long grab bar covered with gleaming chromium plate gives a firm, safe hold.

China Easily Cleaned.

If you would condition your water this month, soften its hardness, remove its iron and dispel its cloudiness there are many types of equipment on the market to perform these tasks. What size and type water conditioning equipment you need depends on the number of gallons of water you use per day and the amount and kind of impurities in your water.

Every month we are more aware of the increasing help that modern fixtures and equipment contribute to ease in house maintenance.

The new vitreous china lavatories clean as easily as a china dish and cut on household routine. The low, built-in tubs are infinitely easier to keep fit than the older types on legs. The double compartment, double drainboard sinks with handy retractable hose to speed up cleaning of vegetables and washing and rinsing of dishes is another labor saver. Some of these new ones have a flat shelf at back for glassware.

Automatic Heating.

Automatic heating is available with all kinds of fuel. You can install a stoker with your present boiler or furnace or convert your present heating system for oil or gas fired use. If you are in need of a new boiler or furnace check on those specially designed for different types of fuel.

Should you decide this month to paint the woodwork in some room—woodwork which must take considerable abuse—there's an enamel on the market with a new synthetic oil base. This is highly resistant to stains, crayon markings, and the hard traffic that woodwork sometimes has to withstand when there's youth in the home.

Now comes ready made, in four pastel shades, a washable wallboard prefinished at the factory. Nice for some attic bedroom you may be wrestling out of previously neglected space. This wallboard, in buff, green, gray, or coral, eliminates the need for futher decoration, and its boards, made of fiber, provide strong, smooth, attractive surfaces.

NAME CHAIRMEN OF RECREATION SESSION NOV. 18

Chairmen of the conference committees for the annual city-wide recreation meeting to be held Nov. 18 were named last week by Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head of the general planning group.

The chairmen are V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, head of the evening program committee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the liason commitee; Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, state chairman of the American Artists Professional league, reception committee, and August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the public schools, chairman of the day program committee.

Recreational leaders from all parts of the nation will attend the seventh annual conference at the Hotel Sherman. More than 5,000 persons are expected to take part. The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission.

CHURCH FOLKS TO HOLD REUNION IN MUNDELEIN

It will be something like a reunion for hundreds of the Chicagoans who will attend the fourth annual carnival and chicken dinner of Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein next Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. J. H. McTigue, pastor of the church, was formerly stationed at St. Kilian's, St. Jerome's, and All Saints churches in Chicago, and many of his former parishioness will be on hand next week-end, it was indicated. Games and other entertainment have been planned. The committee on arrangements includes James Gaul, James Markham, John K. Dorsey, and Joseph Epstein, all of Chicago.

GRANDMAS MAP PROGRAMS FOR FALL MEETING

National Club to Hold Rally in Chicago.

When members of the Chicago chapter of National Grandmothers' Club, Inc., meet these days, they don't talk about their grandchildren—at least not exclusively. They devote considerable time to discussion of plans and programs for the national convention at which the Chicago chapter will be the hostess club the first week-end in October at tht Morrison hotel. And prominent in the plans and the planning is Mrs. Marie K. Brown, 7712 East Lake terrace, national president of the organization.

Mrs. Brown is by way of being the founder of the organization, all because she celebrated becoming a grandmother by inviting other grandmothers to breakfast with her.

Met At a Breakfast.

The breakfast took place in Bloomington, Ill., in the spring of 1934. Mrs. Brown had established herself as the first woman public relations representative of a railroad when she organized the first all-woman conducted tour over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1923.

Since then she has headed the women's division of the B. & O., and it was as a business woman that she was addressing a business and professional women's convention in Bloomington when she heard she had become a grandmother. She announced her news and invited all the grandmothers in her audience to breakfast with her next morning.

The breakfasts continued thru the annual conventions, and the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., was launched in 1938. Now the organization has an official badge, a publication, and a platform.

Badge a Gold Circle.

The badge is a gold circle with a brown enamel background. Tiny bars hang from the badge, and each bar bears the name of a grandchild. "Autumn Leaves" is the club paper.

The platform, or objects of the organization, include campaigning for better entertainment for children, assisting in research on children's diseases, and working to perpetuate the peace and liberty enjoyed in this country.

Mrs. Brown, who has resided in Rogers Park for the last 20 years, has enjoyed business success, but she says, "To be a grandmother is the crowning experience of life." She has a son and a daughter, and each has a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Dorothea Sullivan, 4434 North Monitor avenue, is president of the Chicago chapter and will head the coming pre-convention committee meetings.

Park Lifeguards to Hold Ninth Annual Dance Friday

Chicago park district lifeguards will hold their ninth annual ball Friday evening in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. Paddy Driscoll, park district beach manager at Oak street and recently appointed coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team, will be a special guest.

Plan Track Meet.

An interproject track and field meet will be held Wednesday at the Jane Addams housing project.

ROAD PROJECTS TO COST 8 MILLIONS

500 HAVE ROLES IN MUSICAL FETE FOR SOUTH SIDE

10,000 Are Expected at Program Friday.

Miss Emma Rund.

More than 400 voices, raised in a cosmopolitan songfest, and 100 dancers and instrumentalists will join next Friday evening in presenting the third annual Greater South Side Music festival at the Jackson park band shell before an expected audience of 10,000 persons.

The event directed by Miss Rund, is held under auspices of the Greater South Side Four Arts league with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Community council coöperating in the sponsorship.

The festival will serve as a prelude to the Chicagoland Music Festival, to be presented Aug. 16 by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in Soldiers' field. Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland festival, will act as master of ceremonies at Friday night's event. Four south side winners, chosen to appear at The Tribune festival will be presented by Mr. Maxwell.

Child Singer on Program.

Louis Jacobi, 7138 Jeffery avenue, a member of the Chicago Concert and Opera guild and the Chicago City opera, will open the program at 7:30 o'clock with "The Star Spangled Banner." Juvenile winners of a recent contest held in connection with the festival will follow.

The youngest festival participant, Cornelia Rogers, 4½ years old, will sing "Brahms' Lullaby." The young singer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers, 8230 Louella avenue. Joseph Golan, 10 year old violinist with the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, will play "Injun Summer," which was written by his teacher, George Perlman, as inspired by John T. McCutcheon's famous cartoon. The piece was recently introduced for the first time by Golan at the Goodman theater. The young virtuoso lives at 8332 Luella avenue.

Miss Eileen Klopsch.
[Harry Johnson Photos.]

Eileen Klopsch, 16, 8328 Yates avenue, vocalist winner, will sing "Estrellita," and Darlene Nussman, 9, 7010 Cregier avenue, is to sing "The Firefly." Juvenile dancers and instrumentalists will include, Ruth Marie Hall, 12, 7714 Michigan avenue, ballet dancer; Jean Pettigrew, 8, 6800 Stony Island avenue, tap dancer; Mary Pucci, 13, 7908 Blackstone avenue, who will play "Jolly Caballero" on the accordion; and Herbert Wiley, 12, 6536 Minerva avenue, who will give a marimba solo, the "Hungarian Dance."

Winners to Appear.

Adult winners of the Greater South Side Four Arts league contest are Miss Jeannette Muriel Poulsen, 7250 Langley avenue, soprano, who will sing Schubert's "Omnipotence," and Thomas Pettigrew, 6800 Stony Island avenue, violinist, who will play "Gypsy Airs."

Composed of 150 voices who gather just for the enjoyment of singing, the Druid Choral society, directed by Philip O. Jones, 7031 Merrill avenue, will sing a group of Welsh folk songs. The Independent Order of Foresters Mixed chorus, a new group of 75 voices directed by Peter Krautzburg, 7708 Yates avenue, and James Burdett, 900 Gunnison street, will sing a medley of songs by Stephen Foster. A third choral group to appear will be the South Side Women's chorus, directed by Lynn Sackett, 1618 East 53d street.

A patriotic song, "Our Democracy," written by two south side young women, will be sung in a duet by Mildred Wagaman, 5634 Kenwood avenue, and Maurice Cherest, 5212 Kimbark avenue, a member of the Chicago Civic opera.

The song was composed by Grace Kent, 5140 Kenwood avenue, and the lyrics were written by Zipporah Pottenger of the same address, a junior at the University of Chicago.

Vocalists 'n Pageant.

Carol Kane, 7718 Marquette avenue, pianist, will play "Valick," by Mokreja. Glenna O'Toole, 8851 Elizabeth avenue, contralto, a member of the Chicago Civic opera will close the first part of the program by singing "O Mio Fernando."

An outstanding feature will open the second half of the program when the young vocalists, finalists in the contest conducted by the league, and also the instrumentalists, will present a pageant which was originated by Miss Rund. It will consist of songs and dances of various countries with a dramatic narrative by Howard Dunnavan.

The participants are: Miss Poulsen, representing the Statue of Liberty, giving the pledge to the flag; Mildred Wageman, England, singing "There

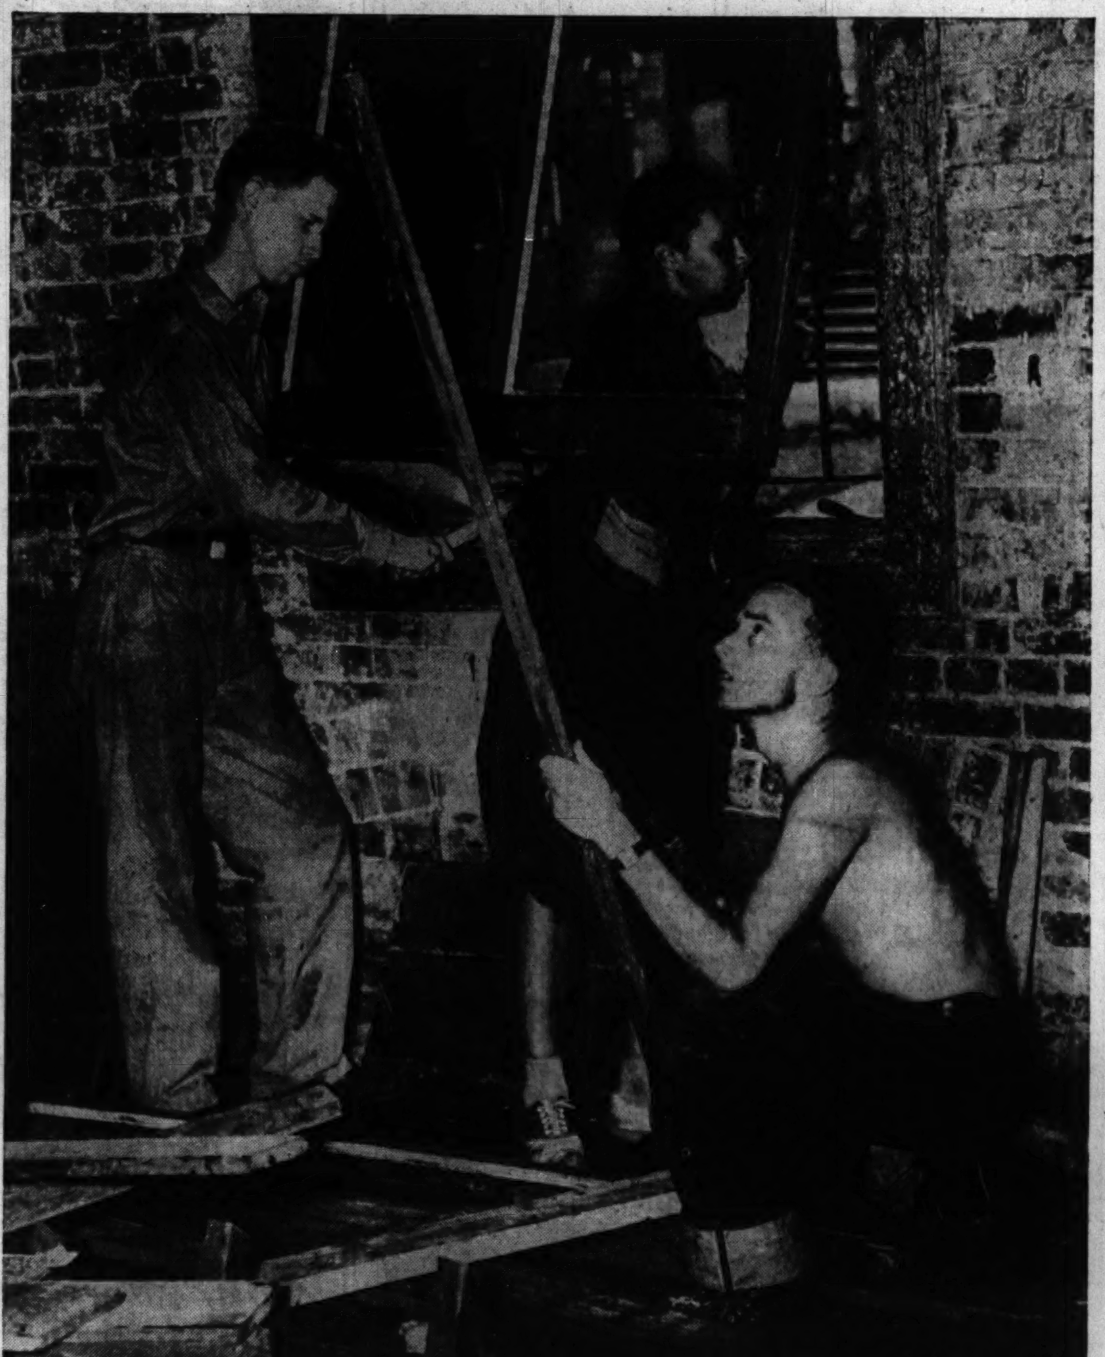
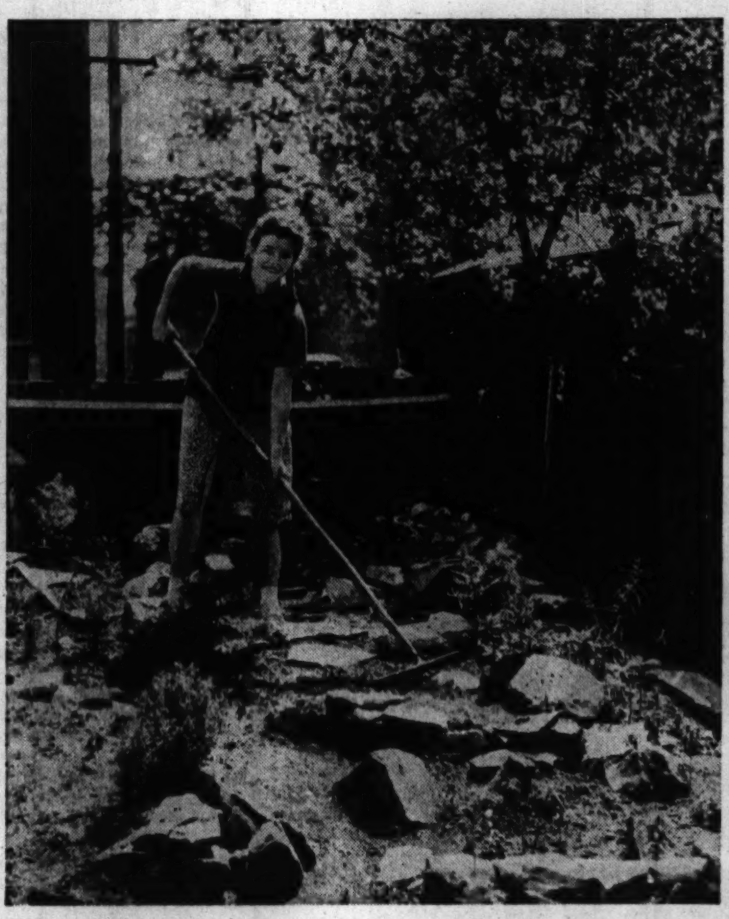
Quakers Hold a Summer Work Camp on Chicago's South Side



A dilapidated garage soon will become clubrooms and a gymnasium for use of the South Side Settlement house, 3201 Wabash avenue, thru the efforts of a group of young men and women who are attending a summer work camp conducted by the American Friends Service committee. Dale Moffet and Juanita Jones are preparing for the installation of a window while Stanley Honer contemplates a use for a piece of timber. They are members of the group who not only work hard, but pay for the privilege.



The campers dug rocks from vacant lots to create playgrounds. The rocks now appear in a rock garden built at the rear of the settlement house. Elinore Rosenbaum is the young gardener.

Turning a rock studded vacant lot at 34th street and Rhodes avenue into a playground is another project. Mildred Campbell, Hal Butterworth, and Fred Nora are the workers.

Two young sandbox customers stand by patiently while Ruth Urice, James Roy, and George Benedict shovel sand for the boxes. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

George Watson, director of the camp, pauses in his sawing to watch Mrs. Nona Roy hammer on the side of one of the playground's sand boxes.

Emma Lee Irving is applying the finishing touches to a baseball backstop constructed on a playground by the campers while Dorothy Mahle stirs up a batch of paint for the next job.

7 Years' Work Wins Neatest Farm Award

(Picture on page 2.)

Gust H. Grieger is no longer just Farmer Grieger to his friends. He is now called Grand Champion Neat Farmer of the Chicago milk shed. The title was recently bestowed upon him by judges in the 8th annual Neatest Dairy Farm contest sponsored by the Pure Milk association.

Fairview, the Griegers' 262 acre Holstein farm near Valparaiso, scored 99.58 per cent, highest among 18 finalists in the contest that took in farms of 18 districts in Illinois and Indiana. With the title goes an award of a seven day winter vacation trip for Mr. and Mrs. Grieger.

Their Seventh Year.

This is the seventh year the Griegers entered the contest and their score has climbed year by year toward the grand championship. The farms were judged on the basis of all-around neatness and appearance of farm buildings, neatness, and cleanliness of the dairy barn, milk house, and equipment, inside condition of other buildings and appearance of the herd. Professors L. C. Thomsen of the University of Wisconsin, H. A. Ruehe of the University of Illinois, and H. W. Gregory of Purdue university acted as judges in the final selections.

Among the finalists in this area who took first place in their districts were Mrs. Julia Dickman, owner of a 375 acre farm near Herscher, Ill., George Randolph's farm near Crown Point, and the M. C. Antrim farm near Mill Creek, Ind. Silverware prizes will be awarded the winners.

Other Indiana farms in the area which scored high in the contest and will receive award of merit plaques are: Albert Bastiani, Crown Point; Gerald McCarty, Kentland; V. P. Dickinson, Hebron; Joseph Mitsch, Lowell; Louis Troesch, Raub; Harry J. Brose, Wanatah; Stephen Kovac, Crown Point; Roy S. McGuigan, La Porte; Ross Shook, Hobart; J. D. Jessup, La Porte; Frank Land, Wanatah; Wallace McLane, Union Mills; Charles Weidner, Knox; Peter Pliske, Westville, and Jake Wozniak, La Porte.

Dr. John Knox Will Preach in Woodlawn Church Today

Dr. John Knox, associate professor of preaching at the University of Chicago divinity school, will occupy the pulpit today and the following two Sundays at the Woodlawn Methodist church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. Dr. Charles T. Holman, also of the divinity school, and Dr. Chesley Howell of Wooster college, Wooster, O., will be heard on the fourth and fifth Sundays.

DE PAUL U. GIVES 169 DEGREES AT SUMMER TERM

The 30th annual session of the De Paul university summer school ended yesterday when 169 graduates received their degrees. The Very Rev. M. J. O'Connell, president of De Paul conferred the degrees in St. Vincent's church.

The choir was composed of 40 nuns from all parts of the United States who were students in the summer music school. The music for the baccalaureate high mass, which opened the ceremonies was composed by Sister Mary Felix, a graduate student at the university, as her thesis for a master's degree.

South side graduates were: Master of arts—George Jennings, Gertrude Rice, Elsie Fillippi, Mary Ormsby. Master of business administration—Hortense Klein. Master of education—Frank Ryan. Master of music—Hortense Love. Bachelor of arts—John McCullough. Bachelor of science in education—Mary Byrne. Bachelor of science—Richard Palmer.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

Dean Harens.

DEAN HARENS, after being away from home for a year, is spending two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harens in Gary. At the end of his vacation he will return to New York City to continue his rôle as Arthur Anderson in the radio serial, "We, the Abbotts." The 21 year old actor spent two years at the Goodman theater, and last summer played at the Michiana Shores theater. He appeared in one New York production and then turned to radio work.

THREE south side youths will be among the 52 cadets at The Citadel, The Military College of South Carolina, who this fall will wear the gold stars of academic excellence, according to Lieut. Col. C. F. Myers, adjutant. They are William J. De Witt, 9835 Avenue L, a senior; Joseph P. Roth, 6052 South Richmond street, a junior, and Vincent R. Ewald, 729 West 71st street, a sophomore.

In the home of Jim W. Gee, 7105 Stewart avenue, good news struck twice within two weeks. First Mrs. Gee presented her husband with a six pound baby boy, and before the exhilaration brought on by that event had worn off, Mr. Gee received word that because of his volume of sales of building material he was to be awarded a watch and inducted into the First 100 club, a national society sponsored by the National Housing guild. Mr. Gee heads a south side lumber and coal company.

With his award check, Charles R. Hogan, 1708 West 80th street, a carpenter, probably will be building a house with his own plans. It was his design that won second prize in a national home planning contest, entitled, "The House You'd Like to Build."

Elected by their fellow campers at the YWCA Forest Beach camp for business girls, Phyllis Spencer, 6351 South Keeler avenue, and Genevieve Schmal, 1425 West 71st street, will represent the group at the winter camp council of the association.

Quakers Rally from Afar to Build Playlots

Sixteen young men and women, representing eleven states, for the last month have been turning 2d ward vacant lots into playgrounds and converting a dilapidated garage into clubrooms and a gymnasium. What is more, they are paying for the privilege. The group is attending a Quaker 7th annual summer work camp conducted by the American Friends' Service committee.

The camp is one of 16 located from New York to California. For nearly two months—from June 27 to Aug. 22—more than 300 men and women from every state in the Union will work in and with communities where these camps are situated.

No Rosy Vacation.

No rosy vacation is pictured in the literature sent to prospective campers. It asks that only those apply who are willing to live coöperately, do hard physical labor, impose self-discipline as a member of a democratically organized group, and study sympathetically the social and economic problems of the area in which the camp is located.

With those ideas in mind these 16 men and women came to the Chicago camp. The majority of them paid $75 as their camp fee, altho scholarship assistance was given to some, who, tho well qualified students, would otherwise have been unable to attend.

George Watson, 25, and his wife, Elizabeth, 27, are directors of the camp. Both are graduates of Miami university and Watson is instructor in government at Southern Illinois Normal university, Carbondale, Ill., where the couple make their home.

Day Begins at 5:30.

The group has rented living quarters in a missionary training school at 2969 Vernon avenue. Their day begins at 5:30 o'clock, when Watson, loudly singing, strides down the hall, pounding on each camper's door.

A half hour later the campers, dressed in work clothes, are at the breakfast table. A dietician prepares the food at an average cost of 35 cents per camper for three meals. The foreman—each camper is foreman for half a work week—reads the work schedule assigning the campers to various jobs.

Three of the group, chosen each week, remain at the building to wash dishes, sweep, dust, and help the dietician in preparing meals.

Before leaving for work at 7 o'clock the group holds a 20 minute mediation period. After four and one-half hours of work the campers return for lunch and start back to their jobs an hour later. They put down their hammers, saws, and shovels at 3:30 and are free to rest, study, or play until supper. In the evening the campers might relax on the lawn in the rear of the school and hold informal discussions.

Asks as to Needs.

Before the group arrived in Chicago a committee of Friends went to Mrs. Ada S. McKinley, director of the South Side Settlement house, which for 24 years has been outstanding for its service to the community. They told her of the camp work soon to start and asked her what the campers could do to aid the neighborhood.

Mrs. McKinley pointed out that the area was handicapped by lack of sufficient recreational facilities for the Negro children. She told the committee the settlement's three story building was overcrowded and suggested the vacant two story garage in the rear might be converted into club space.

Mrs. Henry B. Clark, president of the Second Ward Council of Clubs, learned of the contemplated work on the playgrounds and got her organization to sponsor the work. They provided needed materials.

Make Three Playgrounds.

The campers concentrated on three vacant lots near 34th street and Rhodes avenue and on the garage. They built baseball backstops, laid out a ball diamond, and made sand box pits. In the afternoon they work in the garage, arranging clubrooms and a small gymnasium.

The majority of the group are university graduates, and they knew little of working with their hands when they arrived. But men and women alike now can hammer a nail in straight and use a saw. They have also found time to landscape the rear yard of the settlement house.

The campers are not all members of the Religious Society of Friends, or Quakers, but all have a common objective— to gain new insights into social and economic problems and to later apply their knowledge in their own communities.

At the close of camp Miss Dorothy Bonner, 33, will return to New Jersey, where she manages a high school cafeteria; Fred Nora, 25, a graduate of the University of Minnesota, will teach school in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Miss Ruth Urice, 22, a graduate of Northwestern university, will resume teaching an eighth grade class in Niles, Mich.; Miss Dorothy Mahle, 29, also a graduate of Minnesota, is a librarian in St. Paul; Hal Butterworth, 22, a graduate of Dartmouth, will take a postgraduate course at Yale; Miss Elinore Rosenbaum of New York City will resume her graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Legion Eagle Post Holds Basket Picnic Next Sunday

Eagle post of the American Legion will hold its annual basket picnic next Sunday at Irish-American grove, 114th street and 86th avenue. Free transportation will be furnished up to 1 p. m. from 111th street and Sacramento avenue.

NEW MILITARY NEEDS REQUIRE BETTER PAVING

South Area Receives Greater Share.

State highway improvements worth $4,764,269 for southern and southwestern Chicagoland are now under way or soon to start, it was announced last week by Walter A. Rosenfield, state director of public works.

These projects are part of the state's current improvement program for the entire Chicago area, which have a total value of $8,350,000, Rosenfield said. His survey included the counties of Cook, Lake, Henry, Kane, Du Page, and Will.

This total figure will probably be increased substantially in the near future because of congressional passage of an emergency appropriation to finance highway improvements vital to the defense program. This appropriation is expected to make another $5,000,000 available for early work in this area.

Roads for Military Use.

Southern Chicagoland is getting a lion's share of the current state highway work because of the defense program, the public works director indicated. Federal aid highway allotments are going principally for access roads to military and naval reservations. Much highway improvement was made necessary by the location of the Kankakee and Elwood munitions plants south of Joliet. Practically all of the state highway work now under way is on routes tributary to these busy defense areas.

Largest of these southerly projects already started is the 7½ miles of reconstruction on U. S. route 6 between Channahon and Rockdale. Here a new concrete pavement and bridge are being installed at a cost of $262,996.

Three stretches of U. S. route 30, totaling 4.41 miles, are also undergoing improvements totaling $162,226. The stretches include 1.4 miles just east of Frankfort, another 1.7 miles between Joliet and New Lenox, and a third 1.31 miles in Joliet—Cass street from Collins to Hebard streets.

The road that forms the north boundary of the Elwood ordnance plant is being surfaced with stone at a cost of $172,948. A short section of thorofare connecting this road with Alternate U. S. route 66 is being paved at a cost of $3,810. A similar connecting link between the south boundary road and alternate 66 is costing $85,519.

Renew Old Joliet Road.

Defense highway projects totaling more than two and three-quarters millions are on the immediate construction program but have not yet started. These include the reconstruction of old Joliet road [alternate 66] from Joliet 20.2 miles southward to a point southwest of Wilmington, which will cost $2,300,000. Another programmed project is the 7.8 mile, $400,000 paving of the road bounding the Elwood plant on the east and southeast.

Plans are also set for the stone surfacing of 1.58 miles of road running from Channahon east to alternate 66, at a cost of $43,000, and the paving with concrete of more than a mile of Chicago road from the north plant boundary to alternate 66.

Eight state paving projects are under way in southern and southwestern Cook county, Rosenfield's survey showed. These include:

Widening and paving with concrete of 1.81 miles of Archer avenue from Willow Springs south to 95th street at a cost of $183,877. This is part of the heavily traveled U. S. routes 12, 20, and 45.

Widening and concrete paving of 1.62 miles of 159th street in Harvey at a cost of $109,135, and the widening and paving of the 159th street subway and approaches in South Holland at a cost of $139,724. These are links of U. S. route 6.

Resurface Route 30.

Pavement with bituminous concrete of 4.76 miles of Kean avenue from Archer avenue southward to 119th street, at a cost of $64,910.

Resurfacing with bituminous concrete of 4.94 miles of U. S. route 30 from the Will county line eastward to Chicago Heights, at a cost of $97,037, and installation of nearly a mile of curb and gutter along route 30 from Illinois route 83 to the Indiana state line at Dyer, at a cost of $15,520.

Repaving .17 of a mile of Loomis avenue in Harvey, from 147th to 148th street, at a cost of $11,572.

Widening and paving of 3.38 miles of 95th street from U. S. route 45 east to the Southwest highway, at a cost of $161,974. This is also an important part of U. S. routes 12 and 20.

Repaving on Mannheim.

The Cook county projects expected to start soon include the $186,000 repaving of Mannheim road from 119th street to 143d street [part of U. S. route 45], and the $25,000 separation of this route's grade from that of McCarthy road, as well as the $130,000 widening and repaving of Cicero avenue in Chicago from Archer avenue to 63d street.

Rosenfield emphasized that his figures on state highway work do not include county and municipal shares of the motor fuel taxes. This extra money is available for additional highway and street work, he said.

OLDEST NEGRO CHURCH IN CITY WILL CELEBRATE

Quinn Chapel Began at 1844 Prayer Meeting.

Rev. T. Deans Scott. [—Dta Photo.]

A small group of colored men and women gathered one evening in a house near the corner of Randolph and State streets to hold a prayer meeting. The year was 1844. Thru those early worshipers and more who later joined them, the Quinn Chapel church was organized three years later. This oldest Negro church in Chicago this year celebrates its 94th anniversary.

Where only a few score persons gathered at that first worship, today 1,200 members crowd the present edifice at 24th street and Wabash avenue where it has stood for 50 years. In the church's history during that half century and the years before, is a story of faith, hope, hardship, and eagerness. Twice it arose from the ashes of fires and has overcome an indebtedness that amounted, at one time, to $41,000.

Early members purchased a part of the White Baptist church and moved it to a location near Van Buren and La Salle streets, the site of the first Quinn church. In 1854 they built their own church at Jackson and Dearborn streets. The building, with a seating capacity of 500, costing $5,000 was paid for and dedicated the same day.

Victim of Great Fire.

For 17 years the congregation worshipped in that church until it was destroyed in the great Chicago fire. The old lot was mortgaged for $11,000 and the old Mission church on Fourth avenue, between Taylor street and Roosevelt road was purchased. Three years later, this church, too, was razed by fire.

The followed two years of meetings in rented halls and vacant stores. A new brick church was built in 1889 and was used for 13 years until railroads and other interests in the neighborhood made the location unsuitable for worship. The property was sold for $50,000 and indebtedness of $11,000 was paid.

Build Farther South.

Under the leadership of the Rev. John T. Jenifer three lots at 24th street and Wabash avenue were bought for $29,375 and in 1891 the new edifice of Gothic architecture was erected for $55,000. Permission was granted by the city's various labor unions to allow colored help to build the church. The entire congregation had a hand in the erection. Thirty-two years later the building was paid for.

Six years older than this church is its oldest member, James H. Lewis, 5401 Wabash avenue, who will celebrate his 101st birthday Sept. 1. "Brother Jimmie," when a young man, lived in Palatine and often came into Chicago for week-ends. Back in 1859 when he found himself in the city on Sunday he would attend Quinn chapel.

Upon being mustered out of the Union army in 1867 he took up residence in Chicago and became a member of the church. "Brother Jimmie" has held every office in the church except that of pastor. He still sits with the choir on Sundays but his eyes are getting bad and he sings only those hymns that he knows from memory. His voice still rises above the music from the church organ that was originally on display at the Columbian exposition of '93.

Has Heard Presidents.

From the church rostrum, Mr. Lewis has heard speak Presidents McKinley and Taft, Booker T. Washington, and a long list of other great men of national and local reputation.

Mrs. Estelle Williams, president of the women's auxilary, made 200 aprons which were sold to purchase a "birthday gift" for the church. Mrs. Roosevelt, to whom an apron was sent, returned her congratulations and a picture of the White House.

The Rev. T. Deans Scott has been pastor since 1935. Other officers are the Rev. J. A. Gregg, D.D., presiding bishop, and the Rev. B. U. Taylor, presiding elder. Trustees are George S. Price, George T. Kersey, R. H. Pollard, Otis Giddens, Chester A. Wilkins, Benjamin V. Armstead, James W. Fisher, and Eugene Paris.

NEGRO CHORUS WILL REHEARSE FOR FESTIVAL

The Negro chorus directed by J. Wesley Jones will hold nightly rehearsals all next week in preparation for an appearance at the Chicagoland Music Festival Aug. 16 at Soldiers' field.

The chorus has been divided into groups to facilitate rehearsals and Mr. Jones has met with one of the groups every night since June 24. The groups will combine in a final rehearsal Aug. 14 at the Metropolitan church.

Locations of next week's rehearsals follow; Aug. 4, Progressive Baptist church; Aug. 5, Metropolitan church; Aug. 6, Original Providence Baptist church; Aug. 7, Metropolitan church; Aug. 8, Zion Hill Baptist church; and Aug. 9, Progressive Baptist church.

St. Bernard Young People to Dance Next Saturday

The third annual summer formal dance of the Young People's club of St. Bernard church will be held next Saturday at the Lincolnshire Country club.

Plan Big Picnic.

More than 4,500 persons are expected to attend the picnic Saturday of the Buda company of Harvey at Frankfort Grove, 196th street and Keane avenue. George Moecker and Ben Spelde are co-chairmen.

Neatest in Dairy Farm Contest

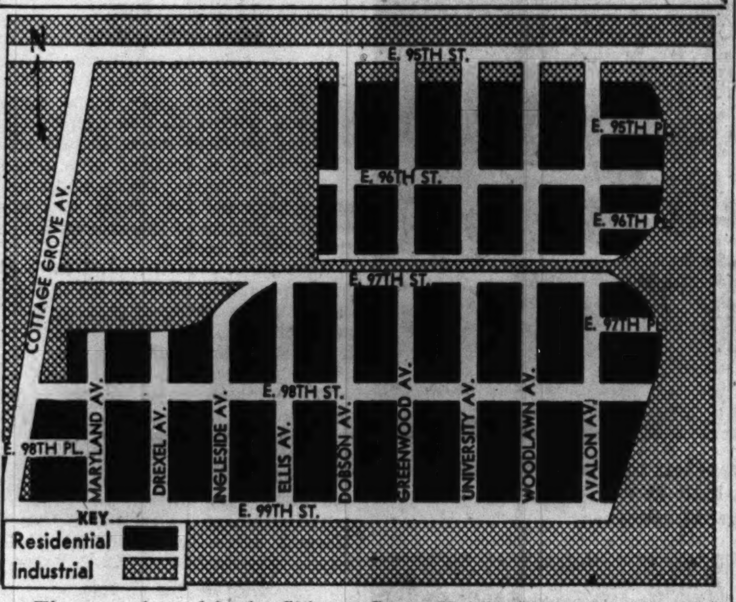
FAIRVIE
GUST H
VALP

Those are victory smiles worn by Mr. and Mrs. Gust H. Greiger whose farm near Valparaiso, Ind., was adjudged grand champion in the neatest dairy farm contest. The tiny log cabin at the right was built by Mr. Gieger for the couple's four grandchildren.

Here's a Bad Mixture, Say Planners



The area charted is the Chicago Grove Heights development, which according to framers of the new zoning ordinance is a good example of improper land use planning. The homesites cannot be protected adequately from the industrial property which almost entirely surrounds them, and the industries are denied the right of expansion.

MUSICIAN HELPS OPEN WORLD TO BLIND READERS

Finishes Biography of Strauss in Braille.

After seven months of spare time work, Mrs. Helen Larson has completed the transcription of 718 pages from the two volume works of "The Life of Johann Strauss, Father and Son." Thru Mrs. Larson the biography may now be read not with the eyes but by fingertip. It is in the language of the blind.

Mrs. Larson is one of 221 members of the Braille service of the American Red Cross who have helped unlock the door of that world of darkness.

It was her love for music that led Mrs. Larson to join the first braille class started on the south side in October, 1939. Mrs. Larson, who sang with the Chicago Civic Opera company from 1930 to 1932, hoped to increase the blind's joy of listening to music by presenting them with braille books of musical history.

Not a Single Error.

Upon successfully transcribing her test manuscript of 40 pages, she was awarded a certificate by the Library of Congress in Washington making her a recognized braille translator. Mrs. Larson started her first book transcription Feb. 20, 1940. She chose the 250 page autobiography of David Mannes, "Music Is My Faith." It was slow, tedious work. Using a long needle with a small sponge ball for a handle, she pressed out each dot by hand.

Eight months later it was finished. The book was sent to the local Red Cross headquarters for proofreading. Then came a letter that made all those long hours of work worthwhile. The congratulatory letter informed Mrs. Larson she had completed the book without a single error.

Her best helper, said Mrs. Larson, is her husband, Axel, chief safety inspector at the Wisconsin Steel company. He made a handy desk for her to work at and last year clipped poetry and bits of humor from Arch Ward's column, "In the Wake of the News," from which Mrs. Larson transcribed three 50 page booklets. These were distributed at Christmas in hospitals for the blind and met with such favor that she and her husband are now working on another set.

Now Uses Machine.

The transcribing of the Strauss biography, her biggest undertaking, was made easier by the use of a braille machine given her by the Red Cross. The machine, slightly smaller than a portable typewriter, is equipped with six keys similar in appearance to the black keys on a piano. Each key, when pressed, produces a tangible dot and by striking keys simultaneously, letters and words are formed. Mrs. Larson has become as proficient on the machine as a fast typist.

She is now looking forward to October when she will enter a special braille class to learn how to transcribe music for blind musicians and students. In addition to her braille work, Mrs. Larson finds time to give singing lessons to 25 young pupils in the studio basement of her bungalow and to sing in a women's trio at club and church functions.

Recalling that braille transcribing came into sad prominence at the close of the World war when many American soldiers returned home blind, Mrs. Larson expressed the hope that her books would never need be read by any of the young men now in training.

Reading Urged.

Boys and girls are urged to join the summer reading club at the South Chicago library where already 115 children are reading in a Good Will Flight around the Americas.

HOMES IN BUFFER AREAS CONFUSE ZONING OF CITY

Industrial Expansion Reveals Trend.

Conflict between residences and industries is helping to complicate the task of providing Chicago with a workable new zoning ordinance. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council subcommittee that is preparing the new ordinance, declared that in some instances the defense program has been hampered by inconsistencies of the existing zoning law which the new one is to replace.

"There have been several cases," Lindell said, "where industries forced to expand by the receipt of defense orders could not do so conveniently because residences had encroached upon them.

"The old ordinance set up so-called buffer zones, specifying that industries could not build within certain distances of dwellings. This distance varied from 400 to 2,000 feet, according to the nature of the industry.

Home Owner Suffers.

"There was nothing in the old ordinance, however, to prevent the owner of industrial property from using it as homesites. That is in fact what happened.

"Land speculators bought up cheap industrial zones, subdivided them, and sold lots to prospective small home owners, who in many cases did not learn until after they bought that they were not in residential zones.

"This had no immediate effect on industries. But when the defense program came along and many of them were faced with the necessity of expanding quickly, they ran up against the buffer zone provision of the old ordinance.

"It was necessary on several occasions for the city to waive this provision to expedite defense work. This was done, however, only in cases where it was clearly indicated that industry had prior rights; that is, where it could be shown that the area in question had been zoned for industry and usurped for residences."

Start Zoning Review.

Ald. Lindell cited the case of the Wisconsin Steel company plant on 106th street east of Lake Calumet, which had to get a special dispensation before it could install needed plant enlargements, all because a small residential subdivision had gone in just south of 110th street.

Discovery of the unexpected prohibition set up by this situation started the framers of the new zoning ordinance on a review of the whole industrial picture. It pointed to the need of steps to avoid recurrence. The new ordinance will prohibit the use of land for any other purpose than that for which it is specifically zoned.

Another case in point is that of the Revere Copper and Brass company, also a defense industry. When this concern began to enlarge its plant at Fullerton and Natchez avenues, nearby residents tried to block the move, arguing that any increase of industrial use would depreciate their property. The city ruled against them.

Place for Everything.

"Intelligent zoning is merely good municipal housekeeping," Ald. Lindell said. "In trying to provide Chicago with the best land use code possible, we are merely following the principle of 'a place for everything and everything in its place.'

148 VOCALISTS OF SO. AREA IN FESTIVAL TEST

Singers Will Be Judged Thursday and Friday.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

One hundred and forty-eight vocalists who reside on the south or southwest sides of Chicago are entered in the sectional voice contest of the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. This is a record number for this section of the city, but is not as many as are in the competitions in the other parts of Chicago.

Tenors, contraltos and baritones will be heard Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the ballroom of the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. At the same time and place Friday night the sopranos, mezzos and basses will be judged.

Public Is Invited.

The public is invited. Admission is 25 cents. The north side contests were held last week and the west side competition will be held Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue.

The contests at the Shoreland hotel start the long trek of the 148 vocalists in quest of the honor of being named the "best man singer," and the "best woman singer" of the 1941 festival. For the first time four finalists, two women and two men, will sing against each other in Soldiers' field before the festival audience of nearly 100,000 people on Saturday night, Aug. 16.

The names of the judges for the south side contests will be published Thursday morning in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

SERVICES TODAY MARK THE END OF JEWISH FAST

Tisha B'Ab services will be held this morning at the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, and at the Congregation Rodfei Zedek, 1022 East 54th place. Today marks the end of a 24 hour fast day, that began last evening at sunset. Rabbi Morris Teller and Cantor Joseph Giblichman will conduct the services at the South Side congregation and Rabbi B. A. Daskal will lead the services at Congregation Zedek.

Picnic at Sag.

Historic St. James church in Lemont, known as the Old Sag church, is holding its annual home coming picnic today in the parish grove at Archer avenue and 105th street.

MR. JOHN TUNES UP FOR BIT OF PICNIC MELODY

He'll Sing with Old Settlers Tomorrow.

John Bremer cleared his throat, placed one foot on the low rail fence surrounding the lawn in front of his home at 3213 Vernon avenue, and gave out with a few bars of "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

"Did a lot of singing when I was a youngster," the 84 year old gentleman said. "Probably will sing a song or two at the picnic tomorrow."

Mr. Bremer is one of the many old-timers in Chicago and suburbs who is looking forward to the 67th annual Old Settlers' picnic and reunion tomorrow at Harm's park, Western and Berteau avenues.

Will Be Well Represented.

The Bremers will be well represented at the outing. In addition to John will be his brother, Peter, 78, with whom he lives, and their sisters, Mrs. Helen Reinwand, 82, and Mrs. Mary Albiecz, 72, both of 3532 South Hermitage avenue.

The Bremers were all born in Chicago and lived, until the Chicago fire, at 188 Sherman street, the last block destroyed by the fire. The home on Vernon avenue was given to Peter 42 years ago by Michael T. McDonald, one of the city's early gambling czars, to whom Peter was secretary.

Stories of those times that already have been told and retold at preceding outings will be exchanged again by the old-timers, for whom, tomorrow, present day worries will be forgotten and the happiest moments of the past will be revived.

Prizes to Be Awarded.

However, there will be much else to do beside exchange stories. Radio stars and a band will entertain the folks. There will be games, refreshments, and dancing. Gold medals will be awarded to the oldest man and woman settler present; to the one longest employed in the same concern and still working there; the one with the largest family living, and to the married couple whose combined ages total the greatest number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Palmer of 8942 Exchange avenue will be aspirants for the latter title. The couple, who last January celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary, total 163 years together.

Mr. Palmer was born 84 years ago in Saginaw, Mich., and was brought to Chicago when 3 years old. The family lived near Clinton and De Koven streets, a half block from Mrs. O'Leary, at the time of the great fire. In a bank vault Mr. Palmer has a huge tooth given to him by his brother, who is said to have taken it from the charred remains of Mrs. O'Leary's cow.

May Dance for Prize.

The Palmers said they might be tempted to enter the prize dance contest at the picnic, in which the 10 oldest couples dancing are presented with bouquets. Those wearing the best authentic costumes also will receive awards.

"Any one over 40 years of age," according to H. F. Chaveriat, picnic chairman, "who has lived in Chicago or Cook county for the last 25 years is eligible to register as an Old Settler, and will receive as a souvenir a badge showing the year of settlement."

The event is sponsored by the Chicago Turners, headed by Mr. Chaveriat, chairman; L. O. Greiner, vice chairman; R. P. Stover, executive secretary; Mrs. E. M. Rueck, secretary; F. J. Pfustler, assistant secretary, and A. W. Rayner, treasurer.

South side members assisting in the preparations are Harry P. Eichin, 6500 Minerva avenue, and Alexander Schreiber of 5120 Kimbark avenue.

Ritual Contest.

Eleven lodges will participate in a district ritual contest next Sunday at the Jackson Park Lodge home, 426 West 63d street. The contest will be conducted by the Illinois Moose association under the direction of H. E. Eikenberry.

[Couper Photos.]

Fifty years of married life will be celebrated next week by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ertel, 5211 Kimbark avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sack Sr., 10658 Champlain avenue. Golden wedding celebrants last week were Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilmore, 7370 South Shore drive, and Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Campbell, 7617 South Shore drive.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

James O. Morris, who joined the United States Marine corps less than two months ago, has already received two medals. Within the first three weeks he was presented with a medal for expert bayonet work and recently was given a medal as Marine sharpshooter. He is stationed in San Diego.

Aviation Cadet Fred R. Kunz has been promoted to first lieutenant of Company A, first platoon, aviation cadet corps in the Oklahoma Air college in Oklahoma City. Kunz, who attended Alabama university, is the son of Mrs. Alvina Kunz of Hammond.

News of several promotions for south side men has been received from Camp Forrest, Tenn. Samuel T. Lawton Jr., 5700 Blackstone avenue, of the 122d artillery, has been promoted to first lieutenant. In one jump Private Sanford Wolff, 5346 Cornell avenue, has become a sergeant, and Privates Phil McGovern, 8031 Paxton avenue, and Sam Hodge, 2218 East 79th street, have been made corporals. The three are attached to the 33d division headquarters.

In the 132d infantry, Privates Harold F. Beckman, 8118 Ellis avenue, Thomas W. Gedoud, 10744 State street, Edward D. Hammer, 8112 Eberhart avenue, Clifford E. Larson, 6458 Dante avenue, Dominic J. Venti, 7122 St. Lawrence avenue, and Private First Class Chester L. Kamark, 6934 Yale avenue, have all been promoted to corporals.

PRESENT FOURTH CONCERT TONIGHT IN JACKSON PARK

The fourth of the Jackson park Sunday concerts will be presented this evening by Oscar Anderson's band. Marian Carlisle, soprano, will be the soloist. Among the selections chosen by Mr. Anderson are Strauss' "Emperor Waltzes," "Mardi Gras," from Grofe's "Mississippi Suite," and selections from "Blossom Time," by Romberg. Miss Carlisle will sing "Il Bacio" and Victor Herbert's "When You're Away."

GOLDEN WEDDING TIME ARRIVES FOR 4 COUPLES

South Siders Celebrate at Family Parties.

The south side, which was the scene of two golden wedding anniversaries last week, will see two other couples entertain relatives and friends at golden celebrations this week.

More than a hundred friends motored to Lakeside, Mich., last Wednesday to offer their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilmore who were celebrating at their summer home. The Gilmores have been residents of Chicago for more than 50 years and live at 7370 South Shore drive. Mr. Gilmore, 75, was born in New Haven, Mich., while Mrs. Gilmore was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, and came here with her parents when she was 2 years old.

49 Years on Job.

Friends and relatives attended a tea room party last Tuesday given by the two children, two grandchildren, and two great grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Campbell, 7617 South Shore drive. The couple moved to the south side a year after their marriage in Punxsutawney, Pa. Mr. Campbell has been an employé of the Surface Lines for the last 49 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sack Sr. of 10658 Champlain avenue, who will celebrate 50 years of married life on Aug. 5, will be given a party this evening by their four children, seven grandchildren, and two great grandchildren. They have been residents of the south side since their marriage.

Mr. Sack, who is 75, was born in Chicago and was a cigar manufacturer for many years. He served as a deputy sheriff in 1900. Mrs. Sack, 70, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Once Guest of Kaiser.

Fifty years together will be celebrated Aug. 8 by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ertel, 5211 Kimbark avenue. Mr. Ertel, 89, has been a newspaper and magazine publisher and the western representative of a New York financial paper since he came to this country from Germany in 1872. While a youth of 13, he and his father were guests of Kaiser Wilhelm 1st at a hotel in Flansburg, Germany.

While running a weekly newspaper in North Dakota he became acquainted with Theodore Roosevelt who was staying at a ranch in the badlands because of his health. When a tornado destroyed all Ertel's possessions, he was about to go east when Roosevelt suggested he stay and run for the office of county treasurer of Billings county. Ertel said he ridiculed the idea, telling Roosevelt the cowboys would never vote for a small man with eyeglasses and sideburns.

Roosevelt said he would take care of that. He gave a dance for the cowboys and told them Ertel was responsible. He was elected by a majority of 17 votes. Later Ertel learned a number of the men were horse thieves. This became apparent a few months after his election when during the night the thieves raided the little town where Ertel was staying and stole every horse but his.

Mrs. Ertel was born in France 77 years ago and came here when she was 20. They met and wed in Chicago and have made their home in Hyde Park for the last 34 years.

Auxiliary Party

The summer outing of the Illinois women's auxiliary of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors will be held Wednesday at the Roselle Country club. Mrs. Jacob J. Van Buren, 5109 Cornell avenue, is president of the club.

JACKSON PARK MUSEUM SHOWS MINE, TORPEDO

In keeping with the nation's interest in national defense, the latest exhibits at the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park are an 18 foot torpedo and a spherical naval mine. They are being shown as examples of one of the most powerful small turbines ever built.

The torpedo is essentially the same in design as those carried by the ships of the United States navy today. Equipped for actual use the torpedo head would contain 245 pounds of highly explosive TNT.

The flask, or central portion, contains 16 pints of alcohol and 32 pints of fresh water for the generation of steam. Under the impact of both steam and boiler gases, the turbines turn two propellors. The torpedo costs about $10,000.

Postal Unit Meets.

The local branch of the National Alliance of Postal Employés will hold its monthly meeting this afternoon at the Wabash avenue YMCA, 3763 Wabash avenue, and will be addressed by Snow F. Grigsby of Detroit, Mich.

CARRIE J. BOND MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Popular Melodies Slated on Chicagoland Hour.

Three popular songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond will be presented in medley form as a highlight of the Chicagoland Hour over W-G-N from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday. Marion Claire, soprano star of the program, Attilio Baggiore, featured tenor, and Guest Contralto Ruth Slater will join the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler in presenting the musical portion of the program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will sing Victor Herbert's "For I'm Falling in Love" and DeLeath's "The Madonna Lullaby." She will also be heard with Baggiore in a medley of Herbert numbers. Baggiore will sing Toselli's "Serenade" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavallo.

The orchestra will present Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite" with a background by the chorus and the "Gypsy Baron Overture" by Strauss.

The complete program follows:

"Gypsy Baron Overture"............Strauss
Orchestra.
"For I'm Falling in Love"........Herbert
Marion Claire.
"Serenade" ....Toselli
Attilio Baggiore.
Medley of Victor Herbert songs:
"Rose of the World"................
......Marion Claire and Attilio Baggiore
"Starlight, Starbright"..............
..............Marion Claire and Chorus
"We Dance Before the King".......Chorus
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Mardi Gras"...........................Grofe
Orchestra and Chorus.
"The Madonna's Lullaby"........DeLeath
Marion Claire.
"Mattinata"..................Leoncavallo
Attilio Baggiore.
Medley of songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond:
"I Love You Truly"..........Marion Claire
"Just A' Wearyin' for You"....Ruth Slater
"A Perfect Day"..........................
Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore, and chorus.

The Chicagoland Hour is produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

HILDA BURKE, BUDDY CLARK ON SUMMER SHOW

Hilda Burke, Metropolitan Opera soprano, and Buddy Clark are to be guest stars on the Summer hour over WBBM-CBS at 8 tonight. Harry Horlick will direct both orchestra and chorus.

Clark and the rhythm orchestra open the solo selections with a rendition of "Maria Elena," by Barcelata. Miss Burke's solo voice offerings are Czardas from "The Bat," by Strauss, and "None But the Lonely Heart," by Tschaikowsky.

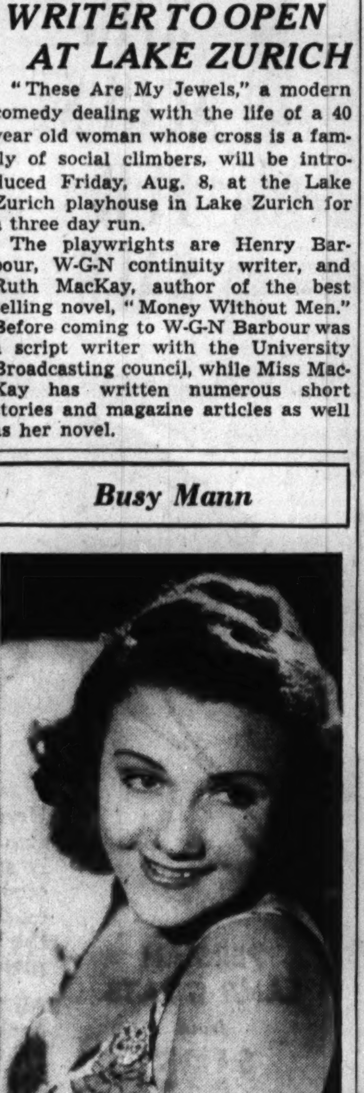
The orchestras and chorus will interpret "A Frangesa," by Costa; medley of familiar melodies from Chopin's works; "Amapola," by Lacalle; "My Old Kentucky Home," by Foster-Kostelanetz, and finally, the Fourth Hungarian Rhapsody, by Brahms.

PLAY BY W-G-N WRITER TO OPEN AT LAKE ZURICH

"These Are My Jewels," a modern comedy dealing with the life of a 40 year old woman whose cross is a family of social climbers, will be introduced Friday, Aug. 8, at the Lake Zurich playhouse in Lake Zurich for a three day run.

The playwrights are Henry Barbour, W-G-N continuity writer, and Ruth MacKay, author of the best selling novel, "Money Without Men." Before coming to W-G-N Barbour was a script writer with the University Broadcasting council, while Miss MacKay has written numerous short stories and magazine articles as well as her novel.

Busy Mann



Songstress Marion Mann is featured this summer on NBC's Breakfast club, Club Matinee, and Week-End Cruise shows. She formerly sang with Bob Crosby.

JOAN MERRILL TO JOIN ZANY TRIO, TOM, DICK, HARRY

Casino Songstress Will Be Guest on W-G-N.

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" will again add half an hour of entertainment to listeners' lives from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Joan Merrill.

The trio will play host to Joan Merrill, newcomer to the world of radio, stage, and screen who sings at the Rhumba Casino. Miss Merrill has had about all the stage and screen experience a young lady might wish, having made tours with the shows of Harry Richman, Dave Apollon, and Rudy Vallee. But something new is in store for her when she works with radio's zaniest trio.

Music highlights Monday will include "How Did He Look?" sung by Miss Merrill, "Evil Eye," a story about a man who puts the curse on every one, this to be sung by the trio. With the circus in town the boys also will do the sad, sad story of "The Acrobat's Daughter."

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" is produced by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N dance orchestra is under the direction of Robert Trendler who also is often called upon to help out on the dialog.

NURSES TO TELL THEIR PARTS IN WORK OF ARMY

An explanation of what makes the wheels go around in the United States army nursing service will be presented at 2 p. m. next Wednesday, Aug. 6, during the "Your Army" broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Two army nurses, Second Lieutenants Zella E. Weist and Clara R. Oberg, will be interviewed by Announcer Ward Quall. They will describe the social life, educational requirements and duties of women who serve in the Nursing corps of the army medical division.

"Your Army," a presentation of the W-G-N special events department, each week will take its listeners behind the scenes of different branches of the United States army. So far air corps and ROTC life has been described. Tentatively scheduled are programs dealing with the medical, quartermaster, hostess, cooking, and air cadet corps.

"UNION NOW" IS SUBJECT TONIGHT ON W-G-N FORUM

The question of a merger between the governments of the United States and Great Britain will be debated on the "American Forum of the Air" over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 tonight. The discussion, conducted by Theodore Granik, will be titled "Shall the United States Form Now a Federal Union with the British Commonwealth?"

Supporting the principle of a Federal Union in the debate will be: Clarence K. Streit, author of "Union Now," and Dr. Frank Kingdon, educator. The negative position will be upheld by Congressman Stephen A. Day of Illinois, author of "We Must Save the Republic," and Congressman Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota.

Mueller and Soule Win Highest De Molay Honors

Marvin E. Mueller and Olan Soule, W-G-N actors, have been selected by the grand council of the Order of De Molay to receive the highest honor of the organization, the "Legion of Honor Degree." The investiture will take place on Aug. 11 at the Chicago Commandery, 32 West Randolph street.

ELSON AND ANSON DUEL IN W-G-N GAME THURSDAY

Andy Frain in Bull Pen as Reserve Pitcher.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob [Glass Arm] Elson vs. Bill [Swing It!] Anson!

That's the super-hurling setup for the softball game next Thursday evening between the W-G-N Radio All-Stars and the W-G-N Retrievers, regular members of the Chicago Editorial league. The game starts at 9 p. m. under the lights at Spencer Coal Field, 4200 North Central avenue, a preliminary is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Receipts will go to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Free Ice and Camp Algonquin funds. But there is no charity in the remarks being made by the players about their rivals in the fortcoming battle.

The feud boiled over yesterday after the baseball committee heard rumors that a bribe had been offered Elson to quit the Retrievers and join the All-Star pitching lineup.

Chairman Heidrich Rules.

"He plays with the Retrievers all season," ruled Chairman Milton Heidrich, "and a Retriever he'll be on Thursday. Or else. End quote."

Anson, who imitates Jack Benny, Charley McCarthy, Tom, Dick, and Harry, and other celebrities on his W-G-N radio programs, has been impersonating Bob Feller and Ted Lyons all week.

A healthy replacement for Anson, in case Bill has to go to a radio station and play some phonograph records, was found last night in Andy Frain, whose ushers serve at W-G-N studio shows and all big time events. Frain is providing a full crew for duty at Spencer Coals field.

Two Girl Mascots.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor; Bud Vandover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Vandover [Tom, Dick, and Harry], Guy Savage, Jack Brickhouse, Jess Kirkpatrick, Spencer Allen, Charles Victor, Alan Scott, Producer Paul Fogarty [Ask-It-Ball], Charles Flynn [Harold Teen], Ed Prentiss [Capt. Midnight], and Olan Soule, heard in several dramatic rôles will be among the Stars in action.

Uncle Harry Hosford of A. B. C. club fame will manage the Stars. Lucy Gilman, comely actress in "Painted Dreams," will be mascot and bat-girl. Alice Goodkin, also on W-G-N dramatic shows will do the same for the Retrievers. Dorothy Gregory of Citizens of Tomorrow and other shows, will be official scorer.

Tickets for the game are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower. Prices are 50 cents [including tax] for adults, and 10 cents for children. The tickets also may be obtained at the gate.

TINNEY TO BEGIN 'SIZING UP NEWS' SHOW ON W-G-N

Cal Tinney, humorist and columnist, will start a new series of philosophical, amusing news commentaries titled "Sizing Up the News," on W-G-N and 73 other Mutual stations beginning tomorrow. Tinney's broadcasts will be heard each Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 7:15 p. m.

Cal Tinney.

Tinney, whose syndicated column, "Man of the Week," appears in 26 newspapers, promises that his new radio series will be refreshing and entirely different. "My program," he said, "will put special emphasis on personalities in the news and try to look for the reasons which account for the facts you read in your newspaper and hear on the average radio news show."

Sam Balter's "Inside of Sports" program, under the same sponsorship, will be heard on W-G-N and Mutual each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m.

IRMA COOPER TO BE GUEST ON YOUR MUSIC I. Q.

Irma Cooper, dramatic soprano who last year won the coveted citation as the best woman singer at the Chicagoland Music Festival, will be a guest expert on the broadcast of "Your Music I. Q." on W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow.

In the lineup with Miss Cooper will be Scott Goldthwaite of the music department at the University of Chicago, Maggi McNellis, vocalist in the Pump room of the Ambassador hotel, and Leo Goldstein, a layman who has been answering question after question while a member of the audience at other "Music I. Q." programs.

By stumping the guest experts the listeners who send in questions can receive two free tickets to a concert at Ravinia park. Even if they fail to stop the musical master minds the question senders whose quizzes are used on the I. Q. program are given one dollar.

PIERRE MONTEUX TO CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Concert to Be Aired on W-G-N at 8:30 P. M.

Pierre Monteux, noted French conductor, will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert at Ravinia to be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program will emphasize French music, presenting Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Symphony in D Minor," by Franck, and Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla-Khan."

Monteux, director of the San Francisco symphony for six years, has had a varied musical career. After graduation from the Paris conservatory, he joined the Cologne orchestra, eventually becoming assistant conductor. In 1911 he toured Europe with Serge Diaghileff's Ballet Russe as one of the principal conductors. Between tours he gave concerts in Paris called "Les Concerts Monteux," at which he introduced many modern compositions.

His tour with the Ballet Russe brought him to the United States for the first time in 1916. He received a post at the Metropolitan opera from 1917 to 1919 which he resigned to succeed Henri Rebaud as conductor of the Boston symphony.

After five years in Boston, Monteux devoted a decade to conducting the historic Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland. Because of his many positions Monteux has been called "the traveling salesman of music."

In this country he has conducted at New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles as well as Boston and San Francisco. This will be his first Chicago appearance.

The Budapest string quartet will follow Monteux at Ravinia, presenting a program of chamber music Tuesday, Aug. 12, to conclude Ravinia's broadcast season.

John Weigel, who announces the Chicagoland Hour, will present the musical commentary.

Steindel, Weber Concerts on W-G-N from Park

W-G-N will air two concerts of the Grant park series this week presenting Walter Steindel and his symphony orchestra tonight and Henry Weber and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra Thursday. Both programs will originate at the giant band shell at the foot of 11th street on the shores of Lake Michigan and will be broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Weber will conduct the W-G-N orchestra heard each week on the Pageant of Melody at 9:30 p. m. on Wednesdays and on the Chicagoland Hour, from 9 to 10 p. m. on Saturdays.

TRAFFIC DEATHS AMONG CHILDREN SHOW BIG JUMP

Up 44 Per Cent Over Toll of 1940.

Death to Chicago's pedestrian children from traffic accidents in the first half of this year rose 44 per cent over the same period in 1940. Twenty-five youngsters, all under 16 years, were killed last year from Jan. 1 to June 30, as compared to 36 deaths for the first half of 1941.

These figures have been released by the Chicago Motor club which recently completed a survey with Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee. A month by month tabulation of child deaths for the two periods follows:

	1940.	1941.
January	0	4
February	4	5
March	3	6
April	3	4
May	7	10
June	8	7

Studies made in other years show that child traffic deaths increase 68 per cent during July and August. This increase, traffic men say, is due to the fact the two months are the school vacation period, which brings a slackening of safety education among children.

Where Death Occurred

Six pedestrian younsters were killed on the northwest side from January thru June this year. Nine were killed on the south side, six on the north side, eight in the west area, and seven in the southwest section.

Northwest Side.

January—Girl, 14 years old, at Elston avenue and Irving Park road.

February—Boy, 11, at 4211 North Pulaski road.

April—Boy, 5 on Diversey avenue just east of Narragansett.

May—girl, 7, at 2436 North Austin avenue.

June—Boy, 13, at Irving Park road and Nordica avenue, and girl, 4, at 5224 Dakin avenue.

South Side.

January—Boy, 12 years old, on Doty avenue at 128th street, and girl, 4, at Cottage Grove avenue and east 42nd street.

February—boy, 3, at 37th and State streets.

March—Boy, 9, at 3021 Wentworth avenue.

April—Girl, 6, at 8141 Exchange avenue; boy, 3, on West 37th street between Wells street and Princeton avenue.

May—Girl, 6, at 6540 Minerva avenue; boy, 2, in alley at the rear of 3147 Rhodes avenue, and boy, 13, at South Park Way and East 37th street.

Southwest Side.

March—Boy, 5 years old, on Hoxie avenue, just south of East 106th street, and boy, 8 at California avenue and West 35th place.

April—Boy, 8, 5935 South Marshfield avenue.

May—Boy, 7, at Halsted and 78th streets; boy, 2, at 4848 Federal street; boy, 3, in alley at the rear of 4219 South Princeton avenue, and boy, 10, at West 67th and Halsted streets.

North Side.

January—Girl, 4 years old, at 1440 Thorndale avenue.

February—Boy, 9, on Clark street south of Hood avenue.

March—Boy, 9, at 825 Fullerton avenue.

May—Girl, 5, at Wisconsin street and Dayton avenue.

June—Boy, 5, on Seminary avenue just south of Byron street, and girl, 6, at 2261 Lincoln avenue.

West Side.

February—Boy, 7 years old, at 1130 Blue Island avenue, and boy, 10, at 741 North Oakley avenue.

March—Boy, 6, at Washington boulevard and Kildare avenue, and boy, 10, at Sacramento boulevard, several feet north of Washington boulevard.

May—Boy, 5, 1319 South Peoria street.

June—Girl, 6, at Lotus avenue and Madison street; girl, 7, at Lotus avenue and Madison street, and girl, 4, at 1362 South Sangamon avenue.

As a means of fighting the steadily rising death toll, particularly during the vacation months, the motor club has launched a $500 back yard contest appealing to fathers and mothers to set aside a portion of their property for the use of children.

Grand Prize of $100.

A grand prize of $100 will be awarded for the most useful yard in Cook county. Sectional prizes of $25 each are to be given to the owners of yards designed to keep youngsters off the streets. Entry blanks may be obtained from the motor club offices, 66 East South Water street.

Traffic dangers are being reduced during the school term by the safety patrol boys, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said.

"Educational leaders thruout the Chicago area have given their support to a number of excellent safety programs for children," he declared. "With their aid the school safety patrol is steadily reducing the dangers to and from school. But during the vacation months and after school hours these programs are relaxed and the children are on their own.

"Parents must coöperate. The most logical way is to guide the child's normal activities into safe places. A back yard play yard keeps them off the street.

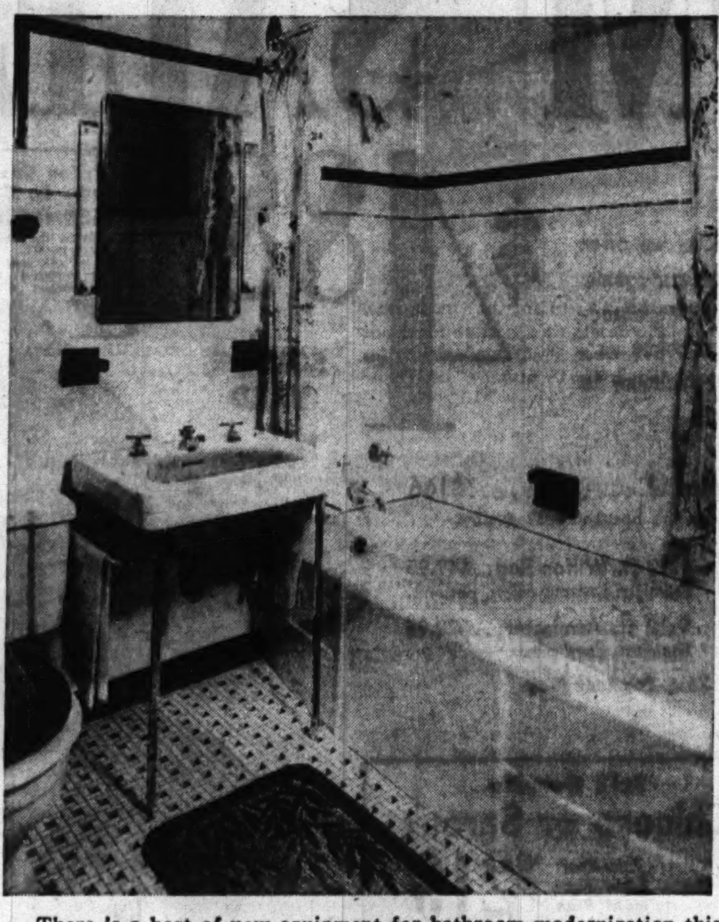
Chariot Race to Highlight Picnic of K. of C. Today

A chariot race will highlight the annual picnic of the Father Perez council, No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, today at Sunset grove, 135th street and Archer avenue. George A. Wahl is general chairman of the outing. There will be athletic events and dancing. Buses for the grounds will leave 63d street and Ashland avenue, starting at 9:45 o'clock.

Former Toluca Residents Will Have Picnic Sunday

The Chi-Uca club, an organization of 2,000 persons residing in the Chicago area who claim Toluca as their home town, will hold a picnic next Sunday in Kegel's grove, Archer avenue and 89th street.

Bathroom Modernized



There is a host of new equipment for bathroom modernization this late summertime—colored plumbing fixtures in tastefully matched sets, improved showers, faucets, valves, and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dinovo, 11200 South Talman avenue, took advantage of the miracles modernizing magic can work in bathrooms and kitchens and achieved some fine results in their home.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 4.

Scales on fern leaves or fronds should be sprayed with nicotine and fish oil soap, or any recommended preparation. If in doubt as to whether scales are present try removing one with the finger; if it moves easily it is a scale, and if it cannot be readily removed it is a spore case.

Plant a calla lily for indoor growing. It is a good house plant and likes a rich soil. When the roots are well developed give plenty of water.

Watch indoor plants for attacks of mealybugs, and if any are seen knock them off with a spray of water under pressure of the fingers. The bug has a cottony coat surrounding it. A nicotine solution also will kill them.

Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Tender water lilies are rapidly assuming their best flowering habit, and those interested in these plants should visit park basins and note the best kinds. At the Garfield park flower garden a fine collection, including many of the newest hybrids, may be seen. Note the varieties: August Koch, Pink Pearl, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri, the two latter being new and among the largest flowering kinds.

Many gardeners fail to have a knowledge of proper watering practices. Unless the weather is extremely dry, it should be necessary to water only twice each week, but it must be a thoro job. The ground should be soaked to a depth of five inches.

Evaporation is rapid during periods of extreme drouth and the gardener should study his soil and know how it reacts to water. Clay soils naturally retain moisture longer than sandy, loamy soils; the latter requires more attention than the former.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Prepare the new lawn, because fall made lawns are more likely to succeed than spring made lawns. First, thoro preparation of the soil is essential. A heavy soil may be lightened by incorporating sifted ashes into it; use enough to do some good. Humus worked in also will aid such soils, but if it cannot be drained easily a line of tile may be necessary.

Light, sandy soils may be made to hold water more readily by adding humus, which also aids in the manufacture of plant food. Work the soil into a fine seed bed, without lumps, and see that drainage is away from the house. Buy the best grade of seed.

Thursday, Aug. 7.

Gardeners who build up shrub and flower beds until the plants are raised above the surface of the lawn will find that such beds drain off water rapidly. Keep plants grown in hedge form rather below the bed than above it and water will be retained where it is needed.

Friday, Aug. 8.

Outdoor flowers should be growing rapidly at this time, but remember that annuals give more flowers when the withered blooms are kept out. If there seems too much foliage on nasturtiums and similar plants, remove part of it. Keep roses well watered and sprayed.

Cases where dahlias have made a good growth and suddenly wilted are common and yet it is not easy to find the cause. Borers enter the stems and cause the stems to wilt and each borer must be cut out and destroyed. New plants for the indoor window garden can be started now. A seed bed can be prepared in a partially shaded spot; make the surface fine and water well with a sprinkling can to provide a moist soil. Sow the seeds when the soil can be worked without sticking. Transplant the seedlings into flats or small pots and shift whenever necessary.

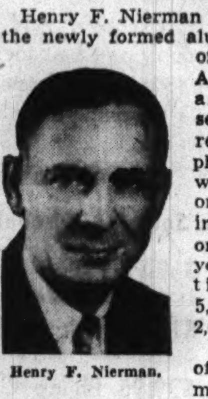
Saturday, Aug. 9.

Plants from cuttings also may be made in sandy soil. Prepare a spot next to the seed bed and make arrangements for shading. Keep the cutting bed from drying out thru careful attention to watering. When making cuttings remove a part of the leaves to prevent too rapid evaporation. A small pan holding about three inches of sand makes a good medium in which to root cuttings.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

YOUNG ORPHANS WIN SUPPORT OF AN OLDER ONE

HenryNierman to Help Annual Outing.



Henry F. Nierman.

Henry F. Nierman as chairman of the newly formed alumni committee of the Orphans' Automobile Day association is seeking former residents of orphanages to assist with this year's orphans' outing in Lincoln park on Aug. 20. Each year the association entertains 5,000 orphans and 2,000 older folks.

A description of Henry Nierman today would designate him as an average American enjoying the comfort and security of his own business and his family. At 48, he is the proprietor of a print shop at 3306 North California avenue, which is also his home address. And he is the father of three sons, 6, 14, and 20 years old, and two daughters, 18 and 19 years old. That's Henry Nierman now. Back in 1900, he was 7 years old, just getting his second teeth and entering Angel Guardian orphanage at Ridge and Devon avenues.

Recalls Own Youth.

The red brick orphanage was his home for seven years. His playmates were the 799 other orphans there. When he was 14, he left Angel Guardian, but he didn't forget it. When he first read of the annual outings provided by the Orphans' Automobile Day association, he thought of what a treat such an excursion would have been back in 1900. Recently, he decided he should contribute his services and joined the association—the first orphan to do so in 30 years.

Nierman is mailing circulars to as many former orphanage residents as he can find. Fifty orphanages will participate in the outing, and Nierman believes that if many of the committee members are former orphans themselves there will be greater understanding of what the day's activities mean. The youngsters will be taken to Lincoln park and will have their noon meal there.

37 Year Project.

Charles J. Retterer as president of the association appointed Nierman to his new post. Both Nierman and Retterer are anxious to have people know that being a former orphan is not a requirement for contributing to the cause, however.

The association was set up 37 years ago after an automobile dealer, A. J. Banta, had taken some youngsters on a trip to the park. He told members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association about the satisfaction of giving so much pleasure to the children and the idea grew.

It branched out from the automobile trade to the Chicago Motor club and to funeral directors—all groups having cars for transportation. The automobile is more common than it was 37 years ago which is just one more good reason why more and more youngsters may participate in the outing, Nierman believes.

"Of course," he says, "it takes a lot of coöperation. I'm new at this job, but I'd certainly like to do everything I can to give the kids a grand time."

JEWISH COUNCIL RENAMES CAMP FOR GOV. HORNER

As a memorial to the late Gov. Horner, Camp Wooster, near Round Lake, has been renamed Camp Henry Horner and will be dedicated this afternoon by the Young Men's Jewish council. Gov. Horner was one of the founders of the camp.

The camp provides vacations for more than 1,500 underprivileged boys. It spreads over 60 acres of wooded land. Organized in 1912, the camp is owned by the Young Men's Jewish council.

The dedication services will include a talk by Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the Criminal court, who was a lifelong friend of Gov. Horner.

AUGUST IS GOOD MONTH TO TAKE STOCK OF HOME

Heating or Plumbing May Need Attention.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

For August—and the summer—home improvements:

Have you noticed that sinks and lavatories, pipes and radiators, boilers and bathtubs are presenting a united and streamlined front for the security homes of 1941 and 1942?

We are even seeing new trends in decoration which adapt red, white, and blue color schemes for bathrooms, basements, and kitchens. One can obtain bathroom fixtures in red and blue or use white fixtures with accessories in red and blue. Or perhaps you choose a blue tub, a white shelf back lavatory and closet, and accessories in red and white. Indeed, equipment, fixtures, fittings, and decorations for all these rooms are now manufactured in so many handsome shades of blue and red and off tones of white that a defense color scheme is simple to achieve if one is building or remodeling a kitchen, basement, or bath.

Adjustable Showers.

If you have an old type large showerhead in your bath you can investigate the new, small water saving styles. One comes mounted on a ball joint so you can adjust it at any angle you wish, and adjust the water, too, from a stinging spray to a gentle flood. Or if you haven't a shower in your bathroom a master plumber can install one in short order, with no drain on the budget or cut in the plaster or wall decoration.

Inexpensive gadgets are available which contribute joy to a shower bath. Chromium plate towel racks can be placed high on the wall within easy reach; a second soap dish, placed higher up on your wall, will eliminate groping and stooping for the shower bather, and a long grab bar covered with gleaming chromium plate gives a firm, safe hold.

China Easily Cleaned.

If you would condition your water this month, soften its hardness, remove its iron and dispel its cloudiness there are many types of equipment on the market to perform these tasks. What size and type water conditioning equipment you need depends on the number of gallons of water you use per day and the amount and kind of impurities in your water.

Every month we are more aware of the increasing help that modern fixtures and equipment contribute to ease in house maintenance.

The new vitreous china lavatories clean as easily as a china dish and cut on household routine. The low, built-in tubs are infinitely easier to keep fit than the older types on legs. The double compartment, double drainboard sinks with handy retractable hose to speed up cleaning of vegetables and washing and rinsing of dishes is another labor saver. Some of these new ones have a flat shelf at back for glassware.

Automatic Heating.

Automatic heating is available with all kinds of fuel. You can install a stoker with your present boiler or furnace or convert your present heating system for oil or gas fired use. If you are in need of a new boiler or furnace check on those specially designed for different types of fuel.

Should you decide this month to paint the woodwork in some room—woodwork which must take considerable abuse—there's an enamel on the market with a new synthetic oil base. This is highly resistant to stains, crayon markings, and the hard traffic that woodwork sometimes has to withstand when there's youth in the home.

Now comes ready made, in four pastel shades, a washable wallboard prefinished at the factory. Nice for some attic bedroom you may be wrestling out of previously neglected space. This wallboard, in buff, green, gray, or coral, eliminates the need for futher decoration, and its boards, made of fiber, provide strong, smooth, attractive surfaces.

NAME CHAIRMEN OF RECREATION SESSION NOV. 18

Chairmen of the conference committees for the annual city-wide recreation meeting to be held Nov. 18 were named last week by Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head of the general planning group.

The chairmen are V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, head of the evening program committee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the liason commitee; Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, state chairman of the American Artists Professional league, reception committee, and August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the public schools, chairman of the day program committee.

Recreational leaders from all parts of the nation will attend the seventh annual conference at the Hotel Sherman. More than 5,000 persons are expected to take part. The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission.

CHURCH FOLKS TO HOLD REUNION IN MUNDELEIN

It will be something like a reunion for hundreds of the Chicagoans who will attend the fourth annual carnival and chicken dinner of Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein next Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. J. H. McTigue, pastor of the church, was formerly stationed at St. Kilian's, St. Jerome's, and All Saints churches in Chicago, and many of his former parishioners will be on hand next week-end, it was indicated. Games and other entertainment have been planned. The committee on arrangements includes James Gaul, James Markham, John K. Dorsey, and Joseph Epstein, all of Chicago.

GRANDMAS MAP PROGRAMS FOR FALL MEETING

National Club to Hold Rally in Chicago.

When members of the Chicago chapter of National Grandmothers' Club, Inc., meet these days, they don't talk about their grandchildren—at least not exclusively. They devote considerable time to discussion of plans and programs for the national convention at which the Chicago chapter will be the hostess club the first week-end in October at tht Morrison hotel. And prominent in the plans and the planning is Mrs. Marie K. Brown, 7712 East Lake terrace, national president of the organization.

Mrs. Brown is by way of being the founder of the organization, all because she celebrated becoming a grandmother by inviting other grandmothers to breakfast with her.

Met At a Breakfast.

The breakfast took place in Bloomington, Ill., in the spring of 1934. Mrs. Brown had established herself as the first woman public relations representative of a railroad when she organized the first all-woman conducted tour over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1923.

Since then she has headed the women's division of the B. & O., and it was as a business woman that she was addressing a business and professional women's convention in Bloomington when she heard she had become a grandmother. She announced her news and invited all the grandmothers in her audience to breakfast with her next morning.

The breakfasts continued thru the annual conventions, and the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., was launched in 1938. Now the organization has an official badge, a publication, and a platform.

Badge a Gold Circle.

The badge is a gold circle with a brown enamel background. Tiny bars hang from the badge, and each bar bears the name of a grandchild. "Autumn Leaves" is the club paper.

The platform, or objects of the organization, include campaigning for better entertainment for children, assisting in research on children's diseases, and working to perpetuate the peace and liberty enjoyed in this country.

Mrs. Brown, who has resided in Rogers Park for the last 20 years, has enjoyed business success, but she says, "To be a grandmother is the crowning experience of life." She has a son and a daughter, and each has a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Dorothea Sullivan, 4434 North Monitor avenue, is president of the Chicago chapter and will head the coming pre-convention committee meetings.

Park Lifeguards to Hold Ninth Annual Dance Friday

Chicago park district lifeguards will hold their ninth annual ball Friday evening in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. Paddy Driscoll, park district beach manager at Oak street and recently appointed coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team, will be a special guest.

Plan Track Meet.

An interproject track and field meet will be held Wednesday at the Jane Addams housing project.

ROAD PROJECTS TO COST 8 MILLIONS

500 HAVE ROLES IN MUSICAL FETE FOR SOUTH SIDE

10,000 Are Expected at Program Friday.

Miss Emma Rund.

More than 400 voices, raised in a cosmopolitan songfest, and 100 dancers and instrumentalists will join next Friday evening in presenting the third annual Greater South Side Music festival at the Jackson park band shell before an expected audience of 10,000 persons.

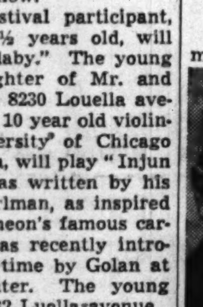
The event directed by Miss Rund, is held under auspices of the Greater South Side Four Arts league with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Community council coöperating in the sponsorship.

The festival will serve as a prelude to the Chicagoland Music Festival, to be presented Aug. 16 by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in Soldiers' field. Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland festival, will act as master of ceremonies at Friday night's event. Four south side winners, chosen to appear at The Tribune festival will be presented by Mr. Maxwell.

Child Singer on Program.

Louis Jacobi, 7138 Jeffery avenue, a member of the Chicago Concert and Opera guild and the Chicago City opera, will open the program at 7:30 o'clock with "The Star Spangled Banner." Juvenile winners of a recent contest held in connection with the festival will follow.

The youngest festival participant, Cornelia Rogers, 4½ years old, will sing "Brahms' Lullaby." The young singer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers, 8230 Louella avenue. Joseph Golan, 10 year old violinist with the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, will play "Injun Summer," which was written by his teacher, George Perlman, as inspired by John T. McCutcheon's famous cartoon. The piece was recently introduced for the first time by Golan at the Goodman theater. The young virtuoso lives at 8332 Luella avenue.



Miss Eileen Klopsch. [Harry Johnson Photos.]

Eileen Klopsch, 16, 8328 Yates avenue, vocalist winner, will sing "Estrellita," and Darlene Nussman, 9, 7010 Cregier avenue, is to sing "The Firefly." Juvenile dancers and instrumentalists will include, Ruth Marie Hall, 12, 7714 Michigan avenue, ballet dancer; Jean Pettigrew, 8, 6800 Stony Island avenue, tap dancer; Mary Pucci, 13, 7908 Blackstone avenue, who will play "Jolly Caballero" on the accordion; and Herbert Wiley, 12, 6536 Minerva avenue, who will give a marimba solo, the "Hungarian Dance."

Winners to Appear.

Adult winners of the Greater South Side Four Arts league contest are Miss Jeannette Muriel Poulsen, 7250 Langley avenue, soprano, who will sing Schubert's "Omnipotence," and Thomas Pettigrew, 6800 Stony Island avenue, violinist, who will play "Gypsy Airs."

Composed of 150 voices who gather just for the enjoyment of singing, the Druid Choral society, directed by Philip O. Jones, 7031 Merrill avenue, will sing a group of Welsh folk songs. The Independent Order of Foresters Mixed chorus, a new group of 75 voices directed by Peter Krautzburg, 7708 Yates avenue, and James Burdett, 900 Gunnison street, will sing a medley of songs by Stephen Foster. A third choral group to appear will be the South Side Women's chorus, directed by Lynn Sackett, 1618 East 53d street.

A patriotic song, "Our Democracy," written by two south side young women, will be sung in a duet by Mildred Wagaman, 5634 Kenwood avenue, and Maurice Cherest, 5212 Kimbark avenue, a member of the Chicago Civic opera.

The song was composed by Grace Kent, 5140 Kenwood avenue, and the lyrics were written by Zipporah Pottenger of the same address, a junior at the University of Chicago.

Vocalists in Pageant.

Carol Kane, 7718 Marquette avenue, pianist, will play "Valick," by Mokreja. Glenna O'Toole, 8851 Elizabeth avenue, contralto, a member of the Chicago Civic opera will close the first part of the program by singing "O Mio Fernando."

An outstanding feature will open the second half of the program when the young vocalists, finalists in the contest conducted by the league, and also the instrumentalists, will present a pageant which was originated by Miss Rund. It will consist of songs and dances of various countries with a dramatic narrative by Howard Dunnavan.

The participants are: Miss Poulsen, representing the Statue of Liberty, giving the pledge to the flag; Mildred Vageman, England, singing "There

Donald Is Hard Working Fisherman but His Pup Is Lazy

It's no fun for the worms about the Chicago Boys' clubs camp at Winona lake in Indiana this summer, since the youngest camper, Donald Bush, took up fishing. Donald is 18 months old. Here he is on one of his angling exploits with his puppy, Dodo, who seems satisfied to leave the problems of bait, hooks, and bobbers to his young master. Donald's casting effort on this occasion resulted in a snared line and his catch was a loose nail from the pier that got caught in the hook. But, if young, Donald has the true fisherman's philosophy, next time he'll have better luck. Donald's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bush of 8215 South Ada street. His father has charge of the beach at the Boys' clubs camp.

NEW TECH STUDY LINKS BUSINESS AND ENGINEERING

Illinois School Offers a Correlated Course.

Henry Post Dutton. [Marshall photo.]

The establishment of a new department of industrial engineering and administration at the Illinois Institute of Technology was announced last week by President H. T. Heald. Henry Post Dutton is to be chairman. Dutton, a member of the faculty since 1933, is chairman of the department of social sciences, professor of business management, and dean of the evening division of the institute.

It was the growing demand in industry for engineers who had knowledge of sound business methods and for business administrators who understood engineering processes that dictated the creation of the new correlated study, Heald explained.

Training in Business.

"The average industrial engineer has to know a great deal about tool design and shop operation. Under the new course," Heald said, "a student will get about the same training in machine design the average mechanical engineer gets. In addition he will have courses in time study, industrial management, accounting and costs, marketing, financial administration, business law and economics, which should give him a fairly thoro grasp of business operations."

Requirements for admittance to the new department will be virtually the same as those for civil, mechanical, chemical, electrical, and fire engineering. Courses in political science and economic management will come under Prof. John Day Larkin's department of history, political science, and economic management. Dutton's department will operate at Armour college of engineering.

Formerly at N. U.

Dutton was graduated as a bachelor of science in electrical engineering from the University of Michigan in 1914. He taught at Northwestern university previous to his connection with the institute. At different times he has been associated professionally with three leading business houses and he has been an associate editor of an important industrial magazine.

Many articles by Dutton have been published in business and industrial periodicals. He is the author of "Factory Management," "Business Organization and Management," and other authoritative books in his field.

AUBURN POST VFW TO HOLD ANNUAL OUTING TODAY

A double header soft ball game is the starred attraction today on the athletic program of Auburn post, No. 1596, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at its 10th annual picnic. The outing will be held at the Irish-American club grounds, 114th and 86th streets, Palos Hills.

Paul McGowan's Tooboogan Athletic club will play a post team headed by John Gaffney, and Tom O'Connor's All-Stars, headed by John Farrell, will challenge a picked team from the post led by George Coffey.

Admittance to the picnic will be free to the public. There will be music, dancing, and games. Ray Johnson, junior vice commander of the post, is chairman of the picnic committee. Thomas Kane is post commander.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

William Ferguson of headquarters company at Fort Bragg, N. C., is having a stretch of bad dreams. Shooting along, a Mercury on a motorcycle, on a dispatch assignment during maneuvers of the 60th infantry last week, he ran smack into a machine gun nest. Before he could holler "Kamarad!" he was riddled with imaginary bullets, and the umpire was chalking him up as a casualty.

"The scare I got," writes Ferguson, "just about accomplished what the blank bullets failed to do. I'm still feeling like a dead pigeon." Ferguson's home is at 300 West 74th street. He was an employé of THE TRIBUNE before he entered the service.

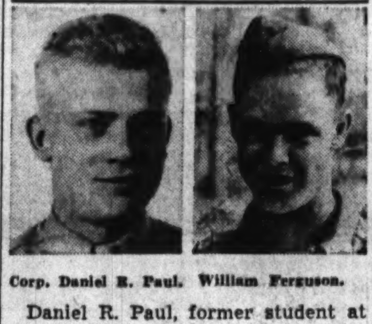
A doughboy "nursemaid" is the place held in his regiment by John J. Razas, Company A, at Fort Bragg—and just let some one try to wrest the job from him! On maneuvers a detachment of his company stumbled upon a fawn in the brush. The spotted little animal was brought back to camp as the company mascot. To Razas was assigned the job of exercising it and administering its bottle of milk at mealtimes. Now tame, the baby deer tags about camp at Raza's heels and permits no one else to feed her. Razas' Chicago address is 6448 South Winchester avenue.

From the army's new air base at Albuquerque, N. M., comes word that Daniel R. Paul, son of Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Paul of 7528 Ridgeland avenue, has been promoted to corporal's rank in the 8th quartermaster detachment. Paul enlisted in the army at Fort Lewis, Wash., in December of 1939. He is an alumnus of Morgan Park Junior college. At Morgan Park he was on the tennis and rifle teams.

Robert S. Wiseman was one of 280 men in the class recently given diplomas after completing a 22 week radio operator and mechanics course in the department of communications at Scott field, the air corps' radio university in Illinois. Now qualified for duty with tactical units, he will be assigned to an air corps station. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wiseman, 4724 Sacramento avenue.

Elmer Lundquist has returned to his home station, Gunter Field, La., after completing an airplane mechanics course at Chanute field. He is a member of the 84th school squadron of the air corps. Lundquist is the son of Mrs. Mary Lundquist, 7659 South Seeley avenue.

Chicagoans at Camp



Corp. Daniel R. Paul. William Ferguson.

Daniel R. Paul, former student at Morgan Park Junior college, has been made a corporal at the new army air base at Albuquerque, N. M. Theoretically William Ferguson, 300 West 74th street, a former Tribune employé, is a war casualty. On a dispatch assignment last week, he ran into a machine gun nest and was riddled win imaginary bullets.

Find Mascot in Brush

John J. Razas, 6448 South Winchester avenue, has a new buddy at Fort Bragg, N. C.—a spotted fawn. Razas' company found the baby deer in the brush during recent maneuvers and made it the company mascot. Razas is in Company A of the 60th infantry.

After four months of basic training two young southwest siders have been granted corporal's chevrons at their respective stations. Alfred L. Derenne, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Derenne, 1822 West 60th street, was promoted at Camp Croft, S. C., where he is a member of Company D in the 35th training battalion. John R. Daniles, an attorney in civilian life, is now a corporal in the 1st quartermaster training regiment at Fort Francis E. Warren in Wyoming. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels, 11959 Yale avenue.

Questionnaires passed out to men recently inducted into the service at Fort Sheridan have brought forth some frank answers. To the query, "What are your chief interests," one young soldier's stout reply was, "Fishing and playing the horses." Only one voted for dancing. There was a youth of intellectual leanings who preferred to pass his leisure hours in chemical research, and one voted for reading books and magazines.

Almost all were interested in athletics and had been trackmen, swimmers, or baseball, football, basketball, or hockey players in school. Several could play orchestral instruments and many had sung in choruses and glee clubs.

To the question, "What has been your most interesting experience?" the majority listed "Being drafted into the army." One recalled "Learning to ride a horse," and another "My first visit to the city." The most interesting period of his life, wrote another youth, "Began when I was 18, and it's still going."

Recently transferred from Fort Sheridan to the air corps at Chanute field were Telesfore Kerulis, 2421 West 45th street; Frank Kristofic, 2915 Normal avenue, and Ewald Dill, 8451 South Sangamon street. Sent to Camp Wolters, infantry replacement center in Texas, were Frank Grabo, 510 West 81st place; Anthony Vaccarello, 2620 South Wallace avenue; John Gembara, 2701 Eleanor street, and Stanley Grzywacz, 4858 South May street.

A large number have been transferred to southern centers. To Fort Belvoir, engineering replacement center in Virginia, have gone William Usher, 6513 Harvard avenue; Peter Marra, 321 West 24th street, and Oliver Hibbard, 1558 West 79th street.

Transferred to the Aberdeen Proving grounds in Maryland, an ordnance replacement training center, were Frank Procenti, 637 West 25th street; Zaharias Stergios, 816 West 61st street; John Janiak, 4339 South Wolcott street; Howard Lenz, Oak Forest, and Frank Winterberg, 3638 West 60th place.

A large contingent from Fort Sheridan has been transferred to the field artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C. South siders include Rudolph Huber, 6404 Laflin street; John J. Abbate, 11 East 116th street; John Smith, 120 West 119th street; Daniel McCarthy, 6540 Bishop street; Anthony Kapiol, 143 East 118th street; Edmund Kubashack, 5758 Laflin street; John Cotiguala, 8234 Laflin street, and Lloyd Erickson, 5632 Carpenter street.

Among those assigned to the 3d armored division at Camp Polk, La., were Anthony Sudintas, 4025 Talman avenue; Irvin Lehman, 3249 West 51st street; Lawrence Muscarello, 4710 Wentworth avenue; George Ashment, 4615 Wells street; Andrew Jaeger, 4364 Wells street; Stanley Konczal, 5223 Bishop street; Edward Bazeinski, 2339 West 51st street, and Paul Ward, 15310 Lexington avenue, Harvey.

JOLIET CHURCH IS CELEBRATING GOLDEN JUBILEE

St. Joseph's Catholic church in Joliet yesterday opened a month-long celebration of its golden anniversary. The parish was founded 50 years ago by the Rev. Francis S. Sustrerich, who, with the help of Slovenians of the city, built the first church where the rectory now stands on Chicago street. The new church was built in 1904. The present pastor is the Rev. M. Y. Tutala. A solemn high mass, the principal jubilee ceremony, will be celebrated in the presence of Archbishop Stritch on Sunday, Aug. 31.

DEFENSE NEEDS REVEAL HOMES IN BUFFER AREA

New Zoning Law to Protect Owners.

(Map on page 2.)

Conflict between residences and industries is helping to complicate the task of providing Chicago with a workable new zoning ordinance. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council subcommittee that is preparing the new ordinance, declared that in some instances the defense program has been hampered by inconsistencies of the existing zoning law which the new one is to replace.

"There have been several cases," Lindell said, "where industries forced to expand by the receipt of defense orders could not do so conveniently because residences had encroached upon them.

"The old ordinance set up so-called buffer zones, specifying that industries could not build within certain distances of dwellings. This distance varied from 400 to 2,000 feet, according to the nature of the industry.

Home Owner Suffers.

"There was nothing in the old ordinance, however, to prevent the owner of industrial property from using it as homesites. That is in fact what happened.

"Land speculators bought up cheap industrial zones, subdivided them, and sold lots to prospective small home owners, who in many cases did not learn until after they bought that they were not in residential zones.

"This had no immediate effect on industries. But when the defense program came along and many of them were faced with the necessity of expanding quickly, they ran up against the buffer zone provision of the old ordinance.

"It was necessary on several occasions for the city to waive this provision to expedite defense work. This was done, however, only in cases where it was clearly indicated that industry had prior rights; that is, where it could be shown that the area in question had been zoned for industry and usurped for residences."

Start Zoning Review.

Ald. Lindell cited the case of the Wisconsin Steel company plant on 106th street east of Lake Calumet, which had to get a special dispensation before it could install needed plant enlargements, all because a small residential subdivision had gone in just south of 110th street.

Discovery of the unexpected prohibition set up by this situation started the framers of the new zoning ordinance on a review of the whole industrial picture. It pointed to the need of steps to avoid recurrence. The new ordinance will prohibit the use of land for any other purpose than that for which it is specifically zoned.

Another case in point is that of the Revere Copper and Brass company, also a defense industry. When this concern began to enlarge its plant at Fullerton and Natchez avenues, nearby residents tried to block the move, arguing that any increase of industrial use would depreciate their property. The city ruled against them.

Place for Everything.

"Intelligent zoning is merely good municipal housekeeping," Ald. Lindell said. "In trying to provide Chicago

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Robert P. Golonka. [Wojak photo.]

ROBERT P. GOLONKA, who yesterday received his degree of bachelor of philosophy at De Paul university's summer convocation, will teach next semester in the Justice Park elementary school, where he was once a pupil. Upon graduating from Harrison High school, Golonka worked during the day as a clerk in a department store and completed his college course as a night school student. He will continue his studying, working toward a doctorate in philosophy. He is the son of Mrs. Victoria Golonka of Justice Park.

With his award check, Charles R. Hogan, 1708 West 80th street, a carpenter, probably will be building a house with his own plans. It was his design that won second prize in a national home planning contest, entitled, "The House You'd Like to Build."

In the home of Jim W. Gee, 7105 Stewart avenue, good news struck twice within two weeks. First Mrs. Gee presented her husband with a six pound baby boy, and before the exhilaration brought on by that event had worn off, Mr. Gee received word that because of his volume of sales of building material he was to be awarded a watch and inducted into the First 100 club, a national society sponsored by the National Housing guild. Mr. Gee heads a south side lumber and coal company.

THREE south side youths will be among the 52 cadets at The Citadel, The Military College of South Carolina, who this fall will wear the gold stars of academic excellence, according to Lieut. Col. C. F. Myers, adjutant. They are William J. De Witt, 9835 Avenue L, a senior; Joseph P. Roth, 6052 South Richmond street, a junior, and Vincent R. Ewald, 729 West 71st street, a sophomore.

Elected by their fellow campers at the YWCA Forest Beach camp for business girls, Phyllis Spencer, 6351 South Keeler avenue, and Genevieve Schmal, 1425 West 71st street, will represent the group at the winter camp council of the association.

Robert T. McCarthy, 9608 Winston avenue, has received an appointment to the United States Naval academy. He is a sophomore at Morgan Park Junior college.

A BABY girl born recently to Mrs. Alfred A. Bisaillon, 6046 South Crawford avenue, made two southwest side couples grandparents, and two southwest side grandmothers, great-grandmother. The new grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Chris J. Thullen, 5607 South Sawyer avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Bisaillon, 5944 South Kolin avenue. Mrs. Emily Thullen, 6047 South Francisco avenue, and Mrs. Marie Wolff, 521 West 27th street, are the proud great-grandmothers.

Arthur E. Canty, 8050 Honore street, vice commander of Cook County Council of the American Legion, is the unopposed candidate for the office of commander in the council's forthcoming election of officers. The Legionnaires will vote Wednesday night in the city hall. The council has a membership of 42,000.

NEW MILITARY NEEDS REQUIRE BETTER PAVING

South Area Receives Greater Share.

State highway improvements worth $4,764,269 for southern and southwestern Chicagoland are now under way or soon to start, it was announced last week by Walter A. Rosenfield, state director of public works.

These projects are part of the state's current improvement program for the entire Chicago area, which have a total value of $8,350,000, Rosenfield said. His survey included the counties of Cook, Lake, Henry, Kane, Du Page, and Will.

This total figure will probably be increased substantially in the near future because of congressional passage of an emergency appropriation to finance highway improvements vital to the defense program. This appropriation is expected to make another $5,000,000 available for early work in this area.

Roads for Military Use.

Southern Chicagoland is getting a lion's share of the current state highway work because of the defense program, the public works director indicated. Federal aid highway allotments are going principally for access roads to military and naval reservations. Much highway improvement was made necessary by the location of the Kankakee and Elwood munitions plants south of Joliet. Practically all of the state highway work now under way is on routes tributary to these busy defense areas.

Largest of these southerly projects already started is the 7½ miles of reconstruction on U. S. route 6 between Channahon and Rockdale. Here a new concrete pavement and bridge are being installed at a cost of $262,996.

Three stretches of U. S. route 30, totaling 4.41 miles, are also undergoing improvements totaling $162,226. The stretches include 1.4 miles just east of Frankfort, another 1.7 miles between Joliet and New Lenox, and a third 1.31 miles in Joliet—Cass street from Collins to Hebard streets.

The road that forms the north boundary of the Elwood ordnance plant is being surfaced with stone at a cost of $172,948. A short section of thorofare connecting this road with Alternate U. S. route 66 is being paved at a cost of $3,810. A similar connecting link between the south boundary road and alternate 66 is costing $85,519.

Renew Old Joliet Road.

Defense highway projects totaling more than two and three-quarters millions are on the immediate construction program but have not yet started. These include the reconstruction of old Joliet road [alternate 66] from Joliet 20.2 miles southward to a point southwest of Wilmington, which will cost $2,300,000. Another programmed project is the 7.8 mile, $400,000 paving of the road bounding the Elwood plant on the east and southeast.

Plans are also set for the stone surfacing of 1.58 miles of road running from Channahon east to alternate 66, at a cost of $43,000, and the paving with concrete of more than a mile of Chicago road from the north plant boundary to alternate 66.

Eight state paving projects are under way in southern and southwestern Cook county, Rosenfield's survey showed. These include:

Widening and paving with concrete of 1.81 miles of Archer avenue from Willow Springs south to 95th street at a cost of $183,877. This is part of the heavily traveled U. S. routes 12, 20, and 45.

Widening and concrete paving of 1.62 miles of 159th street in Harvey at a cost of $109,135, and the widening and paving of the 159th street subway and approaches in South Holland at a cost of $139,724. These are links of U. S. route 6.

Resurface Route 30.

Pavement with bituminous concrete of 4.76 miles of Kean avenue from Archer avenue southward to 119th street, at a cost of $64,910.

Resurfacing with bituminous concrete of 4.94 miles of U. S. route 30 from the Will county line eastward to Chicago Heights, at a cost of $97,037, and installation of nearly a mile of curb and gutter along route 30 from Illinois route 83 to the Indiana state line at Dyer, at a cost of $15,520.

Repaving .17 of a mile of Loomis avenue in Harvey, from 147th to 148th street, at a cost of $11,572.

Widening and paving of 3.38 miles of 95th street from U. S. route 45 east to the Southwest highway, at a cost of $161,974. This is also an important part of U. S. routes 12 and 20.

Repaving on Mannheim.

The Cook county projects expected to start soon include the $186,000 repaving of Mannheim road from 119th street to 143d street [part of U. S. route 45], and the $25,000 separation of this route's grade from that of McCarthy road, as well as the $130,000 widening and repaving of Cicero avenue in Chicago from Archer avenue to 63d street.

Rosenfield emphasized that his figures on state highway work do not include county and municipal shares of the motor fuel taxes. This extra money is available for additional highway and street work, he said.

Members of Calumet Beach Rainbow Fleet

The colored sails of the Rainbow fleet dance from noon to dusk these summer days along the lakeline. Thirty-six 10 foot dinghies—all constructed by craft classes in park fieldhouses—set out every day from Calumet, Burnham, and Diversey park beaches. There are 246 qualified skippers, 19 of whom are girls, sailing with the junior fleet, which is jointly sponsored by the Chicago parks and the Lake Michigan Yachting association. These pretty Jennie tars ready to launch their ship at the Calumet beach are (left to right) Shirley Richardson, 10212 South Racine avenue; Lillian Wilson, 1443 West 103d street, and Caroline Ely, 7351 Lafayette avenue.

148 VOCALISTS OF SO. AREA IN FESTIVAL TEST

Singers Will Be Judged Thursday and Friday.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

One hundred and forty-eight vocalists who reside on the south or southwest sides of Chicago are entered in the sectional voice contest of the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. This is a record number for this section of the city, but is not as many as are in the competitions in the other parts of Chicago.

Tenors, contraltos and baritones will be heard Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the ballroom of the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. At the same time and place Friday night the sopranos, mezzos and basses will be judged.

Public Is Invited.

The public is invited. Admission is 25 cents. The north side contests were held last week and the west side competition will be held Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue.

The contests at the Shoreland hotel start the long trek of the 148 vocalists in quest of the honor of being named the "best man singer," and the "best woman singer" of the 1941 festival. For the first time four finalists, two women and two men, will sing against each other in Soldiers' field before the festival audience of nearly 100,000 people on Saturday night, Aug. 16.

The names of the judges for the south side contests will be published Thursday morning in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

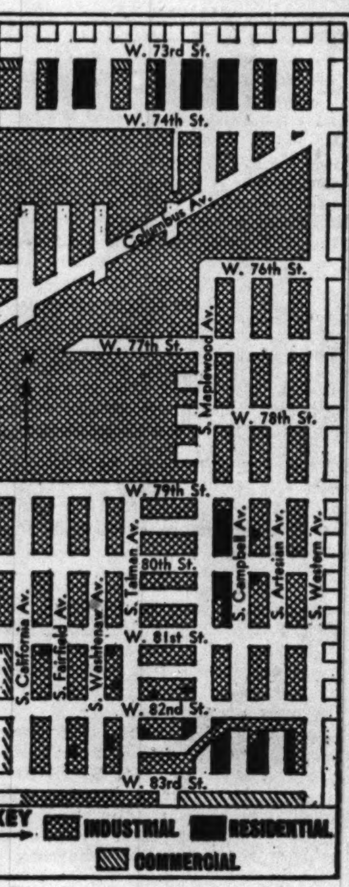
Homes and Factories



The present zoning ordinance permitted the homesites shown above to develop in industrial territory. Each type of land use is impaired by the nearness of the other. City planners term this appropriation of manufacturing space for homes and apartments, and say that the proposed new zoning ordinance will prevent similar dislocations.

Illiana Post Picnic.

Illiana post today will hold its eighth annual picnic at Egger's grove, 112th street and Avenue B, in the forest preserve. The public is invited. Clarence D. Shank is chairman of arrangements.

with the best land use code possible, we are merely following the principle of 'a place for everything and everything in its place.'

"One of our big objectives in drawing the new code is to provide for the orderly use of property in only those districts to which such uses should be confined.

"Failure earlier to observe so fundamental a rule is responsible for the fact that property values in Chicago are speculative. In one sense Chicago property has no value, because of the breakdown of our zoning laws. These lowered property values will be enhanced as soon as prospective owners can be sure of the future character of the neighborhood in which they contemplate buying."

New Officers Are Elected at Queen's Club Meeting

Officers elected at the last meeting of the Queen's club are Mrs. James B. OLD SETTLERS TO TURN PAGES OF MEMORY BOOK

Will Assemble for 67th Picnic Tomorrow.

Tomorrow, dignified by proclamation of the mayor, is Old Settlers' day.

It is the annual picnic occasion for remembering, when men and women who were witness to the transition from the ugly duckling stage of a squat prairie town sprawled on the muddy banks of the river to a city of soaring towers, of parks and broad boulevards, of world renowned universities and mighty industries will forgather to count over precious memories of Chicago yesterdays.

This will be the 67th consecutive summer reunion of the old-timers. The meeting place, as in previous years, will be Harms park at Berteau and Western avenues.

Time Brings Changes.

To the reunion will come old ladies eager to tell again the ever amazing stories of how, as little girls in pigtails and gingham pinafores, they tossed bean bags and rolled hoops on spots where the great sky scrapers have bedded their steel and concrete roots along Michigan boulevard; or how they romped with the dog or drove the cow home in old Chicago's dusks along lanes now flowing with the ceaseless traffic of a busy city.

There will come a few old men in campaign hats and coats of federal blue, faces a shade finer drawn, step a shade less sure than they were last year—old men, remembering a city that wept and cheered them in a homecoming from the war that preserved the Union.

There too will come those whose memories carry cinematic pictures of the city in the blaze of the great fire, and scores more who look back wistfully to the white splendor that was the World's Columbian exposition. The Old Settlers' picnic brings out many a beplumed bonnet, many a wasp-waist costume, many a brocaded waistcoat that set the fashion in a picturesque yesterday.

Medals for Oldest.

For entertainment the perennial German band will circle about the grounds, playing the old waltzes that the city danced to and singing the old ditties that were the hit tunes when grandfather went a-courting. Several radio stars are coming to sing and speak.

The oldest settlers, man and woman, present will receive gold medals. Other medals will be awarded to the person longest employed and still at work for his company, to the oldest pensioner, to the old-timer with the largest family, to the married couple whose combined ages total the greatest number of years, to the one who has lived the longest in his present home. There will be prizes, also, for authentic costumes, and the ten oldest couples dancing will receive bouquets.

Any one who has passed his 40th birthday and who for 25 years has lived in Chicago or Cook county may register as an old settler. Each registrant will receive a souvenir badge.

Originated by Turners.

The Old Settlers' picnic was originated and is still sponsored by the Chicago Turngemeinde [Turners], the social and gmynastic society of the early German residents. But long ago it outgrew the nationalistic aspect. Today it is a civic event, uniting the native born and the men and women who came from all other lands and helped in the building of a great city.

A committee of 100 members is engaged in preparing for tomorrow's celebration. Head of the Chicago Turners and general chairman of the picnic is H. F. Chaveriat, 1616 North Ogden avenue. L. O. Greiner of 5936 North Kilpatrick avenue, is vice chairman. R. P. Stover of Park Ridge and Mrs. E. M. Rueck of 5120 North Kimball avenue are serving, respectively, as executive secretary and secretary. F. J. Pfustler, 4234 North Campbell avenue, is assisting secretary, and A. W. Rayner of Oak Park is treasurer.

Others Taking Part.

Margaret Wolter, 5114 Bishop avenue, dressed in the costume of a Puritan, will sing "The Pilgrim;" Helen Helmer, 7414 Prairie avenue, as Betsy Ross will offer "Song of the Flag;" Frederick Rudin, 9215 Winchester avenue, as an Indian will sing "Pale Moon," and Fay Sonnenblick, 4801 Drexel boulevard, will sing "Brindisi" in operatic costume.

Eileen Klopsch, Ruth Hall, and Mary Pucci will interpret "Play, Gypsy, Play" in the colorful dress of the gyspy. Darlene Nussman, in a juvenile replica of Miss Poulsen's costume, will sing "Thank You, America." The soloists will be accompanied by the Opera Guild orchestra, directed by George Lawner, 5720 Harper avenue, while Thomas Pettigrew will play a violin obbligato.

The climax of the pageant will feature the following flag and baton twirlers: Jean and Billy LaVoie, Annette Murphy, Carl Reising, Betty and Bob O'Leary, Barbara Jensen, Preston Holland, Dolores Gwizdalski, Vivian Szeongowski, Mamaline Turowski, Lavern Handley, and Leonard Diver. Miss Murphy and Reising are Chicagoland Music festival winners in previous years and also won the 1941 national high school championship.

Drum Corps Exhibition.

The Sons of the Woodrow Wilson Polish Legion Drum and Bugle corps, directed by Stanley Pinski, 8056 South Shore drive, will give an exhibition and the festival will close with the choruses and audience singing "Our Democracy" and "Gold Bless America" under the direction of Philip C. Jones with a violin obbligato by Joseph Golan.

FOUR CATHOLIC GROUPS TO HOLD OUTINGS TODAY

Two Churches Also Have Benefit Carnivals.

Picnicking continues to be the chief Sunday pastime of Catholic parishes and societies of the southwest area. Four outings are scheduled for today. One parish is closing an 11-day carnival and another is preparing to open a 10-day carnival this week.

Thousands are expected today at the 22d summer outing of St. Rita council Knights of Columbus in Student's grove, 6600 West 111th street. The Chicago Police branch of St. Jude's league is taking a lively interest in the annual homecoming and picnic today on the shady lawns of St. Jude seminary in Momence.

Sacred Heart Outing.

The far south side Sacred Heart parish is holding its 3d annual picnic today on the church grounds at Church and 117th streets, and another picnic draws parishioners and friends to the mission church of St. Jude at New Lenox.

Immaculate Conception church at 32d street and Lithuanica avenue is closing an 11-night carnival today. St. Mary of Mount Carmel at 6722 Hermitage avenue will open a carnival Friday.

The St. Rita Knights of Columbus have chosen a large picnic ground generously carpeted with grass and shaded by trees for their outing. There is ample parking space for cars, the committee on management has announced, and picnic tables and benches are being set up in the grove.

Plan Free Buses.

Races, softball games, horseshoes, and other sports are scheduled, and there will be dancing. Free transportation will be provided for those who do not plan to drive to the grounds. Special buses will start at 11, 12, 1, and 2 o'clock, from Ashland avenue and 63d street, stopping at Damen, Western, and California avenues, Pulaski road, and Cicero avenue en route.

John Bracken, 6202 South Marshfield avenue, is general chairman of the committee in charge.

The homecoming picnic at St. Jude seminary is planned as a benefit for the schools, where 55 young men are studying to become priests. James J. Doody, warden at Stateville, and Michael Spatz are co-chairmen of the arrangements committee directing participation of the police branch of St. Jude's league in the day's events. Serving on the committee are John P. Stege, police branch president, and Ray J. Kenney, Andrew Barry, Raymond Crane, Bart J. Moran, Kyran V. Phelan, Harry O'Donnell, Joseph Carmody, Thomas Duffy, Walter Healy, Richard Gill, John Horan, and Thomas Harrison.

Radio Stars on Program.

Eddie and Fannie Cavanaugh of radio, and other radio and stage stars are to give a program of entertainment.

At the Sacred Heart parish picnic, women of the church, headed by Mrs. William Harris, will serve a roast beef and baked ham dinner. Proceeds will be given to the pastor, the Rev. C. J. Corkery, for reconstruction work being done on the church.

The carnival closing tonight at Immaculate Conception parish was organized to raise funds for a new community center and youth program.

A daily program of music, sports, rides, and games will be conducted at the St. Mary of Mount Carmel parish carnival. Funds from the benefit will go toward a new church building.

Expect 2,000 at Picnic of Drug Club on Sunday

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the 35th annual picnic of the Chicago Drug club to be held in the Royal Oaks park at 87th street and Kean avenue next Sunday, it was announced by Harry W. Prafke, president. Frank H. Ahlborn and C. T. Broling, co-chairmen of the committee in charge, promise numerous games, contests and races, with plenty of prizes and free refreshments.

10 YOUNG BUSINESS MEN PUT UP SHINGLE IN BEVERLY HILLS

Ten brand new young business men have hung out a corporate shingle in Beverly Hills. It's a Junior Achievement company, and is incorporated as the Commercial Service bureau. It will offer local merchants such services as bookkeeping, filing, letter writing, and the typing of statements.

Jack Wentsel.
[Florence Hartough Photo.]

At the head of the company is Jack Wentsel, 21 years old, of 9506 South Winchester avenue. Wentsel, a graduate of Morgan Park High school and Junior college, works during the day at an insurance brokerage and until now has been studying nights at the University of Chicago and the Institute of Statistics.

As are all Junior Achievement companies, the Commercial Service bureau is organized with a capital of $50, shares selling at 50 cents each. It will operate as a miniature corporation, the shareholders holding meetings, electing directors, working out problems of management and labor. The Junior Achievement movement is backed by business men as a means of giving boys from 12 to 21 years old an insight into the American system of free trade.

The bureau is housed temporarily at 9151 South Damen avenue, but President Wentsel and the directors are negotiating for new office space.

Bride Home from Wedding Trip

Mrs. Loli Raynold Cortesi is the former Genevieve Louise Henderson. Dr. Cortesi and his bride have returned from their wedding trip in the east. Until they arrange their own apartment, they plan to stay with Mrs. Cortesi's mother, Mrs. Ralph R. Henderson, 5536 West 63d street. A registered nurse, Mrs. Cortesi was graduated from the Oak Park hospital school of nursing. Dr. Cortesi, who studied at the University of Chicago and Rush Medical college, is a staff physician at the Oak Forest infirmary.

BEVERLY HILLS UNIT TO STUDY HORTICULTURE

Women to See Gardens and Nursery.

Developments in horticulture will be studied tomorrow by the garden department of the Beverly Hills Woman's club, on a tour of the Erwin Wayside Flower gardens and the A. M. Amling nursery in Maywood. With Mrs. C. J. Farwell, garden chairman, in charge, the party will leave at 9:30 o'clock from Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The group visited the International Friendship gardens at Michigan City, Ind., last week.

More than fifty women of the Beverly Hills district have enroled in the Spanish and Red Cross first aid classes, which are meeting on Wednesday mornings and Monday evenings, respectively, in the Ridge park fieldhouse, it is reported by Mrs. Homer C. Wright, club president.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

Mrs. A. L. Benner, 435 West 101st place, has called a meeting of her card party committee for 2 o'clock Wednesday at her home. Arrangements will be made for a benefit card party this month. Serving on Mrs. Benner's committee are Mrs. John Ohman, Mrs. Joseph Mancel, Mrs. Harold Hazen, Mrs. Peter Inthout, Mrs. William Gibbon, and the president, Mrs. Frank Darling.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

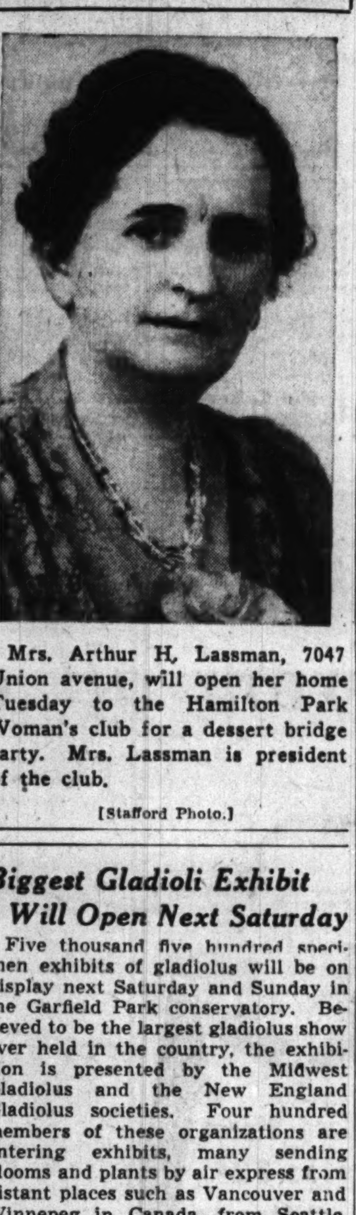
Members of the Hamilton Park club will meet at 1 o'clock Tuesday for a dessert bridge at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur Lassman, 7047 South Union avenue. The party is planned by the ways and means committee, of which Mrs. Walter Long is chairman.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

Mrs. Ernest Beler, president of the Brainerd club, has announced the appointment of Mrs. Martin Hughes as chairman of American citizenship and Mrs. William Doll as chairman of education. Mrs. A. G. Schodrof has been named safety; Mrs. Anto Bloom, law observance; Mrs. Harold Bown, radio, and Mrs. Carl Overaker, conservation representative.

The board of directors has elected Mrs. Ruppert Hoye to the recording secretaryship to take the place of Mrs. F. A. Kaiser, who resigned. Mrs. Earl Gray has been named delegate to the Ridge civic council and Mrs. A. W. Patterson will be delegate to the League of Women Voters.

Hostess for Club Bridge



Mrs. Arthur H. Lassman, 7047 Union avenue, will open her home Tuesday to the Hamilton Park Woman's club for a dessert bridge party. Mrs. Lassman is president of the club.

Biggest Gladioli Exhibit Will Open Next Saturday

Five thousand five hundred specimen exhibits of gladiolus will be on display next Saturday and Sunday in the Garfield Park conservatory. Believed to be the largest gladiolus show ever held in the country, the exhibition is presented by the Midwest Gladiolus and the New England Gladiolus societies. Four hundred members of these organizations are entering exhibits, many sending blooms and plants by air express from distant places such as Vancouver and Winnepeg in Canada, from Seattle, Wash., and from towns in Vermont and Connecticut. John R. Hopkins, champion bulb grower, who last year took 158 blue ribbons in flower shows, is chairman of the exhibition. Among those assisting is L. E. May, of 2158 West 107th place.

GOLDEN WEDDING TIME ARRIVES FOR 4 COUPLES

South Siders Celebrate at Family Parties.

The south side, which was the scene of two golden wedding anniversaries last week, will see two other couples entertain relatives and friends at golden celebrations this week.

More than a hundred friends motored to Lakeside, Mich., last Wednesday to offer their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilmore who were celebrating at their summer home. The Gilmores have been residents of Chicago for more than 50 years and live at 7370 South Shore drive. Mr. Gilmore, 75, was born in New Haven, Mich., while Mrs. Gilmore was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, and came here with her parents when she was 2 years old.

49 Years on Job.

Friends and relatives attended a tea room party last Tuesday given by the two children, two grandchildren, and two great grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Campbell, 7617 South Shore drive. The couple moved to the south side a year after their marriage in Punxsutawney, Pa. Mr. Campbell has been an employé of the Surface Lines for the last 49 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sack Sr. of 10658 Champlain avenue, who will celebrate 50 years of married life on Aug. 5, will be given a party this evening by their four children, seven grandchildren, and two great grandchildren. They have been residents of the south side since their marriage.

Mr. Sack, who is 75, was born in Chicago and was a cigar manufacturer for many years. He served as a deputy sheriff in 1900. Mrs. Sack, 70, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Once Guest of Kaiser.

Fifty years together will be celebrated Aug. 8 by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ertel, 5211 Kimbark avenue. Mr. Ertel, 89, has been a newspaper and magazine publisher and the western representative of a New York financial paper since he came to this country from Germany in 1872. While a youth of 13, he and his father were guests of Kaiser Wilhelm 1st at a hotel in Flansburg, Germany.

While running a weekly newspaper in North Dakota he became acquainted with Theodore Roosevelt who was staying at a ranch in the badlands because of his health. When a tornado destroyed all Ertel's possessions, he was about to go east when Roosevelt suggested he stay and run for the office of county treasurer of Billings county. Ertel said he ridiculed the idea, telling Roosevelt the cowboys would never vote for a small man with eyeglasses and sideburns.

Elected by Cowboys.

Roosevelt said he would take care of that. He gave a dance for the cowboys and told them Ertel was responsible. He was elected by a majority of 17 votes. Later Ertel learned a number of the men were horse thieves. This became apparent a few months after his election when during the night the thieves raided the little town where Ertel was staying and stole every horse but his.

Mrs. Ertel was born in France 77 years ago and came here when she was 20. They met and wed in Chicago and have made their home in Hyde Park for the last 34 years.

SARSFIELD CLUB TO HAVE ANNUAL OUTING TODAY

The Patrick Sarsfield Social, Athletic, and Benevolent association will holds its "Great Day for the Irish" annual picnic today at Frank's grove, Homan avenue and 117th street. There will be music by a 50 piece, uniformed Irish band, step dancing by a troop of pretty colleens, and drills by the association's fife and drum corps.

A full program of sports, beginning at 2 o'clock, and ballroom dancing also will be part of the entertainment.

The club is headed by Michael Broderick, 7243 South Carpenter street. Heading the picnic committee is Cornelius Scannell, 8840 South Aberdeen street. The picnic committe has arranged for free bus transportation from the end of the street car lines at Sacramento avenue and 111th street to the grove.

DAIRY FARMERS WIN SILVER FOR CLEAN PROPERTY

Name District Leaders in Annual Contest.

Several dairy farm families of the southwest area will be setting their dinner tables this week with gleaming new silver as the result of the Pure Milk association's eighth annual contest for farms in the Chicago milk shed. Silver chests were the awards given the three farm families winning the highest rating in each of 18 contest districts.

The grand champion title of neatest and cleanest farm went to Fairview, the Gust H. Grieger 262 acre Holstein farm near Valparaiso, Ind., that scored 99.58 per cent among 18 finalists. Mr. and Mrs. Grieger's prize was a winter vacation trip.

Gee Farm a Winner.

First among 13 contestants in their district was the 200 acre farm of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gee, near Orland park. The Gees' herd is Brown Swiss. Mr. and Mrs. Gee received a 45 piece silver set. Second and third places were taken in that district respectively by Peter Hass, whose farm is near Joliet, and Robert Jungles, Lockport.

Other farms of that area that received plaques as awards of merit were those of: Paul T. Brown, Route 2, Morris; Charles Mark, Route 2, Frankfort; John Baltz, Route 1, Joliet; Charles W. Dewey, Route 1, Mazon; George Ott, Route 2, Lockport; H. L. Spandet, Route 5, Morris, and Emil Wallin, Route 2, Minooka.

Other Winners Named.

Mrs. Julia Dickman's 375 acre farm near Herscher was judged first among nine in her district. Eddie Becker's farm near Beecher took third place. Among the farms of that region that won awards of merit were the Lloyd E. Bates and Son farm at Peotone; and the farms of Richard C. Buloz, Route 1, Manteno; Gerhard H. Ekhoff, Route 2, Grant Park; Hoevet Brothers, Route 2, Grant Park; Edwin Meyer, Route 1, Crescent City, and Carl Duis, Route 1, Donovan.

On the jury of final judges were Profs. L. C. Thomsen of the University of Wisconsin, H. A. Ruehe of the University of Illinois, and H. W. Gregory of Purdue university. Points considered were the all-around neatness and appearance of farm buildings, neatness and cleanliness of the dairy barn, milk house and equipment, inside condition of other buildings, and the appearance of the dairy herd.

NEW GIRLS SECRETARY TO JOIN BEVERLY Y STAFF NEXT MONTH

A new director will conduct girls' activities at the Beverly YMCA beginning next month. She is Miss Rosemary Ebrie, 5520 Dorchester avenue, whose appointment as girls' work secretary was announced last week by Mrs. W. M. Rennie, chairman of the girls' work committee. Miss Ebrie will take the place of Mrs. Virginia Guy, who, after four years on the Beverly Y staff, is transferring to the South Chicago department.

Rosemary Ebrie.

Miss Ebrie is a graduate student in social science at the University of Chicago. She has had several years' experience in physical education and recreational work, and has served as a volunteer leader in girls' work at the Englewood YMCA.

PACK KNAPSACKS FOR OUTING AT CAMP OWASIPPE

Boy Scout Groups Will Leave Tomorrow.

Sun tanned and wiser in the lore of woods and streams hundreds of Boy Scouts are returning today from Owasippe, their Michigan camping country, while hundreds more by tomorrow night will be shaking down in the six camp units on Big Blue and Crystal lakes for two weeks of outdoor adventure. The third period campers will board the Boy Scout special of the Pere Marquette Line at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Grand Central station and will be in camp in time for an early supper.

Every summer for 29 years more than 4,000 Scouts from Chicago, Cicero, and Blue Island have gone to Owasippe, most of the boys attending one of four camping periods, a few hundred remaining for two or more periods or for the entire season. The camp embraces 1,000 wooded acres in Muskegon county in the northwestern part of the state.

Knapsacks Are Packed.

Scouts of the southwest district whose blanket rolls and knapsacks are packed, ready for tomorrow's departure, are:

CARRIE J. BOND MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Popular Melodies Slated on Chicagoland Hour.

Three popular songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond will be presented in medley form as a highlight of the Chicagoland Hour over W-G-N from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday. Marion Claire, soprano star of the program, Attilio Baggiore, featured tenor, and Guest Contralto Ruth Slater will join the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler in presenting the musical portion of the program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will sing Victor Herbert's "For I'm Falling in Love" and DeLeath's "The Madonna Lullaby." She will also be heard with Baggiore in a medley of Herbert numbers. Baggiore will sing Toselli's "Serenade" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavallo.

The orchestra will present Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite" with a background by the chorus and the "Gypsy Baron Overture" by Strauss.

The complete program follows:

"Gypsy Baron Overture"............Strauss
Orchestra.
"For I'm Falling in Love".........Herbert
Marion Claire.
"Serenade" ....Toselli
Attilio Baggiore.
Medley of Victor Herbert songs:
"Rose of the World"..................

"Starlight, Starbright"..................
..............Marion Claire and Chorus
"We Dance Before the King"..........Chorus
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
"Mardi Gras"..................................Grofe
Orchestra and Chorus.
"The Madonna's Lullaby"..........DeLeath
Marion Claire.
"Mattinata" ....Leoncavallo
Attilio Baggiore.
Medley of songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond:
"I Love You Truly"..........Marion Claire
"Just A' Wearyin' for You"....Ruth Slater
"A Perfect Day"..................
Marion Claire, Attilio Baggiore, and chorus.

The Chicagoland Hour is produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

JOAN MERRILL TO JOIN ZANY TRIO, TOM, DICK, HARRY

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" will again add half an hour of entertainment to listeners' lives from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Joan Merrill.

The trio will play host to Joan Merrill, newcomer to the world of radio, stage, and screen who sings at the Rhumba Casino. Miss Merrill has had about all the stage and screen experience a young lady might wish, having made tours with the shows of Harry Richman, Dave Apollon, and Rudy Vallee. But something new is in store for her when she works with radio's zaniest trio.

Music highlights Monday will include "How Did He Look?" sung by Miss Merrill, "Evil Eye," a story about a man who puts the curse on every one, this to be sung by the trio. With the circus in town the boys also will do the sad, sad story of "The Acrobat's Daughter."

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" is produced by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N dance orchestra is under the direction of Robert Trendler who also is often called upon to help out on the dialog.

Garden Circle.

The Garden Circle of the Neighborhood Women's club will meet at 1 o'clock Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Arnold Bierer, 7026 South Throop street.

PLAY BY W-G-N WRITER TO OPEN AT LAKE ZURICH

"These Are My Jewels," a modern comedy dealing with the life of a 40 year old woman whose cross is a family of social climbers, will be introduced Friday, Aug. 8, at the Lake Zurich playhouse in Lake Zurich for a three day run.

The playwrights are Henry Barbour, W-G-N continuity writer, and Ruth MacKay, author of the best selling novel, "Money Without Men." Before coming to W-G-N Barbour was a script writer with the University Broadcasting council, while Miss MacKay has written numerous short stories and magazine articles as well as her novel.

ELSON AND ANSON DUEL IN W-G-N GAME THURSDAY

Andy Frain in Bull Pen as Reserve Pitcher.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob [Glass Arm] Elson vs. Bill [Swing It!] Anson!

That's the super-hurling setup for the softball game next Thursday evening between the W-G-N Radio All-Stars and the W-G-N Retrievers, regular members of the Chicago Editorial league. The game starts at 9 p. m. under the lights at Spencer Coal Field, 4200 North Central avenue, a preliminary is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Receipts will go to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Free Ice and Camp Algonquin funds. But there is no charity in the remarks being made by the players about their rivals in the fortcoming battle.

The feud boiled over yesterday after the baseball committee heard rumors that a bribe had been offered Elson to quit the Retrievers and join the All-Star pitching lineup.

Chairman Heidrich Rules.

"He plays with the Retrievers all season," ruled Chairman Milton Heidrich, "and a Retriever he'll be on Thursday. Or else. End quote."

Anson, who imitates Jack Benny, Charley McCarthy, Tom, Dick, and Harry, and other celebrities on his W-G-N radio programs, has been impersonating Bob Feller and Ted Lyons all week.

A healthy replacement for Anson, in case Bill has to go to a radio station and play some phonograph records, was found last night in Andy Frain, whose ushers serve at W-G-N studio shows and all big time events. Frain is providing a full crew for duty at Spencer Coals field.

Two Girl Mascots.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor; Bud Vandover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Vandover [Tom, Dick, and Harry], Guy Savage, Jack Brickhouse, Jess Kirkpatrick, Spencer Allen, Charles Victor, Alan Scott, Producer Paul Fogarty [Ask-It-Ball], Charles Flynn [Harold Teen], Ed Prentiss [Capt. Midnight], and Olan Soule, heard in several dramatic rôles will be among the Stars in action.

Uncle Harry Hosford of A. B. C. club fame will manage the Stars. Lucy Gilman, comely actress in "Painted Dreams," will be mascot and bat-girl. Alice Goodkin, also on W-G-N dramatic shows will do the same for the Retrievers. Dorothy Gregory of Citizens of Tomorrow and other shows, will be official scorer.

Tickets for the game are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower. Prices are 50 cents [including tax] for adults, and 10 cents for children. The tickets also may be obtained at the gate.

TINNEY TO BEGIN 'SIZING UP NEWS' SHOW ON W-G-N

Cal Tinney, humorist and columnist, will start a new series of philosophical, amusing news commentaries titled "Sizing Up the News," on W-G-N and 73 other Mutual stations beginning tomorrow. Tinney's broadcasts will be heard each Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 7:15 p. m.

Cal Tinney.

Tinney, whose syndicated column, "Man of the Week," appears in 26 newspapers, promises that his new radio series will be refreshing and entirely different. "My program," he said, "will put special emphasis on personalities in the news and try to look for the reasons which account for the facts you read in your newspaper and hear on the average radio news show."

Sam Balter's "Inside of Sports" program, under the same sponsorship, will be heard on W-G-N and Mutual each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m.

A Radio Scout

Bob Elson, pitcher for W-G-N Retrievers, scouting opposition practice in disguise. The Retrievers meet the W-G-N Radio All-Stars Thursday night at Spencer Coals field, 4200 North Central avenue.

IRMA COOPER TO BE GUEST ON YOUR MUSIC I. Q.

Irma Cooper, dramatic soprano who last year won the coveted citation as the best woman singer at the Chicagoland Music Festival, will be a guest expert on the broadcast of "Your Music I. Q." on W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow.

In the lineup with Miss Cooper will be Scott Goldthwaite of the music department at the University of Chicago, Maggi McNellis, vocalist in the Pump room of the Ambassador hotel, and Leo Goldstein, a layman who has been answering question after question while a member of the audience at other "Music I. Q." programs.

By stumping the guest experts the listeners who send in questions can receive two free tickets to a concert at Ravinia park. Even if they fail to stop the musical master minds the question senders whose quizzes are used on the I. Q. program are given one dollar.

PIERRE MONTEUX TO CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Concert to Be Aired on W-G-N at 8:30 P. M.

Pierre Monteux, noted French conductor, will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert at Ravinia to be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program will emphasize French music, presenting Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Symphony in D Minor," by Franck, and Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla-Khan."

Monteux, director of the San Francisco symphony for six years, has had a varied musical career. After graduation from the Paris conservatory, he joined the Cologne orchestra, eventually becoming assistant conductor. In 1911 he toured Europe with Serge Diaghileff's Ballet Russe as one of the principal conductors. Between tours he gave concerts in Paris called "Les Concerts Monteux," at which he introduced many modern compositions.

His tour with the Ballet Russe brought him to the United States for the first time in 1916. He received a post at the Metropolitan opera from 1917 to 1919 which he resigned to succeed Henri Rebaud as conductor of the Boston symphony.

After five years in Boston, Monteux devoted a decade to conducting the historic Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland. Because of his many positions Monteux has been called "the traveling salesman of music."

In this country he has conducted at New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles as well as Boston and San Francisco. This will be his first Chicago appearance.

The Budapest string quartet will follow Monteux at Ravinia, presenting a program of chamber music Tuesday, Aug. 12, to conclude Ravinia's broadcast season.

John Weigel, who announces the Chicagoland Hour, will present the musical commentary.

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager
Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

After several years in the greeting card business, we finally got up enough nerve to advertise in the Chicago Tribune. I thought you might be interested in the results.

We first tried a quarter-page in December on Christmas cards. This ad in the North Side Metropolitan section pulled extremely well - despite the fact that both of our stores are hard to get at now because of the subway construction.

Again on February 9, we used another quarter-page on Valentines. With the streets blocked off in all directions around our shops, we drew customers from all over town, stayed open all that week until midnight and rolled up a 30 per cent increase in Valentine sales. Without this ad, our Valentine business surely would have been way down compared to last year. We sold 341 of the $1 cards alone.

Some of my friends are saying I'm crazy to use big space in the Tribune. But results show they know nothing about the way the Tribune brings in the customers.

I am now planning similar promotions for Easter and Mother's Day.

Sincerely yours,
John J. Sullivan

Greeting Card Stores Boost Sales 30% with Advertising in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

In the accompanying letter, another neighborhood merchant tells how he increased his sales and profits with advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

Would you like to attract more customers to your store? No matter where in the city or suburbs you are located — regardless of what you sell or to whom you sell, you can step up your volume, speed turnover and boost profits by using the Tribune's low-cost advertising plan.

Right in your own trading area, the people best able to patronize you can be reached thru advertising in one or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—edited especially for them and published each Sunday in the Chicago Tribune.

Advertising in these sections can do for you what it did last year for 796 enterprises in practically every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago.

For more information to help you get more business from your best prospects, call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising. Without obligation, you can get the complete facts about the Tribune's low-cost selling method which has been producing outstanding results for neighborhood advertisers for more than 14 years.

TRAFFIC DEATHS AMONG CHILDREN SHOW BIG JUMP

Up 44 Per Cent Over Toll of 1940.

Death to Chicago's pedestrian children from traffic accidents in the first half of this year rose 44 per cent over the same period in 1940. Twenty-five youngsters, all under 16 years, were killed last year from Jan. 1 to June 30, as compared to 36 deaths for the first half of 1941.

These figures have been released by the Chicago Motor club which recently completed a survey with Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee. A month by month tabulation of child deaths for the two periods follows:

	1940.	1941.
January	0	4
February	4	5
March	3	6
April	3	4
May	7	10
June	8	7

Studies made in other years show that child traffic deaths increase 68 per cent during July and August. This increase, traffic men say, is due to the fact the two months are the school vacation period, which brings a slackening of safety education among children.

Where Death Occurred

Six pedestrian younsters were killed on the northwest side from January thru June this year. Nine were killed on the south side, six on the north side, eight in the west area, and seven in the southwest section.

Northwest Side.

January—Girl, 14 years old, at Elston avenue and Irving Park road.

February—Boy, 11, at 4211 North Pulaski road.

As a means of fighting the steadily rising death toll, particularly during the vacation months, the motor club has launched a $500 back yard contest appealing to fathers and mothers to set aside a portion of their property for the use of children.

Grand Prize of $100.

A grand prize of $100 will be awarded for the most useful yard in Cook county. Sectional prizes of $25 each are to be given to the owners of yards designed to keep youngsters off the streets. Entry blanks may be obtained from the motor club offices, 66 East South Water street.

Traffic dangers are being reduced during the school term by the safety patrol boys, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said.

"Educational leaders thruout the Chicago area have given their support to a number of excellent safety programs for children," he declared. "With their aid the school safety patrol is steadily reducing the dangers to and from school. But during the vacation months and after school hours these programs are relaxed and the children are on their own.

"Parents must coöperate. The most logical way is to guide the child's normal activities into safe places. A back yard play yard keeps them off the street.

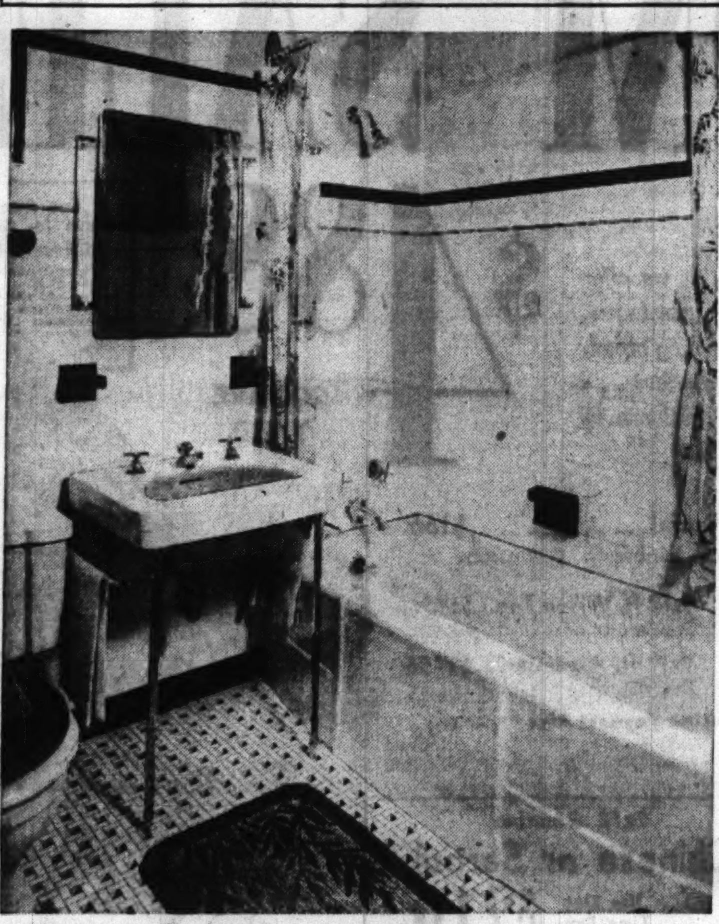
Chariot Race to Highlight Picnic of K. of C. Today

A chariot race will highlight the annual picnic of the Father Perez council, No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, today at Sunset grove, 135th street and Archer avenue. George A. Wahl is general chairman of the outing. There will be athletic events and dancing. Buses for the grounds will leave 63d street and Ashland avenue, starting at 9:45 o'clock.

Former Toluca Residents Will Have Picnic Sunday

The Chi-Uca club, an organization of 2,000 persons residing in the Chicago area who claim Toluca as their home town, will hold a picnic next Sunday in Kegel's grove, Archer avenue and 89th street.

Bathroom Modernized



There is a host of new equipment for bathroom modernization this late summertime—colored plumbing fixtures in tastefully matched sets, improved showers, faucets, valves, and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dinovo, 11200 South Talman avenue, took advantage of the miracles modernizing magic can work in bathrooms and kitchens and achieved some fine results in their home.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 4.

Scales on fern leaves or fronds should be sprayed with nicotine and fish oil soap, or any recommended preparation. If in doubt as to whether scales are present try removing one with the finger; if it moves easily it is a scale, and if it cannot be readily removed it is a spore case.

Plant a calla lily for indoor growing. It is a good house plant and likes a rich soil. When the roots are well developed give plenty of water.

Watch indoor plants for attacks of mealybugs, and if any are seen knock them off with a spray of water under pressure of the fingers. The bug has a cottony coat surrounding it. A nicotine solution also will kill them.

Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Tender water lilies are rapidly assuming their best flowering habit, and those interested in these plants should visit park basins and note the best kinds. At the Garfield park flower garden a fine collection, including many of the newest hybrids, may be seen. Note the varieties: August Koch, Pink Pearl, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri, the two latter being new and among the largest flowering kinds.

Many gardeners fail to have a knowledge of proper watering practices. Unless the weather is extremely dry, it should be necessary to water only twice each week, but it must be a thoro job. The ground should be soaked to a depth of five inches.

Evaporation is rapid during periods of extreme drouth and the gardener should study his soil and know how it reacts to water. Clay soils naturally retain moisture longer than sandy, loamy soils; the latter requires more attention than the former.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Prepare the new lawn, because fall made lawns are more likely to succeed than spring made lawns. First, thoro preparation of the soil is essential. A heavy soil may be lightened by incorporating sifted ashes into it; use enough to do some good. Humus worked in also will aid such soils, but if it cannot be drained easily a line of tile may be necessary.

Light, sandy soils may be made to hold water more readily by adding humus, which also aids in the manufacture of plant food. Work the soil into a fine seed bed, without lumps, and see that drainage is away from the house. Buy the best grade of seed.

Thursday, Aug. 7.

Gardeners who build up shrub and flower beds until the plants are raised above the surface of the lawn will find that such beds drain off water rapidly. Keep plants grown in hedge form rather below the bed than above it and water will be retained where it is needed.

Friday, Aug. 8.

Outdoor flowers should be growing rapidly at this time, but remember that annuals give more flowers when the withered blooms are kept out. If there seems too much foliage on nasturtiums and similar plants, remove part of it. Keep roses well watered and sprayed.

Cases where dahlias have made a good growth and suddenly wilted are common and yet it is not easy to find the cause. Borers enter the stems and cause the stems to wilt and each borer must be cut out and destroyed. New plants for the indoor window garden can be started now. A seed bed can be prepared in a partially shaded spot; make the surface fine and water well with a sprinkling can to provide a moist soil. Sow the seeds when the soil can be worked without sticking. Transplant the seedlings into flats or small pots and shift whenever necessary.

Saturday, Aug. 9.

Plants from cuttings also may be made in sandy soil. Prepare a spot next to the seed bed and make arrangements for shading. Keep the cutting bed from drying out thru careful attention to watering. When making cuttings remove a part of the leaves to prevent too rapid evaporation. A small pan holding about three inches of sand makes a good medium in which to root cuttings.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

YOUNG ORPHANS WIN SUPPORT OF AN OLDER ONE

Henry Nierman to Help Annual Outing.

Henry F. Nierman.

Henry F. Nierman as chairman of the newly formed alumni committee of the Orphans' Automobile Day association is seeking former residents of orphanages to assist with this year's orphans' outing in Lincoln park on Aug. 20. Each year the association entertains 5,000 orphans and 2,000 older folks.

A description of Henry Nierman today would designate him as an average American enjoying the comfort and security of his own business and his family. At 48, he is the proprietor of a print shop at 3306 North California avenue, which is also his home address. And he is the father of three sons, 6, 14, and 20 years old, and two daughters, 18 and 19 years old. That's Henry Nierman now. Back in 1900, he was 7 years old, just getting his second teeth and entering Angel Guardian orphanage at Ridge and Devon avenues.

Recalls Own Youth.

The red brick orphanage was his home for seven years. His playmates were the 799 other orphans there. When he was 14, he left Angel Guardian, but he didn't forget it. When he first read of the annual outings provided by the Orphans' Automobile Day association, he thought of what a treat such an excursion would have been back in 1900. Recently, he decided he should contribute his services and joined the association—the first orphan to do so in 30 years.

Nierman is mailing circulars to as many former orphanage residents as he can find. Fifty orphanages will participate in the outing, and Nierman believes that if many of the committee members are former orphans themselves there will be greater understanding of what the day's activities mean. The youngsters will be taken to Lincoln park and will have their noon meal there.

37 Year Project.

Charles J. Retterer as president of the association appointed Nierman to his new post. Both Nierman and Retterer are anxious to have people know that being a former orphan is not a requirement for contributing to the cause, however.

The association was set up 37 years ago after an automobile dealer, A. J. Banta, had taken some youngsters on a trip to the park. He told members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association about the satisfaction of giving so much pleasure to the children and the idea grew.

It branched out from the automobile trade to the Chicago Motor club and to funeral directors—all groups having cars for transportation. The automobile is more common than it was 37 years ago which is just one more good reason why more and more youngsters may participate in the outing, Nierman believes.

"Of course," he says, "it takes a lot of coöperation. I'm new at this job, but I'd certainly like to do everything I can to give the kids a grand time."

JEWISH COUNCIL RENAMES CAMP FOR GOV. HORNER

As a memorial to the late Gov. Horner, Camp Wooster, near Round Lake, has been renamed Camp Henry Horner and will be dedicated this afternoon by the Young Men's Jewish council. Gov. Horner was one of the founders of the camp.

The camp provides vacations for more than 1,500 underprivileged boys. It spreads over 60 acres of wooded land. Organized in 1912, the camp is owned by the Young Men's Jewish council.

The dedication services will include a talk by Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the Criminal court, who was a lifelong friend of Gov. Horner.

AUGUST IS GOOD MONTH TO TAKE STOCK OF HOME

Heating or Plumbing May Need Attention.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

For August—and the summer—home improvements:

Have you noticed that sinks and lavatories, pipes and radiators, boilers and bathtubs are presenting a united and streamlined front for the security homes of 1941 and 1942?

We are even seeing new trends in decoration which adapt red, white, and blue color schemes for bathrooms, basements, and kitchens. One can obtain bathroom fixtures in red and blue or use white fixtures with accessories in red and blue. Or perhaps you choose a blue tub, a white shelf back lavatory and closet, and accessories in red and white. Indeed, equipment, fixtures, fittings, and decorations for all these rooms are now manufactured in so many handsome shades of blue and red and off tones of white that a defense color scheme is simple to achieve if one is building or remodeling a kitchen, basement, or bath.

Adjustable Showers.

If you have an old type large showerhead in your bath you can investigate the new, small water saving styles. One comes mounted on a ball joint so you can adjust it at any angle you wish, and adjust the water, too, from a stinging spray to a gentle flood. Or if you haven't a shower in your bathroom a master plumber can install one in short order, with no drain on the budget or cut in the plaster or wall decoration.

Inexpensive gadgets are available which contribute joy to a shower bath. Chromium plate towel racks can be placed high on the wall within easy reach; a second soap dish, placed higher up on your wall, will eliminate groping and stooping for the shower bather, and a long grab bar covered with gleaming chromium plate gives a firm, safe hold.

China Easily Cleaned.

If you would condition your water this month, soften its hardness, remove its iron and dispel its cloudiness there are many types of equipment on the market to perform these tasks. What size and type water conditioning equipment you need depends on the number of gallons of water you use per day and the amount and kind of impurities in your water.

Every month we are more aware of the increasing help that modern fixtures and equipment contribute to ease in house maintenance.

The new vitreous china lavatories clean as easily as a china dish and cut on household routine. The low, built-in tubs are infinitely easier to keep fit than the older types on legs. The double compartment, double drainboard sinks with handy retractable hose to speed up cleaning of vegetables and washing and rinsing of dishes is another labor saver. Some of these new ones have a flat shelf at back for glassware.

Automatic Heating.

Automatic heating is available with all kinds of fuel. You can install a stoker with your present boiler or furnace or convert your present heating system for oil or gas fired use. If you are in need of a new boiler or furnace check on those specially designed for different types of fuel.

Should you decide this month to paint the woodwork in some room—woodwork which must take considerable abuse—there's an enamel on the market with a new synthetic oil base. This is highly resistant to stains, crayon markings, and the hard traffic that woodwork sometimes has to withstand when there's youth in the home.

Now comes ready made, in four pastel shades, a washable wallboard prefinished at the factory. Nice for some attic bedroom you may be wrestling out of previously neglected space. This wallboard, in buff, green, gray, or coral, eliminates the need for futher decoration, and its boards, made of fiber, provide strong, smooth, attractive surfaces.

NAME CHAIRMEN OF RECREATION SESSION NOV. 18

Chairmen of the conference committees for the annual city-wide recreation meeting to be held Nov. 18 were named last week by Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head of the general planning group.

The chairmen are V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, head of the evening program committee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the liason commitee; Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, state chairman of the American Artists Professional league, reception committee, and August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the public schools, chairman of the day program committee.

Recreational leaders from all parts of the nation will attend the seventh annual conference at the Hotel Sherman. More than 5,000 persons are expected to take part. The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission.

CHURCH FOLKS TO HOLD REUNION IN MUNDELEIN

It will be something like a reunion for hundreds of the Chicagoans who will attend the fourth annual carnival and chicken dinner of Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein next Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. J. H. McTigue, pastor of the church, was formerly stationed at St. Kilian's, St. Jerome's, and All Saints churches in Chicago, and many of his former parishioners will be on hand next week-end, it was indicated. Games and other entertainment have been planned. The committee on arrangements includes James Gaul, James Markham, John K. Dorsey, and Joseph Epstein, all of Chicago.

GRANDMAS MAP PROGRAMS FOR FALL MEETING

National Club to Hold Rally in Chicago.

When members of the Chicago chapter of National Grandmothers' Club, Inc., meet these days, they don't talk about their grandchildren—at least not exclusively. They devote considerable time to discussion of plans and programs for the national convention at which the Chicago chapter will be the hostess club the first week-end in October at tht Morrison hotel. And prominent in the plans and the planning is Mrs. Marie K. Brown, 7712 East Lake terrace, national president of the organization.

Mrs. Brown is by way of being the founder of the organization, all because she celebrated becoming a grandmother by inviting other grandmothers to breakfast with her.

Met At a Breakfast.

The breakfast took place in Bloomington, Ill., in the spring of 1934. Mrs. Brown had established herself as the first woman public relations representative of a railroad when she organized the first all-woman conducted tour over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1923.

Since then she has headed the women's division of the B. & O., and it was as a business woman that she was addressing a business and professional women's convention in Bloomington when she heard she had become a grandmother. She announced her news and invited all the grandmothers in her audience to breakfast with her next morning.

The breakfasts continued thru the annual conventions, and the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., was launched in 1938. Now the organization has an official badge, a publication, and a platform.

Badge a Gold Circle.

The badge is a gold circle with a brown enamel background. Tiny bars hang from the badge, and each bar bears the name of a grandchild. "Autumn Leaves" is the club paper.

The platform, or objects of the organization, include campaigning for better entertainment for children, assisting in research on children's diseases, and working to perpetuate the peace and liberty enjoyed in this country.

Mrs. Brown, who has resided in Rogers Park for the last 20 years, has enjoyed business success, but she says, "To be a grandmother is the crowning experience of life." She has a son and a daughter, and each has a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Dorothea Sullivan, 4434 North Monitor avenue, is president of the Chicago chapter and will head the coming pre-convention committee meetings.

Park Lifeguards to Hold Ninth Annual Dance Friday

Chicago park district lifeguards will hold their ninth annual ball Friday evening in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. Paddy Driscoll, park district beach manager at Oak street and recently appointed coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team, will be a special guest.

Plan Track Meet.

An interproject track and field meet will be held Wednesday at the Jane Addams housing project.

ROAD PROJECTS TO COST 8 MILLIONS

OFT ON A STILLY NIGHT A VILLAGE BAND TUNES UP

It's Naperville's 67 Year Tradition.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

It is practice that makes perfect. Carl Knoch is a believer in the old adage. At 75 he is as punctual as when he was a young man about attending Monday night rehearsals of the Naperville Municipal band. In those far off days of the community Mr. Knoch left his cigarmaker's bench to play an E-flat tuba. Now, in his business retirement, he prefers the clarinet. He has merely shifted instruments. His enthusiasm for band practice night has not changed.

Just as there will be band concerts every Thursday night in Naperville's elm shaded Central park until the middle of August, so there will be Monday practice night in Scott's hall. Mr. Knoch will tell you that you can't have the finished product without labor. His 70 companions of all ages from all walks of life will agree. And so, emphatically, does E. A. Koerner, director of the band for the last 10 years.

Test of a Musician.

If, back of the ability to enchant the public there must be long hours of painstaking effort, therein, insists the bandsman, lies the true test of the musician and, therein, the most satisfying fun. Naperville has had a band since 1874. During all that time the practice nights have been as much fun as concert night itself.

In recent years, Naperville's Central park has acquired a streamlined bandstand with modern lighting equipment and a public address system. There are seats for older folks who prefer the reminiscent melodies, and there is grassy footing for strolling couples with hearts attuned to swift rhythm numbers. Here, you may listen from your car if you have parked in a favored position as early as Thursday noon.

Each Thursday night may be heard the harmonious blending of reed instruments, blaring brass and pulse-stirring drumbeats. There is the contrast of march tunes and dreamy overtures. Under the spell, the routine of life vanishes and listeners are wafted to realms of their own choosing.

What About Monday?

This year, the programs open with "Americana," an arrangement of patriotic theme by Mr. Koerner, who also directs the five local school bands. As a concession to the effect of radio on a traditional American institution, each program includes entertainment by amateur talent.

So much for the band concert that attracts neighbors from near and far. What about Monday night that makes possible Thursday night's success?

Scott's hall on the second floor of a two story brick structure in the heart of Naperville's business section, with its stage and balcony and stairway leading from the street below, dates back to the era of traveling show troupes. Tho permitting its glory to fade, the hall has made no surrender to the movie. Only recently were its footlights removed with other decaying trappings. The band organization has improved the hall's acoustics with draperies of burlap.

Come in from Fields.

On a July night, it is well before sunset that the first of the band members arrive. Due to their tasks in the hayfields of nearby farms, Robert Fry, trumpeter, and Clinton Fry, trombonist, may be late. So may Fred Boebel, clarinetist, and Bernard Modaff, with his alto horn. They, also, are farmers by day.

The early nucleus includes Harley Hatch, American Airlines pilot, home from his hop between New York and Chicago. Harley plays the saxophone.

A. F. Kline, president of the band organization, warms up his slide trombone. Mr. Kline, a credit clerk in Chicago, began playing with the band 20 years ago when he was a sophomore in the Naperville High school.

Director Koerner, who started with the band when he attended North Central college, busies himself with the music sheets. For the first practice number, he decides on "Apollo" march.

The night being sultry and all the windows open, the practice will be heard far down the street, and snatches of it will be caught by passing motorists. At the top of the stairs, a group of small boys has gathered to listen.

Want to Please.

Director Koerner is asked about music trends and he answers guardedly.

"Well," he admits, "it looks as if the blue notes are being accepted as music. Every leader wants to do the better music, but we want to please. Dissonant harmonies are becoming more and more the musical taste of America. It indicates a desire for something new. Now, in the old waltz you have the symbol of peace and satisfaction."

They keep coming in . . . Coan Wright, station agent for the "Q" who plays the trumpet. Mr. Wright has played in the band since he came from Mount Morris 30 years ago. . . Carl Finkbeiner, bank teller and clarinetist. . . Clarence Gilchrist, employe of the Kroehler company, also a clarinetist. Both have played with

A Photographer Visits Naperville Municipal Band on Practice Night

"No so loud with the brass," cautions E.A. Koerner, director of the Naperville Municipal band on practice night in Scott's hall. Perfect harmony is sought if the weekly concert in Central park is to be a success. At right, Lane Gieske leans on the bass drum waiting until the notes indicate it is time for him to go into action. On concert night, the band never hesitates once a selection has been started, but on practice night the march and the overture are interrupted over and over again until an approved interpretation has been achieved.

Shifting of the music racks and running the scale are in the background now. Melodious tones resound against the walls of Scott's hall and drift thru the second floor windows to be heard far down the street. The director's baton gives the signal to continue with the crescendo and push on the crashing climax. The trumpeters at the left are Jack Preston and Bud Shimp. Coan Wright and William Wright, father and son, blend into the brass section at the right. This is not a night for snappy uniforms. The players have been encouraged to make themselves comfortable in combating the temperature.

Florence Schnabel is among the fair members of the band who take practice night seriously. To her, each mark on the music sheet has a delicate shade of meaning.

As for Carl Knoch, he first began playing with the community band back in the 1870s. He wouldn't give much for a band that didn't precede its concerts with plenty of practice. The director's command to "try that measure over again" is as much music to his ears as the finished selection when the whole countryside has gathered to listen.

Amerca First Notes

Lombard chapter of the America First committee will hold an outdoor meeting at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in Lilacia park, Maple and Park avenues, in Lombard. Thomas A. Thornton, an American Legion veteran of Grand Crossing post, No. 438, will address the group.

The organization is conducting a letter writing campaign to senators and congressmen uring them to enact legislation to keep America out of war.

Officers of the chapter are Jerome C. Alderman, 1106 Washington boulevard, chairman; Arthur W. Rude, 320 Windsor avenue, treasurer; Mrs. Falberg Goddard, 125 East Maple street, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur F. Spellerberg, 31 North Elizabeth street, recording secretary.

Hugh O'Neill Jr., an attorney, will address the Oak Park chapter of the America First committee tomorrow evening in chapter headquarters, 736 Lake street, Oak Park. Mrs. Lillian H. Prugh is chairman of the group.

An intensive letter writing campaign is under way among the membership of the Glen Ellyn chapter of America First. Dr. H. G. Swann, in a talk at a recent meeting, told the chapter, "After the lease-lend bill there has been no war, convoys haven't been sent, the AEF was not mentioned in the recent message to congress. Progress has been made. Who did it? Your letters. Those are the things that have kept us out. They have reached the congressmen. They have heartened people. Keep on writing to your congressmen."

A large supply of envelopes and paper has been laid in at Glen Ellyn headquarters, 413 Main street. Various women who volunteer their time help with the letter writing and address circulars for the people of the village. George W. Day is president of the chapter and Mrs. Robert Gates is secretary-treasurer.

Urge Thru Bus Line Now for Division Street

A Division street bus line extending from Austin boulevard to Lake Shore drive to replace the two streetcar lines now in operation along the thorofare is being pressed by northwest side civic groups and business organizations in an effort to eliminate the transportation gap thru Humboldt park.

The proposal for a bus line to run the entire length of Division street would relieve a problem to residents and workers of the densely populated Humboldt park area who, in order to continue their east or westward travel, must either walk more than a mile thru the park or transfer four times to other streetcars.

Under the present setup the Division street car runs north on State street from the loop and west on Division to California avenue. A city ordinance prohibits the operation of street cars thru park district zones, and there is a break in the line from California to Grand avenue, eight blocks away. The latter shuttle line continues to Austin boulevard, the western city limits.

The proposed change is included in the traction unification plan now pending in the city council, but since passage of the bill has been repeatedly postponed, the neighborhood groups are seeking immediate and separate action. An ordinance sponsored by Ald. Thomas P. Keane [31st] was passed by the council permitting the use of surface buses thru Humboldt park as long ago as April, 1938.

At present the nearest street car lines running parallel with Division street are at Chicago avenue and North avenue, both four blocks away.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

THE west area out far beyond the city's smoke stacks is proud of its cows today and of its neat dairy farms. Corelanda, the 166 acre purebred Holstein farm at Naperville, owned by R. W. Glasner and operated by Kenneth Nelson, won first place in district 10 of the Pure Milk association and was runner-up in the final judging for the grand championship title of the neatest and cleanest farm. Corelanda scored 99½ per cent in neatness and cleanliness and the Nelsons will receive $50 in cash in addition to a silverware prize.

The awards were made in the eighth annual Neatest Dairy Farm contest conducted by the Pure Milk association of Chicago.

Other west area farmers who scored high in the Neatest Farm contest and will receive award of merit plaques are Mike Knone, Aurora; Harry W. Larson, Geneva; Charles Maercker, Aurora; I. N. Russell, Elgin; Theis Brothers, Batavia; Jacob Wittry, Aurora; William Brummel, Batavia; William A. Carroll and Jake Vermat, Batavia; Getzelman Brothers, Elgin; E. C. Hoffman, Aurora; Herbert Norton, St. Charles; J. P. Meisch, Naperville; Fred W. Hoffman, Naperville; Mrs. John D. Meisinger farm, Nick J. Modaff, tenant, Naperville, and Charles Schark, Naperville.

Parishioners of Sacred Heart church, Melrose Park, tonight will gather at the parish hall, 16th avenue and 8th street, to celebrate the final liquidation of the parish debt, according to Lawrence Moreno, a member of the finance committee. The Rev. Henry Liebläng is pastor of the church.

STARRING in the recent annual water show given at Pine Beach, Gull Lake, Minn., were Harriet, Eleanor, Katherine, and Barbara Evans, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Keith K. Evans, 194 Millbridge road, Riverside.

Warriors Fill Jack Yorgan's Family Tree

Jack Yorgan of Hillside gives golf lessons. He lives in a white house on the golf course, his home surrounded by plump purple petunias and red geraniums and by a host of golf fans who come for his hints on teeing, putting, or difficult shots. Once in a while Jack Yorgan says he doesn't like war.

Jack Yorgan.

Jack is happy on the golf course when the sun beats warm on his sandy hair and when the twilight sneaks down after the golf lessons. Folded away in the Yorgan trunk are the medals and the records of war. Only once in a while for the curious he gets out a black book heavy with dates and records. The black book is all that is left of seven generations of fighting men in his family. The story of his family which he tells is the history of 229 years with the famous old British regiment, the 27th Inniskilling.

Reasons for Wars.

In 1919 when World war I. was over, Jack Yorgan with a crushed arm, a punctured ear and a case of nerves was honorably discharged from the regiment in which his grandfather and a host of great-grandfathers fought and bled for the British empire.

When he tells the story of his family's 299 years of warfare he can't always say exactly why they were fighting. Some battle or conquest occupied one generation after another.

"That one was to defeat King James for King William," he explains, "or that one was fought in Spain to beat some conqueror or that one was to put down a rebellion." Some were for religion, some for food, some for land, some for money, and some for pride.

Sergt. George Hill.

Sergt. George Hill was the first of his ancestors to begin to fight and that was the beginning of the innis-killing regiment in 1690. King William of Orange organized the army to fight against King James. It was settled at the Battle of the Boyne, named for a river in Ireland. Protestantism was assured in England and King James fled to France.

The family home of George Hill and those who came after him was Dungannon in the county of Tyrone.

Saw Regiment Started.

Sergt. Hill saw the beginning of the regiment which carries on its waist plate the names of all the spots in the world where Britain sent its Inniskilling men in retribution or conquest. In a circle on the plate around the words, Nec Aspera Terrent, are the names St. Lucia, Badajos, Vittoria, Nivelle, Toulouse, Waterloo, Egypt, Central India, Peninsula, Orthes, Pyrenees, Salamanca, and Maida.

Sergt. George Hill, the second, is treated only briefly in the little black book started by Great-grandfather George Hill IV., who is known for his part in the battle of Waterloo. It is known, however, from the history of the regiment that Inniskilling soldiers took part in an invasion of the West Indies in 1739.

Sergt. George Hill III. was born in 1747 in time to get in on the American revolution. The Inniskillings had first gone to America at the outbreak of the Seven Years war and aided in the conquest of Canada. They stayed until 1767. At the outbreak of the American War of Independence the Inniskillings went back and Sergt. George Hill III. was with them.

Fought at Waterloo.

Jack Yorgan's great-grandfather, Sergt. George Hill IV., was born in time to serve in the Peninsula wars. His service was the longest and the toughest for Britain was taking back what had been taken by Napoleon Bonaparte. He fought from 1808 to 1815 and his battles took him to Portugal, Spain, and France. At the battle of Toulouse he was recommended for gallantry. His commander was the Duke of Wellington and the end of the war came at Waterloo in 1815.

"People came from all over to hear my great-grandfather talk about the wars," says Yorgan.

When Waterloo was over the fourth Sergt. George Hill went back to County Tyrone to raise another son for the proud old regiment. There the long line of fighting men shifts a little. Sergt. Hill raised a daughter and she married a man of the regiment named Henry Yorgan. Shipping business was growing in the southern part of the United States and the young Yorgans came over in 1850 to make their fortune.

Dies in Civil War.

Instead he arrived in time for the American Civil war and died of wounds fighting for the confederacy in 1861. He is buried in Mobile, Ala., where his wife, the descendant of four Inniskilling generations, joined the battalion of women who defended Mobile against the Union army.

After the Civil war she took her young son, George Henry Yorgan,

MILITARY NEEDS ARE LIKELY TO INCREASE TOTAL

West Area Jobs Will Cost $1,795,000.

State highway projects involving a total of $1,795,413 are under way or about to start in western Chicagoland, it was announced last week by Walter A. Rosenfield, Illinois director of public works.

For the Chicago area as a whole, Rosenfield said, the total worth of state road projects now in progress or about to get under way is $8,350,000. His survey covers the counties of Cook, Lake, McHenry, Kane, DuPage and Will.

That other state highway work may be launched in the near future was seen from congressional passage of an emergency appropriation for building access roads to military and naval reservations and for improving highways strategically important to the national defense. Illinois is expected to get about $5,000,000 of the new funds thus made available for road building and repair.

Affected by Defense.

Rosenfield revealed that the defense program has drastically affected the state's road program. Federal highway aid funds are being allotted principally for strategically important routes, he said. Since much highway work is being financed in part by federal funds, this means that few projects not related to defense have any chance of early completion.

The access road projects in the Chicago area are the widening and repaving of Sheridan road in the vicinity of Fort Sheridan, and the laying out and paving of roads to serve the Kankakee and Elwood ordnance works. The ordnance highway projects are well under way, but the Sheridan road work is not yet under contract, Rosenfield said.

Largest West Area Job.

Largest of the west area state highway projects already under way is the Butterfield road improvement in DuPage county, which will cost a total of $347,623. This includes 7.33 miles of concrete paving between Illinois Route 53 and the Kane county line, which will cost $241,994; the $100,873 subway under the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad west of Warrenhurst, and safety devices at the grade crossings to cost an additional $4,756.

Next in size is the resurfacing of River road from Des Plaines southward to Maywood, a distance of 8.8 miles, which is already well advanced. This will cost a total of $286,302.

Three Harlem avenue projects now under way represent a total expenditure of $146,969. These include the paving of that street in Oak Park and River Forest from Chicago avenue northward to Division street, and the paving of the stretch in Summit between 45th and 52d streets. Curbs and gutters at the Mannheim-Butterfield intersection will cost $4,068.

Propose $550,000 Subway.

Largest of the west side projects in the immediate offing is the proposed $550,000 subway to take Cicero avenue traffic underneath the railroads near 54th street. Another is the improvement of the service drives to the Roosevelt road railroad viaduct in Westchester, on U. S. Route 330.

The state public works director emphasized that his figures do not include projects financed by the counties' and municipalities' shares of the Illinois motor fuel tax. This money is available for highway work that does not come under the state program.

Rosenfield said that during the first half of this year the six Chicagoland counties received $1,923,412 of state gasoline taxes, the cities and villages got $4,038,997, of which Chicago alone received $3,127,408.

WINFIELD CHURCH HOLDS REUNION DINNER TODAY

Home cooked, old fashioned, country style chicken dinner today will be served in a specially constructed, open air dining room at the annual homecoming and picnic of St. John's church, Winfield.

Rogers Higgins, chairman of the festival, said parking facilities had been arranged for the accomodation of hundreds of visitors who each year trek back to the parish of their childhood.

Proceeds of the homecoming will be used for church decorations and a new school now under construction. The Rev. Henry A. Puetz is pastor of the church now celebrating its diamond jubilee year.

Expect 2,000 at Picnic of Drug Club on Sunday

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the 35th annual picnic of the Chicago Drug club to be held in the Royal Oaks park at 87th street and Kean avenue next Sunday, it was announced, by Harry W. Prafke, president. Frank H. Ahlborn and C. T. Broling, co-chairmen of the committee in charge, promise numerous games, contests and races, with plenty of prizes and free refreshments.

202 TO COMPETE IN MUSIC FETE VOCAL CONTESTS

Sectional Event to Start Tuesday.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Two hundred and two vocalists who reside on the west or northwest sides of Chicago are entered in the sectional voice contest of the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival. This is a record number of entrants for this part of the city and tops the north side by 23 and the south side by 54.

Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the ballroom of the Graemere hotel, 113 North Homan avenue, and at the same time and place Wednesday night the sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be judged.

The public is invited. Admission is 25 cents. The north side contests were held last week and the south sectional try-outs will be Thursday and Friday nights at 7 o'clock in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive.

Seek Festival Honors.

The contests at the Graemere start the long trek of the 202 vocalists in quest of the honors of being named the "best man singer" and the "best woman singer" of the 1941 festival. For the first time four finalists, two women and two men, will sing against each other in Soldiers' field before the festival audience of nearly 100,000 people on Saturday night, August 16.

MELROSE PARK WILL WELCOME BANK SATURDAY

Civic Celebration to Be Held.

With the official opening Saturday of the Melrose Park National bank there will be brought to an end a bankless era in the community that has lasted almost 10 years. It will be the only bank in Proviso township which includes Maywood, Bellwood, Forest Park, Broadview, Hillside, La Grange Park, part of Brookfield, Berkeley, Stone Park, and North Lake village.

The institution was brought about thru the removal of the Belwood State bank to Melrose Park that it might serve its patrons in a more central location. It recently changed to a national bank and took the new name.

The Bellwood State bank had a capital of $50,000 and a surplus of $17,500. Capital stock has been increased to $100,000 and surplus to $27,500. Deposits at the present time total $1,500,000.

Established in 1914.

The Bellwood State bank was established in 1914. Before 1931 there were the bank in Bellwood, two banks in Forest Park, four banks in Maywood, and one in Hillside.

Thruout its 27 years the Bellwood bank has remained under the same management. Its officers are William F. Boeger, president; Fred F. Volkman, vice president; Arthur C. Mesenbrink, cashier, and Lawrence Moreno, assistant cashier. Directors are William F. Boeger, William G. Heldeman, Herman Weiss, Fred F. Volkman, Paul F. Amling, Phillip H. Korrell, and A. C. Mesenbrink.

The bank building has been at 2606 St. Charles road in Bellwood. New quarters will be in the former bank building at Broadway and Main street, Melrose Park, which has been remodeled and redecorated for the official opening.

Will Decorate Streets.

Recognizing the benefit to the community of the new bank, the Melrose Park Chamber of Commerce will decorate the streets for three days leading up to the opening. Sam Rubin has been appointed chairman of the celebration committee by President Arthur P. Matters.

"Selection of Melrose Park by the Buick plant for the manufacture of airplane engines no doubt had an influence in bringing the bank to the community," said Frank A. Alden, secretary of the Melrose Park Chamber of Commerce. "This plant will mean from 12,000 to 15,000 employés. There is exery indication that Melrose Park is destined to be the leading manufacturing center in the west suburbs. The bank was badly needed and we rejoice over its opening."

HOMES IN BUFFER AREAS CONFUSE ZONING OF CITY

Industrial Expansion Reveals Trend.

Conflict between residences and industries is helping to complicate the task of providing Chicago with a workable new zoning ordinance. Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the city council subcommittee that is preparing the new ordinance, declared that in some instances the defense program has been hampered by inconsistencies of the existing zoning law which the new one is to replace.

"There have been several cases," Lindell said, "where industries forced to expand by the receipt of defense orders could not do so conveniently because residences had encroached upon them.

"The old ordinance set up so-called buffer zones, specifying that industries could not build within certain distances of dwellings. This distance varied from 400 to 2,000 feet, according to the nature of the industry.

Home Owner Suffers.

"There was nothing in the old ordinance, however, to prevent the owner of industrial property from using it as homesites. That is in fact what happened.

"Land speculators bought up cheap industrial zones, subdivided them, and sold lots to prospective small home owners, who in many cases did not learn until after they bought that they were not in residential zones.

"This had no immediate effect on industries. But when the defense program came along and many of them were faced with the necessity of expanding quickly, they ran up against the buffer zone provision of the old ordinance.

"It was necessary on several occasions for the city to waive this provision to expedite defense work. This was done, however, only in cases where it was clearly indicated that industry had prior rights; that is, where it could be shown that the area in question had been zoned for industry and usurped for residences."

Start Zoning Review.

Ald. Lindell cited the case of the Wisconsin Steel company plant on 106th street east of Lake Calumet, which had to get a special dispensation before it could install needed plant enlargements, all because a small residential subdivision had gone in just south of 110th street.

Discovery of the unexpected prohibition set up by this situation started the framers of the new zoning ordinance on a review of the whole industrial picture. It pointed to the need of steps to avoid recurrence. The new ordinance will prohibit the use of land for any other purpose than that for which it is specifically zoned.

Another case in point is that of the Revere Copper and Brass company, also a defense industry. When this concern began to enlarge its plant at Fullerton and Natchez avenues, nearby residents tried to block the move, arguing that any increase of industrial use would depreciate their property. The city ruled against them.

Place for Everything.

"Intelligent zoning is merely good municipal housekeeping," Ald. Lindell said. "In trying to provide Chicago with the best land use code possible, we are merely following the principle of 'a place for everything and everything in its place.'

"One of our big objectives in drawing the new code is to provide for the orderly use of property in only those districts to which such uses should be confined.

"Failure earlier to observe so fundamental a rule is responsible for the fact that property values in Chicago are speculative. In one sense Chicago property has no value, because of the breakdown of our zoning laws. These lowered property values will be enhanced as soon as prospective owners can be sure of the future character of the neighborhood in which they contemplate buying."

Children to Do Sandcraft Modeling at City Beaches

West side children will participate in the annual sandcraft modeling of the park district which will be held Wednesday at Jackson park beach, and on Friday at the North avenue beach. Miss Alice Beyer is park district artcraft supervisor and in charge of the outing.

West Side Festival

Miss Bessie Ryan, founder and program chairman of the Greater West Side Fine Arts association, has arranged the three hour music program which will begin at 7:30 o'clock next Sunday night in Garfield park. The Greater West Side Music Festival is the opening event of Chicagoland Music Festival week sponsored by The Chicago Tribune.

back to England and he became a musician. It is this man's son, Jack, who is now the golf teacher of Hillside, and who was born in time to get in on World war I., and serve with the regiment of his fathers.

He was with the Inniskillings from 1914 to 1919 in the trenches of France. He saw men foaming at the mouth from the war's first poison gas, he saw shells bursting down on his buddies, and learned the trick of twisting a bayonet to free it.

They pulled Jack Yorgan out of a shell hole one night with his elbow shoved thru his ribs. He went back to fight until the armistice.

When the war was over Yorgan came to America and stayed on its golf courses. He is the last of the story of the Hills and the Yorgans of Inniskilling regiment. The regiment, however, goes on. He is the last, not because Britain's wars are over, but because Jack Yorgan doesn't have a son.

EXPECT 20,000 AT WEST SIDE PATRIOTIC SHOW

600 Musicians in Cast of Annual Festival.

Mark Fisher.

More than 20,000 persons are expected to throng Garfield park next Sunday for the pageant "Fires of Patriotism," which will be presented by a cast of 600 local musicians. The annual festival of the Greater West Side Fine Arts association will bring together one of the largest groups of singers ever presented on the west side.

Frank Bennett, leader of choral harmony and choral director of the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field, will direct the music.

Pageant to Depict Liberty.

Carl Stockholm, president of the association, announces a spectacular finale to the program featuring a Goddess of Liberty in the center of baton twirlers and whirling flags.

The Greater West Side Fine Arts association sponsors the festivals to give all local talent an opportunity to participate. There is no entry fee nor admission charge. Headquarters for the organization have been set up at 225 North Crawford avenue.

Arrangements Committee.

The civic leaders of the west side assisting with arrangements are Bernard Baer, Howard Harvey, Walter H. Buescher, John F. Butler, Leo Cohen, Thomas Connery, Edward C. Connors, Edward W. Dunne, Herbert Dunning, Henry Friberg, T. H. Golightly, John Harvey, Dr. Helen Howe, Raymond A. Hynes, Harvey W. Johnson, Homer D. Jones, E. C. Lowy, Judge Thomas J. Lynch, Mayblossom MacDonald, Ray McCarthy, and George P. Madigan.

Others are Grace Ryan, Amerigo R. Sansone, Marguerite Stockholm, Peter L. Verschuur, Harold Wright, Dr. Irene Behnke, Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer, Mrs. Rayden J. Keith, Mrs. Frank Whitmore, Francis E. Callahan, Joseph S. Gillespie, George Kells, Edward Upton, and Capt. Louis Klatzko.

The festival will be highlighted by vocal solos by Mark Fisher, orchestra director, who will be accompanied by Alexander Bonz and his radio orchestra.

Choral organizations which will take part are the Chicago and North Western Railway Choral club directed by Harry Slater and the St. Cecilia choir of Our Lady of Sorrows church led by Miss Ryan. The Chicago Boys' Club band directed by John Sovenic will play and the Wurlitzer Accordion band will be conducted by Kirk Lightbourne.

Mr. D. F. McMahon

Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

After several years in the greeting card business, we finally got up enough nerve to advertise in the Chicago Tribune. I thought you might be interested in the results.

We first tried a quarter-page in December on Christmas cards. This ad in the North Side Metropolitan section pulled extremely well - despite the fact that both of our stores are hard to get at now because of the subway construction.

Again on February 9, we used another quarter-page on Valentines. With the streets blocked off in all directions around our shops, we drew customers from all over town, stayed open all that week until midnight and rolled up a 30 per cent increase in Valentine sales. Without this ad, our Valentine business surely would have been way down compared to last year. We sold 241 of the $1 cards alone.

Some of my friends are saying I'm crazy to use big space in the Tribune. But results show they know nothing about the way the Tribune brings in the customers.

I am now planning similar promotions for Easter and Mother's Day.

Sincerely yours,
John J. Sullivan

Greeting Card Stores Boost Sales 30% with Advertising in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

In the accompanying letter, another neighborhood merchant tells how he increased his sales and profits with advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

Would you like to attract more customers to your store? No matter where in the city or suburbs you are located — regardless of what you sell or to whom you sell, you can step up your volume, speed turnover and boost profits by using the Tribune's low-cost advertising plan.

Right in your own trading area, the people best able to patronize you can be reached thru advertising in one or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—edited especially for them and published each Sunday in the Chicago Tribune.

Advertising in these sections can do for you what it did last year for 796 enterprises in practically every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago.

For more information to help you get more business from your best prospects, call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising. Without obligation, you can get the complete facts about the Tribune's low-cost selling method which has been producing outstanding results for neighborhood advertisers for more than 14 years.

WOMEN TO TELL AGES FRANKLY; MAY MEAN PRIZE

Old Settlers Will Hold a Picnic Tomorrow.

Some women will be glad to admit their age tomorrow.

"Any one more than 40 years old," announces H. F. Chaveriat, "who has lived in Chicago or Cook county for the last 25 years is eligible to register for the Old Settlers' picnic and will receive a souvenir badge." The picnic, when old age shakes hands, dines and dances to old time tunes, will be held in Harms park, Western and Berteau avenues.

The oldest man and woman settler of the Chicago area will get a gold medal. The one employed the longest in the same concern will get a medal. The oldest pensioned person, the one living in the same house the longest, the one with the largest family, and the married couple whose combined ages total the greatest number of years will all get gold medals too.

Oldest Couples to Dance.

The 10 oldest couples will dance and will be presented with floral bouquets. Old stories will be told and Chicago will be stripped of its skyscrapers and boulevards as white heads nod the years away.

Among Old Settlers of the west side who have registered to attend are Charles Eckelberg, Ellen Boening, Mrs. Mary Arndt, John G. Ranbold, Thomas F. Gallagher, Julius Haule, and August Hummel.

It's the 67th Picnic.

The Old Settlers' picnic is sponsored for the 67th consecutive year by the Chicago Turners headed by H. F. Chaveriat, chairman.

West side members of the committee are Frank Gerlich, Oscar Drevniak, Max F. Zimmer, Alfred W. Rayner, F. W. Martin, J. J. Miller, R. Edward Stemm, Charles Kristen, and Frank Warga.

TWO RECALL GROWTH

Among those from Oak Park planning to attend the Old Settlers' picnic and reunion tomorrow at Harms park are John G. Raubold, 86, who was born in Chicago and has taken its growth in stride, and Charles Kristen, who came to Chicago as an impressionable lad of 15 in 1906. Mr. Raubold resides at 325 North Lombard avenue, and Mr. Kristen has his home up the street at 701 North Lombard avenue.

Both men have attended the picnics for years. This year Mr. Kristen is a member of the games committee.

Mr. Raubold, born at Madison and Franklin streets in 1854, recalls being lost in what was then the heart of Chicago when he was a boy of 4. He had started for a visit to his grandfather who had a shoe shop on Madison street and had been hampered in his progress by the long pile of earth beside the first of the big sewers being established on Madison street. The policeman who came to his rescue knew Johnnie personally and saw he reached home safely. There was little complication in identifying him because he lived in one of the John Wentworth houses and the policeman resided in a nearby flat.

Have Cow on Prairie.

The Raubold family moved to the near west side, which enabled them to graze a cow on the prairie, and John delivered surplus milk to the neighbors. As a young man he went to work for a picture frame factory and remained in the business until 1910. He became a resident of Oak Park in 1884. He is still active as a bookkeeper.

Unlike Mr. Raubold, who took his home town for granted, Mr. Kristen, until he was 15, visioned Chicago from far off Austria thru two albums sent him by an uncle. One contained pictures of the Chicago fire and the other displayed the architectural wonders of the World's Columbian exposition

Charles Kristen studied to become an architect and dreamed of a career in Chicago. In 1906 he sailed from Antwerp and, after a 48 hour train ride from New York, arrived in Chicago.

Lake Is Surprise.

"First impressions were disappointing," recalls Mr. Kristen. "The view along the railroad right of way as we drew into the station appeared ugly. Hastily I visited the points of interest—Lincoln park, the Masonic temple, the Montgomery Ward tower, the stockyards, and the old Field museum. All these I had heard about. But Lake Michigan was a big surprise and how beautiful and big it seemed. From the map I had studied back home I had the idea it was a small resort lake. Within two years I knew Chicago better than most natives, as is often the case.

"Gradually my boyish vision from afar began to adjust itself to reality. Chicago was not as I had thought it would be, exactly, but it was none the less wonderful. I observed the imprint left by Sullivan and Adler on the city's architecture. I was thrilled by opera at the Auditorium. The park system struck me as being highly developed. Came the skyscraper age and the smoke abatement efforts.

Helps Design Hotels.

"I found that building construction was not all of brick. In the pictures of the Chicago fire I had seen the remnants of brick structures and I had gained a faulty idea that this material had been used exclusively. There were more department stores in the loop then than there are today."

As an architect, Mr. Kristen worked with a firm that designed the Drake, Edgewater Beach, Blackstone, and Morrison hotels. His theory about the rehabilitation of blighted areas is that work should begin at the healthy part and creep back to the less attractive sections of the city.

Youngsters to Give Oak Park Circus

The five Taylor Crackerjacks will have top billing when the circus comes to town in Oak Park at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening. The all-star cast of children will perform at Andersen playground, Hayes avenue and Division street, on Tuesday and at Carroll playground, Kenilworth avenue and Harvard street, on Friday. The base of the pyramid of acrobats is composed of Robert, 10 years old; Tom, 3 years old, and Dorothy, 9 years. Seven year old Sally supports little Marjorie, 5 years old. The children are sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Taylor, 1015 Forest avenue, Oak Park. The circus is an annual presentation of the Oak Park playgrounds directed by Miss Josephine Blackstock.

LURE OF CIRCUS UPSETS LIFE IN OAK PARK HOMES

Children to Perform in Ring on Friday.

Boys and girls in Oak Park are running away this week by the score to join the circus. There are death defying trapeze artists eating breakfast oatmeal in Oak Park kitchens next door to acrobats or clowns.

The entire cast of the circus to be given at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at Andersen playground, Hayes avenue and Division street, and on Friday at Carroll playground, Kenilworth avenue and Harvard street, will be boys and girls. The audience will be their parents.

There will be chariot races to rival Nero's classics, a Mexican extravaganza starring Ramon Ortiz.

Melodrama on Program.

There will be a melodrama entitled "The King with the Terrible Temper," a pantomime, "Columbus Discovers America," a lantern parade, fencing, boxing, tumbling, mass games, a patriotic drill, a bicycle review, a Kitchen band and a "Mechanized America" dance.

Dr. Theodore M. Nelson, chairman of the playground board, will give the message of welcome, and J. J. Maloney, playground commissioner, will crown the winner of the chariot race. Robert McMaster, president of the village, will speak.

Miss Josephine Blackstock, director of playgrounds, is general chairman of the circus, assisted by Miss Lilly Ruth Hanson. In charge of dramatics are Miss Hazel Bowes, Miss Bertha Hough, Miss Mary Jason, Mrs. Esther Armstrong, Mrs. Marie Stephens, Edward Beranek, William Hedtke, Emil Lussow, Robert Maloney, Peter Frantzen, and Milton Pope. The sets have been designed by George Grecco and properties and stage management are under the direction of Andrew Watters.

Curtis Roberts, radio actor, will be narrator of the play and guest of the cast. Joe Kelly, quiz master of the Quiz Kids radio program, will be master of ceremonies.

In the Kitchen Band.

Members of the Kitchen band are Arthur Scherer, Billy Sach, John and James Scannell, Jerome Belza, Bobby Stuker, Peggy and Robert Hobert, John Gale, and Jane Fraser, Wylda Wright, Betty Jane and Gilbert Rau, Ronny Zumbrun, Ronny Ollier, John Lee, Joan Koltenback, Norma Holland, Sharon Nelson, Louis Schaefer, Jo-Ann Gingleff, Janet McConachie, Helen McConachie, and Tommy Reimann.

The cast for "The King with the Terrible Temper" consists of Seymour Young, Emily Zimmer, Betty Manning, Peggy Dempsey, Tobias Back, Dean Frost, Edward Graham, and Ted Falby.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Five west area boys stationed at Fort Sheridan were transferred recently to various divisions of the United States army. Harold Vander-Velde, 2031 West 13th street, a chauffeur in civilian life, was transferred to the 3d armored division at Camp Polk, La. The same division has claimed Sigmund Steiner, 5559 Adams street, who was manager of a dry cleaning company before induction.

Private First Class Alfred Favrow, 1933 South 49th avenue, Cicero, has been transferred from Company G of the 47th Infantry to the 502d Parachute battalion at Fort Benning, Ga. A former circulation manager for a Chicago magazine company, Favrow enlisted in the army ten months ago. Several months ago when calls were sent thru the 9th division for volunteers, he chose to make the transfer.

the band more than a quarter of a century.

The four fair members of the band taking their places are Mrs. June Keck, trombonist; Miss June Hatch, flutist; Miss Florence Schnabel, clarinetist, and Miss Elizabeth Yender, trumpeter.

In the rhythm section which does all the accompanying for vocal solos and specialty numbers are Walter Schmidt, guitar; Ardon Huebner, violin; Ralph Keck, bass, and Kendall Pickell, trumpet.

The seats of Kenneth Beebe and Harold Lehman are vacant. They have been taken by the draft. Kendall Wyllie, railroad man, the drum major, appears with the band only when it is on parade.

The drum section takes its place in the corner—Lane Gieske, Robert Osterland, Robert Moyer, Ted Sievert, and Jack Wilson. It won't be long now.

A cornetist runs thru the scale. There is the shifting of chairs and the clatter of music racks. The tuba grunts a deep "um pah." Expectant sounds. Seventy-one band members glance toward the music notes that are so meaningless to an outsider.

"Now, one, two, three!"

It sounds fine. But no, after a few bars, the director taps loudly with his baton. "Let's start over and go thru it all again."

Carl Knoch adjusts his spectacles and peers more closely at his notes. He is willing to try again—eager. As eager as at that first rehearsal he attended generations ago. The leader is right. Who should mind being corrected if it means perfection at the concert Thursday night? That has been the attitude of band members in Naperville since 1874.

WHEATON ZONING ACTION CALLED 'BLITZKRIEG LAW'

Form Citizens' Committee in Protest.

Resentment by a group of residents against recent action of the Wheaton city council in amending a zoning ordinance enlarging the Class B residence district has led to the formation of the Wheaton Citizens' association, which announces its determination to force a referendum on the issue.

The amendments, transferring approximately 30 blocks from Class A to Class B residence district, in which two family dwellings are permitted, passed the council by a 3 to 2 vote and is now in effect.

Following a public hearing earlier in the summer, the council had postponed action until Sept. 8, but at its recent meeting it was the suggestion of Commissioner Arthur Karstens that nothing was to be gained by holding off.

In the council's vote on changing the ordinance A. C. Atwater voted yes, W. M. Conley no, Arthur Karstens yes, Mayor W. W. Renton yes, and Charles Vallette no.

Commerce Group Favors Rezoning.

The new ordinance is said to follow the recommendations of a planning commission whereby certain blocks contiguous to the two family residence district should be rezoned from class A [one family] to class B [two family]. The commission did not urge the change but set forth its approval of a plan if the change be made.

Rezoning was favored by the Wheaton chamber of commerce and in a petition signed by business men of the suburb. Wheaton, it was explained, had many large homes restricted to one family residences.

Proponents of rezoning contended that the old ordinance permitted the owner of a large home to rent out three rooms and have seven boarders which meant more persons under one roof than would be the case in a two family home. They held that privilege for remodeling should be permitted to meet a house shortage and permit young couples to settle in the home town rather than seek quarters elsewhere.

Members of the newly formed Wheaton Citizens' association seeking a reversal of the council's decision say they are in a fight to maintain the reputation of Wheaton as a city of homes.

Charge "Blitz Lawmaking."

Promise to withhold final action on the issue until September and recommendations of the planning board were brushed aside by the council, say members of the new association, and a privately drawn rezoning ordinance suddenly enacted. This, the association charges, was "blitzkrieg lawmaking."

Members of the association also contend that the class B property district that has been set up exceeds the area devoted to the same purpose in Oak Park, which has nine times the population of Wheaton.

The association went on record to credit Wheaton's reputation for family ownership of homes as the city's chief asset, attracting many new residents, and attacked the idea of bringing cheaply constructed two-flats into areas of substantial homes.

Officers of the new association fighting the ordinance are Oliver W. Storey, general chairman, Malcolm C. Ohlson, chairman of the referendum campaign, and Robert Walker, treasurer.

CARRIE J. BOND MEDLEY TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

Popular Melodies Slated on Chicagoland Hour.

Three popular songs by Carrie Jacobs Bond will be presented in medley form as a highlight of the Chicagoland Hour over W-G-N from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturday. Marion Claire, soprano star of the program, Attilio Baggiore, featured tenor, and Guest Contralto Ruth Slater will join the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and the chorus under the direction of Robert Trendler in presenting the musical portion of the program.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

Miss Claire will sing Victor Herbert's "For I'm Falling in Love" and DeLeath's "The Madonna Lullaby." She will also be heard with Baggiore in a medley of Herbert numbers. Baggiore will sing Toselli's "Serenade" and "Mattinata" by Leoncavallo.

The orchestra will present Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the "Mississippi Suite" with a background by the chorus and the "Gypsy Baron Overture" by Strauss.

The complete program follows:

The Chicagoland Hour is produced by William A. Bacher, W-G-N chief of programs and production.

JOAN MERRILL TO JOIN ZANY TRIO, TOM, DICK, HARRY

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" will again add half an hour of entertainment to listeners' lives from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Joan Merrill.

The trio will play host to Joan Merrill, newcomer to the world of radio, stage, and screen who sings at the Rhumba Casino. Miss Merrill has had about all the stage and screen experience a young lady might wish, having made tours with the shows of Harry Richman, Dave Apollon, and Rudy Vallee. But something new is in store for her when she works with radio's zaniest trio.

Music highlights Monday will include "How Did He Look?" sung by Miss Merrill, "Evil Eye," a story about a man who puts the curse on every one, this to be sung by the trio. With the circus in town the boys also will do the sad, sad story of "The Acrobat's Daughter."

The "Affairs of Tom, Dick, and Harry" is produced by William A. Bacher. The W-G-N dance orchestra is under the direction of Robert Trendler who also is often called upon to help out on the dialog.

PLAY BY W-G-N WRITER TO OPEN AT LAKE ZURICH

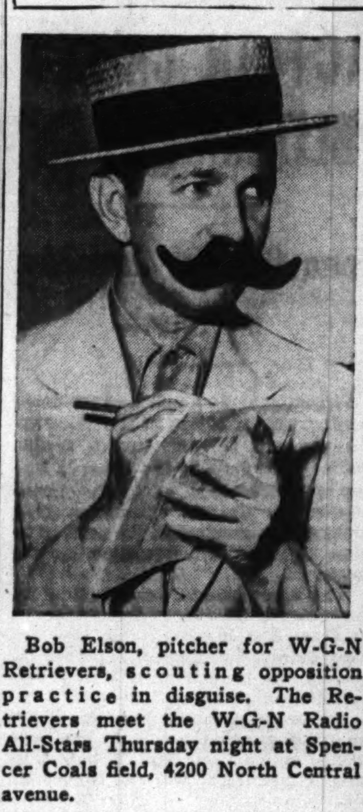
"These Are My Jewels," a modern comedy dealing with the life of a 40 year old woman whose cross is a family of social climbers, will be introduced Friday, Aug. 8, at the Lake Zurich playhouse in Lake Zurich for a three day run.

The playwrights are Henry Barbour, W-G-N continuity writer, and Ruth MacKay, author of the best selling novel, "Money Without Men." Before coming to W-G-N Barbour was a script writer with the University Broadcasting council, while Miss MacKay has written numerous short stories and magazine articles as well as her novel.

LaFollette, Kilpatrick to Discuss U. S. Responsibility

William H. Kilpatrick, educational authority, and Philip F. LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, will discuss "America's Responsibility in the World Today" on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:25 a. m. today. Dean Ernest O. Melby of Northwestern's school of education will be the chairman of the discussion.

A Radio Scout



Bob Elson, pitcher for W-G-N Retrievers, scouting opposition practice in disguise. The Retrievers meet the W-G-N Radio All-Stars Thursday night at Spencer Coals field, 4200 North Central avenue.

PIERRE MONTEUX WILL CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Concert Will Be Aired Over W-G-N.

Pierre Monteux, noted French conductor, will conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert at Ravinia to be heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

The program will emphasize French music, presenting Berlioz' overture to "Benvenuto Cellini," "Symphony in D Minor," by Franck, and Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla-Khan."

Monteux, director of the San Francisco symphony for six years, has had a varied musical career. After graduation from the Paris conservatory, he joined the Cologne orchestra, eventually becoming assistant conductor. In 1911 he toured Europe with Serge Diaghileff's Ballet Russe as one of the principal conductors. Between tours he gave concerts in Paris called "Les Concerts Monteux," at which he introduced many modern compositions.

His tour with the Ballet Russe brought him to the United States for the first time in 1916. He received a post at the Metropolitan opera from 1917 to 1919 which he resigned to succeed Henri Rebaud as conductor of the Boston symphony.

After five years in Boston, Monteux devoted a decade to conducting the historic Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland. Because of his many positions Monteux has been called "the traveling salesman of music."

In this country he has conducted at New York, Philadelphia, and Los Angeles as well as Boston and San Francisco. This will be his first Chicago appearance.

The Budapest string quartet will follow Monteux at Ravinia, presenting a program of chamber music Tuesday, Aug. 12, to conclude Ravinia's broadcast season.

John Weigel, who announces the Chicagoland Hour, will present the musical commentary.

HAROLD TEEN TO PRODUCE EPICS IN HOLLYWOOD

The movie moguls of Hollywood had better look to their laurels. American youth, in the person of Harold Teen and his breezy, carefree friends, have decided to produce motion picture epics and rush to fame and fortune. The steps they have taken to get their names in lights and on the lips of the American public will be revealed in entertaining, comical drama during the "Harold Teen" program on W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m. Tuesday.

Harold, who manages to kick around the English language with a freedom that would make Shakespeare blush, has decided to become an author and write moving, inspiring movie scenarios and cast his pals Shadow and Beezie in important supporting rôles. Teen, of course, will have the lead; Lillums will be his true love, and Cynthia will be the vamp. How successful they are in their artistic endeavors will be told in light-hearted, slap-haphazard comedy next Tuesday night.

"Harold Teen" is the new dramatic series based on the famed Chicago Tribune comic strip of the same name. Charles Flynn plays the title rôle. Bob Jellison is Shadow, Marvin Mueller is cast as Beezie, while Loretta Poynton is Lillums, and Beryl Vaughn, formerly a movie starlet, plays Cynthia.

Mueller and Soule Win Highest De Molay Honors

Marvin E. Mueller and Olan Soule, W-G-N actors, have been selected by the grand council of the Order of De Molay to receive the highest honor of the organization, the "Legion of Honor Degree." The investiture will take place on Aug. 11 at the Chicago Commandery, 32 West Randolph street.

ELSON AND ANSON DUEL IN W-G-N GAME THURSDAY

Andy Frain in Bull Pen as Reserve Pitcher.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Bob [Glass Arm] Elson vs. Bill [Swing It!] Anson!

That's the super-hurling setup for the softball game next Thursday evening between the W-G-N Radio All-Stars and the W-G-N Retrievers, regular members of the Chicago Editorial league. The game starts at 9 p. m. under the lights at Spencer Coal Field, 4200 North Central avenue, a preliminary is scheduled for 7:30 p. m.

Receipts will go to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Free Ice and Camp Algonquin funds. But there is no charity in the remarks being made by the players about their rivals in the fortcoming battle.

The feud boiled over yesterday after the baseball committee heard rumors that a bribe had been offered Elson to quit the Retrievers and join the All-Star pitching lineup.

Chairman Heidrich Rules.

"He plays with the Retrievers all season," ruled Chairman Milton Heidrich, "and a Retriever he'll be on Thursday. Or else. End quote."

Anson, who imitates Jack Benny, Charley McCarthy, Tom, Dick, and Harry, and other celebrities on his W-G-N radio programs, has been impersonating Bob Feller and Ted Lyons all week.

A healthy replacement for Anson, in case Bill has to go to a radio station and play some phonograph records, was found last night in Andy Frain, whose ushers serve at W-G-N studio shows and all big time events. Frain is providing a full crew for duty at Spencer Coals field.

Two Girl Mascots.

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N tenor; Bud Vandover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Vandover [Tom, Dick, and Harry], Guy Savage, Jack Brickhouse, Jess Kirkpatrick, Spencer Allen, Charles Victor, Alan Scott, Producer Paul Fogarty [Ask-It-Ball], Charles Flynn [Harold Teen], Ed Prentiss [Capt. Midnight], and Olan Soule, heard in several dramatic rôles will be among the Stars in action.

Uncle Harry Hosford of A. B. C. club fame will manage the Stars. Lucy Gilman, comely actress in "Painted Dreams," will be mascot and bat-girl. Alice Goodkin, also on W-G-N dramatic shows will do the same for the Retrievers. Dorothy Gregory of Citizens of Tomorrow and other shows, will be official scorer.

Tickets for the game are on sale at The Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune Tower. Prices are 50 cents [including tax] for adults, and 10 cents for children. The tickets also may be obtained at the gate.

TINNEY TO BEGIN 'SIZING UP NEWS' SHOW ON W-G-N

Cal Tinney, humorist and columnist, will start a new series of philosophical, amusing news commentaries titled "Sizing Up the News," on W-G-N and 73 other Mutual stations beginning tomorrow. Tinney's broadcasts will be heard each Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 7:15 p. m.

Cal Tinney.

Tinney, whose syndicated column, "Man of the Week," appears in 26 newspapers, promises that his new radio series will be refreshing and entirely different. "My program," he said, "will put special emphasis on personalities in the news and try to look for the reasons which account for the facts you read in your newspaper and hear on the average radio news show."

Sam Balter's "Inside of Sports" program, under the same sponsorship, will be heard on W-G-N and Mutual each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m.

NURSES TO TELL THEIR PARTS IN WORK OF ARMY

An explanation of what makes the wheels go around in the United States army nursing service will be presented at 2 p. m. next Wednesday, Aug. 6, during the "Your Army" broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Two army nurses, Second Lieutenants Zella E. Weist and Clara R. Oberg, will be interviewed by Announcer Ward Quall. They will describe the social life, educational requirements and duties of women who serve in the Nursing corps of the army medical division.

"Your Army," a presentation of the W-G-N special events department, each week will take its listeners behind the scenes of different branches of the United States army. So far air corps and ROTC life has been described. Tentatively scheduled are programs dealing with the medical, quartermaster, hostess, cooking, and air cadet corps.

Northerners to Present a Little Known Song

A little known but beautiful song, only once before played in the United States, will be the featured number on the Northerners broadcast over W-G-N next Tuesday from 9:30 to 10 p. m. The selection, titled "Priere," by Massenet, was first played by the Northerners in March, 1940, and has been scheduled for the Tuesday program after many listeners have written requests to hear it again. The male octet will sing it.

Mr. D.F. McMahon
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon,

"To become permanent, it is necessary to move."

That is the slogan, as you might remember, that we adopted when we opened our first subsidiary shops as extensions of Blums-Vogue. And that is the slogan we are using today in connection with our new, greatly enlarged Blums-Evanston shop which is to open in the near future in a new location opposite the Evanston Woman's Club.

Blums-Evanston, during its eight years in its present location at 709 Church Street, has become one of the North Shore's most popular women's apparel shops. Its business has grown steadily, until now it is necessary for us to house it in quarters more than twice its present size. And we believe that when we have finished remodeling the new building, it will be so exquisitely and attractively done it will be a showplace in its own right.

In merchandising, we have keyed this shop to those who live in and around Evanston, and in the North Shore suburbs. For here we will offer an enlarged collection of distinctive Blum fashions, furs, hats, and accessories for city and suburban life ... plus a new feature: shoes of our own design and the nationally famous Delman line exclusive with us in this territory.

In advertising, we have found that the North Metropolitan section of The Chicago Tribune reaches our largest audience with a minimum of "waste circulation". We expect to continue our use of this medium, since it not only brings us new customers, but helps us maintain contact with our old friends and customers.

Sincerely yours,

HHB:ho

Progress of Evanston shop linked to advertising concentrated in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

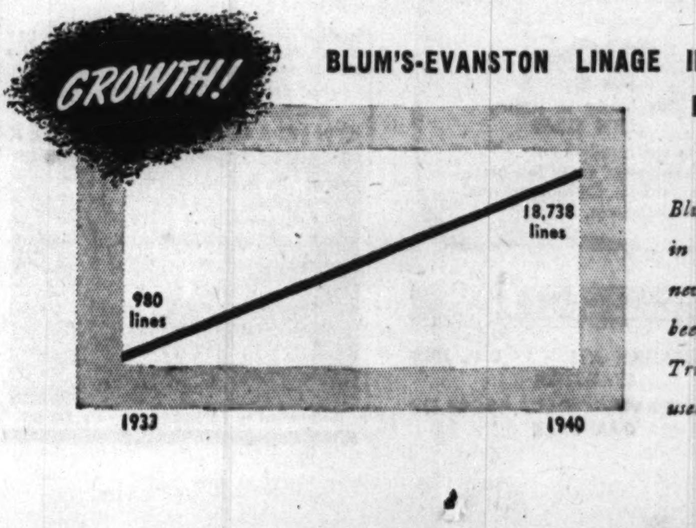
In the accompanying letter, another merchant tells how Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising has helped build sales and aided his store's progress.

Are you taking maximum advantage of this low-cost method of reaching your best customers and prospects? Last year 796 neighborhood enterprises, large and small, located thruout Chicago and the suburbs, used Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising to increase their patronage and profits.

One or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—is edited for and read exclusively by the people best able to trade with you. You cannot find a more effective, economical way to reach and produce response from the people right on your side of town.

To build store traffic, speed turnover and step up your profits, ask a Tribune representative to give you complete information about this low-cost business-building plan. Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.

BLUM'S-EVANSTON LINAGE IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE METROPOLITAN SECTIONS 1933-1940



Blum's-Evanston opened for business in 1933. Each year since, the store's newspaper advertising schedule has been concentrated in Chicago Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections. Space used to date exceeds 100,000 lines.

TRAFFIC DEATHS AMONG CHILDREN SHOW BIG JUMP

Up 44 Per Cent Over Toll of 1940.

Death to Chicago's pedestrian children from traffic accidents in the first half of this year rose 44 per cent over the same period in 1940. Twenty-five youngsters, all under 16 years, were killed last year from Jan. 1 to June 30, as compared to 36 deaths for the first half of 1941.

These figures have been released by the Chicago Motor club which recently completed a survey with Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council traffic committee. A month by month tabulation of child deaths for the two periods follows:

	1940.	1941.
January	0	4
February	4	5
March	3	6
April	3	4
May	7	10
June	8	7

Studies made in other years show that child traffic deaths increase 68 per cent during July and August. This increase, traffic men say, is due to the fact the two months are the school vacation period, which brings a slackening of safety education among children.

Where Death Occurred

Six pedestrian younsters were killed on the northwest side from January thru June this year. Nine were killed on the south side, six on the north side, eight in the west area, and seven in the southwest section.

Northwest Side.

January—Girl, 14 years old, at Elston avenue and Irving Park road.

February—Boy, 11, at 4211 North Pulaski road.

April—Boy, 5 on Diversey avenue just east of Narragansett.

May—girl, 7, at 2436 North Austin avenue.

June—Boy, 13, at Irving Park road and Nordica avenue, and girl, 4, at 5224 Dakin avenue.

South Side.

January—Boy, 12 years old, on Doty avenue at 128th street, and girl, 4, at Cottage Grove avenue and east 42nd street.

February—boy, 3, at 37th and State streets.

March—Boy, 9, at 3021 Wentworth avenue.

April—Girl, 6, at 8141 Exchange avenue; boy, 3, on West 37th street between Wells street and Princeton avenue.

May—Girl, 6, at 6540 Minerva avenue; boy, 2, in alley at the rear of 3147 Rhodes avenue, and boy, 13, at South Park Way and East 37th street.

Southwest Side.

March—Boy, 5 years old, on Hoxie avenue, just south of East 106th street, and boy, 8 at California avenue and West 35th place.

April—Boy, 8, 5935 South Marshfield avenue.

May—Boy, 7, at Halsted and 78th streets; boy, 2, at 4848 Federal street; boy, 3, in alley at the rear of 4219 South Princeton avenue, and boy, 10, at West 67th and Halsted streets.

North Side.

January—Girl, 4 years old, at 1440 Thorndale avenue.

February—Boy, 9, on Clark street south of Hood avenue.

March—Boy, 9, at 825 Fullerton avenue.

May—Girl, 5, at Wisconsin street and Dayton avenue.

June—Boy, 5, on Seminary avenue just south of Byron street, and girl, 6, at 2261 Lincoln avenue.

West Side.

February—Boy, 7 years old, at 1130 Blue Island avenue, and boy, 10, at 741 North Oakley avenue.

March—Boy, 6, at Washington boulevard and Kildare avenue, and boy, 10, at Sacramento boulevard, several feet north of Washington boulevard.

May—Boy, 5, 1319 South Peoria street.

June—Girl, 6, at Lotus avenue and Madison street; girl, 7, at Lotus avenue and Madison street, and girl, 4, at 1362 South Sangamon avenue.

As a means of fighting the steadily rising death toll, particularly during the vacation months, the motor club has launched a $500 back yard contest appealing to fathers and mothers to set aside a portion of their property for the use of children.

Grand Prize of $100.

A grand prize of $100 will be awarded for the most useful yard in Cook county. Sectional prizes of $25 each are to be given to the owners of yards designed to keep youngsters off the streets. Entry blanks may be obtained from the motor club offices, 66 East South Water street.

Traffic dangers are being reduced during the school term by the safety patrol boys, Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said.

"Educational leaders thruout the Chicago area have given their support to a number of excellent safety programs for children," he declared. "With their aid the school safety patrol is steadily reducing the dangers to and from school. But during the vacation months and after school hours these programs are relaxed and the children are on their own.

"Parents must coöperate. The most logical way is to guide the child's normal activities into safe places. A back yard play yard keeps them off the street.

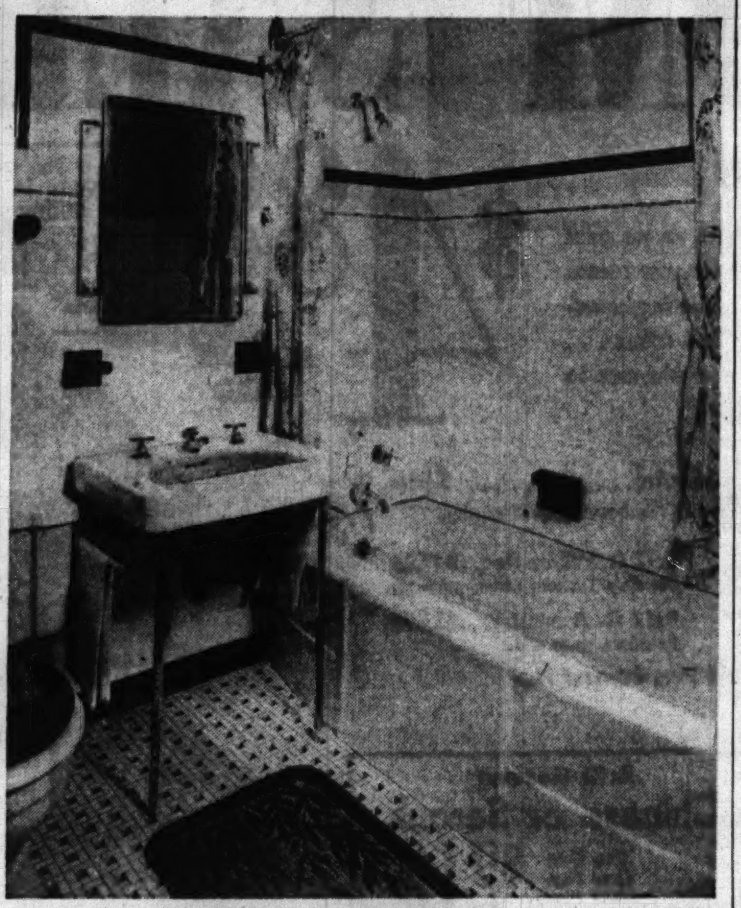
Chariot Race to Highlight Picnic of K. of C. Today

A chariot race will highlight the annual picnic of the Father Perez council, No. 1444, Knights of Columbus, today at Sunset grove, 135th street and Archer avenue. George A. Wahl is general chairman of the outing. There will be athletic events and dancing. Buses for the grounds will leave 63d street and Ashland avenue, starting at 9:45 o'clock.

Former Toluca Residents Will Have Picnic Sunday

The Chi-Uca club, an organization of 2,000 persons residing in the Chicago area who claim Toluca as their home town, will hold a picnic next Sunday in Kegel's grove, Archer avenue and 89th street.

Bathroom Modernized



There is a host of new equipment for bathroom modernization this late summertime—colored plumbing fixtures in tastefully matched sets, improved showers, faucets, valves, and accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Dinovo, 11200 South Talman avenue, took advantage of the miracles modernizing magic can work in bathrooms and kitchens and achieved some fine results in their home.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Aug. 4.

Scales on fern leaves or fronds should be sprayed with nicotine and fish oil soap, or any recommended preparation. If in doubt as to whether scales are present try removing one with the finger; if it moves easily it is a scale, and if it cannot be readily removed it is a spore case.

Plant a calla lily for indoor growing. It is a good house plant and likes a rich soil. When the roots are well developed give plenty of water.

Watch indoor plants for attacks of mealybugs, and if any are seen knock them off with a spray of water under pressure of the fingers. The bug has a cottony coat surrounding it. A nicotine solution also will kill them.

Tuesday, Aug. 5.

Tender water lilies are rapidly assuming their best flowering habit, and those interested in these plants should visit park basins and note the best kinds. At the Garfield park flower garden a fine collection, including many of the newest hybrids, may be seen. Note the varieties: August Koch, Pink Pearl, Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri, the two latter being new and among the largest flowering kinds.

Many gardeners fail to have a knowledge of proper watering practices. Unless the weather is extremely dry, it should be necessary to water only twice each week, but it must be a thoro job. The ground should be soaked to a depth of five inches.

Evaporation is rapid during periods of extreme drouth and the gardener should study his soil and know how it reacts to water. Clay soils naturally retain moisture longer than sandy, loamy soils; the latter requires more attention than the former.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Prepare the new lawn, because fall made lawns are more likely to succeed than spring made lawns. First, thoro preparation of the soil is essential. A heavy soil may be lightened by incorporating sifted ashes into it; use enough to do some good. Humus worked in also will aid such soils, but if it cannot be drained easily a line of tile may be necessary.

Light, sandy soils may be made to hold water more readily by adding humus, which also aids in the manufacture of plant food. Work the soil into a fine seed bed, without lumps, and see that drainage is away from the house. Buy the best grade of seed.

Thursday, Aug. 7.

Gardeners who build up shrub and flower beds until the plants are raised above the surface of the lawn will find that such beds drain off water rapidly. Keep plants grown in hedge form rather below the bed than above it and water will be retained where it is needed.

Friday, Aug. 8.

Outdoor flowers should be growing rapidly at this time, but remember that annuals give more flowers when the withered blooms are kept out. If there seems too much foliage on nasturtiums and similar plants, remove part of it. Keep roses well watered and sprayed.

Cases where dahlias have made a good growth and suddenly wilted are common and yet it is not easy to find the cause. Borers enter the stems and cause the stems to wilt and each borer must be cut out and destroyed. New plants for the indoor window garden can be started now. A seed bed can be prepared in a partially shaded spot; make the surface fine and water well with a sprinkling can to provide a moist soil. Sow the seeds when the soil can be worked without sticking. Transplant the seedlings into flats or small pots and shift whenever necessary.

Saturday, Aug. 9.

Plants from cuttings also may be made in sandy soil. Prepare a spot next to the seed bed and make arrangements for shading. Keep the cutting bed from drying out thru careful attention to watering. When making cuttings remove a part of the leaves to prevent too rapid evaporation. A small pan holding about three inches of sand makes a good medium in which to root cuttings.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

YOUNG ORPHANS WIN SUPPORT OF AN OLDER ONE

Henry Nierman to Help Annual Outing.

Henry F. Nierman.

Henry F. Nierman as chairman of the newly formed alumni committee of the Orphans' Automobile Day association is seeking former residents of orphanages to assist with this year's orphans' outing in Lincoln park on Aug. 20. Each year the association entertains 5,000 orphans and 2,000 older folks.

A description of Henry Nierman today would designate him as an average American enjoying the comfort and security of his own business and his family. At 48, he is the proprietor of a print shop at 3306 North California avenue, which is also his home address. And he is the father of three sons, 6, 14, and 20 years old, and two daughters, 18 and 19 years old. That's Henry Nierman now. Back in 1900, he was 7 years old, just getting his second teeth and entering Angel Guardian orphanage at Ridge and Devon avenues.

Recalls Own Youth.

The red brick orphanage was his home for seven years. His playmates were the 799 other orphans there. When he was 14, he left Angel Guardian, but he didn't forget it. When he first read of the annual outings provided by the Orphans' Automobile Day association, he thought of what a treat such an excursion would have been back in 1900. Recently, he decided he should contribute his services and joined the association—the first orphan to do so in 30 years.

Nierman is mailing circulars to as many former orphanage residents as he can find. Fifty orphanages will participate in the outing, and Nierman believes that if many of the committee members are former orphans themselves there will be greater understanding of what the day's activities mean. The youngsters will be taken to Lincoln park and will have their noon meal there.

37 Year Project.

Charles J. Retterer as president of the association appointed Nierman to his new post. Both Nierman and Retterer are anxious to have people know that being a former orphan is not a requirement for contributing to the cause, however.

The association was set up 37 years ago after an automobile dealer, A. J. Banta, had taken some youngsters on a trip to the park. He told members of the Chicago Automobile Trade association about the satisfaction of giving so much pleasure to the children and the idea grew.

It branched out from the automobile trade to the Chicago Motor club and to funeral directors—all groups having cars for transportation. The automobile is more common than it was 37 years ago which is just one more good reason why more and more youngsters may participate in the outing, Nierman believes.

"Of course," he says, "it takes a lot of coöperation. I'm new at this job, but I'd certainly like to do everything I can to give the kids a grand time."

JEWISH COUNCIL RENAMES CAMP FOR GOV. HORNER

As a memorial to the late Gov. Horner, Camp Wooster, near Round Lake, has been renamed Camp Henry Horner and will be dedicated this afternoon by the Young Men's Jewish council. Gov. Horner was one of the founders of the camp.

The camp provides vacations for more than 1,500 underprivileged boys. It spreads over 60 acres of wooded land. Organized in 1912, the camp is owned by the Young Men's Jewish council.

The dedication services will include a talk by Judge John P. McGoorty, chief justice of the Criminal court, who was a lifelong friend of Gov. Horner.

AUGUST IS GOOD MONTH TO TAKE STOCK OF HOME

Heating or Plumbing May Need Attention.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

For August—and the summer—home improvements:

Have you noticed that sinks and lavatories, pipes and radiators, boilers and bathtubs are presenting a united and streamlined front for the security homes of 1941 and 1942?

We are even seeing new trends in decoration which adapt red, white, and blue color schemes for bathrooms, basements, and kitchens. One can obtain bathroom fixtures in red and blue or use white fixtures with accessories in red and blue. Or perhaps you choose a blue tub, a white shelf back lavatory and closet, and accessories in red and white. Indeed, equipment, fixtures, fittings, and decorations for all these rooms are now manufactured in so many handsome shades of blue and red and off tones of white that a defense color scheme is simple to achieve if one is building or remodeling a kitchen, basement, or bath.

Adjustable Showers.

If you have an old type large showerhead in your bath you can investigate the new, small water saving styles. One comes mounted on a ball joint so you can adjust it at any angle you wish, and adjust the water, too, from a stinging spray to a gentle flood. Or if you haven't a shower in your bathroom a master plumber can install one in short order, with no drain on the budget or cut in the plaster or wall decoration.

Inexpensive gadgets are available which contribute joy to a shower bath. Chromium plate towel racks can be placed high on the wall within easy reach; a second soap dish, placed higher up on your wall, will eliminate groping and stooping for the shower bather, and a long grab bar covered with gleaming chromium plate gives a firm, safe hold.

China Easily Cleaned.

If you would condition your water this month, soften its hardness, remove its iron and dispel its cloudiness there are many types of equipment on the market to perform these tasks. What size and type water conditioning equipment you need depends on the number of gallons of water you use per day and the amount and kind of impurities in your water.

Every month we are more aware of the increasing help that modern fixtures and equipment contribute to ease in house maintenance.

The new vitreous china lavatories clean as easily as a china dish and cut on household routine. The low, built-in tubs are infinitely easier to keep fit than the older types on legs. The double compartment, double drainboard sinks with handy retractable hose to speed up cleaning of vegetables and washing and rinsing of dishes is another labor saver. Some of these new ones have a flat shelf at back for glassware.

Automatic Heating.

Automatic heating is available with all kinds of fuel. You can install a stoker with your present boiler or furnace or convert your present heating system for oil or gas fired use. If you are in need of a new boiler or furnace check on those specially designed for different types of fuel.

Should you decide this month to paint the woodwork in some room—woodwork which must take considerable abuse—there's an enamel on the market with a new synthetic oil base. This is highly resistant to stains, crayon markings, and the hard traffic that woodwork sometimes has to withstand when there's youth in the home.

Now comes ready made, in four pastel shades, a washable wallboard prefinished at the factory. Nice for some attic bedroom you may be wrestling out of previously neglected space. This wallboard, in buff, green, gray, or coral, eliminates the need for futher decoration, and its boards, made of fiber, provide strong, smooth, attractive surfaces.

NAME CHAIRMEN OF RECREATION SESSION NOV. 18

Chairmen of the conference committees for the annual city-wide recreation meeting to be held Nov. 18 were named last week by Miss Harriet E. Vittum, head of the general planning group.

The chairmen are V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the park district, head of the evening program committee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the liason commitee; Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, state chairman of the American Artists Professional league, reception committee, and August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the public schools, chairman of the day program committee.

Recreational leaders from all parts of the nation will attend the seventh annual conference at the Hotel Sherman. More than 5,000 persons are expected to take part. The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission.

CHURCH FOLKS TO HOLD REUNION IN MUNDELEIN

It will be something like a reunion for hundreds of the Chicagoans who will attend the fourth annual carnival and chicken dinner of Santa Maria del Popolo church in Mundelein next Saturday and Sunday. The Rev. J. H. McTigue, pastor of the church, was formerly stationed at St. Kilian's, St. Jerome's, and All Saints churches in Chicago, and many of his former parishioners will be on hand next week-end, it was indicated. Games and other entertainment have been planned. The committee on arrangements includes James Gaul, James Markham, John K. Dorsey, and Joseph Epstein, all of Chicago.

GRANDMAS MAP PROGRAMS FOR FALL MEETING

National Club to Hold Rally in Chicago.

When members of the Chicago chapter of National Grandmothers' Club, Inc., meet these days, they don't talk about their grandchildren—at least not exclusively. They devote considerable time to discussion of plans and programs for the national convention at which the Chicago chapter will be the hostess club the first week-end in October at tht Morrison hotel. And prominent in the plans and the planning is Mrs. Marie K. Brown, 7712 East Lake terrace, national president of the organization.

Mrs. Brown is by way of being the founder of the organization, all because she celebrated becoming a grandmother by inviting other grandmothers to breakfast with her.

Met At a Breakfast.

The breakfast took place in Bloomington, Ill., in the spring of 1934. Mrs. Brown had established herself as the first woman public relations representative of a railroad when she organized the first all-woman conducted tour over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1923.

Since then she has headed the women's division of the B. & O., and it was as a business woman that she was addressing a business and professional women's convention in Bloomington when she heard she had become a grandmother. She announced her news and invited all the grandmothers in her audience to breakfast with her next morning.

The breakfasts continued thru the annual conventions, and the National Grandmothers Club, Inc., was launched in 1938. Now the organization has an official badge, a publication, and a platform.

Badge a Gold Circle.

The badge is a gold circle with a brown enamel background. Tiny bars hang from the badge, and each bar bears the name of a grandchild. "Autumn Leaves" is the club paper.

The platform, or objects of the organization, include campaigning for better entertainment for children, assisting in research on children's diseases, and working to perpetuate the peace and liberty enjoyed in this country.

Mrs. Brown, who has resided in Rogers Park for the last 20 years, has enjoyed business success, but she says, "To be a grandmother is the crowning experience of life." She has a son and a daughter, and each has a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Dorothea Sullivan, 4434 North Monitor avenue, is president of the Chicago chapter and will head the coming pre-convention committee meetings.

Park Lifeguards to Hold Ninth Annual Dance Friday

Chicago park district lifeguards will hold their ninth annual ball Friday evening in the Madison Athletic club, 4715 West Madison street. Paddy Driscoll, park district beach manager at Oak street and recently appointed coach of the Chicago Bears professional football team, will be a special guest.

Plan Track Meet.

An interproject track and field meet will be held Wednesday at the Jane Addams housing project.

Charlevoix Summer Theater One of Best in Midwest

Mummers of Chicago Offer Class A Work

By Cecil Smith.

This summer my friends simply cannot understand why I refer to my intermittent excursions to various country theaters as business trips instead of pleasure jaunts. If I were to confess freely how much fun I had on a 24 hour visit to Charlevoix, Mich., a few days ago, I am sure they would be more fully convinced than ever that I have lost the capacity to distinguish between duty and diversion.

There was, of course, the excuse of a performance of "Stage Door" by the Chicago Mummers in their transplanted existence at Charlevoix, and the excuse turned out to be a Class A one. But even if I had not seen one of the best summer theater performances I have run across in the middle west, I still should have brought back many halcyon memories from Charlevoix.

• • •

For one thing, this was the only time in my life that the mayor of an important municipality ever came to meet me at the railroad station at 7:20 in the morning. The sunny disposition of Mayor Robert Bridge was put to a frightful test on that occasion, for I had not dreamed that such courtesy existed anywhere in the world, and I had disembarked from the Resort Special eight minutes earlier when it paused momentarily in front of the Belvedere hotel. Both of us agreed, later in the day, that the Pere Marquette railway ought to be spoken to for having its best train reach Charlevoix at such a Spartan hour, anyway.

Mayor Bridge and his delightful first lady saw to it that none of the beauties of Charlevoix were hidden from my view. In the afternoon we took a long and exhilarating speedboat ride, inspecting thoroly the unique waters and shore line. A lot of northern Michigan resorts can brag about having two lakes, but Charlevoix has three—the big, deep expanse of Lake Michigan, the intimacy of little Round lake, and the satisfying beauty of Lake Charlevoix, 14 miles long, with thickly wooded shores of fascinatingly irregular contour.

• • •

The city of Charlevoix looks, on the map, like a letter U lying down on its right side. The business section is built upon a spit of land between Lake Michigan on the west and Round lake on the east. Dwellings, cottages, and hotels line the shores of Round lake, on the sides of the U, with the blue reaches of Lake Charlevoix on beyond. Until recently Charlevoix wasted its downtown shore line, but within the last few years many business blocks have been torn down, to make way for green parks and municipal docks along the edge of Round lake. In the near future the city hopes to eliminate most or all of the few remaining buildings which still interrupt public enjoyment of the entire lake front.

That is the way things seem to be done in Charlevoix. The old bridge across the boat channel swings around too slowly, so they say—altho its speed is breathtaking compared with that of the Michigan avenue bridge—and they are going to build a fine new bascule bridge this fall. The city owns its own water and power supply, and there are no political difficulties in the administration of these utilities. To an outside observer no political difficulties of any sort would seem possible, for in the last two elections Mayor Bridge was reëlected by unanimous vote, without opposition.

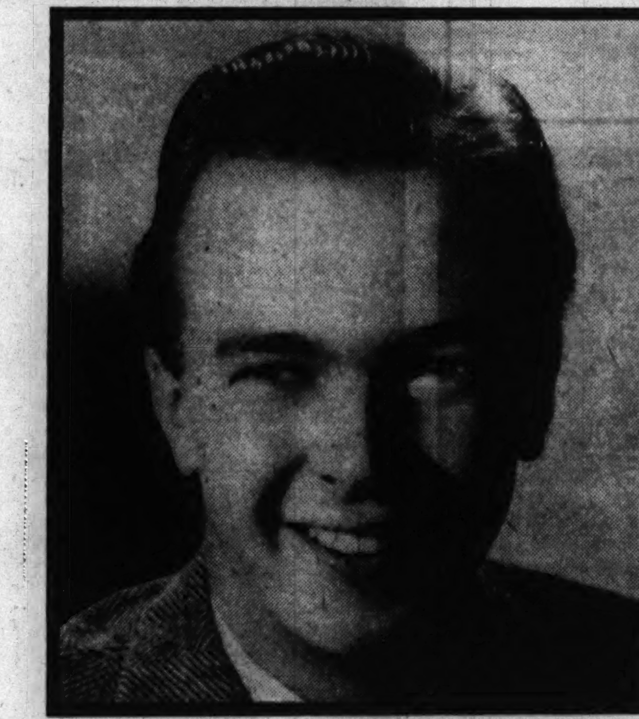
Sherman Marks. [Maurice Photo.]

Mayor and Mrs. Bridge, along with Don Herrick, the city manager, and his wife, have given firm support to the Chicago Mummers in their endeavor to establish a good summer theater in Charlevoix. Under the direction of Sherman Marks, whose work in Chicago has not yet been appreciated at its proper value, the Mummers are presenting summer stock in the remodeled garage of the Charlevoix Inn, a large and famous hotel which is now closed. For some reason the acoustics of the garage are unusually good, and the Mummers have built a large and extremely workable stage. Not only from Charlevoix, but also from Petoskey, Traverse City, and many other nearby points, audiences of gratifying size materialize each night. The theater should have an assured future, for it is appreciated by the community and its leaders and its standard of craftsmanship, if I may judge from a single experience, is not equalled in this region except by the players at Port Washington, Wis.

Mayor Bridge showed me the perfect way to finish off an evening, after a good play. Half a dozen of us went aboard a handsome cabin cruiser, on which we were taken out to the middle of Lake Charlevoix. Here the boat rode at anchor while we lay on the forward deck on comfortable mattresses, looking over at the distant lights of Charlevoix and up at the much more distant stars, talking of such aspects of life and philosophy as are suitable on such stag occasions. At 3 o'clock we came back to shore and drove to the Bridge home, where the mayor made flapjacks for all of us. And, ladies, I recommend that you ask him for his recipe.

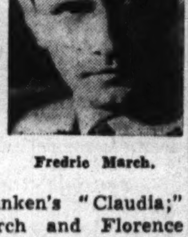
EMPIRE ROOM'S THIN MAN



The thin man with the scared voice now leading the good band in the Empire room of the Palmer House is Skinnay Ennis, drumming protege of the late Hal Kemp who has traded his drumsticks for a baton.

Notes of the Theater

Eighty per cent of last season's subscribers to the Theater Guild and American Theater society have now renewed their subscriptions, according to advices from Thoda Cocroft's office in the Erlanger theater. The seating charts will be opened tomorrow to new subscribers, who may arrange for their subscription tickets at the Erlanger theater between 11 and 2, daily except Sunday. The latest word on the probable list of subscription offerings speaks of Helen Hayes in Maxwell Anderson's new "Candle in the Wind," which is just now going into rehearsal under the direction of Alfred Lunt; Ethel Barrymore in Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green;" Lillian Hellman's prize winning play, "Watch on the Rhine;" Katharine Hepburn in a new play by Philip Barry; Rose Franken's "Claudia;" and Fredric March and Florence Eldridge in Sophie Treadwell's "Hope for a Harvest." As always, the list is subject to revision, but most, if not all, of these six plays are likely to arrive.



Fredric March.

Charles K. Freeman, who will be remembered as the producer of "Girls in Uniform" a few years ago, is planning a new musical revue entitled "American Side-Show," to be staged in Chicago in the early autumn. The revue has now reached the casting stage. Sonny Vale is writing the music, and the lyrics and sketches are by Jay Frank. Clive Rickabaugh is working on the designs.

This fall the Garfield Park Theater guild, which has always performed on the west side, will move downtown for the first time, giving a series of six plays in the little theater at 218 South Wabash avenue. The players are now in their final fortnight of summer stock down in Brown county, Indiana.

The Theater of the Dunes, which gives performances each week-end at Beverly Shores, Ind., in a structure which was once Ben Bernie's beer casino at A Century of Progress, lists its annual "tent show jamboree" for this coming week-end. The play will be "Maria Marten, of Murder in the Red Barn." L. Newell Tarrant is the director.

The Lake Zurich playhouse changed its schedule last week, postponing until Friday, Aug. 8, the first performance anywhere of "These Are My Jewels," by Henry Barbour and Ruth Mackay of Chicago. Tonight Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" will be presented for the last time. The director is Mary Elizabeth Aurelius.

For a fourth consecutive week, the Village Summer theater in Hinsdale, Ill., will present a new play for the first time anywhere. This week's play is entitled "Inside Out." The author is Alice Gerstenberg of Chicago, whose "Time for Romance" opened the present cycle of new plays in Hinsdale. Everett Clarke is the director.

Irene Purcell, who has been playing in summer stock in the east, has arrived at the Michiana Shores theater, and rehearsals are now under way for Tuesday's opening performance of S. N. Behrman's "Biography." Miss Purcell will play the rôle originally acted by Ina Claire. Forthcoming attractions at Michiana Shores include "The Shining Hour" [the week of Aug. 12] and "Twentieth Century," with Ian Keith and Helen Twelvetrees [the week of Aug. 19].

The Northwestern University Summer theater ends its season this week. A modern dress version of Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" will be given from Wednesday thru Saturday in the Speech building on the Evanston campus. On Monday and Tuesday evenings the Studio theater, performing at the Roycemore theater, will present a bill of one act plays—Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey from Camden to Trenton;" Yevreinov's "The Theatre of the Soul;" and J. B. Buckstone's "A Kiss in the Dark."

Oriana A Cappella Choir Begins Rehearsals Sept. 15

The Oriana a cappella choir, directed by Paul Vernon, will begin its rehearsals for next season on Sept. 15 in room 617 of the Kimball building. Application for membership should be addressed to Mr. Vernon, 306 South Wabash avenue.

CHICAGO PLAYBILLS

CONTINUING:

"My Sister Eileen," comedy, adaptation of Ruth McKenney's stories by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, with Audrey Christie, K. T. Stevens, Philip Loeb, and Guy Robertson; Harris theater; 25th week.

Entertainment Vital at Camp, Critic Avers

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—The United Service organization's campaign for seven, going on eight, million dollars with which to make life more comfortable and interesting for the men of the defense forces when they are away from camp is about completed. There still is a couple of millions to raise but already in sight. So that's one phase of the service men's entertainment problem which is settled.

Last week the Citizens' Committee for the Army and Navy, Inc., announced that because of the success of its mobile vaudeville units it had been decided to buy the seven show trucks loaned by General Motors to continue the traveling shows thru the summer. That settles another problem.

• • •

All that has to be done now is to keep hammering at contractors and builders who are putting up field houses and recreation halls for the service men, both in camp and out. With these provided, we can go to work on the more serious problem of the winter shows and perhaps we will get some place with that.

A good deal of the correspondence that comes to this desk these summer days is from either the service men themselves of their parents repeating their sons' views and opinions. Reading it, this question of entertainment becomes something more than a casual suggestion that lonesome soldiers do not make good soldiers, and therefore it would be nice if idle actors and actresses would go out and entertain them frequently.

• • •

Ask any of the men assigned to the morale division of the general staff and they will tell you that the one thing that helps to keep up the spirits of a not too interested army right now is such fun as the men get out of soldiering and what goes with it.

Shut the men indoors this winter, with outdoor sports and open-air shows cut out, and the entertainment and camp morale problems are going to expand until something bursts. As near as I can gather, there are now in course of construction something like 30 or 35 field houses and recreation halls in various army camps. Probably 50 are needed. Lawrence Phillips of the citizens' committee is going to get me a tabulation of the number of buildings and the work so far done on them as soon as that is possible, which probably will not be very soon the way these investigations move.

Most of these buildings, particularly the larger ones, are to be equipped with practical stages on which not only vaudeville bills and concert programs but stage shows as well can be presented. And it is the stage shows in which I am interested. That interest stems from two convictions, one, that the soldiers need the shows; the other that the actors need, and will be needing, the work. The best and most profitable way we can spend at least a part of the eight millions will be in bringing these two together.

• • •

I strongly favor the building of service clubs near the camps. There is nothing quite so lonely as the lad who hikes or takes a bus to the nearest town on his furlough days and then discovers there isn't even a place where he can hang his hat or wash his hands. The further discovery that no one seemingly gives a hang is fairly certain to be followed by the first bitter reactions of a rebellion that can take dozens of dangerous twists before it is conquered. That is where the USO has a chance to do a great work before snow flies.

But there still is the problem of the greater time a man spends in camp, and the USO is leaving that to the citizens' committee. It is in camp that sanely organized entertainment will have to be provided, and that is where the professional theater comes in.

• • •

"Recently I visited at Fort Knox, Ky., and happened to be there on a night a new entertainment and dance hall was being opened for the first time," writes a "friend of the boys in camp." "They had their own band. [It was the first armored force], and it was a wonderful band. But that wouldn't bring the boys in to dance on a hot night with 60 or 70 boys to each girl. Three busloads of girls from Louisville came down to dance with the boys, but the thrill of the evening at that dance was a young tap dancer from New York. Many of the boys knew and had seen her in clubs and in the Joe Penner 'Yokel Boy' show last winter. She was a beautiful dancer and a beautiful girl, and beautifully costumed in a military outfit. But what got the boys [they cheered for half an hour and talked about her for days afterward] was that she was a New York girl from near home come down to dance for them. Please get that entertainment started, Mr. Mantle, and give the boys something to look forward to."

"As a veteran of the World war No. 1 I personally am of the opinion that the so-called recreation centers will turn out the same as they did in the last war, a place the boys kept away from," writes a Brooklyn vet. "Don't you think it would be a good idea if these organizations affiliated with the USO would put some men who have been connected with the theatrical profession into some of the positions, regardless of whether they have a college degree or not?" [This in answer to a USO bulletin saying college men could be given special consideration as directors.]

"What better chance to make use of the hundreds of trained theater workers who were formerly connected with the Federal theater than to put them to work organizing and maintaining a camp circuit?" This from Monroe Hack of New York. "Many of these people are around. Few have been able to find steady employment in the theater. Most of them are interested in doing something for the defense program."

• • •

There is a long and rather rambling letter from George Durst of Jamaica pleading [1] that "soldiers should be protected from social workers." . . . "Perhaps there should be a society for the prevention of too much refinement for real he men. Imagine fashion shows for soldiers! What a laff!" . . . "Next week, perhaps tricycle riding and marble playing!" . . . [2] seeing there will be money needed to finance regular professional shows, "why not coin containers in night clubs; stations to collect odd coins, etc.? Durst would organize monster bingo shows and such to collect money enough for the boys to have two professional vaudeville shows a week, with both paid actors and star volunteers.

Durst suggests troups of chorus girls with tambourines and Salvation Army drums to collect coins outside shipyards and similar industrial centers at the men's noon hour. He would add a half dozen strip tease gals on a lumber truck to attract the crowds and the dimes.

• • •

Ways to raise the necessary funds will be found, I'm sure of that, but even barrels of money can be completely wasted if the entertainment is not professionally organized and places for its presentation are not properly provided for and competently directed.

The citizens' committee is paying out something like $1,000 a week for each of its truck shows. During the experimental months this will come out of the USO funds. Next winter it will have to come from the boys by way of modest admission charges to the shows, or from the people as their further contribution to the comfort and contentment of the men in the field from the folks at home.

Britain has found entertainment and occasional periods of relaxation so important to the morale of its forces that there are entertainment units touring even the outlying defense posts of England's coast, where there are no more than 40 or 50 men guarding possible invasion points. These units consist of a camouflaged bus which serves as both auditorium and stage, with seats for an audience of 18 or 20, a tiny stage, a built-in piano, a driver, and one or two singers, dancers, and comedians.

These units seek out the lonely places and give their shows, even as bombers and fighting planes roar overhead on their way to and from their objectives.

AT THE VILLA MODERNE

Winnie Hoveler and her unusual dancing troupe will be the featured act at Villa Moderne, suburban night spot. Miss Hoveler's act includes the famous ballet number in which the girls perform on high swinging ladders. Bob Strong's orchestra continues as the musical hit.

'Tower Beyond Tragedy' Presented as a Play

Robinson Jeffers' poem, "Tower Beyond Tragedy," was turned into a play by John Gassner and staged at Carmel recently with Judith Anderson in the leading rôle.

Current Music News

More than 20,000 people are estimated to have attended the first three concerts given by the Illinois Symphony orchestra in its Wilmette bowl series. With these record breaking figures to stimulate it the orchestra continues with another concert on Wednesday night in the north shore amphitheater. José Echaniz again will be the guest conductor, presenting the following orchestra selections: Rossini's Overture to "William Tell"; Haydn's Serenade for string orchestra; Schumann's Symphony No. 4, D minor; "Money Musk" and "The Irish Washerwoman" by Leo Sowerby, the Chicago composer; Johann Strauss' Waltz, "Voices of Spring"; and Rimsky-Korsakoff's Spanish Caprice.

Wednesday's soloist will be Irma Cooper, soprano winner of the 1940 Chicagoland Music Festival, who has already sung in Grant park this season.. On the Wilmette concert she will be heard in the aria, "Plus grand dans son obscurité," from "The Queen of Sheba" by Gounod.

Oscar Anderson will conduct his band in the Jackson park band shell at 8 o'clock tonight, one of three such free concerts sponsored by the Chicago Federation of Musicians this week. Soloist with the Anderson band will be Marian Carlisle, soprano. Tonight at the same hour the Chicago Woman's Concert band, Lilian Poenisch, conductor, will play in Lincoln park. Genevieve Kaleth, trumpet player, and Luigi Lo Monaco, baritone, will be the soloists. On Friday at 8 Garfield park will be visited by Forcellati Dante and his concert band. Henry Thompson will be the tenor soloist.

The second annual spiritual song festival will be held on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 24, in Soldiers' field. In an effort to raise a large sum of money as "The American Negro's contribution to the War Relief fund" the festival will present Roland Hayes, William Franklin, La Julia Rhea, the "Wings over Jordan" choir, the Southernaires, Natalie Leota Henderson, Ethyl B. Wise, Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethuen, the Sharps and Flats, and Prof. J. Wesley Jones leading a 1,000 voiced choir.

The first of a series of Sunday morning organ recitals will be given in the First Unitarian church, 57th street and Woodlawn avenue, at 11 o'clock today. The recitalist will be Annette Smith, who will play the following program:

Choral Prelude: "All Men Must Die";
"The Old Year Now Is Passed Away" ..... Bach
Voluntary ..... John Stanley
Prelude, Fugue, and Variation ..... Franck
Cantilena ..... Carl McKinley
Toccata and Fugue, D Minor ..... Bach

Helen Jepson, American operatic and concert soprano, will be this Tuesday's featured soloist on the concert in Milwaukee's Temple of Music, Washington park. Dr. Julius Erlich and his Milwaukee Sinfonietta will be heard on the same program in a number of Johann Strauss compositions. The concert begins at 8:15 Central Standard Time.

Vaudeville

"Prof." Jerry Colonna, accompanied by the mysterious "Yehoodi"; Dinah Shore, song singer of Eddie Cantor's programs, and Gil Lamb, comedy dancer with "Hold On to Your Hats," form an exceptionally entertaining headline trio on the Chicago theater's stage show for the week. The Three Arnolds, tumbling team, and Pritchard and Lord, ballroom dancers, fill out the bill. On the screen is "Kiss the Boys Good-by."

At the State-Lake theater Uncle Harry's Jamboree, W-G-N's radio revue, is to be seen on the stage, headed by the genial Harry Hosford. Aunt Agnes and the show's "Stars of Tomorrow" are also present. A second section of the vaudeville bill is a revue called "Fun Marches On," presenting Lathrop and Lee, tap dancers; Monroe and Grant, comedians; the Three Freshmen, and many others. "The Bag Man" is the film.

The Rialto theater offers on its stage such entertainers as Lexing and West, Chiquita Garcis, Beverly Lane, Marjorie Roye, Frank Scannell, Ted Kent, Billy Mack, and the Rialto chorus. The motion picture is the much-discussed "The Puritan."

Manion Tells NotreDameLaw School Policy

By the Rev. John C. Evans.

Dr. Clarence E. Manion, new head of the University of Notre Dame law school, recently said, in setting forth the precepts of the department, that without full appreciation of the "God given rights" of man outlined in the Declaration of Independence, this country's entire legal framework is without foundation. He added that one of the nation's serious troubles today is that our persistent denunciation of the things we are against has left us with a most confused notion of what we are supposed to be for.

• • •

"One of the greatest contributions law schools can make to the stabilization of American civilization," said Dr. Manion, "is the projection of our law in its God related perspective. Too many of us have forgotten that in the United States law is an agency for the protection of God's gifts. This is to say that in American jurisprudence rights are from God, and their exercise is limited only by the duty that God has imposed upon each of us to respect the equal rights of others.

• • •

"Strictly speaking, there can be no such thing as a purely secular study of law in the United States. Religion is the major component of our legal blood stream. Thus, legal ethics, which we have frequently regarded as a mere branch of the law, is really the warp and woof of our entire legal fabric. I am not unmindful of the fact that lately a popular school of secular jurisprudence has grown up in America. These secular schoolmen believe the theory of experimental relativity applies to all things, law and political science included.

• • •

"They are apt to ridicule the resounding affirmations of the Declaration of Independence by calling them 'pious absolutes.' With this characterization both Hitler and Stalin would agree. Sooner or later many of the so-called defenders of 'democracy' must realize that the only defense in principle of our American policy is to be found in the self-evident truths of the Declaration of Independence. If these self-evident truths are mere 'fatuous platitudes,' too naive for the consideration of serious minds, then Hitler and Stalin are both right, and we should quit badgering them."

Dr. Manion concluded his program announcement by stating that henceforth an exhaustive study of the Declaration of Independence will be a "must" in the Notre Dame law school.

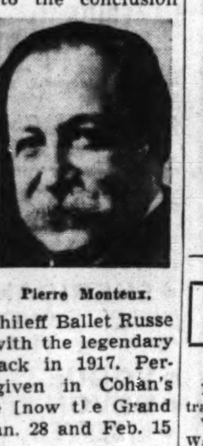
Monteux to Conduct Last Ravinia Orchestral Concerts

Helen Traubel to Be Week's Guest Soloist

By Edward Barry.

The final week of orchestral music at Ravinia park begins next Tuesday. The French conductor, Pierre Monteux, will direct the Chicago Symphony orchestra on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings and next Sunday afternoon, and will present the American soprano, Helen Traubel, as guest soloist at the last two of these concerts. After that, there will be four appearances by the Budapest String quartet with various assisting artists. The 1941 Ravinia festival will end Sunday afternoon, Aug. 17, when the swing band leader and clarinet virtuoso, Benny Goodman, comes to the north shore park to join the Budapest quartet in a performance of Mozart's clarinet quintet.

Ninety-nine concert-goers out of a 100 would jump to the conclusion that next Tuesday will mark Monteux's first appearance in the Chicago district. However, our department of historical research, which consists of Mr. Raymond Ericson, has uncovered the interesting fact that Monteux conducted for the Diaghileff Ballet Russe when it was here with the legendary Vaslav Nijinsky back in 1917. Performances were given in Cohan's Grand Opera house [now the Grand Opera house] on Jan. 28 and Feb. 15 of that year.



Pierre Monteux.

At that time Monteux was fresh from active war service. For two years he had fought with the French infantry at Rheims, Soissons, Verdun, and in the Argonne. His country had decided he would be more valuable as an emissary of French art than as a soldier, and he was dispatched to this country in 1916. He made news here by refusing to conduct German music. That was before America entered the war, and before we ourselves instituted a similar boycott.

• • •

Monteux was born in Paris in 1875. His first honors were won as a violinist, but before long he had drifted into conducting. He was an important figure in the artistic life of Paris even as long ago as 1908 or 1909. He conducted the famous Colonne orchestra of that city, and was right in the middle of the furor raised by the Diaghileff Ballet Russe on its early visits to western Europe. It was Monteux who conducted the sensational world première of the Nijinsky-Stravinsky "Sacre du Printemps" on May 29, 1913. This was the performance at which the excitement and the tumult of indignation in the audience became so loud that Diaghileff was compelled to rise in his box and plead for quiet.

The first of Monteux's American posts was that of conductor of French opera at New York's Metropolitan. He held this from 1917 to 1919, relinquishing it to take over the conductorship of the Boston Symphony orchestra. He remained in Boston five years, and enriched the orchestra's repertoire with a variety of modern French works. He was quite a missionary for Stravinsky, too, his old colleague of the Ballet Russe days.

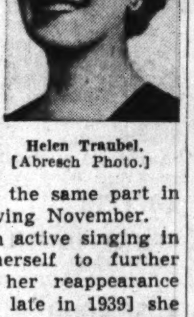
• • •

During the following four years Monteux conducted a great deal in Europe, notably in Amsterdam and Paris. He returned to this country to become conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra during Stokowski's leave of absence. Philadelphia evidently found Monteux a little on the quiet side after its experiences with the dashing Stokowski, and there was a noticeable lack of enthusiasm in the audience. Monteux is quoted in David Ewen's "Living Musicians" as saying in derision that American audiences want none but "slim, well tailored conductors."

He went off to Europe in high dudgeon, but was back in 1935 to assume the conductorship of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, a post he still holds. Among the other orchestras he has directed during the last few years is Toscanini's NBC Symphony.

• • •

Miss Traubel is a native of St. Louis. Her debut was made with the symphony orchestra of that city in 1925, and for the next 10 years or so she pursued a career as a concert singer. In the spring of 1937 she created the rôle of Mary in Walter Damrosch's "The Man Without a Country" at the Metropolitan opera. She was heard in the same part in Chicago the following November.



Helen Traubel.
[Abresch Photo.]

She retired from active singing in 1938 to devote herself to further study, and since her reappearance [which took place late in 1939] she has established a reputation as one of the finest of Wagnerian sopranos.

Critic Visits Music Camp at Interlochen

By Cecil Smith.

Returning from my visit to Charlevoix, which is relentlessly detailed on the drama page, I found time to stop over for 12 hours at the famous National Music camp in Interlochen, Mich. Twelve hours was certainly none too generous a period to allow for the observation of so large and successful an enterprise, and I remind myself rather too forcibly of the stream of British literati who used to return home with authoritative lectures on American life after a few days in New York and on Long Island.

As its name suggests, the site of Interlochen lies between two lakes, both fairly small but pretty and wooded along the shores. Where the National Music camp now sprawls out thru the sandy woods, a nonmusical girls' camp used to exist. The girls' camp now has moved a bit farther around the lake, and a gateway, kept open by mutual consent, provides sociable communication between the two camps.

• • •

In the peaceful preserves of Interlochen, far removed from urban distraction, some 350 boys and girls of high school and college age are spending the summer, devoting themselves to the practical craft of musical performance, and sometimes dealing on the side with such allied enterprises as drama and radio technique. A relatively small number of students major in drama or radio, but for the most part Interlochen retains its original character as a music center.

It is no idle accident that Interlochen now attracts young people from as far away as California, and has to turn away many applicants in order to avoid overcrowding. As long ago as 1927 the imagination and organizing gifts of Joseph E. Maddy of Ann Arbor and T. P. Giddings of Minneapolis created the National Music camp in essentially its present form. With a growing enthusiasm among high school orchestra players the country over, the founders reflected, why not establish a summer camp where a picked group of youngsters, constituting a national all-American high school orchestra, could continue their musical study? In the summer of 1928 the National Music camp opened for the first time, and in the succeeding 13 years the project has become so celebrated that Hollywood has made a glamorous movie romanticizing its activity.

• • •

The high school orchestra still remains the point of focal interest at Interlochen. Guest conductors come from considerable distances to spend several days at the camp, rehearsing the young players and presenting weekly Sunday evening programs for an audience which drives in from miles around. This year's list of visiting conductors includes Howard Hanson, Fabien Sevitzky, and Dr. Frederick Stock. From the experience of playing under such well known leaders, the youngsters develop an understanding of desirable professional standards of technique and artistry.

In addition to the high school orchestra. Interlochen has more other musical activities than you can shake a stick at. The high school band seems to be second only to the orchestra in the affections of the camp generally. By now the number of college students attending the camp has grown so large that a capable college orchestra provides competition for the high school ensemble. In between group rehearsals, the players receive individual instruction in their instruments. Practice facilities for wind instruments are separated by several hundred feet from those for stringed instruments, in order to prevent too great a cacophony when countless dozens of players are all practicing at the same time.

• • •

At the National Music camp intensive work is combined with ample recreation. The early afternoon hours are set aside as a required rest period, and the late afternoon is given over to swimming and sports. Every evening except Monday, when there is a party, a concert is presented in the friendly, resonant wooden orchestra shell, and listeners from the camp and from the outside world gather under the stars in the Interlochen bowl.

As yet no attempt has been made at Interlochen to balance the practical side of the curriculum with any planned program in the field of analytic study of musical theory, history, of esthetics. Mr. Maddy, like many other American music educators, is skeptical of the value of such study, at least so far as Interlochen is concerned, and says the camp will continue to restrict itself to practical training, except for a list of technical music education courses which receive credit thru Illinois State Normal university.

Whether or not one agrees with Mr. Maddy's implicit thesis that plenty of practice, a good deal of listening to music, and a severely disciplined mode of living are in themselves enough to produce well educated musicians, at least there is no gainsaying the beneficial result of a summer at Interlochen—both as preprofessional training and as an investment in good health and character. The project reflects what I believe to be the onesidedness of American musical education generally, in that sheer craft tends to be valued more highly than musical understanding, and in that the appeal to a mass audience [as when a well known jazz orchestra was invited to play in the bowl] at times seems to endanger artistic standards. But its positive virtues are immense, and its contribution is real.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Bach's B Minor Mass will be performed on the Chicago Symphony orchestra's forthcoming 51st season in Orchestra hall. Dr. Frederick Stock will conduct, and the chorus will be that of the Swedish Choral club, Harry Carlson, director. The soloists will be Harriet Henders, soprano; Kirsten Thorborg, contralto; Jussi Bjoerling, tenor, and Mark Love, bass.

-•-

The third program of piano music by Johannes Brahms will be presented in the Evanston Catholic Woman's club, 1560 Oak avenue, Evanston, tomorrow night at 8:30.

Marion Claire and Edith Mason Sing in Grant Park This Week

Two of Chicago's most popular sopranos, Marion Claire and Edith Mason, make their seasonal bow this week on the series of free concerts in Grant park's lakeside bandshell. Miss Claire has won a wide audience thru her numerous appearances in opera and operetta on the stage and on W-G-N, while Miss Mason is gratefully remembered for her long and brilliant career with Chicago's resident opera companies. This week also brings forth four conductors for the first time this summer, Walter H. Steindel, Hans Lange, Dino Bigalli, and Ennio Bolognini. Mr. Lange will lead the Chicago Symphony orchestra, which appears downtown despite the fact that it has one more week of Ravinia concerts to play.

In a caption on page one of the picture section last Sunday it was erroneously stated that the recruits at the Great Lakes Naval Training station learned their drill under the instruction of marines. Recruits at the station are trained largely by chief petty officers of the navy.

Palestine Orchestra in 500th Performance

The Palestine Symphony orchestra, founded in 1936 by Bronislaw Hubermann, gave its 500th performance last month. Apparently the war has not interrupted its constant activities.

Popular Recordings

Two singers who are fresh in the memories of Chicago cafégoers have put on wax several excellent samples of what it is that has made them such instantaneous favorites. Joan Merrill, the beautiful girl now starring at the Rhumba Casino, catches the spritely spirit of "Is That Good?" from "Moon Over Miami" and climaxes her fresh interpretation with a whispered ending that is delightful. The other side is "Yesterday," a lazy, lovely thing. Bluebird did this. Miss Merrill's predecessor as star at the Casino, Tito Guizar, gives us a Spanish rendition of "Time Was" which is a Victor hit. His other number is "Querida," in dancetime English.

A pair of oldies take their place with the current best—Benny Goodman's "Changes"—"Russian Lullaby" on Bluebird, and Tommy Dorsey's "For You"—"Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," for Victor. Benny's is a corking swing pair, and Tommy's [a 12 incher] is in impressively slow, sweet swing, with a Ziggy Elman trumpet bit that's a masterpiece.

• • •

An unusually good recording out of the rut is Columbia's "Stumbling"-"Piccadilly Jive," as played on the electric organ by Glenn Hardman. There is some unbelievable keyboard work in these. Claude Thornhill's first for Columbia is his theme song, "Snowfall," featuring his own piano work, with a strong backing of "Where or When" that gives Irving Fazzola a chance to work clarinet miracles. Ray Noble scores with "Harbor of Dreams," Kay Kyser dittoes with "Free for All"—"Knee Deep in Stardust" [Columbia] and Jack Leonard comes back vocariously from the army with "You and the Night and the Music"—You're My Thrill" for Okeh.

JULY'S BEST MOVIES.
AFFECTIONATELY YOURS
THE BRIDE CAME C. O. D.
THE RELUCTANT DRAGON
BLOSSOMS IN THE DUST
SHE KNEW ALL THE ANSWERS
MY LIFE WITH CAROLINE

Honorable mention pictures: Reaching for the Sun, They Met in Bombay, Tight Shoes, Million Dollar Baby, That Uncertain Feeling, Hit the Road, Tom, Dick and Harry, Moon Over Miami, Jungle Cavalcade, Pot o'Gold.

Good Morning!

When this you SEE, why I will BE away up north a-FISHIN'. . . . O gee I WISH I'd CATCH a fish! [What rhymes with fishin'?—????? WISHIN' . . ! . !]

If you haven't seen the above mentioned films, take a look at them—if you get the chance. I thought of them as follows:

"Affectionately Yours": "Good summer show, funny, smartly equipped and well acted by likable folks. . . ." The folks—Merle Oberon, Dennis Morgan, Rita Hayworth, Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason, et al. . . .

• • •

"The Reluctant Dragon"— . . . "Walt Disney at his happiest . . . clever and highly amusing picture in glorious technicolor. . . ."

"She Knew All the Answers"—"AHA! A little 'A' picture peeking out from behind a 'B' classification . . . I'd say the players had as much fun making the film as you have watching it. . . . Which is fun aplenty. . . ." In the cast, Joan Bennett, Eve Arden and Franchot Tone. [And, of course, some others.].

"The Bride Came C. O. D."— . . . "Y'all'r going to go for 'The Bride Came C. O. D.' in a great big way. . . . Bette Davis cuts a new sort of notch in her record of movie achievements. . . . Crack performances by Bette and James Cagney—highlighted by swell cast support and excellent direction. . . . Comedy finish is a knockout. . . ."

• • •

"Blossoms in the Dust" with Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon. . . . "In this picture the movie industry accords gracious recognition to a great and good woman—Edna Gladney, superintendent of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society at Fort Worth . . . lusciously photographed in technicolor. . . . Greer Garson plays Mrs. Gladney with a sure and sympathetic touch. She never slops over. And she IS such a charming person. . . . Walter Pidgeon all the most demanding could ask. . . ."

"My Life with Caroline"—Ronald Colman and a newcomer, Anna Lee have the leading rôles. . . . "Picture very cleverly strung together. . . . Colman God's perfect gift to a movie audience. . . . Anna Lee, attractive. . . . I effervesced appreciation of the sort of job that let me see the sort of picture 'My Life with Caroline' is, on the blistering hot day when I viewed it in an air conditioned theater."

Be seeing you.

Romanoff Will Head Own Ballet Company

Boris Romanoff, choreographer of the Metropolitan Opera ballet during the last three seasons, has resigned his post to head his own ballet company. He will spend the coming season assembling and training American dancers in the ballet répertoire which he created in Paris a few years ago, and which was highly successful there. The répertoire will include "Homage à Schubert" with music by Prokofieff, "Grand Couture," by Satie, and "La Danseuse et le Bregand" set to Mozart's "Les Petits Riens" symphony. The new ballet company expects to tour.

Eisenstein Turns to Opera Production

Sergei Eisenstein, the great Russian film director, not so long ago tried his hand at operatic productions, directing Wagner's "Die Walküre" at the Bolshoi theater in Moscow. According to a relayed report, the work was treated as an attempt to re-create the sense of mankind's ancient past. The scenery attempted to give a half-human conception of nature held by primitive man, and by the introduction of a pantomime chorus which "followed the characters and which was meant to give the feeling to be found in epics, legends, and myths that man is not yet cognizant of himself as an independent unit."

IN THE BALANCE

pened. Rafe Jerningham rang up at 7 o'clock this morning and asked me to go out there. He looked like death, poor chap, and he told me the whole thing. He found that poor girl out beyond the Shepstone Rocks in a regular trap of a pool. Her husband had pushed her into it and left her there for the tide to finish. I've seen the place, and how on earth Rafe got her out of it and back amongst those rocks in the dark beats me."

"A providential escape, indeed," said Miss Silver earnestly.

"He got her home, and rang up the aerodrome. As soon as Dale Jerningham heard that his wife was alive he would know that the game was up. Pell was the rock he struck on—they might have held their tongues if it hadn't been for him. But even Dale Jerningham must have seen that he couldn't very well expect them to stand aside and let Pell hang, so he took that dive into the sea."

"Did you see Mrs. Jerningham?"

"Yes, I saw her. She made a statement, quite clear and simple. He pushed her in. He's besotted about the place, and her money was tied up so that she couldn't get at it. But she had a power of appointment under her father's will, and she had exercised it in his favor. Rafe got 20,000, and Dale got the rest. I gather that the rest is a thumping big sum—enough to have kept Tanfield in the family for another generation or two anyhow.

"Poor girl—I was desperately sorry for her. She didn't attempt to keep anything back. I expect you've noticed that people don't when they have had a really bad shock. It all came out in a gentle, tired voice—no emotion or anything like that. After he had pushed her into the pool he stood there and told her why he'd done it. He complained about her luck—the drowning episode, and the car smash. You were quite right about those. He boasted about how clever he had been.

"And he admitted to the murder of Cissie Cole, but I don't think he boasted about that. I think that hit him pretty hard. Curious, isn't it—he could kill his wife without a qualm, but I think he was squeamish over having killed Cissie Cole by mistake. The Coles were part of Tanfield, and Tanfield was sacrosanct. I believe he really hated that poor girl, his wife, because she had given Cissie Cole her coat and let him in for killing her."

Miss Silver nodded.

"I should think that extremely likely. A most shocking story, but of great interest. Did you get a statement from Lady Steyne? It seems to me that she has something to explain. She testified that she and Mr. Jerningham were together during the time they were upon Tane Head, did she not?"

"Well, she didn't quite say that. She hedged a little. When I took her original statement I wondered why she was at so much pains to suggest that she and Dale Jerningham were having an affair. It seemed just a little—unnecessary. I remember that when I asked whether they had been together the whole time she laughed in a conscious sort of way and said she wouldn't swear that she had never taken her eyes off him, but—well, what did I suppose they had gone up there for—or words to that effect."

Miss Silver gave a slight cough.

"And what does she say now?"

"No more than she can help. It has hit her hard. She says they were together up there, but she missed a diamond and emerald clip she was wearing and they were trying to find it. I ran into her on Tane Head yesterday morning with Rafe Jerningham, and she told us then that she had dropped this clip and was looking for it.

"To go back to Wednesday night—she says they hunted for it for a long time, but the light was bad and they didn't find it. From time to time they were out of sight of one another. It's quite plausible, you know—in fact it's quite likely to be the truth—a little stretched, perhaps, but near enough.

"Dale Jerningham would hardly have pushed that girl over the cliff in the presence of a third person unless she was an accomplice. But an accomplice would mean premeditation, and the whole circumstances at this point make premeditation impossible. No—he must have come on the Cole girl unexpectedly. He would see the tall figure, the fair hair, his wife's coat, and he must have acted at once under the first shock of an unforeseen opportunity.

"With time to think, the improbability of Mrs. Jerningham being there must have struck him, and the recollection of Pell rushing from the scene would have suggested his mistake. But I don't believe he had time to think. He had the will to kill his wife. He thought he had the opportunity, and he took it. It was probably all over in a moment. He need not have been out of Lady Steyne's sight for any longer than she says. What she may have thought or guessed about it all afterward is another matter."

"A very shocking story," said Miss Silver.

Dale Jerningham's body came ashore on the ridge below the Shepstone Rocks. An inquest was held, and a verdict of death resulting from a flying accident was duly returned. Mrs. Jerningham was not present. She was said to be prostrated with grief. When she had recovered she went away to stay with friends in Devonshire. Devonshire is a long way off.

Mr. Tatham renewed his offer for Tanfield Court and the estate which went with it. Rafe Jerningham, who succeeded to the property, accepted the offer. Completion of the purchase would naturally have to be deferred until probate had been granted.

Miss Maud Silver returned to London, where her whole attention became immediately concentrated upon the case of Mr. Waley and the Russian ikon—Waley was of course not his real name. The storm clouds began to pile up higher and higher on the European horizon. July slipped in August, and August slipped into war. The deaths of Cissie Cole and Dale Jerningham were left behind upon the farther side of world-shaking events. Nobody thought about them any more.

Rafe Calls on Lisle in Her London Home

On a day when winter had begun to turn toward the spring, Rafe Jerningham came into a room in a London flat. He was there to see Lisle, whom he had not seen since she left Tanfield.

He had written to her, and she had written to him. He knew what drives she had taken, when she first began to walk abroad again, how kind the Pearses were to her, and how there were violets in bloom against the south wall on New Year's day.

Such things do not stay the hunger of a man's heart, and presently even these would be gone, because Lisle herself would be gone. It was natural and inevitable that she should go back to America. Once there, she would stay. She would marry again. Her letters would drop off, dwindling to a few lines at Christmas, and presently not even that—a card, perhaps, with her new signature slanting across it.

The door opened and she came in.

She was in gray with a little bunch of violets—not the kind you buy. She must have brought them up from Devonshire. They were small, and dark, and very sweet. There was one white one. He looked at the violets because for the moment it wasn't easy to look at Lisle.

They touched hands. The only other time they had ever shaken hands was when Dale first brought her to Tanfield. It seemed strange and formal to be doing it now—so strange that he hadn't a word to say. He was out of his own key, and not sure of hers.

She thought, "Why does he look like that? O, Rafe, are you ill? Or do you really hate me? O, Rafe, why?"

But this was in her heart. Her lips began to speak at once, saying obediently all the things which people say when they have not met for a long time—"How are you?" and, "What have you been doing?" and, "Isn't it kind of Margaret Cassells to lend me this charming flat? The Pearses have been angels, but I am quite well now, and Mr. Robison wants to see me."

"So do I," said Rafe. He looked at her then. "Are you well?"

"Don't I look well? The Pearses thought I did them great credit."

He went on looking. The strained patience was gone from her eyes, but it had left a shadow there. She was not so thin as she had been. There was color in her cheeks, but it came and went in a breath. She had done her hair a new way. It shone like very pale gold, like winter sunshine. He said:

"The sale has gone thru. Tanfield's gone to Tatham."

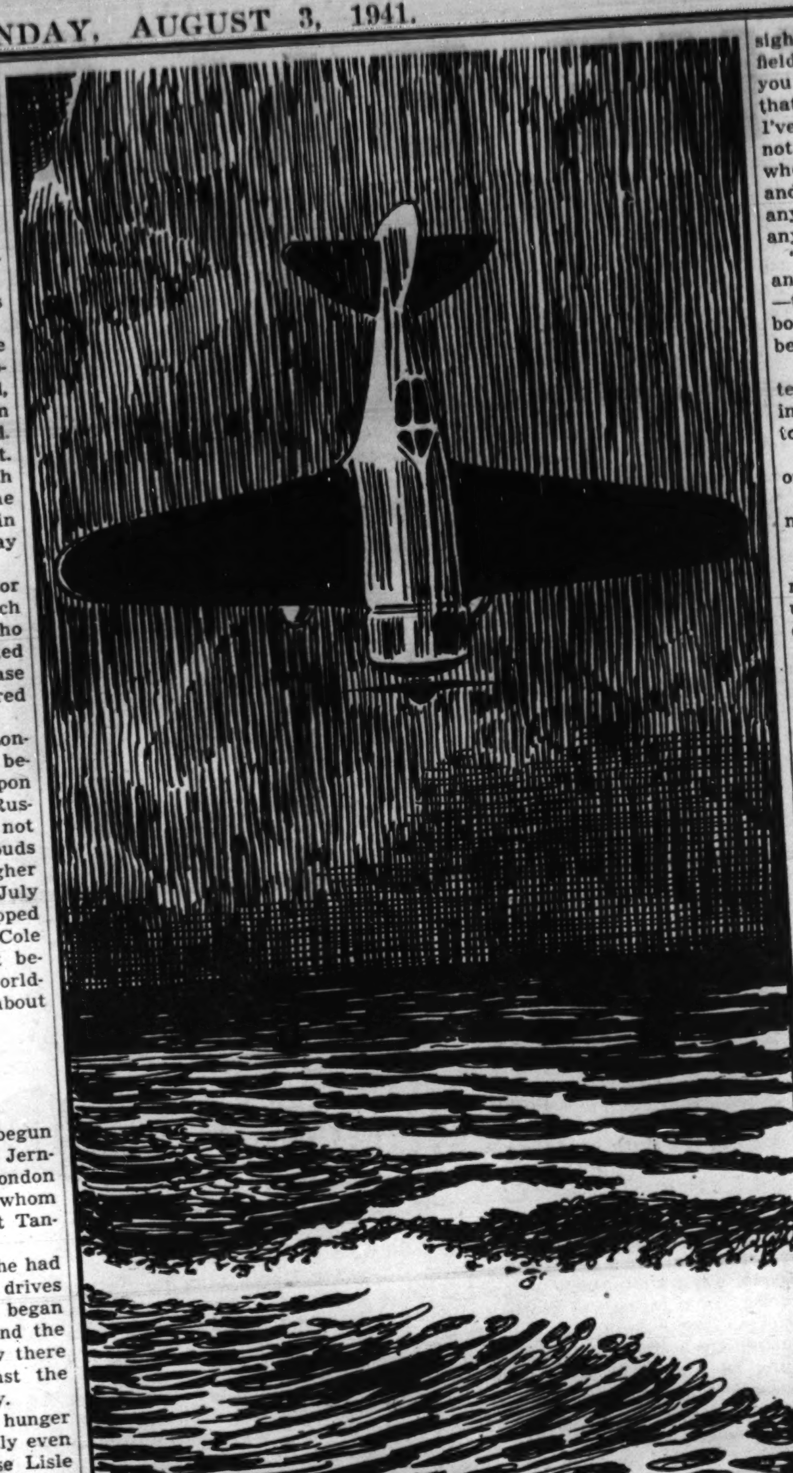
Lisle looked away. She caught her breath and said softly:

"Do you mind?"

"Mind? I'm thankful." He pushed back his chair and got up. "I thought he'd cry off when the war came, but not a bit of it—the moment the probate was thru, there he was, just itching to sign a check and move in."

There was a pause. He walked to the window and stood there with his back to her. A wet pavement, a row of houses opposite, a pale blue sky. He said abruptly:

"I've kept the manor."



The water took her—sight and sound were gone—Dale was gone.

"O, I'm so glad!" said Lisle in a pleased voice.

Still with his back to her, she heard him say:

"You liked it."

"I loved it. There was something friendly about it, as if nice people had lived there and been fond of each other."

"My father and mother lived there. They were—very fond of each other."

There was another pause.

Extraordinary for Rafe to have no words.

He turned a little, and said simply:

"You know they've given me a job?"

"Yes. Is it interesting?"

"O, very. I could live at the manor, but I—don't suppose I shall."

Lisle said, "O——"

None of this seemed to be getting them anywhere. Rafe picked up the cord of the blind and began to twist it about his wrist.

"I don't suppose you would ever want to see the place again."

Lisle said, "Why?"

"I should think you would hate the sight of anything or any one who reminded you of Tanfield."

"Why should I?"

She saw his eyebrows lift with that queer crooked tilt. An odd smile just touched his lips and was gone again.

"Plenty of reasons, my dear."

It was the old light voice for a moment. Then it quivered and broke. He untwisted the cord about his wrist and threw it back against the window. The ivory acorn rattled on the glass.

"O, Lisle—I love you so much!"

She felt the kind of surprise which stops thought. Thrown back on something simpler, she could only say:

"Do you?"

"Didn't you know?"

She shook her head.

"You said you hated me."

Rafe laughed. It was a queer, jerky sound.

"I had to try and get you to go away. You weren't safe. Did you really think I hated you?"

She put her hand to her cheek—the old gesture which had always caught at his heart. It said, "I'm defenseless—I don't know what to do."

He came over to her, pulled a chair up close, and sat down on the arm.

"Let's talk about it—I want to. I've been wanting to ever since—but—I can't get the right words."

She was looking up at him, her gray eyes dark, her color now there, now gone.

"Why?"

"Because I've used them all up. I've made love to dozens of girls, but it's all been a game—very pleasant at the time and no feelings hurt when it was over. Love all and vantage all. But none of that's any use now. It didn't mean a thing—it was just a game. Now it's—well, for the last 12 months it's been hell."

Her hand fell into her lap. She didn't speak.

"Naturally you must hate the very sight of any one connected with Tanfield. I said that to you just now, and you said, 'Why?' I've been saying that to myself ever since July, and I've never got any farther than 'Why not?' But I have got to the point where I want to know how we stand, and whether there's ever going to be any hope for me. And before you say anything I want you to listen to me.

"You must know. You needn't and I want you to tell me the truth—the real truth. And you needn't bother about wrapping it up—it won't be any good."

Lisle caught her lip between her teeth. Something in her was quivering. Her lip quivered, too. She tried to hold it steady.

Rafe leaned forward. He put a hand on the arm of her chair.

"How do you feel when you're with me?"

She was silent.

"You must know. You needn't mind about hurting my feelings. We used to go about together a lot. What did you feel then?"

She said, "Safe," and saw the color run up into his face, darkening and changing it. Some of that haggard look was gone when the flush died down.

He said, "Is that true?" and she gave a little nod.

"Yes—quite true. I don't tell lies. I always felt safe when you were there. Even when I was in the pool I felt safe—after you came."

He drew back with a jerk.

"A kind of superpoliceman! By the way, I've made great friends with March. He's a good chap."

What had she said? Why had he suddenly drawn away like that just when the strangeness was melting away between them? Was it what she had said about the pool? She didn't know. All she knew was that she couldn't bear it if he went away and became a polite stranger again—Rafe, who had always been so lightly and cheerfully free with his tongue. Her color rose. She looked at him in distress.

"Do you mind if we talk about it? I think we must—just this once. Because if we don't it will always be there—between us."

"Go on, then. What do you want to talk about?"

"Dale."

Bright Color Goes Out Like Candle in Wind

The new bright color went out as suddenly as a candle in the wind. It was as if a cold, dark wind out of the past had rushed between them.

He said, "Very well."

She kept her eyes on his face.

"Did he ever love me—at all? It makes a difference, you see. I want to know the truth. Sometimes I think he did—at first. And then he got angry—about the money—and about Tanfield. I oughtn't to have let him know I hated Tanfield. That was one of the things that made him want to kill me—he said so down at the pool. I keep on going over and over it in my own mind. That is why I want to know the truth. Do you think he did love me at all?"

Rafe didn't look at her. He said in a strained voice:

"Dale didn't love people. Sometimes he wanted them. He wanted Alicia. I don't know what would have happened if he had married her. He wanted Lydia because of her money. He wanted you—not altogether because of the money, tho he wouldn't have married you if you hadn't had it. That's the truth, Lisle."

There was a silence that went on, and on, and on. He looked at her at last and broke it.

"Does it hurt so much?"

She said, "Not now." And then, "It feels as if it was all very far away and a long time ago—a little as if I really had died that night and all those things had happened in another life—as if I'd left them a long way behind——" her voice faltered and stopped.

He leaned forward again.

"Am I one of the things you have left behind?"

She said, "I don't know—that's for you——"

All at once he was on his feet with her hands in his, pulling her up to face him.

"Why are we talking like this? I've told you I love you! It's been hell, but it might be heaven. I don't want to keep you safe—I'm not asking for a resident policeman's job. I want you to love me—I want you to marry me. I want you to come and live at the manor with me. I don't want to talk about the past or think about the past any more. I want to know whether you love me. Do you? Do you?"

Her voice trembled into laughter. It was the sweetest sound he had ever heard.

"I wondered when you were going to ask me that."

THE END.

MISS WITHERS AND THE UNICORN

"NO MURDERS today, Hildegarde," said Inspector Oscar Piper with a twinkle. "So you might as well relax!"

Miss Hildegarde Withers stopped trying to read the reports on his desk upside down. Then her inquisitive eyes strayed to the photo. "How gruesome!" she remarked. "Who is it?"

Piper picked up the photograph from the routine heap which had just arrived from the downstairs lab. "Don't we wish we knew!"

She still stared at the dead face. "But, Oscar, I think—I really think I do know." The spinster schoolma'am hastily corrected herself. "I mean, I've seen him before. As a matter of fact, it was less than an hour ago, when I was window-shopping on Madison avenue."

The inspector was amused. "I very much doubt it, Hildegarde. That happens to be a morgue photograph of Richard Roe, which is what we call 'em until they're identified. He was picked up yesterday, very drownded, by the harbor detail off the Battery."

"'Drowned,' not 'drownded,'" she corrected. "But, Oscar——"

"And seeing that the guy committed suicide about three days ago, you couldn't have seen him on Madison avenue or anywhere else."

"Couldn't I!" insisted Miss Hildegarde Withers, and beckoned.

Twenty minutes later they stood outside the big display window of Gumplo's Galleries, and the school teacher pointed toward a framed oil painting hung on an easel in the center of the window. It was a fantastic thing, all in luminous yellows shadowing off into grayed emerald, representing an underwater scene with trailing seaweed, three silver tiny fish, and a drowning man. The price tag was $200.

"'Deep Down,' oil by Jared Jones," read Piper aloud. "Say, it is the same face!" He started in, but Miss Withers was ahead of him.

Clerk Shows Visitors to Office of Owner

They spoke briefly with a Mr. Bix, a willowy young man in a not-too-pressed morning coat and striped trousers, who obviously lost all interest in them when he discovered that they were not buyers. "I'm afraid I can tell you nothing about the artist or his model," he said. "Of course, Mr. Gumplo himself might know, but he is too busy to see anybody. He just got back to town. So sorry."

"So sorry right back at you," the inspector told him. "But we're seeing Mr. Grumplo." For a moment it appeared that the young man might get nasty, but Piper's gold badge prevailed. They were led back thru a vast collection of art objects, past two spendid blue-green Ming vases, past statues, a whole hall hung with gory bullfight scenes, and finally they came to the office of Wilton Gumplo.

He turned out to be a hairless, porcine little man in spats, who looked, Miss Withers thought, like a pig with nightclub tan. "Jones? Jared Jones? Of course." Gumplo puffed a long, thin cigar and pushed aside the heap of open ledgers on his desk. "Excuse, please, my office, but I haf just this morning returned from a flying trip to Frisco. Out there I managed to pick up some etchings and one superb Greuze, a true dream . . ."

"How about Jones?" Piper reminded him.

"O, yes. Maybe a month ago Michael Rose, another of my artists, he brings him to me. I buy two—three pictures. Maybe iss a bad investment. But who knows, maybe he catch into the public eye sometimes?"

"You have his address?" Piper demanded.

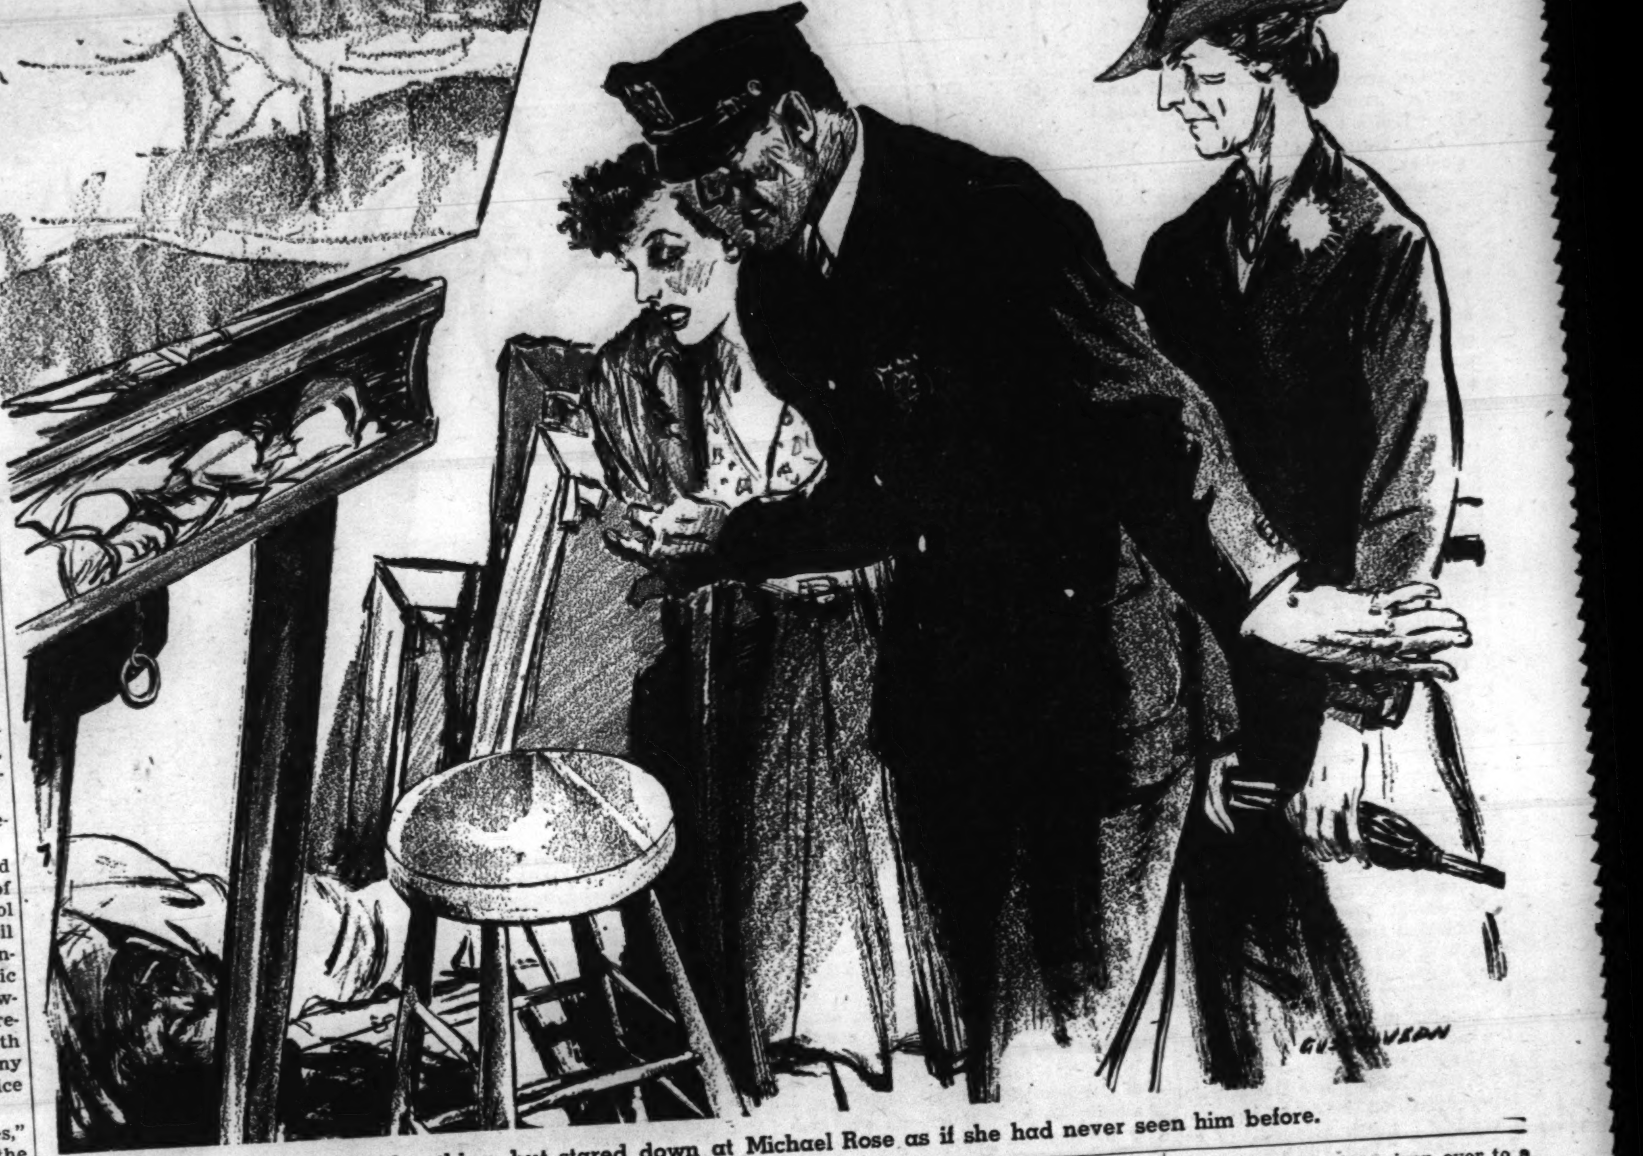
Mr. Gumplo hesitated. "If it iss a bad check he writes, maybe I can cover it? These artists—sometimes they get desperate."

"It isn't a check."

"Nu? Iss worse than that?" Mr. Gumplo produced a box of fat Corona Coronas and pressed one on the inspector.

"I just want the address," Piper said.

"857 East 35th," Gumplo told him after referring to a pocket notebook. "The top floor."



The girl said nothing, but stared down at Michael Rose as if she had never seen him before.

Piper wrote it down. Then he noticed that Miss Withers, obviously bored with the direction the conversation had taken, had turned from a fruitless study of Mr. Gumplo's stogie-filled ashtray to a bit of snooping among the unframed pictures leaning against the desk. Suddenly she produced one. "Look, Oscar! It's Richard Roe again!"

She held up a small unframed oil painting which showed a thin, lonely man staring down from a bridge at the dark swirling water below. Mr. Gumplo rose and peered at it. "O, no! That iss nobody named Roe. That iss one of the pictures I'm handling for Jared Jones. He wants to title it 'Portrait of the Artist.'"

The school teacher drew a quick breath. "You mean that he posed for it himself?"

Gumplo nodded. "Sometimes artists cannot afford a model, so they buy a mirror instead."

"Then look at this photograph," said Miss Withers, "and tell us if this, too, is a portrait of the artist."

There was a moment of complete silence. Mr. Gumplo's eyes blinked. "So!" he said softly. "There will be no more pictures from Jared Jones."

"D'you mind?" Piper picked up the desk phone, dialed Spring 3-100, and asked for missing persons. "Hullo, Cap? Piper. Tag M. P. 4-772 identified from photo as Jared Jones, artist, address 857 East 35th. Yeah, I'm doing all your work for you these days. What? Yeah, Mr. Gumplo of Gumplo Galleries on Madison avenue will be glad to go over to the morgue and make it official, if you'll send a car for him . . ."

Piper nodded inquiringly at Wilton Gumplo, who looked very unhappy about the whole thing. He nodded slowly, doubtfully.

"Okay. Don't mention it." Piper hung up. "Thank you, Mr. Gumplo. Come on, Hildegarde."

They were outside again. "Well, what's eating you?" he demanded of the school teacher, who lingered in front of the window.

"I smell a mus giganticus," she said slowly. "That's 'rat' to you."

"This is my afternoon off," said the inspector wearily. "Do you always have to go looking for trouble?"

"Sometimes," Miss Hildegarde Withers told him, "it seems that trouble goes looking for me." But she followed him to their prearranged date at the movies.

The inspector confidently expected to hear more about the amazing and macabre foresight of the dead artist, but Miss Withers kept her own counsel. She kept it, indeed, for the next 10 days.

And then she popped into his office with somewhat startling ideas. "Oscar, I want you to arrest Wilton Gumplo for the murder of that Jared Jones!"

The inspector winced. "Why?" he demanded. There was an odd look in his eye, the look of a poker player who has aces back to back.

"It's all circumstantial," she admitted. "But it fits. Gumplo Galleries is in financial straits—remember all the red ink shrieking in his ledgers? He offered you a Corona Corona, but he had been smoking two for a nickel stogies."

"So he was hard up! But why——"

"Oscar," she told him heavily, "do you know that within an hour after we left the galleries the price on the painting 'Deep Down' was raised to $1,500? And that yesterday, according to the art page of the Times, it was sold—and the two other paintings of Jared Jones along with it?" She nodded. "The paintings weren't worth much while the artist lived, but when he died . . ."

"So you want me to arrest Wilton Gumplo on that?" Piper laughed. "All artists enjoy a boost in value when they die, and the newspaper publicity about the coincidence of Jones painting himself as he later died was enough to make some collector pay the big price. Besides——" and here the inspector showed his aces, "I had an idea you were barking up that tree. So I checked on this Gumplo. He flew to San Francisco by TWA a week before Jared Jones could have gone into the water and he didn't return until after the body was found!" Piper ashed his cigar jubilantly. "So put that in your pipe and smoke it."

Miss Withers Pays Visit to Jones' Quarters

Miss Hildegarde Withers was not one long to keep down. She nodded thoughtfully, then picked up her handbag and her cotton umbrella. "I'm off!" she said.

"You're telling me," muttered the inspector, but she was gone.

"This is 857, lady," the taxi driver finally told her. They were stopped outside a dismal building on East 35th, a sagging four-story edifice whose first floor was given over to a hat rebuilding firm, and whose second floor boasted an herb tonic corporation. It was late afternoon by this time, and Miss Withers hesitated a moment at the darkness of the stair, at the medley of smells. But there was a card on the bulletin board "Jared Jones—402," so she started on up. After three steep flights she turned to the rear, found the door of 402. There was a hairpin ready in her hand with which to pick the lock, but the door swung inward at her touch.

She came to a hall, then on to a big squarish room furnished only with the barest essentials of cot, chair, and easel, its floor bare, its windows uncurtained. There was a small icebox in a corner, empty as a drum. The fireplace was heaped with torn and slashed paintings, most of them landscapes, most of them gloomy.

Miss Withers found a candle, lighted it, and peered at the wreckage. One of the least-ruined canvases showed a brawny girl with the smoke bordered blue eyes of a Siamese cat, in the act of washing dishes. The whole picture was in oily gray dishwater tones . . .

The school teacher recoiled a little. Then she recoiled again, as the candle in her hand flickered from a sudden draft of wind and went completely out. The room seemed several shades darker than pitch. And some one was coming from the hall.

Still clutching the mounted canvas, Miss Withers moved swiftly to the doorway, lurked behind it with her weapon poised. Some one passed her, walking swiftly. There was the soft sound of something moving at the fireplace, then the flare of a match. Somebody was pawing over the ruined paintings.

Much as she would have liked to investigate, Miss Hildegarde Withers thought it wiser to head toward the hallway. She very nearly made it, too, until she let her umbrella scratch against the plaster. Some one was coming toward her . . .

She let out a gasp and rushed onward, out thru the door into the main hallway. There a girl caught up with her, a brawny girl in a cheap fur hat and jacket. "Stop!" she cried. "You can't take that—it's mine!"

Miss Withers and the Unicorn

The girl seized the painting, which Miss Withers instinctively clutched. The school teacher let it go, for this girl had a savage mouth and jaw, had deep smoke-bordered eyes as coldly blue as those of a Siamese cat . . .

"It's mine!" she cried again. "I'm Aileen Sutton. Jared never paid me for modeling, so he always said this would be mine!" There it was, too. In tiny red letters in the lower corner, above the signature "Jared Jones" was the inscription "For Aileen."

"I'm afraid it's in rather bad condition," said the school teacher mildly. "I didn't do that."

The Sutton girl regarded the slashes. "They can be mended," she pronounced. "It's worth trying anyway. There's a demand for pictures by Jared Jones now." She looked at Miss Withers suspiciously. "You're not an art buyer?"

"Not in the least. A friend of the late Mr. Jones, shall we say." She cocked her head. "So after all this time, you decided to come down and get the painting he had promised you?"

Aileen Sutton hesitated. "I didn't come just for that," she admitted. "I came downtown to see Mike Rose, who owes me for posing. He has the studio in front . . ."

"And you saw a light and thought you'd drop in?" Miss Withers nodded. "By the way, can you tell me something? Do you think Jared Jones committed suicide by jumping into the East river?"

The girl shook her head. "I do not!"

"Aha! Now we're getting somewhere . . ." Miss Withers beamed.

"It was the Hudson," said Aileen. "He always said he was going to do it off the George Washington bridge. So one night he got discouraged and slashed everything in the studio and went rushing off . . ."

"You didn't try to stop him?"

"I wasn't here," admitted Aileen. "I heard it from Mike. He tried to stop him, but nobody could do anything with Jared Jones when he was low."

"I'd like to hear it from Mike, all the same," said Miss Withers. "Down the hall, I think you said?"

"Michael Rose" was the fancifully lettered card on the door. And it was locked. "I guess he's out to eat," Aileen said. "You will have to come back."

There was a crack of light under the door. Miss Withers peered at the keyhole. "See anything?" asked her companion.

"No, but I smell something," said the schoolteacher grimly. "Go get a policeman."

Aileen moved away, moved too obediently. "And come back with him, too," ordered Miss Hildegarde Withers. She waited patiently until a bulky patrolman came pounding up the stairs, with the girl doubtfully following in his wake.

"Officer, break down this door!" insisted the schoolma'am.

"Now listen, lady——"

"There's a dead body inside," Miss Withers snapped. But she was as surprised as anybody when the door was broken in, and when they did find a body crumpled on the floor, among scattered dimes, nickels, and pennies.

"Jeez!" gasped the officer. "What a mess!"

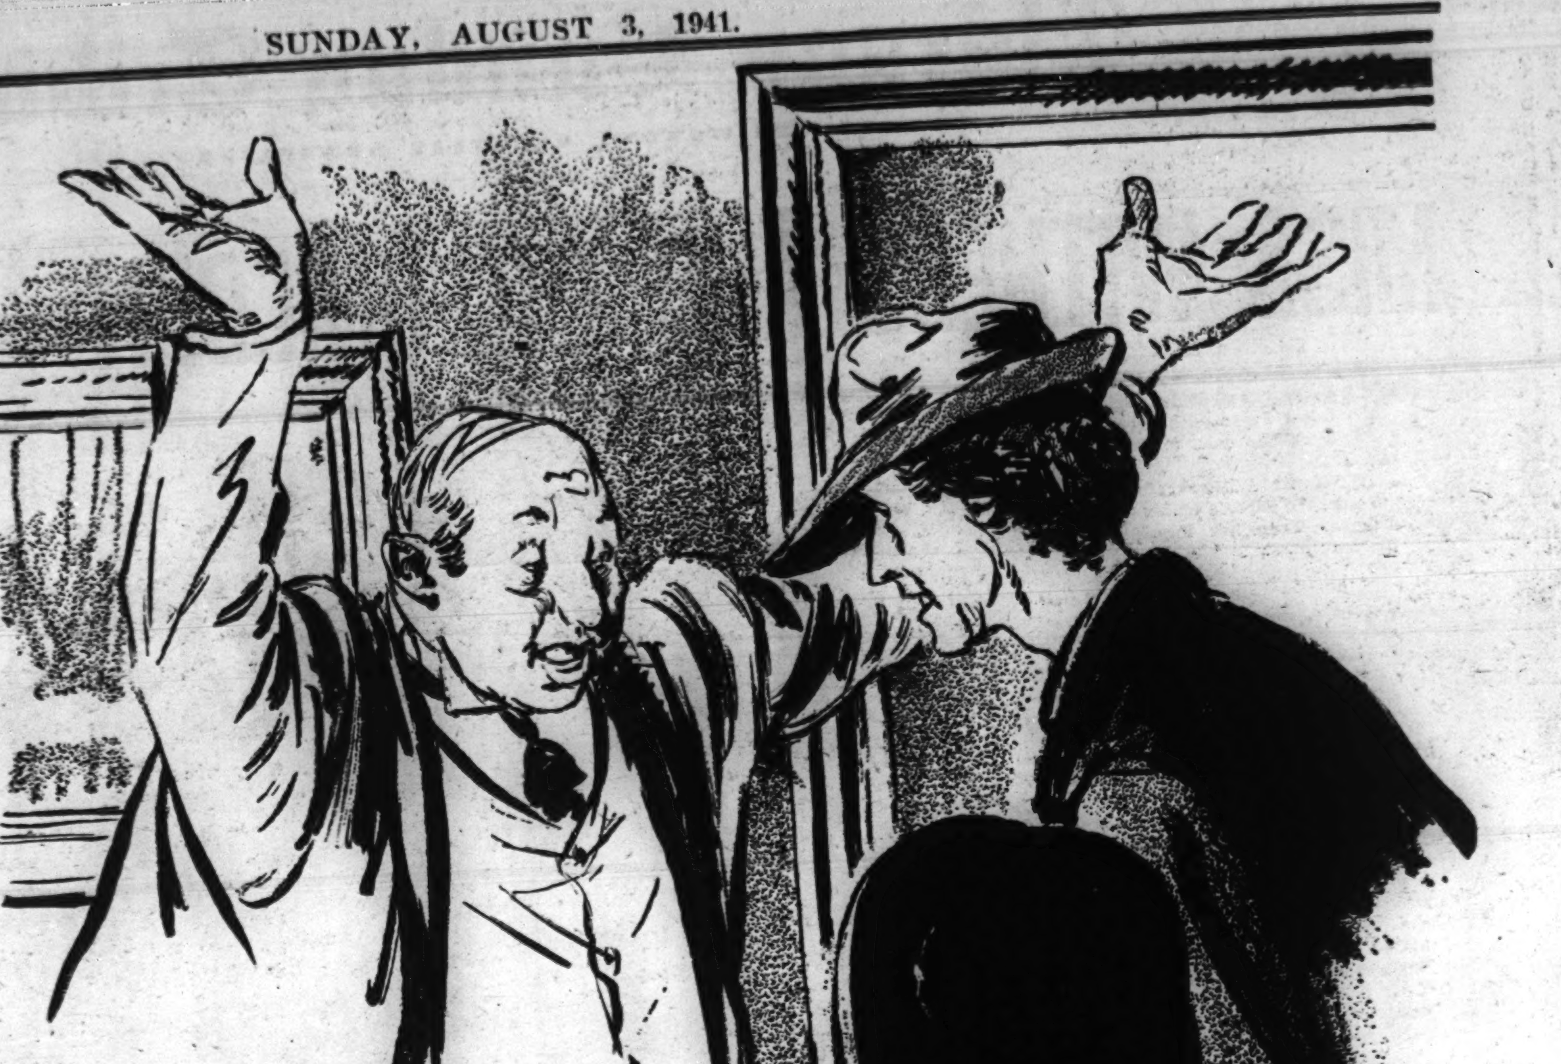
Blazing Canvases Adorn Walls of Death Room

The girl said nothing, but her strange eyes stared down at Michael Rose as if she had never seen him before.

It was a weirdly fitting death for any one to die in that room, for on the walls were a dozen large canvases, blazing and violent in their color, depicting the pageantry, the drama, the tragedies of the bullring. There banderilleros waved their barbed darts, picadors straddled sad doomed beasts, matadors waved their capetas and flashed silver swords in the hot sunshine.

In one wide canvas a girl with a rose in her hair and the eyes of a brooding cat leaned over the barrier to smile at a dying toreador who had been tossed by the bull. The man's face was that of Michael Rose.

"Believe it or not," Chief Medical Examiner Bloom said to the inspector some time later, "this man was gored to death by a bull!" He held up his hand as the inspector started to explode. "Take it easy, Piper. The wounds are typical cornadas, as the Spanish call them, and could be inflicted by the horn of a bull!"



"I don't like these games you play," he said. "I haf long been patient. Now you get out!"

"Tell me just one thing," barked the unhappy inspector. "How could a bull get up to the fourth floor studio of a building in the middle of New York City?"

"Thats your question, you answer it," said Dr. Bloom pleasantly.

It was still unanswered at 10 o'clock next morning when Miss Hildegarde Withers, who should have been guiding the destinies of her class at Jefferson school, marched into Piper's office in the wing at headquarters devoted to the activities of the homicide bureau. She carried a bulky package under one arm, neatly wrapped and tied.

She found her old friend and sparring partner haggard from a sleepless night. "O, it's you, is it?" he barked. "Well, listen to this!" He read aloud from a morning paper. "New Crime Cycle—Police Baffled—Artists Flee Manhattan in Droves."

"You can't blame them," said the school teacher dryly. "I suppose every artist who ever painted a bluebird is afraid he'll be pecked to death. You haven't anything new on the case?"

He shook his head. "Dr. Bloom must be crazy! A bull in an artist's studio. It might as well be a dodo bird or a sidehill gouger or a——"

"Or a unicorn," she suggested softly.

"Yeah," said Piper. Then he looked up sharply. "Say, what tree are you barking up now?"

"I'm not quite sure," said Miss Hildegarde Withers. "I seem to have been a bit ahead of myself all thru this case. All I know is that my little friend Aileen Sutton wasn't at home when I stopped at her boarding house on my way downtown. She—and her picture—have gone to keep an appointment at Gumplo's galleries. Would you care to drop in there?"

The inspector would. "But if this doesn't work——"

"Then you're no worse off," she told him tartly. "And if anything happens I'll be right behind you."

Mr. Wilton Gumplo sat on the edge of his desk, puffing a long, thin stogie and staring at the drab painting which Aileen had propped on his filing case. "But it's not badly cut," she was saying. "He just stuck a palette knife thru it. Couldn't you repair it?"

"Um," he said slowly. "Maybe. You, washing dishes, eh? It is not in Jared Jones' usual style."

"Anything of his should be valuable now," Aileen insisted. "I'll let it go for $500."

Mr. Gumplo rocked back and forth. "Because of the publicity, you think? Publicity is a two-edge knife, young lady. And after what happens again yesterday——" He shivered, like a dish of jelly.

"Two hundred, then! I want to get out of town. I want to go home to Minneapolis!"

"I don't know—" Gumplo began doubtfully. Then the door opened. "What is it, Bix?"

The willowy young man made a face. "That cop is asking for you again."

Gumplo frowned. "Tell him I'm—no, Bixie, show him in."

"I'm in," said Inspector Oscar Piper. "I want a word with you, Gumplo. You too, sonny." Miss Withers pushed in after him.

"But I can't leave the galleries empty . . ." cried Bix.

"Relax," the inspector told him. "Nobody is going to come in for a minute. You can stay, Miss Sutton." He faced Gumplo. "I know you've already been questioned by the precinct man about this guy Rose. By the way, how many of his paintings do you have on hand?"

Gumplo hesitated. "Maybe I haf 10, maybe 15. . . ."

"They are likely to be worth a lot more money now that he is dead? And because of the way he died?"

"Likely," agreed Gumplo. "Possibly. Maybe not."

Mr. Bix Reveals He Works on Commission

Miss Withers interrupted. "Just what is your salary here, Mr. Bix?"

"That is my business!"

"Answer her," Piper said wearily.

The willowy young man snapped "I work on a straight 15 per cent commission, if it's anything to you."

"On everything that passes thru the galleries?"

He hesitated, then nodded. The schoolma'am left him and turned to Aileen Sutton. "And just what interest have you in the paintings left by the late Michael Rose?"

"What? Why——" The cat's-eyes flamed red. "Nothing! And if you're trying to pin anything on me . . ."

"Okay, okay," cut in the inspector. He looked at his watch. "I guess the sergeant is finished by now."

They all watched him as he turned and threw open the door. "Okay, Al?"

"Okay, inspector," a big man in uniform came to the door.

"You searched the place?" Piper asked him. There was a quick gasp of indignation from Gumplo, but it died away.

"Yes, sir, I did."

"Find any concealed weapons?"

The three suspects looked blank, tho Bix bit at his fingernails. "I did not," answered the sergeant. "Only this package, which was stuck down in one of them big pots at the front of the store." He meant, Miss Withers realized, the priceless pair of Ming vases.

Piper took the package. "Okay, sergeant. Back to your post."

If Miss Withers was watching for signs of guilt on the face of any of the three suspects she was mightily disappointed. But they all came closer as the inspector started to unwrap the neatly tied parcel.

Finally it lay before them. "What's that thing?" cried Aileen Sutton. "Is it——" She came slowly forward.

"The weapon that killed Michael Rose," cut in Miss Hildegarde Withers. It was a 12 inch semicircle of rocklike horn, solidly mounted on a panel of mahogany. And the needle-like tip of the horn was stained a dark brown. "It's half of a pair of mounted bull's horns," she went on. "Somebody sawed the panel in two, so it could be swung as a weapon. They sell these things, I believe, in Mexico and Texas. And at several curio stores right here in Manhattan . . ."

She waited. The inspector waited. But nothing happened. It all fizzed out like a wet firecracker. Bix came forward to touch his finger against the tip of the horn. "That's not blood!" he cried suddenly. "This is a frameup. It's iodine . . ."

"Mercurochrome," whispered Miss Withers under her breath. But the high, excited voice went on. "It was planted there, Mr. Gumplo! She put it in the vase when she came in, don't you see?"

The inspector turned to Miss Withers, and his face was dark. "Hildegarde! That package you were carrying when we came. Where is it?"

"Why——why——" Miss Withers was on thin ice, the thinnest ice she had known in a long time. And it was cracking——

"I didn't say that was the exact weapon," she hastily covered herself. "It was the type. Of course the murderer burned or otherwise disposed of both his halves . . ." She swallowed, and took the dive. "Didn't you, Mr. Gumplo?"

The man was ready for her. "I don't like these games you play," he said. "I haf long been patient. Now you get out!"

The inspector, at the end of his not very extensive patience, was trying to edge her toward the door, but Miss Withers held back. "I'm not playing games, Mr. Gumplo," she challenged. "You're like most murderers. You forgot something. When you murdered Michael Rose in order to multiply the value of the paintings of his that you held, you dropped one of your two-for-a-nickel stogies on the blood-stained floor of his studio!" She held out her hand. "And here it is!"

"But——" began the inspector angrily. He stopped when he saw what had happened to Wilton Gumplo. The man was staring at the crumpled cigar butt in Miss Withers' hand, and he was somehow collapsing, like a leaking balloon.

It was a good thing, as it happened, that Oscar Piper was watching Gumplo, for the man suddenly slashed out at him with a homemade sap consisting of a pocket handkerchief filled with nickels and dimes. The inspector was an old hand at side-stepping, and he did it now. Then he closed in.

"Talk about cutting corners, Hildegarde!" the inspector said later, when they were easing up over a cup of coffee. "This time you really had me going. Why didn't you let me in on the plant? And why in the name of heaven did you conceal that evidence, the stogie, that you found in Rose's studio?"

"For the best reasons in the world," the school teacher admitted. "Because you'd never have been a party to the plant. And as for the stogie, I didn't find it in the studio. I found it in Gumplo's ashtray, while we were talking there."

"What? You took a chance like that?"

Inspector Awed at Miss Withers' Gamble

She nodded. "No man who smokes as much as Gumplo—or you, for that matter—can be sure of where he dropped a cigar butt. Smoking becomes an automatic act. So——" She shrugged.

The inspector shook his head, in awe and admiration. "I guess that takes the cake," he admitted. "There's only one thing I'd like to know, before I try to report all this. How did Gumplo manage to murder Jared Jones while he was 3,000 miles away?"

Miss Withers' eyebrows went up. "Jones? But nobody murdered him. He committed suicide, as his paintings show that he contemplated many times. But his death suggested a murder setup. I tried to make it fit then, and it wouldn't. But Mr. Gumplo saw the same pattern, and used it on Michael Rose. I was just one step ahead of myself, that's all."

"You're one step ahead of me," admitted Inspector Oscar Piper. "You and your unicorns!"

IN THE BALANCE

"I've seen the place, and how on earth Rafe got her out of it and back amongst those rocks in the dark beats me."—"A providential escape indeed," said Miss Silver earnestly.

CONCLUSION

RAFE hung up at his end and got to his feet. He stood there for a moment under the light, looking up at the picture over the hearth. Giles Jerningham, sometime lord chief justice of England, looked sternly back at him.

Presently he turned and went out of the room, switching off the light as he went.

Upstairs in the dressing room, with all the signs of Dale's occupancy about it, he found the letter. It was in a plain envelope propped up against the looking glass—no address and the flap not gummed down. Inside, a single sheet with a couple of lines in Lisle's writing. Just two lines in a tired, sloping hand:

"I don't feel as if I can stand this strain any more. Please forgive me——"

Rafe saw the words in a blinding flash of horror. Lisle had written them. When? How? There rose before him a brief interchange of words as they came out of the dining room after lunch. Dale and Alicia had gone on, and he had said to Lisle in the old light way which was dead, "Why so tired, honeysweet? You look as if you had been thru a mangle." And Lisle, half laughing, "Well, I have. We've been trying to concoct a last appeal to my obstinate old Robson. I should think I've spoilt 20 pages—and it's no good, really." And then, quite suddenly, her hand on his arm. "Rafe, I forgot—Dale didn't want any one to know. It—it means such a tremendous lot to him." He could hear himself saying, "All right—I won't give you away."

He looked back at the two scrawled lines, and had no doubt that this was one of Lisle's spoiled sheets. Words suggested, perhaps even dictated, by Dale—words which would have been a convincing proof of suicide when Lisle's drowned body came ashore, washed up by tomorrow's tide.

He went over to the fireplace, put a match to the paper, and watched it burn away to a fine ash. Then he opened the long French window and went out on to the balcony. It was the same upon which Lisle's three windows opened. There was a light in her room. Lizzie would not leave her. The curtains were drawn back. The light made a faint glow upon the stone parapet—a faint yellow glow, perhaps from a shaded candle.

He stood and looked out over the massed woods to the sea. There, between the trees, they had made their faltering way home less than an hour ago.

Faint and far away, coming up out of nothingness, he heard the beginning of the sound he was waiting for. His whole mind and body were so keyed up that the sound seemed to be felt rather than heard.

There was a moment that was not time. Everything that he had ever felt or known hung in it, suspended between what had been and what was yet to come. It was sharp, and clear, and irrevocable.

Rafe Watches Dale's Plane Plunge Into Sea

The moment was gone again, blotted out by actuality. The insistent drone of an approaching plane clamored against his ear, and all at once the sound swept up into a roaring crescendo—the music of flight, a music which he loved and had always thrilled to. It beat now against every nerve. With its climax he saw the plane, not overhead, but away to the left, black against the downs—too black to be seen if she had not cut the dark with so easy and swift a flight.

She came round the house in a great sweep, flying wide and low, and turned out to sea. She was climbing now—up, and up, and up, black as a bird against that luminous sky—up, and up. The hum of the engine dwindled. The bird was lost, and then suddenly, dreadfully found again—falling into sight and sound in a downward rushing dive toward the sea. The water took her. Sound and sight were gone.

Dale was gone.

Rafe went on standing there. He leaned on the balustrade and looked out over the sea. But what he now watched was not this place which had been Dale's possession or the sea which was his grave, but the whole procession of their lives, always linked, always separate . . .

Pictures. Dale in the nursery, lordly and strong at 5 years old, all smiles and charm as long as he had his way. Rafe and Alicia worshiping Dale at school, strong and big for his age, carelessly protective to a younger cousin who had a knack of passing exams, but wasn't nearly so good at games. Dale captain of football and cricket. Dale winning the mile. Dale putting the weight. Dale with everything he wanted in the world until Alicia let him down. Too many things coming too easily, and then a knockdown blow. Dale who had had everything he wanted, to have everything taken away.

Was it some sudden temptation which had sent Lydia over the cliff? Or was there even then under all the surface charm and kindness another Dale, perfectly cool and ruthless, who must have what he wanted, no matter what it cost?

Alicia gone and Tanfield threatened. Was that where things began to go wrong? Or had they been wrong all the time? Does a man suddenly become a murderer, or has the cold, ruthless streak been there always? If you matter too much to yourself, if your possessions matter too much, then other people's lives may come to matter so little that they can be sacrificed without a qualm.

Would things have been different if Dale had married Alicia? Outwardly perhaps. There might have been no murder done, because there would have been no advantage in doing it. Why had Alicia thrown him over? Of the two she was the one who had cared—but she married Rowland Steyne. Why? No one would ever know. Alicia kept her secrets. He wondered whether she had come up against that black streak and been scared by it. No one would ever know.

Dale had married Lydia Burrows quite willingly and cheerfully after a well played scene of renunciation and despair. He had certainly had no love for Lydia, but how perfectly he had played the lover—a really notable performance. At what point had he decided to bring the run to a close and ring the curtain down?

As far as Rafe had ever been able to observe, Dale had had no regrets. Lydia's money made everything easy for him again as long as it lasted.

Give him what he wanted, and no one could be kinder or more generous than Dale. The model landowner, hard-working, public-spirited, careful for his tenants; the good master; the man of many friends—were these all parts which the other Dale had played—easily, enjoyably, savoring them in the full? Did he love Alicia? Had he ever loved Lisle? Had he ever loved any one at all? Or had he only enjoyed playing the lover, the generous master, the good sportsman? The answer came unwillingly. He loved Tanfield. Not Alicia, not Lisle, not Rafe—nothing human. But Tanfield—which was in some sort a projection of himself. His possession—which in its turn possessed him utterly.

The pictures went on. The night passed.

When the dawn broke, a low white mist covered the sea. Rafe turned and went back into the house.

Inspector March rang the bell of Miss Mellison's boarding establishment late that evening. Miss Mellison herself opened the door in a flowered overall and a string of bright blue beads, her face rather flushed, and her gray hair wispy from the combined effects of the July heat and the kitchen fire.

"I hope I didn't keep you waiting—it's my girl's day out. If you wouldn't mind—my little sitting room I'm sure I'm only too pleased. Miss Silver won't be a moment. I think you know the way."

She fluttered toward the stairs, disclosing as she turned a section of a brick-red dress of some woolen material with about two inches of green art-silk petticoat showing at the hem. No wonder she was hot.

March entered the little room in which Miss Silver had entertained him on a previous occasion. The windows were shut and the air thick with the smell of cooking and furniture polish. As he turned round from opening everything that would open, Miss Silver came in, cool, and neat, and dowdy.

"My dear Randal—this is very kind! I have naturally been most anxious to see you. Pray sit down. You have dined?"

"O, yes."

She settled herself, picked up a new piece of knitting of which only a couple of rows of pale pink wool appeared upon the needles, and said with a regretful sigh:

"So it was the husband after all."

Randal March was so startled that he was quite unable to disguise the fact.

"My dear Miss Silver!"

She inclined her head in a prim little nod.

"It surprises you that I should know anything about it?"

He gave a rueful laugh.

"I am always expecting you to whip out a broomstick and ride away."

Great Stories

Each Sunday The Chicago Tribune brings to you this special Fiction Section. Presented in it are Great Stories, Romances, Mysteries, and the like that are the finest works of the best of imaginative minds. These all are vivid, thrilling, and gripping tales and well worth reading. Look for the Fiction Section. Read it! Save it!

Miss Silver pursed up her mouth in a deprecating manner.

"My dear Randal——"

Before she could say any more the handle turned, the door was pushed open, and Miss Mellison entered with a tray upon which reposed two cups of coffee, a jug of hot milk, a small bowl of sugar crystals, and half a madeira cake.

"O, you really shouldn't have troubled——"

Miss Mellison said that it was no trouble at all. She had taken off her overall and powdered her nose. The brick-red dress, now fully revealed, was high to the neck and long in the sleeve. The blue beads were of the kind that are sold to tourists in all the Venetian shops. She fluttered from the room and shut the door behind her.

"So kind," murmured Miss Silver—"she quite spoils me."

Miss Silver Tells How She Learned of Crash

Then, in a brisker tone, "Dear me—what were we saying? O, yes—it is really all very simple. You are wondering how I come to know about Mr. Dale Jerningham having crashed his plane last night. The young man from the Ledlington Stores—his name is Johnson—has a brother who works at the Tanfield aerodrome. When he called with the groceries this morning he said how upset his brother was. There had been something wrong with the plane, but they thought they had got it right. I am afraid I am not sufficiently conversant with such matters to be able to tell you what the trouble was."

"I'm glad there's something you don't know."

Miss Silver coughed.

"Technical details are always better left to the expert. Well, Johnson told his brother that Mr. Jerningham would go up. He was called to the telephone just as he was starting. There had been an accident at Tanfield Court, and whether this news upset him, or whether there was something wrong with the plane, when Mr. Jerningham did go up he seems to have lost control and his machine crashed in the sea. One of the coast guards saw it—a man called Pilkington. They were all very much upset when he rang up the aerodrome and told them what had happened. Mr. Jerningham was very much liked—very open-handed and generous, so Johnson told his brother."

March surveyed her with a faint smile.

"How much more do you know?"

Miss Silver sipped her coffee.

"O, very little. May I cut you a slice of cake? . . . No? It is a little dry, I am afraid. . . . We heard about Mrs. Jerningham's accident from the baker who delivers at Tanfield Court. Poor thing—Mr. Rafe brought her in at midnight soaked to the skin and in a state of collapse. She had fallen into one of those deep pools among the rocks, and they had been caught by the tide. A most providential escape."

"Yes, I think you may call it that," said Randal March.

"After that," said Miss Silver, "it was really all quite simple. A single accident is quite likely to be an accident—I can believe in it as well as any one. But four accidents in a row one after another, all connected with the same person, is more than I can bring myself to believe."

"Four accidents?"

Miss Silver sipped her coffee.

"About a fortnight ago Mrs. Jerningham was nearly drowned—she only came around after artificial respiration had been employed for some time. Since then her car has been smashed to pieces and she only escaped death by a miracle, a girl who was wearing her coat has been murdered, and she herself has again been within an ace of drowning. She is rescued by Mr. Rafe Jerningham, who then has a telephone conversation with his cousin, immediately after which Mr. Dale Jerningham takes his plane up and crashes. I must confess that I find it impossible not to connect all these events. Am I wrong in doing so?"

March's smile had gone. He put his coffee cup back on the tray and said gravely:

"No—you are perfectly right. But look here—this isn't to be talked of."

Miss Silver drew herself up.

"My dear Randal!"

"No, no—I beg your pardon—I didn't mean that. You can know about it—you do know about it—but it's confidential between you and me. I've been with the chief constable, and he's most anxious that there shouldn't be a scandal. There's more in it than just the wish to avoid stirring up mud about a well known county family. Rafe Jerningham—look here, this is very hush-hush—is having a couple of inventions taken up by the government. I'm told they are very hot stuff, and that he is considered a valuable asset. He is being given a job under Maccelsfield. The last thing on earth that any one desires is that he should be mixed up with anything that invites publicity. Of course Pell will have to be got out of the mess. The facts will go to the director of public prosecutions, and the case against him will be dropped. Jerningham's dead, and there's nothing to be gained by washing a lot of dirty linen in public."

"It is always a very unpleasant proceeding," she observed. "In fact, my dear Randal, there are times when I consider the freedom of the press a somewhat overrated blessing. But I am interrupting you. I feel sure you were going to continue your narrative. Pray do so."

He eyed her with the suspicion of a twinkle.

"If there is really anything that I can tell you. Well, this is what hap-

Use of His Hands Gives Child Skill and Pleasure

Sally's Guests to View Marx Brothers Film

By Sally Joy Brown.

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown Department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

If you've been busy having a good time, you boys and girls probably haven't noticed how quickly the days are slipping by, but August is here, and it's generally one of the hottest months of the year. Well, I know that on August 14 I'm not going to care how high the little red line on the thermometer goes, because I'm going to be sitting in the big, cool Roosevelt theater, enjoying the antics of my favorite comedians, the Marx brothers.

One hundred boys and girls will be enjoying this treat with me, and if you'd like to be one of them, better see if you can't win an invitation to this party.

• • •

Groucho, Harpo, and Chico have made a new picture called "The Big Store," in which they take over a department store, and you can just imagine how they run it! They encounter crooks and, as usual, there's a wild chase all over the place. Tony Martin and Virginia Grey also are in the film, but I'll tell you more about that tomorrow. Now I want to know if you'd like to come to this party.

I'm looking for boys and girls who'll especially enjoy seeing "The Big Store," in fact, who prefer movies to baseball games, swimming, or picnics. If you can write a letter which will convince me that you especially deserve an invitation because you'd be happy to be a winner, maybe you'll see your name listed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE as one of my guests.

• • •

Remember, when you write your letter about this party, you must tell me why you'd like to come, who you are, where you live, and just how old you are. Don't forget a single one of those items, because if you do, the waste basket will gobble up your letter.

Please don't ask for invitations for your friends, because each child must earn his or her own invitation. Letters from parents will not be accepted.

Those are the only rules we have, so if you really and truly want to see the Marx brothers in their latest comedy, put on your thinking cap and send that letter to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

• • •

Here are the names of the boys and girls who've been selected as my guests on Aug. 7, when we'll all go to see the gay Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus on the lake front. I'm sorry I couldn't take all the children who wrote, but many of you were too late, and many more forgot to observe our rules. Personal invitations will be mailed to the winners within the next day or two.

Patterns by Clotilde

Here are three patterns which will begin your autumn wardrobe, for they are the first fall fashions. Sheers, crêpes, and lightweight woolen are the materials to consider, and jersey, both silk and woolen, is a drapable, high fashion fabric you'll like for the two dressy models.

At the left, a new version of the jumper, one which is flattering to large sizes. Huge buttons may be used for the center front. Notice the deft paneling and the smart yoke effect. The blouse, with its casual neckline, has full, soft sleeves.

Center, an afternoon creation with soft shoulders, cleverly shirred bodice and flattering shoulder yoke. The simple skirt is moderately flared, and your own pet costume jewelry is the only trimming.

Right, a semitailored frock with casual neckline, clever sleeves, deft paneling, and the distinction worthy of a busy, profitable day.

Style No. 2844 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements.

Style No. 2762 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inch bust measurements.

Style No. 2502 is designed for size 16 and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to New York address in coupon.

Parents Must Provide the Media Needed

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

One thing in which I believe firmly is that young persons should learn to use their hands. Hands are such wonderful things that I believe they should be used for more than turning radio dials, taking dresses off racks in a store, opening cans of vegetables and meats, and laying coins on a small shelf before picking up the tickets that pop out of a slot to provide admission to the movies in order to fill in an empty evening.

Yes, I know that's exaggeration, at least it is if I seem to infer that it applies to all young people [and adults] and I don't go in for exaggerations and generalities to make my points. But it is true that there are many boys and girls, and married persons with families too, who resort to "ready made" food, clothing, and amusements— and who haven't skillful hands. There are people of all ages who don't know how to use tools, wield a paint brush, sew, cook, play a musical instrument, and I was going to add read a good book thru and listen to good music, but those lead me a little astray from manual deftness. I suppose that mental sidetrack is because I am thinking of interesting uses of leisure time.

• • •

Skill in using their hands does lead young people to pursuits which can fill their free time, pursuits which are a satisfaction in themselves, pursuits which have tangible results, such as a double decker bunk in a boy's bedroom, a delectable dressing table, or an equally delectable dessert for the family. And pursuits involving the use of the hands which may prove to be the outlet for real creative talent, or to the discovery of an interest which becomes a beloved hobby.

Also, learning to use our hands balances our lives, which have so much in them that is mechanical and so much that is mental.

And last, the ability to do things with our hands keeps us from filling our spare time with passive, poured-in pleasures, such as aimless moviegoing, radio listening, and trivial reading.

Before I go on, I do want to say, however, that all this seriousness [and I am really serious] about interesting and worthwhile uses of free time, doesn't mean that I don't believe in lots of carefree fun for children and young people, lots of nonsense and larking about, and even leisure in which to do absolutely nothing for a while. Heaven preserve children from a mother who thinks every minute, winter and summer, should be spent in "improving" activities! With that comment added to my suggestions, I'm sure you get the idea! So:

• • •

Fabrics, cottons, chintzes, silks, and synthetics, in charming textures and designs, may be bought at ridiculously low prices and provide a taking-off point for young girls to make dresses and lingerie, or curtains and bedcovers for their rooms.

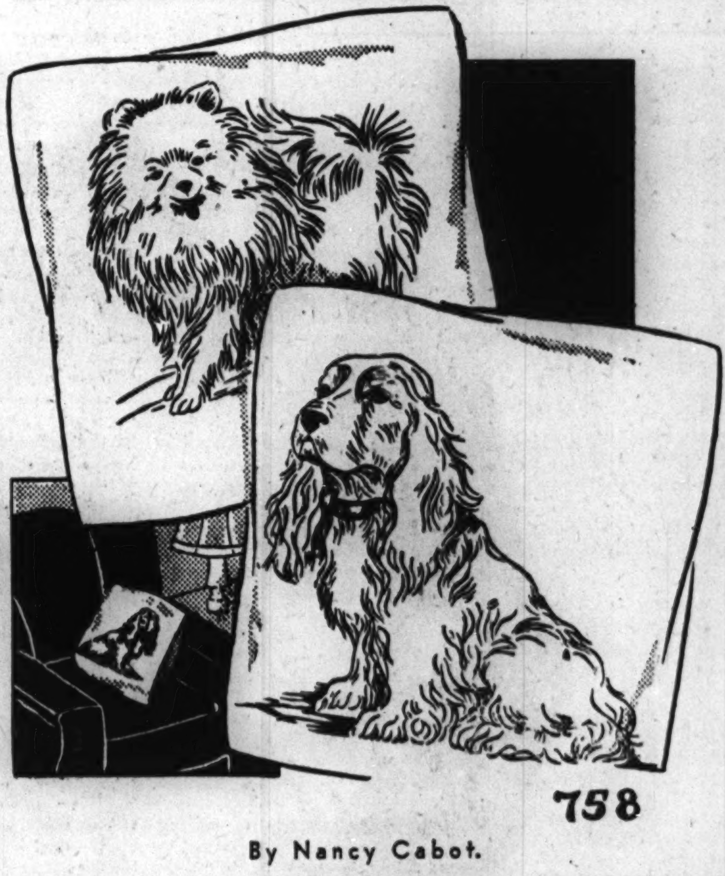
Both boys and girls who have an interest in changing the whole color scheme and even the arrangement and furnishings of their rooms can work magic with tools and paint. Something fresh and suited to the personality of the room's inhabitant can be achieved for almost nothing, if that is necessary. And all of these ventures, making dresses, draperies, building or changing furniture, and painting, may develop a latent talent for color and proportion and arrangement of interiors, and for carpentry or cabinet making.

The making of models appeals to boys, ship models and airplanes. The former may be started with corks [we can refer you to a book], and the latter with the simplest of designs, even "sets" of parts at first.

The giving of plays opens up another avenue for the acquisition of deftness. Tiny play theaters with scenery to be made and costumes for the doll actors, or puppet plays may appeal to the younger children; while life size efforts for older boys and girls may produce some interesting results in both plays and costumes. Also, in carrying out such projects, scenic and artistic and dramatic gifts may be discovered.

Our leaflets, list of phonograph records, reading for all ages, songs and music books and books for young naturalists are helpful to parents and children. Send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope for each leaflet. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Embroidered Dog Motifs



By Nancy Cabot.

Dogs as embroidery motifs furnish ideal suggestions for gift pillows, wall panels, towels, or for chair sets. The hot iron transfer pattern includes the illustrated dog motifs, measuring 9 by 11 inches, and 12 by 12, together with some small bulldog and wirehairs measuring approximately 2 to 4 inches. These small designs are excellent for borders.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Aug. 3.

Today's pitfall is in the emotional department, but we'll get around it by keeping eyes and ears open and mouth at least reasonably closed. Week ahead is irritating in small ways, but can be made to pay dividends in long distance items.

The Ideal.

Just as what some of everything we eat becomes part of our body, so also does some of everything we think, of everything we feel, of everything we do become part of what we are on the various levels of this very complicated and important existence we are struggling with. Balance is the ideal state; we must be poised mentally, emotionally, spiritually, as well as in our bodily chemistry.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings gain thru friends you make, and persons you love, if born on this date. Especially now—Jan. push own interests, branch out, but not hastily. Danger: Jan. 22-Feb. 2; June 16-July 1, 1942.

Tomorrow.

Avoid self-indulgence in morning; later hours warn against conflict.

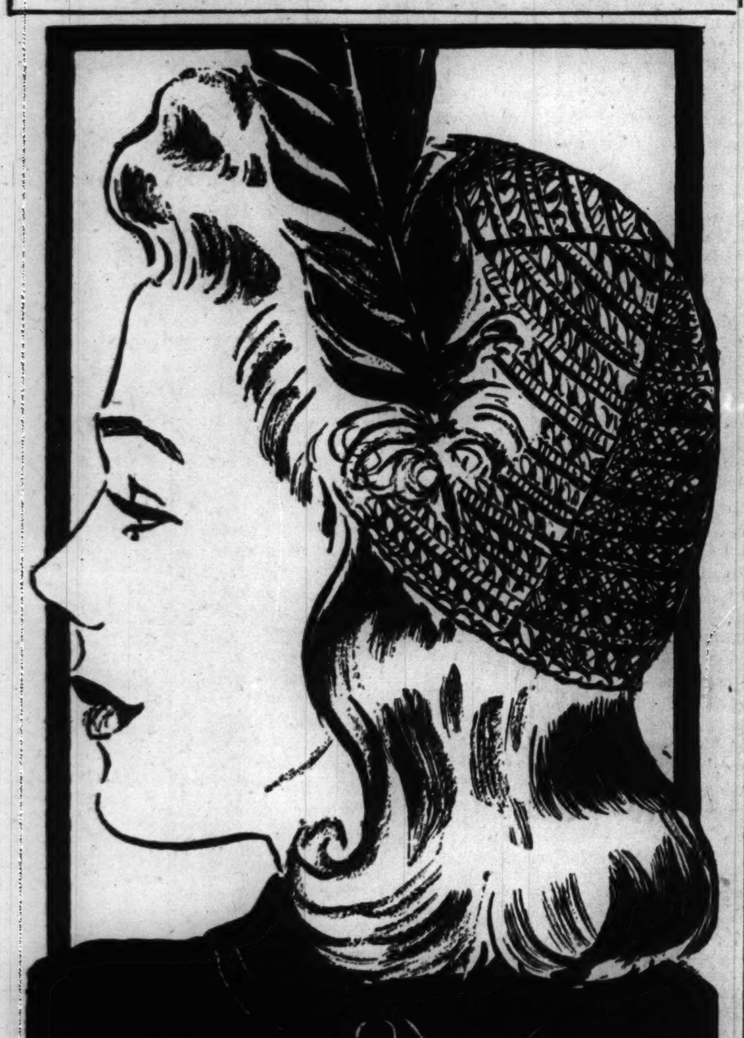
Hand Knit "Beanie" Hat



By Jean Macdonald.

All casual costumes require "beanies," since they are "a must" in the case of the pompadour hair style, and are, too, fashion's favorite bit of headgear. Knitted in wool, "beanies" may be created in an afternoon's time. They may be trimmed with feathers, furs, or flowers, but, above all, they are quick and easy knitting jobs.

For instructions in knitting the "beanie," No. 868, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Tardiness Is Bad Manners, Discourteous

Should you fold your napkin at the conclusion of a meal at home? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, answers this and other questions about proper conduct at the table in her booklet, "Table Manners." On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price 3 cents; postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

There are, at times, circumstances beyond his control which prevent a person from keeping appointments promptly. There is no way of predicting and allowing time for accidents or similar unexpected events which sometimes force us to keep friends and business associates tapping their feet and watching the clock. We point the finger of etiquet at those disorganized persons who never are on time and who have no valid reasons for their repeated tardiness.

• • •

There is a whole army of bland, complacent persons who have no intention of arriving anywhere at the time they are expected or at the time they previously agreed upon. They are perpetual offenders. Most of these persons have no better excuse than selfishness, laziness, and lack of consideration for others. And that is discourteous. Why, because people are termed friends, should they be imposed upon and be expected always to be understanding and forgiving? For I have noticed it to be true that when meeting less intimate friends, or even strangers, these offenders against etiquet show much more consideration and make more of an effort to be on time.

Yet these offenders, by the very same qualities of character that make them carefree and irresponsible as to time, are the most disarming, endearing and charming persons. No matter how late they happen to be, they come up smiling and with an amusing story that gets one's mind off the ugly matter of being late and, at the same time, completely disposes of the only opportunity of mentioning the broken arches to which the lateness contributed. Yet their charm doesn't minimize the fact that they are being discourteous and that they are harboring a fault that might easily be corrected. It only makes it a little easier to endure.

• • •

In the business world it is a more serious problem than socially. Not that failing to keep appointments with a business associate is any more discourteous, but it has the added risk of irritating a good customer or losing an account. It is just not good business.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Even the mature woman can capture that attractive "young" complexion quality if she chooses her treatment and makeup aids with care. The foundation is an important item, especially if her skin is dry. The one she uses should soften, moisten, and glamorize.

Our idea of a perfect pet in the way of foundations is one that glamorizes the skin and has the plus value of softening it, even minutely, at the same time. And there are such products nowadays, wonderful finds for the woman whose dry, crêpey skin is a constant problem. In other words, the woman with parched skin can find a foundation that is a powder base, and more!

One such is a balm that appeared a couple of years ago. It's a thinly creamy liquid, in a choice of shades [ranging from light to a beautiful bronze] that is completely satisfactory as a makeup base because it leaves the skin so dewey and supple. Powder goes on beautifully, and stays on, and you never have the uncomfortable feeling that your makeup is mask-like. The base is on the skin but it's completely unobtrusive.

We find that this balm is soothing to the very dry skin. It seems to oil it ever so slightly, really to just the degree it needs for suavity of makeup, and it's because of this little trick that it's something of a protective for thin skins as well as a flatterer.

• • •

If the skin is perfectly normal, use very little of the balm. When it's dry, use it more generously. You'll find that the skin seems to lap it up. In either case, pour the balm, which has a lovely fragrance, into the palm of your hand and apply it with feathery strokes over the face and neck. Stroke upward, as always, and, of course, be sure that the skin surface is thoroly cleansed.

Blend the balm for just a moment, then permit it to dry. Finally, blot away any dampness with a cleansing tissue. Your face will look beautifully moist, exactly the way it should be to take the makeup that follows.

This is one of those foundations that give your skin that nice "young" look. And it's so easy to apply that even the woman with no experience at all in using a powder base can do a lovely job of complexion glamorizing with it.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.*

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Ask any player of reasonable experience what he would bid on a certain hand and he is apt to give you a very intelligent answer. This is largely because it is possible to codify opening bids; to set up specific requirements of honor tricks and distribution. There may be cases in which one player will open with a club, whereas another prefers a spade, but these differences are largely a matter of "style" and they do not necessarily affect the final contract.

It is in the field of rebids that the most difficulties are encountered. Hence it follows that any one who masters this department is well on his way to expertness or, better still, has already arrived at that desirable state. I offer a short questionnaire that will permit you to test yourself on this point.

1. Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
?

You are South and hold:

♠AK8 ♥752 ♦1043 ♣AKQ8

What call do you make now?

2. Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 heart	1 spade	Pass
?

You are South and hold:

♠1043 ♥AQ3 ♦AJ4 ♣AQ86

What call do you make now?

3. Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	2 clubs
?

You are South and hold:

♠Q63 ♥AK1072 ♦K10 ♣Q83

What call do you make now?

4. Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	?

You are North and hold:

♠5 ♥K53 ♦742 ♣AQJ1052

What call do you make now?

Answers.

1. One no trump. Yes, I am perfectly aware that South holds four-plus honor tricks and that page 18 of the new Culbertson Summary authorizes a rebid of two no trump in this situation. However, closer examination of the subject on page 17 of the Summary reveals that a jump of two no trump as a rebid "shows 4½ honor tricks [rarely four honor tricks with eight or nine honor cards], balanced distribution, and every suit stopped." Obviously, in this hand we have nothing resembling a heart stopper, hence dare not mislead partner by rebidding two no trump. If partner cannot make a free response to our one no trump rebid it is dollars to doughnuts that there is no game in the hand.

2. Two no trump. Insofar as honor tricks are concerned this hand is precisely the same as Hand 1, but the distribution of tricks and the situation itself are vastly different. In No. 1 North's one diamond response might have been made on as little as one honor trick with a five card suit; in this problem North's one spade response was a free bid. We have two probable stoppers in three suits, including the adversely bid heart suit, hence no rebid weaker than two no trump is permissible and no stronger bid is necessary or advisable.

3. Pass. No other call is tactically correct. True, we have better than a minimum, with a rebiddable heart suit and a count of three honor tricks, yet this "overage" is not so great that we must rush to show it. If we rebid hearts or assist spades we may get nowhere, since North may be unable to take further action. By passing we retain our offensive potentialities [there can be no game unless North can bid again] and simultaneously retain defensive possibilities against East's two club overcall. North may have the sort of hand which is not impressive in a game sense, yet he may easily be able to double two clubs, this particularly if he is very short in hearts. Obviously we would welcome such a double, although we are not strong enough to make it on our own hook.

4. Five or six clubs. The main point is that we should not dream of passing to three no trump, which was in no sense a shutout or game closing bid, but which, on the contrary, showed tremendous strength in our partner's hand. We ourselves hold an excellent six card club suit, a high honor in hearts, and a singleton spade. There should be a splendid play for a slam, hence I prefer the jump all the way to six clubs. If the partnership is using Blackwood, North can, of course, fool around with a four no trump call; but this is not apt to do him much good. Two aces, with the right fillers in the South hand, would produce a small slam, whereas even the discovery that South had as much as three aces and two kings would not justify a grand slam bid on North's part.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

There are no trumps and South leads. North and South are to win four tricks against any defense.

Solution—South leads the heart five. If West ducks North plays the jack and East wins. To return the heart is immediately fatal. If East leads the diamond, following with the spade, South plays the king and leads club jack.

If West discards a heart, North discards a spade. If West discards a spade, North discards a heart; so does East.

South leads a spade and North returns the heart and South plays the queen. If West wins the queen, South's seven is good.

If East leads a spade for the second trick, South plays king and leads a club. If West sheds a heart, South leads heart seven and the queen is good. If West discards a diamond on the club lead, North discards diamond, and if East sheds a heart, South leads the heart queen. If East discards a spade, South leads a spade and North returns it.

Self-improvement should be in every summer program, no matter what the temperature reading. Start with a skeletal questionnaire and check yourself from scalp to toes, like this: Posture, figure, voice, hair, complexion, ankles, shoes, clothes, mannerisms, and charm.

In other words, do you carry yourself gracefully, with no portion of your anatomy protruding when it shouldn't? Are you overweight or underweight? Is your voice pleasant or rasping? Has your hair the desired luster and becoming coiffure? Do you tolerate complexion blemishes? Are your ankles neat and trim? Are your shoes in perfect repair and, above all, do they FIT? Do you select clothes with color and line to suit you, and are they neat, impeccably clean? Have you the fidgets or some other annoying mannerism? Have you the social requirements, such as poise, good memory, courtesy, broadmindedness, to give you the finishing touches of charm?

These Recipes Are Popular, Easy to Use

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Few women bother to do large quantity pickling in these days of fine commercial pickles of every size, shape, and kind. But almost every housewife now and then indulges in a vinegar and spice spree, just for the satisfaction of being able to say, later: "I made these pickles myself."

The long brine cure is a nuisance in most households, altho it results in pickles of unusually fine quality. Most women prefer short-cure recipes for cucumbers as well as for other pickles.

• • •

These recipes are among the most popular with readers of this column. They're often requested by telephone and letter.

SWEET PICKLED PEACHES
4 quarts small peaches
2 cups vinegar
4 cups sugar
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon whole cloves

Scald peaches, then dip in cold water. Slip off skins. Meanwhile, boil vinegar, sugar, and spices together for 5 minutes. Drop peaches, a few at a time, into the pickling sirup and cook until just tender. Do not overcook. Pack peaches into clean, hot quart jars and pour boiling sirup over them. Seal jars at once.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES
25 medium cucumbers, sliced
12 onions, sliced
½ cup salt
1 quart vinegar
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons mustard seed
2 teaspoons turmeric
2 teaspoons celery seed

Soak cucumbers and onions in ice water, to which salt has been added, for 3 hours. Heat pickling mixture to the boiling point and add cucumbers and onion. Heat for 2 minutes. Do not let the pickles boil if you want them to be crisp. Fill clean jars and seal at once.

The original recipe for these pickles calls for two teaspoons of cassia buds in addition to other spices, but many readers reported difficulty in getting them last year and, in this year of spice shortages, they may be even harder to find. Luckily, the pickles are deliciously good without them.

WATERMELON PICKLES
2 quarts prepared watermelon rind
5 cups sugar
1 quart vinegar
1 tablespoon whole allspice
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
1 tablespoon crushed ginger root

Trim outer green skin and pink flesh from firm, thick watermelon rind. Cut into slices or pieces of the size you like. Soak 4 hours in lime water or overnight in salt water. Lime water is considered to give a better product. Use 2 tablespoons of slaked lime to 2 quarts of water. If you use salt water for overnight soaking, use 4 tablespoons salt to a quart of water. Drain rind, rinse in clear water and boil for an hour in clear water to cover. Boil 2 cups sugar, 1 quart fresh water, 1 cup vinegar and the spices in the recipe for 5 minutes. Add rind. Simmer for 30 minutes, let stand overnight, and add remaining sugar and vinegar. Boil gently until sirup is almost as thick as honey and the rind is clear. If sirup becomes thick before the rind is tender and translucent, add a little hot water. Pack rind and sirup into clean, hot jars and seal.

• • •

There are two other popular recipes for watermelon pickles in our booklet, "Favorite Pickles and Relishes," which sells for 5 cents in stamps, by mail. It is a compilation of those of my own and my staff's favorite pickle recipes, which also happen to be popular with readers.

Included are several kinds of dill pickles, a number of quick and easy cucumber pickles, vegetable and fruit pickles, and relishes such as piccalilli, chili sauce, pepper relish, beet, corn, and celery relishes, and catsup.

This cover, shown thru the kindness of Jacob Zuban of Berwyn, comes from Lubiana (Llobljana), Jugo-Slavia. The overprints "Co. Ci." mean Commissariato Civile," that on the 12 dinar stamp—"R. Comissariato Civile Territori Slovani occupati—Lubiana," means "The royal civil comissariat for occupied Slovene territory—Jjubljana."

Prior to the celebration of the tercentenary of the United States constitution only a few foreign countries had used American subjects in their stamp designs. Several were issued to honor Charles A. Lindbergh following his epochal flight from New York to Paris in 1927.

The earliest examples to be included in this list are the portraits of Washington, Jefferson, and Jackson as shown on the stamps of the Confederate States of America. While it is true that this was never a foreign country in a strict use of the name it required a lot of unpleasantness to prove it.

In 1897 Newfoundland issued a long set in honor of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of that country by Cabot. The four cent value is entitled "Caribou Hunting" and shows a portrait of a St. Louis sportsman, who had an estate in that country.

Perhaps the first stamp actually issued by a foreign country with the intention of honoring an American was the 200 reis Brazilian stamp of 1909 commemorating the Pan-American congress. This stamp shows a portrait of Washington at the center surrounded by portraits of Bonifacio, Bolivar, Hidalgo, O'Higgins, and San Martin.

In 1898 Ecuador commemorated the opening of the Quito-Guayaquil railroad and issued a series of seven stamps. The 50c value pictures James Siveright, an American engineer, who was in charge of the work. It is possible the 20c value also should be included as it shows a portrait of Archer Harman, under whose direction the railroad was built.

In 1915 while the United States was celebrating the opening of the Panama canal with the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco, Panama coöperated by issuing a series of pictorial stamps. The 1c shows a map of the canal, the 5c pictures Gatun locks and the 10c, Culebra cut. The other values of the set deal with scenes in Panama itself.

After the World war Uruguay in common with many other countries brought out an issue to celebrate the end of hostilities and the reign of eternal peace. The six values of the Uruguayan series are bicolored and show the Statue of Liberty.

An American vessel, the U. S. S. Alligator, is shown on the centenary issue of Liberia which came out in 1923. This vessel landed the original founders of that country at the site of Monrovia, the present capital, in 1822.

The agricultural exhibition at Moscow in 1923 was the occasion for a set of four commemorative stamps. The 5 ruble value uses an American tractor as the subject of the design.

In 1927 the American Legion held its convention in Paris and on that occasion France issued two values, 90c and 1 fr. 50c, in its honor. The design shows portraits of Washington and Lafayette, and a view of the S. S. Paris passing the Statue of Liberty with its load of legionnaires bound for France.

Other foreign stamps showing American subjects and including those issued to honor Charles A. Lindbergh will be the subject of a future article.

Volume II. of A Cyclopedia of United States Postmarks and Postal History, edited by Delf Norona, nas been released by the Committee on Publications of the Society of Philatelic Americans. This, the first of a series of handbooks to be sponsored by the society, is a worthwhile addition to the library of every collector of United States stamps.

There are 17 articles in the 194 pages of this volume and some of the titles which seem most interesting are: "Chicago Postal Markings [1836-1892];" "Quaker Postmarks;" "Waterbury, Conn., Cancelations on the 1869 Issue;" "Dispatch and Naval Agents, [1843-1915];" "The Occupation of Vera Cruz in 1914."

The volume is loose leaf with plastic binding and may be obtained for $1.50 from James W. Shaver, 70 18th street, Logansport, Ind. A special price of $1 is made for members of the S. P. A.

"The Ark and the Dove" is the motif for the American Philatelic society convention souvenir sheet, and is taken from the design submitted by Edwin Tunis, Baltimore artist, for the Maryland Tercentenary stamp. This design was accepted and used with modifications by the postoffice department in 1934.

The souvenir sheet is a steel engraving and prints will be made in green, purple, and blue with a bicolored sheet in orange and black, the Maryland state colors. The sheets are priced at 10 cents, or 3 for 25 cents, for the single colors and 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents, for the bicolored sheet. Postage extra on orders under 25 cents. Address Michael Miller, c/o Perry W. Fuller, 13 West Fayette street, Baltimore.

The world's first airport bank will be dedicated at La Guardia field, New York, about Aug. 15. A cachet to commemorate the event will be applied free of charge to stamped, addressed airmail covers ready to go. Address Empire Trust Co., La Guardia Field, Municipal Airport, New York City.

Polonus Philatelic society, a nationwide association of collectors of the stamps of Poland, recently voiced opposition to the recognition of a recent miniature sheet issued by Germany for use in occupied Poland. The Souvenir Issues association, which is composed of collectors of souvenir and miniature sheets, likewise withholds recognition.

The sheet is made up of 8 stamps, 2 wide by 4 high, each with a face value of 10 zloty, a much higher denomination than was ever found necessary in independent Poland. The sheet, which has a face value of $16, is said to be purely speculative.

Germany will issue a new regular postage series of stamps bearing the portrait of Adolf Hitler in place of the familiar Hindenburg. The series will consist of 22 values from 1 pfennig to 5 marks.

The itinerary of the postoffice department's philatelic truck for August is as follows: Aug. 1-2, Milwaukee; Aug. 4, Waukesha and Jefferson; Aug. 5-6, Madison; Aug. 7, Portage and Baraboo; Aug. 8, Mauston; Aug. 9, Tomah; Aug. 11, Sparta and Aug. 12, La Crosse, all in Wisconsin; Aug. 13, Caledonia and Rushford; Aug. 14, Preston and Rochester; Aug. 15, Rochester; Aug. 16, Zumbrota; Aug. 18, Red Wing; Aug. 19, Hastings; Aug. 20-22, St. Paul; Aug. 23 and 25-27, Minneapolis; Aug. 28, Farmington; Aug. 29, Northfield and Faribault, and Aug. 30, Faribault, all in Minnesota.

Consult local postmasters for exact hours and for location of the truck while it is in your city.

Home Owners' Queries

Evanston, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor]—What can we use to remove some paint spots from the brick walls of a house which were paint-spattered in process of painting trim?
J. K.

Answer: You can soften paint with washing soda and water; a cup of washing soda to a quart of water. Then scrape paint or wash it off.

* *

Aurora, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor].—How should the plaster walls of a laundry room be treated? What colors are good?
K. N.

Answer: You can paint them with a washable, nonglaring paint. Choose some warm, light, clean looking color. Ivory is always suitable, and so is soft green or warm yellow.

* *

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor].—Can you suggest something to go over new paint on my porch floor—to make it stand up longer?
H. K.

Answer: A good spar varnish over the paint will add to its usefulness.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. Result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Send name and address to Zonite Products Corporation, Dept. 338A, 370 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Midseason Hats Hint of the Fall Fashions to Come

Daring Colors Featured in the New Felts

By Rea Seeger.

Midseason hats invariably forecast the new fall season, whether it be the fabric, silhouette, color, or trim. Usually they are compelling pickups for a wilted summer wardrobe, providing that necessary fillip for simple, dark, summer dresses or the newest simple crêpes and the first thin woolen dresses out around the first of August. Simmering heat waves bring out either the wide comfort of cartwheel sheers or the cool, clear cut outlines of small turbans or toques which hug the headlines and look smart because of the clear, sharp, uncluttered necklines, with the hair tucked up on the head.

All the daring new colors are featured in summer felts, felts as smooth and almost as thin as satin, flexible felts that lend themselves easily to tucking, adroit folds, even plaits and ruched ruffles. Brims are expertly worked best to flatter the eyelines. Some are deftly swirled high over the side or in front; others are indented; still others are fluted and shaped in shell formation. Handwork is the outstanding detail of these midseason finds.

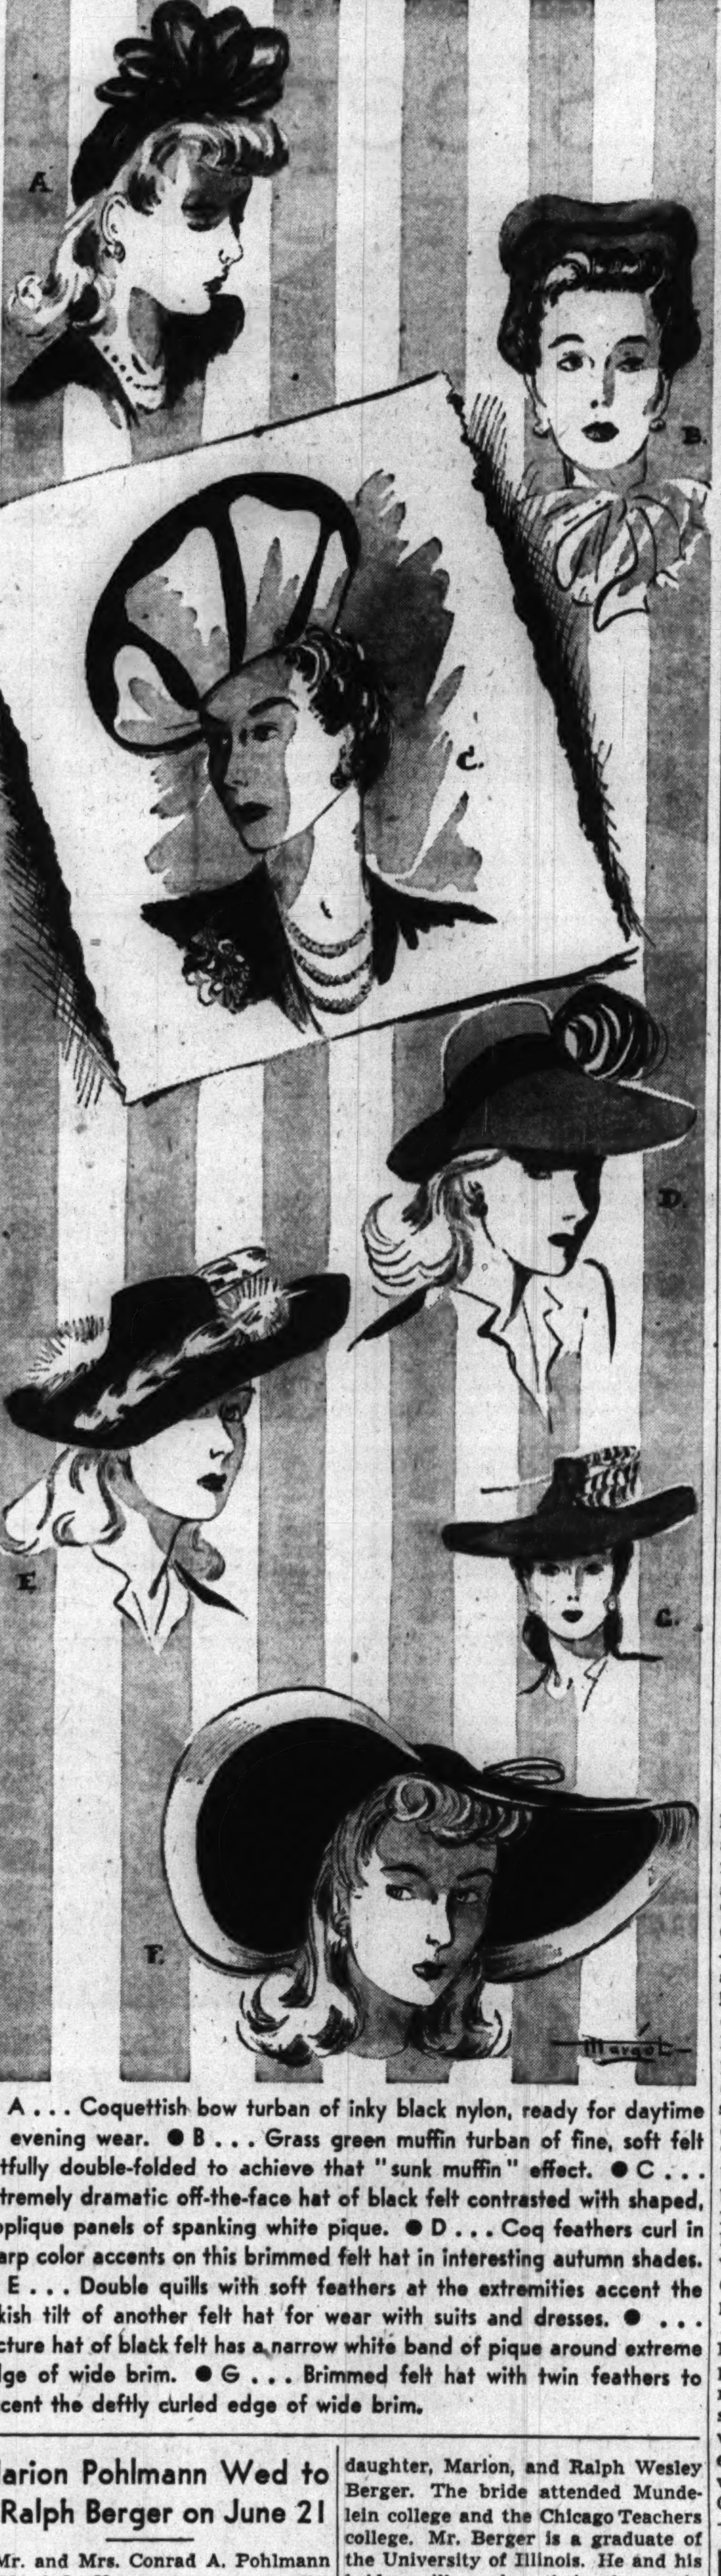
Quantities of feathers are high fashion, from the simple quills to complicated, even fantastically rare, goura feathers. Curls of ostrich tips, coq feather curls, long dashing feathers, and fringe or bangs of soft feathers mark the gayest of the early fall and late summer showings. Dull black felts are classic arrivals to wear with thin, black, summer sheer dresses. The new arrivals are dramatized with snowy white piqué trim in unusual effects such as shaped panels on an upturned brim, or as a wide encircling band around the extreme edge of a huge cartwheel, or in perky bows on the shallow crowns, and so on.

Hot weather hats, the kind that are just a whiff of material on the curls this summer, arrived to feature nylon. Face-framing wide hats of shirred black nylon, small flirtatious bow turbans, both sizes are made of airy, shadow thin nylon, stuff that weighs nothing on the brow. Both styles are super flattering creations in this filmy, exciting, new material. Leghorn straw, simply accented with velvet bows and back streamers, is always a successful summer find. So are the rough straws in burnt toast color and the rakish, smooth Panamas and the lovely lacy straws in oyster white and chalk white. Lacy braids also make some exceptionally beautiful wide cartwheels. These cast a most alluring shadow pattern over the face.

• • •

Tiny evening hats are poems of color combines and flowers, with the floral arrangements equally picturesque. Evening turbans made of multicolored veiling or the sophisticated chenille dotted veiling are the airiest trifles ever worn. They are exquisitely feminine, provocative because of the popcorn size of the chenille dots which add the necessary color for costume contrast.

Provoking New Ideas in Headgear



● A . . . Coquettish bow turban of inky black nylon, ready for daytime or evening wear. ● B . . . Grass green muffin turban of fine, soft felt artfully double-folded to achieve that "sunk muffin" effect. ● C . . . Extremely dramatic off-the-face hat of black felt contrasted with shaped, applique panels of spanking white pique. ● D . . . Coq feathers curl in sharp color accents on this brimmed felt hat in interesting autumn shades. ● E . . . Double quills with soft feathers at the extremities accent the rakish tilt of another felt hat for wear with suits and dresses. ● . . . Picture hat of black felt has a narrow white band of pique around extreme edge of wide brim. ● G . . . Brimmed felt hat with twin feathers to accent the deftly curled edge of wide brim.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Seldom is there a large gathering of women at which there aren't two in the same dress, especially if the dress is particularly smart and pretty. Sometimes there are more. For instance, at a debut party this summer, five young women appeared in the same frock. Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt and Mrs. John C. Pitcher sometimes find themselves in matching gowns this summer, for each has a lovely gray and white printed sheer that is as cool looking as a cucumber. The background is gray and the leaf design is white. The bodice fastens down the front with gray buttons resembling raspberries. Each wears white accessories. Mrs. Hoyt, by the way, has some of the best looking bracelets we've seen in a long time, heavy ones in yellow and green gold. She also has a necklace to match. . . . Mrs. Winston Elting looks like a schoolgirl when she wears a blue and white striped cotton frock which has a square-necked, short-sleeved bodice edged with narrow white frills, and a very full skirt. With no stockings and no hat, she looks as tho she were an eighth grader instead of the mother of a kindergartner.

• • •

Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley

Mrs. Gordon Kelley, the mother of two little girls who are just about ready to start to school, is youthful looking, too, especially when she wears a pink linen with a monogram in rose and a belt of the same rich shade. . . . Mrs. Leander McCormick, who has that indefinable chic that all aristocratic Frenchwomen have, created something of a sensation at an afternoon affair in Lake Forest recently when she appeared in a red and white printed gown in a huge design, no hat or stockings, and short white gloves. Gloves without a hat on a hot summer afternoon seem a trifle incongruous, perhaps. . . . Mrs. Tom Fisher [Ruth Page, the dancer] also likes short gloves with all sorts of costumes. At Ravinia one night she wore bright yellow ones, fastened with enormous yellow buttons, and a yellow cotton dinner dress trimmed with white rickrack braid. There were tiny red flowers printed in the dress, matching in color the heavy, short-sleeved, wool sweater she wore. . . . Mrs. Adlai Stevenson has a daytime dress which is as Spanish peasant in inspiration as Mrs. Fisher's dinner dress described above. Mrs. Stevenson's has a yellow background, too, and is of cotton. The skirt is tiered, as is Mrs. Fisher's, and the sleeves are short and puffed, and the neckline square. One day I saw her wearing this colorful frock in the afternoon, and that evening I saw her at Ravinia Park in a black dinner dress trimmed with frilly white.

• • •

Imagine being able to wear a dress you had when you were "sweet sixteen." That is what Mrs. Kent Chandler did recently when she took part in the Whizz Kids' program at the Rummage Shop party. The elaborate lingerie dress with the wide pink ribbon sash that took us back to our school days was her best party dress when she was Subdeb Grace Tuttle. . . . Mrs. Thomas A. Connors is one of the many who like dresses and turbans to match. One of her prettiest outfits this summer is a yellow and white striped cotton frock with an open turban. Mrs. John Paul Welling combines blue, pink, and lavender deftly in one of her summer costumes. The dress is a printed silk in lavender and blue, and the hat is blue with pink flowers. . . . To a party for Carlos Chavez in McKinlock court at the Art institute, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster wore a dress of pale blue silk with an apron of three tiers of plaits that tied in the back. Her straw bonnet and kid pumps were of a darker shade of blue.

Miss Caryl Harrison.

The stockingless and hatless fads are frowned upon by fashion experts. The fads remain in popularity, however, and many of the smarest looking young women at Arlington, especially on a day as hot as the Saturday upon which the Classic was run, were without stockings and hats. Miss Caryl Harrison, whose skin is almost as brown as her curly hair, was charming the other day in a white frock printed in blue about the color of her eyes. . . . Mrs. Peter Moon and Mrs. Robert F. Carr Jr. often go hatless and stockingless. Recently Mrs. Moon was wearing a becoming white dress printed in a large, dark blue pattern. On her tiny feet were dark red high-heeled slippers. Mrs. Carr wore a white dress printed in a terracotta color the same afternoon. . . . Miss Annie Lawrie Ryerson has a dress of blue and white printed material that harmonizes strikingly with her blue eyes and long blonde hair. With it she often wears a coconut straw off-the-face hat. Mrs. Robert Biggert also frequently wears a blue that matches her eyes. One day recently she was wearing a simple dress of the blue with a France Forever emblem at the V neckline, and a matching large hat with an uneven edge of ribbon about the broad brim. A red, white, and blue bag provided a gay note of contrast.

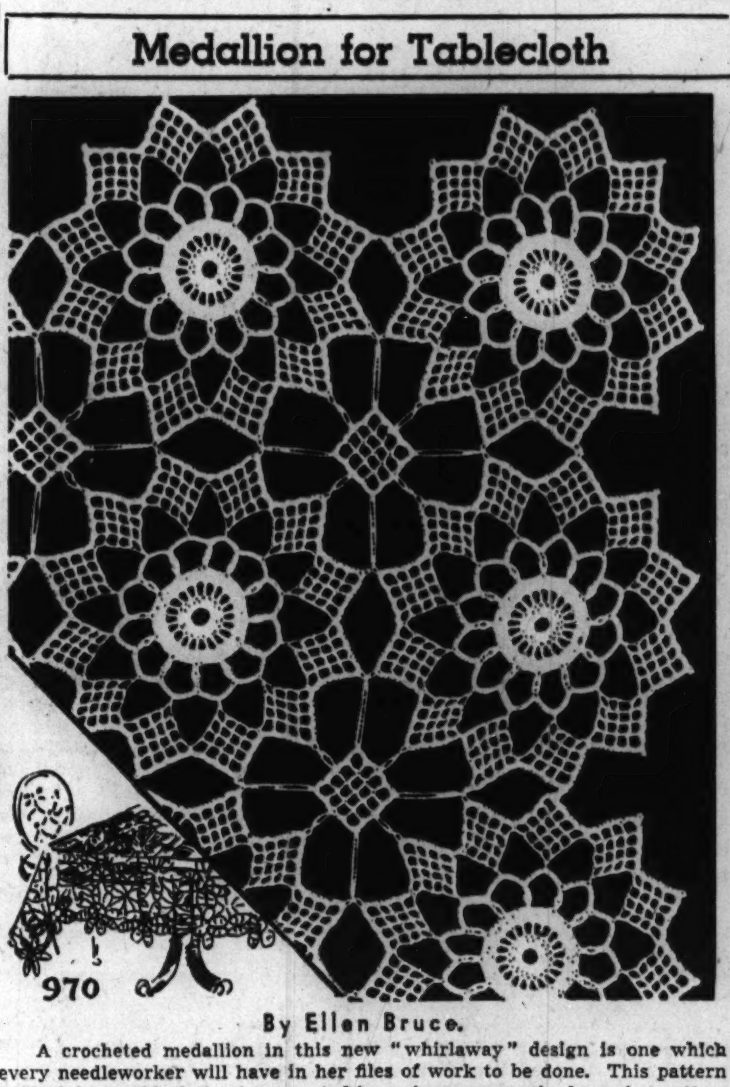
Mrs. Harvey Firestone Jr.

Mrs. Ray Prescott Johnson's gray eyes, dark hair, and deep tan are highlighted by a large, red straw hat bordered with a ruffled ribbon which she wears with a simple white silk sports frock buttoned up to the round neckline with pearl buttons. A gold and ruby flower is pinned to the right shoulder. . . . A small tricorn of white flowers is charming with Mrs. Thomas S. Hammond's frock of gray and white print. . . . Miss Miriam O'Connell wears a stunning set of turquoise and silver jewelry from Phoenix—necklace, earrings and bracelets—with a simply cut frock of dusty pink and a large off-the-face hat of the same shade. The neckline is especially lovely with a horseshoe shaped pendant. . . . Mrs. Picher Purcell was another of the smartly dressed women who were bareheaded at Arlington on Classic day. Her white frock, printed in a large magenta pattern, had as its only adornment two large white flowers at the V neckline, so natural looking it was impossible to detect, even at close range, whether they were real or artificial. . . . Tall, blonde Mrs. James Simpson Jr. has a wide brimmed off-the-face felt hat of the same soft shade of blue as her simple sports frock. . . . Mrs. Royce Martin of Toledo, who was at Arlington with her husband to see their Our Boots run in the Classic, wore a small hat covered with flowers of many colors and a green veil with large green dots. Her print dress was patterned in flowers of the same colors. . . . Mrs. Harvey Firestone Jr. of Akron, another Arlington visitor, wore a small white pancake hat low over her eyes and a perfectly plain white sports frock with a narrow belt of navy blue and maroon. Two small black bows trimmed her hat. . . . Practical as well as stunning is Mrs. Philip D. Armour Jr.'s large hat of toast colored straw with a brim curved into two loops at the back of her head. That hat is equally suitable with a number of her costumes. The other day she wore it with a white frock printed in yellow and brown geometric designs, quite Guatemalan in feeling.

Medallion for Tablecloth



By Ellen Bruce.

A crocheted medallion in this new "whirlaway" design is one which every needleworker will have in her files of work to be done. This pattern is ideal for a tablecloth when created in an ivory, mercerized, crochet cotton. A heavy bed cotton will work up perfectly for a bedspread, while heavy, Germantown wool may be used to create a good looking afghan.

For instructions in crocheting the "whirlaway" medallion for a tablecloth, No. 970, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune. 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Lady of the House

Then It's August.

When the wild clematis drapes herself in a wealth of tangled, feathery bloom; when the convolvulus rings her fairy bells from the top of charred hazel brush; when rich meadow lilies in clusters stand, "lapt in golden ease"; when cornstalks march in serried ranks of green and yellow, bowed to the parching wind; when leaves hang listlessly in still, dead air; when Ceres' gifts stand in waving prospect or garnered sheaves, as weary reapers quit the sultry field; when cicadas shrill at hot high noon in sere brown grass; when the cricket's chirp sounds thru the drowsy twilight silence of a summer's day; then it's August.

When there is green apple sauce and hot ginger bread for lunch; when the kitchen is redolent of sugar, vinegar and spice; when you are canning frantically against the winter's needs; when you cut and pare and sneeze, and pare and cut and sneeze [could that be hay fever, or just the onions you are peeling?]; then it's August.

When your teen-ager comes home from camp looking like a composite photo of all the South Sea islanders; when you are plastering skinned knees and making dental appointments; when you are making lists of the children's school needs, sorting and resorting wardrobes; when you lunch at the country club on a blistering day and watch those "slim young things" coolly modeling thick, snuggly fur coats [and you secretly wish that just once you could throw caution to the winds and buy one]; then it's August.

Plant a Tree.

Conservationists point out that the industrial importance of forests is indicated by the fact that the average citizen uses more than 226 pounds of paper a year, more than twice as much in weight as the meat he consumes.

My Garden.

My garden is a real delight. It has required no thoughtful planning on my part, no hours of labor to perfect it. Still, it is a charming place, spacious, and filled with a succession of lovely bloom from April to October. There are so many different kinds of flowers; and everything grows with the greatest of ease. The rarest plants thrive untended—shy, fragrant things that would pine and fade away in other gardens. But that's the fun of my garden.

Song birds come to meet in my garden. In its white-flowered thorns bluebirds and cardinals woo their mates, and brown thrashers trill sheer ecstasy from the treetops. Cottontails frolic unmolested thru the choicest beds; and butterflies come dancing all day above its festiveness.

A quiet stream divides and waters it. The only paths are little ones winding thru the willows; moss edged for coolness, with young flowers spilling across them, each path leading to the heart of nature. My garden is a woodland and a flowering meadowside.

BEATRICE PHELPS.

Shaking Hands With God.

When I'm digging in my garden,
I'm like a buccaneer,
Who would rather unearth treasures
Than save an eye or ear.

Among my dancing marigolds
There is some broken glass,
An old watch fob, a paring knife,
And trinkets made of brass.

A pencil and a rusty spoon—
A disappointing quest,
This hunt for gold and silver
From some king's treasure chest.

Tin cans, refuse, clothes pins galore,
A string of dime store beads,
And many weather beaten nails
Lie hidden in the weeds.

There are no jewels to be found;
Yet just to touch the sod
Makes me richer than a king,
For here I'm shaking hands with God!

CARL WINFRED SNYDER.

Fruit soups—hot or chilled—are nourishing and refreshing for August days, especially if you follow the old time rules that use cereal for thickening.

Mrs. B. C., Chicago—I wonder when scientists will devise a concoction to sprinkle over poison ivy and take the "poison" out of it? This would be a big help to many people in the good old summer time!

Mrs. Lily C., Elgin, Ill.—I take a length of inner tube, clean it and cement one end shut. Then I sew this inside golf bag to hold umbrella. It takes little space and is a handy convenience.

L. N. B., Chicago—Did you ever make citronella candles as a help against mosquitoes? They aren't hard to make and useful for open porch or terrace on hot nights. Have some small tin cans handy and then melt a pound of paraffin, half an ounce of spirits of camphor and half an ounce of oil of citronella. [You can double this amount if you wish.] Grease cans, use a soft wrapping cord as a wick and hold it down center of can as you pour in your mixture. Your "candle" is then ready to light, when mixture is cold, and the insects won't care so much to linger around you.

Eleanor T., Kansas City, Mo.—I have found that if I leave something cooking for quite a time on the stove and go to some other part of house to work, it is easy to set the alarm clock for time I should return to the kitchen and look after food. This precaution has saved me many a burned dish.

* *

Mrs. Elaine T., Chicago—Wouldn't it make for easier "punching" if all evaporated milk cans had indentations in their tops to indicate best places for punching?

* *

Helen T., Chicago—I fall back on a little cornstarch to save on rubbing when it comes to waxing the family bus. After I have waxed a small portion in usual way I apply a bit of dry cornstarch with a clean piece of cheesecloth. By rubbing on this cornstarch the luster is quickly brought out. If any dusty white remains from the starch I wipe this off at the end.

* *

Mrs. D. Perry, Chicago—My husband fitted a vacuum cup on the end of my egg beater. This has silenced much of the noise and also keeps the beater straight and prevents it slipping and sliding in the bowl.

* *

Mrs. T. B., Evanston—I keep paper baking cups on hand and my husband uses them as containers for paints and varnishes when he is doing small touch-up jobs around the house. They can be thrown away when the work is done.

Animal Census.

Wyoming contains 35,000 elk, 60,000 mule deer, 2,000 whitetail deer, 33,000 antelope, 3,300 moose, 2,500 Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, 1,500 black bear, 926 buffalo [90 per cent in Yellowstone National park], and 460 grizzly bears.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

A new fur coat is the white man's burden and this fall, if I'm any judge, man is going to have a tough time evading it. Fur coats are primed and ready, and the styles are about the handsomest I have ever seen. With this month's price offerings used as bait to tempt the forehanded shopper, things look black for father's pocketbook in August.

There are important fashion points the fur shopper will need to know. It gives me unbridled pleasure to announce that superpadded, hunchback shoulders are out. This year's are gently rounded, broad but padded with sanity, and the naturally rounded tip is a big point.

All sleeves are wider and most have deeper armholes. The boxy silhouette is far more numerous than fitted models. Tunic coats in shorter length are new.

Marion Pohlmann Wed to Ralph Berger on June 21

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad A. Pohlmann of North La Vergne avenue announce the marriage on June 21 of their daughter, Marion, and Ralph Wesley Berger. The bride attended Mundelein college and the Chicago Teachers college. Mr. Berger is a graduate of the University of Illinois. He and his bride will make their home in Anderson, Ind.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

Aug. 3, 1941.

Universal day—An active day. Seek authority and promotion.

How to find your vocation number—The number of the day on which you were born is your vocation number. It is the date which is important, not the day such as Wednesday or Sunday. In numerology we work with numbers, so it is the date which we use. Thus if you were born on the 3d of any month, No. 3 is your vocation number. Three also is your vocation number if you were born on the 12th, 21st, or 30th, because we reduce the double numbers to a single digit. Thus one plus two equals three. If you were born on the 15th of any month, your vocation number would be six [one plus five equals six]. We use the nine single digits in making these calculations. If you want to reduce any number such as your house number or auto license number, you add straight across, like this: 3587—three plus five plus eight plus seven equals 23, reduced to a single digit [two plus three] equals five.

Miss Mazy Goss Will Be Bride of Sherwood Frey

Miss Mazy Goss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Goss of Evanston, and Sherwood C. Frey, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Frey of Chicago, are to be married next Saturday morning in St. Vincent de Paul church with a breakfast following at the Orrington hotel and later a reception at the Goss home. Miss Goss and her fiancé, who will live in Washington, are graduates of De Paul university.

You Can Bleach Your Skin to a Lighter, Prettier Hue with Mercolized Wax Cream

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. The action takes place so gradually that the actual flaking process is not visible. But soon you become aware of the improved appearance of your complexion. Start bleaching your skin tonight using Mercolized Wax Cream according to directions and you will be pleased.

REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Goodman Band Packs Them in Panther Room

By Will Davidson.

There used to be a popular song about how "A Goodman is hard to find." Well, he still is.

Walk into the Hotel Sherman and you'll see posters and marquee lights advertising Benny Goodman. Trot downstairs to the Panther room and you'll hear wisps of music that tell your ears the posters were correct. But walk into the room during a dance set and if you can find Benny you'd do well to hire out as a needle hunter in the haystack country.

He's there, all right, but behind a façade of fanatics standing on the dance floor. That's the kind of a popular lad this Goodman is.

With all his reputation for swing kingship, Benny plays some of the most comfortable dinner music heard in the Panther room for many a month. It never loses its persuasive beat—it simply proves that good swing is not strictly dependent upon lung power. The Goodman arrangements as conceived by Fletcher Henderson and Eddie Sauter are a compliment to the intelligence of the modern dance crowd. They prove brilliantly the Goodman contention that serious music has no inherent monopoly on quality—that, in fact, an intelligent musical interpretation of a fundamental emotion can have as much importance and as much intrinsic value as a cleverly conceived exercise of mere academic technique.

Mr. Goodman's acceptance as a musician of quality is now fairly well established. He can and frequently does play with a recognized ability what is amiably known as "long-hair" music. Further, he has the knack of selecting musicians who, thru either training or instinct, can work wonders with instruments generally relegated to a supporting rôle. Prime example is Big Sid Catlett, who not only is a superb rhythm man, but who gets the most surprising musical effects out of his drums. Percussion instruments to him are things to be treated lovingly, not knocked out in a jungle frenzy of unadulterated tempo.

Helen Forrest and Tommy Taylor are admirable vocalists for Goodman. And such performers as Cootie Williams, Vido Musso, and Charlie Christian provide some entertaining musical interludes.

Carl Marx, the clown of clowns, retains his standing as the Panther room's comedy hit, and Coleman Clark and his table tennis troupe are holdover entertainers.

Chicago is going to have its second introduction to a flashing new interpretation of gypsy dancing Aug. 20 when Carmen Amaya makes her Chicago debut at Chez Paree. Amaya is a blast furnace in rhythm, an explosive, incendiary personality such as is seldom seen on American floors. Different as she is, she has one thing in common with the Kids from Seville, now at the Palmer House—she is a superb interpreter of authentic native dances. Others in the new Chez show will be Cross and Dunn, Bernice Parks, and the grand orchestras of Boyd Raeburn and Bobby Ramos.

Bonnie Baker.
[Seymour photo.]

Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker return to the Beach Walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel Saturday night. The supporting show will feature dancers Delores and Albin, and the Dorothy Dorben line.

Winnie Hoveler, who achieved a measure of national recognition for her dancing line work at Harry's New Yorker, and since has continued her success in the east, returns to Chicago as a unit act, opening Saturday at Villa Moderne. She will feature her famous aerial ballet, and several new gaucho and military routines. Bob Strong's band continues.

Sammy Kaye swings and sways for one night tonight at the Trianon ballroom, sharing the evening with Jan Garber, who will be followed Tuesday by Clyde Knight, a newcomer. Art Kassel continues at the Aragon.

Harry's New Yorker has a new show on display already: Mory Amsterdam, Jules and Joanne Walton, Paul Regan, Doris Du Pont, and Mary Ann Russell.

Skill in Use of Flowers Is Amply Repaid

By Claire Winslow.

Now that flowers are running riot in the garden and foliage is at its most verdant it's a good time to give a little consideration to artistic arrangement and to containers and the little mechanical aids that simplify this pleasant task.

During the last few years, thanks to our beautiful garden club shows and to much information in books and periodicals, such interest in flower composition has been aroused that one seldom sees the hopeless jumbles that used to pass as arrangements. The truth is that it's just as easy to make a pleasing, harmonious grouping of blooms as it is to dump them, willy-nilly, in a vase or bowl and let it go at that.

A few general rules are all it's necessary to know. For example, one suits the container to the flowers. Pottery, copper, pewter, and brass for the coarser types of blooms and foliage; porcelain, glass, crystal, and silver for the delicate, hothouse type of flower. Also, plan the arrangement in relationship to its surroundings. It must be in pleasing proportion to nearby objects such as books, or a lamp or a mirror or picture.

• • •

We have in mind a small entrance hall in which there is a mahogany drop leaf table. A mirror, vertical in line, is hung just above in such a way as to reflect the flowers which are always kept on the table. The effect is a charming picture. The container, naturally, is rather high to follow the rectangular line of the mirror and the wall on which it is hung.

Now, about gadgets for bringing order out of chaos in your bowl or vase. If the container is low and shallow needlepoint holders of several sizes and shapes are suggested. If you wish to conceal them you can use the little crystal balls made especially for the purpose, or common or garden pebbles or stones, or leaves, or colored sand which comes in bottles now and also is especially made for this camouflage job.

Besides needlepoint holders there are artistic soft lead ones which you twist into any shape you like and which are particularly good for small water plants such as the Chinese evergreen, philodendron, etc.

• • •

For the pottery bowl, jar or vase use chicken wire, jammed securely in place. You'll find it so efficient you'll never be without it.

Experts also like arbor vitae to hold arrangements in place. You can crush it and use it under water in glass containers where you couldn't use chicken wire.

The most beautiful arrangements are made in the simplest containers. The Chinese pillow [a plain, rectangular pottery or china jar]; a shallow round or rectangular dish or bowl; a vase with a flaring top, a glass urn-shaped vase—all are ideal for flowers.

The photograph today shows an urn of the finest American made glass. Note its simplicity and fine proportions.

Proving Citizenship to Be Woman's City Club Topic

"Can You Prove that You Are an American Citizen?" will be the topic of Miss Elizabeth N. Wilson, assistant director of the Immigrants' Protective league, at a meeting of the Woman's City club Tuesday afternoon at headquarters, 410 South Michigan avenue. Thru her work in the city election commissioners' office at the time of permanent registration of voters, Miss Wilson helped hundreds of Chicagoans to prove their citizenship. The meeting is the last in a series, "Mrs. John Q. Public Meets Her Government," which has been presented at the club this summer. Tea will be served with Mrs. William E. Duffell, social chairman, in charge.

Miss Ileana Fischman Is Married to Melvin Fagen

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Ileana Fischman and Melvin M. Fagen, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fagen of Chicago. Mr. Fagen is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and took postgraduate work at the Sorbonne. He and his bride are at home in Washington, D. C.

This beautiful American made glass urn makes an ideal flower container because of its graceful lines and its pleasing proportions. It is one of a number of shapes available in this same ware.

Book Outlines the History of Mexican Art

By Edith Weigle.

The big new book of MacKinley Helm's, "Modern Mexican Painters," published by Harper, is of especial interest to Chicagoans just now, when the work of a whole group of these younger artists about whom so little is known here is to be seen in the current International Water Color exhibition at the Art institute. Mr. Helm spent two years in Mexico studying the output of both famous and obscure, of the already there and the coming, and this fascinating volume, illustrated with 82 photographs of paintings, was the result of his research.

In it he tells the history of contemporary Mexican art, explaining that there is no "school" of modernists in Mexico, as each man is a law unto himself, an individualist, but that together these artists have produced a renaissance which is as colorful and varied as it is important. Beginning about 1910, it is sweeping forward in a strong tide today.

And of this array of talent a number of names in the catalog of the International Water Color exhibition are found in Mr. Helm's book. The reader thus can become acquainted with the work, background, and personalities of the following: Raul Auguiano, Dr. Atl, Manuel Echauri, Jesus Guerrero Galvan, Maria Izquierdo and Raul Uribe [her husband], Augustin Lazo, Guillermo Meza, Isidro Ocampo, Paul O'Higgins, Feliciano Pena, Paz Perez, Carlos Orozco Romero, Juan Soriano, Rufino Tamayo, and Alfredo Zalce.

One of the most arresting paintings in the entire show is "The Bathers," by Guillermo Meza, for whom Mr. Helm has words of highest praise. He calls this 20 year old Mexican "a fresh, original, and authentic character in the world of art," and adds, "It does not often happen that a man can take another by the hand and say, 'This is my friend. He is going to be great.'" There is this undeniable feeling of greatness about "The Bathers" and about the works shown in photographs in Mr. Helm's book.

So is there also about the works of Jesus Guerrero Galvan. Dr. Atl has been known for many years in Mexico. And Mr. Helm calls Maria Izquierdo one of the two most distinguished women painters in Mexico, the other being Frida Kahlo, according to his estimation. [Frida Kahlo was one of the wives of Diego Rivera.] Maria Izquierdo is represented by the richly colored gouache, "The Humble Dressing Room," in the current show.

"Modern Mexican Painters" is written with such clarity and charm and its subject matter is so lively and intriguing that it is highly readable for itself as well as for the wealth of information it holds. The most casual layman will be stimulated to wider vision after perusing its pages.

The Hoosier Salon Patrons' association and three other Indiana organizations announce a garden festival to be held on the 80 acre estate of Mark C. Honeywell at Wabash, Ind., Aug. 10-17. Aug. 14 will be Hoosier Salon Patrons' Association day with a luncheon for 150 given by Mr. Honeywell. Officers of the salon will speak.

Mrs. J. E. P. Holland of Bloomington is president; Mrs. Leonidas Smith of Indianapolis, executive secretary, and Mrs. C. B. King of Chicago, retiring executive chairman. When the Chicago salon of the association was closed this last Wednesday after 18 years, Mrs. King was presented with a diamond watch by members of the board of trustees as a memento of her many years of faithful service and encouragement to the artists of Indiana.

During the festival at Wabash there will be an exhibition of paintings by members of the Hoosier salon group, among them Curry Bohm, Georges LaChance, Dales Bessire, Carl Graf, Paul Hadley, and V. J. Cariani. Those named also will be on hand, painting on the Honeywell estate during the week.

The board of trustees of the University of Illinois has appointed the American painter, Frederic Taubes, as Carnegie visiting professor of art for the year 1941-42. Mr. Taubes' paintings are in a number of museums, including the Metropolitan in New York, the Fine Arts in San Diego, the San Francisco museum, and Mills college. Last summer the artist taught at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu and in 1939 at Mills college. Now 40, Taubes studied painting with Von Stuck and Doerner in Munich, Vienna, Florence, and Paris, as well as at the Bauhaus at Weimar.

His recent book, "The Technique of Oil Painting" [Dodd Mead, $2,75], explains a number of the underlying principles and techniques of painting, among them the best methods of underpainting and preparing a canvas. It is more of an aid to the professional than to the man or woman who dabbles with oils as a hobby.

Beauty of Rio Breathtaking, Writes Visitor

By Cousin Eve.

RIO DE JANEIRO, BRAZIL.

Words failed me when Raoul Regis de Oliviera asked: "What do you think of Rio?" We were driving back to the Gloria in his car and one couldn't sidestep. There hadn't been time to prepare a formula as yet, or to think what I really thought of Rio. We were whirling north along the sea from Ispanema, by tree shaded avenidas ablaze with loops and chains of sparkling light, like so many necklets of Brazilian diamonds.

On our left was an endless line of creamy great houses and tall new apartments rising into the starry sky. They were opulent and very grand. But back of them was the hodgepodge of short, indefinite streets ending in mountains, where the poorer people are. The Organ mountains are Rio's backdoor. Her front door is the sea—a consummate waterfront city. A million or so inhabitants are clustered at the foot of these steep mountains. Maybe in another hundred years they'll build on the mountains among the charming little monkeys and parrots.

• • •

Owing to its singular waterfront configuration Rio de Janeiro has only a few fine streets outside the sea drives. Avenida de Branco is one, the famous heart of business and shopping, thronged day and night. Rua Sao Clemente is another, a fashionable street with several embassies, including our own, and a string of beautiful private palaces as well.

The acute housing shortage is spoiling the daytime beauty of Rio. A high wall of new apartments has been run up all along the sea. It also cuts off the cool sea air from the people on the back streets, who soon will be sweltering in intolerable September heat.

Had the fascinating ex-ambassador to England, Señor Oliviera, asked me what I felt about Rio—ah! That was another dish of tea. Rio is one great emotion from start to finish. Never have one's feelings been so overworked as they are at Rio. From the first morning gaze at the blue panorama of the famous Guanabara bay to the last good-night wave at the Southern Cross, I am being broiled over a hot fire of beauty. Everywhere you go, everything you do is beautiful.

There is no city in the world that has the dash and dazzle of Rio. Its speed, its vehemence, the undercurrents of its hidden life leave one breathless.

I told Señor Oliviera that some new adjectives would have to be coined to fit President Getulio Vargas' delightful capital.

• • •

Rio is about as old as Boston. History says Brazil was founded in 1500 by the Portuguese. The Spanish, however, took over in 1580 and held tight until 1640 when the country became again a Portuguese colony.

History also says that in 1807 Napoleon threatened to invade Portugal and King John VI., becoming alarmed, accepted the highly intelligent offer of Great Britain. This was to transport the king with his family and entire court to Rio de Janeiro in the British fleet. In return, Brazilian ports were to be thrown open to British trade, and on Jan. 24, 1808, King John VI. landed at Rio in the magnificent harbor, and the ports were duly opened in the greatest and most profitable shipping deal known to recorded facts.

• • •

In 1815 Brazil became a kingdom. In 1818 King John moved back to Portugal with his court, leaving his son, Dom Pedro, as prince regent. In 1822 the regent became first emperor of Brazil, Dom Pedro I., and created many a breeze. By these dates it is apparent that the British moved in 133 years ago and proceeded to establish trade. The Germans haven't been in Brazil so long. Seventy-five years will cover the date of their colonization, and the Italians came later yet, having settled by the million up country in Sao Paulo in the last half century.

There are almost no good roads in Brazil beyond one out of Santos, and a westerly road out of Rio to Petropolis in the mountains. And a delightful sort of Grand Corniche along the sea to the south which I followed one day with Mrs. Jefferson Caffery, who also saw it for the first time.

Brazil is a country whose rich fertility is capable of supporting a population of nine hundred millions, yet—after four centuries and a half—has few roads to speak of and the poorest railroads on earth. Travel is mostly by air. And the regular coastal boat services are always crowded.

Two things have slowed down the progress of Brazil—climate and jungle. The interior is a fiery furnace, and few persons have pierced the jungle and survived to tell a tale. There are no large towns away from the seacoast, and there are reckoned 41 million Brazilians, of whom the greater part are said to be half civilized or full blown savages.

• • •

One morning out of a clear sky a sallow Brazilian gentleman called on me with a visiting card and all, saying that the D. I. P. had sent him. This I gathered had to do with press and propaganda. He had been, it seems, a guide for Douglas Fairbanks Jr. on his recent flit thru Rio, and he had left him a souvenir cigaret case. What did I wish to see?

"Historical things," said I. "Palaces, museums, the lovely churches, collections, the botanical gardens, and so on. And I'd like to see President Vargas," I added, wishing to say the right thing, and not being quite sure if I wanted to see him. My Portuguese isn't what it should be, and the perennial Brazilian president speaks nothing else.

My last remark must have alarmed my visitor, for I never saw him again or heard another peep from press and propaganda. But I did see the historic sights of Rio with an embassy car and an attractive young secretary as guide, philosopher, and friend.

It took us two half days.

• • •

Rio de Janeiro has a Portuguese background, and knowing Portugal of old, I had no illusions that past grandeurs of the Brazilian empire would be different.

They were, in fact, pathetically crude, those old palaces and their furnishings, and monuments of bad taste. But the ancient churches of Rio, three perched on high hills above the shadow, gray back streets, were gorgeous jewel boxes in rococo style that even Rome itself cannot surpass.

We first inspected from the outside the Brazilian White House, Guanabara palace, a one story yellow bungalow of size and splendor in marvelous tropical gardens, behind tall iron gates, guarded day and night by troops.

It is here that President Vargas gives splendid fêtes to hundreds of his political and diplomatic friends. But since the visit of Gen. George Marshall from Washington and Countess Edda Mussolini Ciano from Rome, when he was present with his personal guard of crack shots, President Vargas does not appear at his own parties. This guard is romantically caparisoned in white uniforms in combinations of black, emerald green and silver, with tall gorgeous shakos, swords and presumably hidden artillery. These truculent young men spread themselves most realistically around the chief whenever he goes forth.

Madame Vargas in season gives garden parties or small teas to her close friends in the formal gardens. At the back these merge into the deep foliage and rich tropical undergrowth of Corcovado, the high mountain dominating the city.

• • •

Next we visited Cattete palace, where are the business offices of the president in a modern four story mansion with wings, in a quiet sector. From there we sped to an ancient quarter where is Boa Vista, the hard bitten palace of Dom Pedro I., now a natural history museum. Of native granite, the palace tops a rise in a tropical park and my guide and I found it depressing. Upstairs in the former state suite is the tottery, red velvet throne, and here and there was a piece of moldering furniture.

The brightest exhibit of all were collections of jewels in a natural state from Brazil's hinterland. They were in their native rock and behind glass—amethysts, emeralds, jet, aquamarines, topaz, and many diamonds, including replicas of huge famous stones. We were dazzled by the wealth it implied. And then after a rapid sprint thru the Indian exhibits, mummeries, weapons, and tribal things we were out and on our way to see the famous yellow house of the Marchesa da Santos nearby, where they housed the Rockefeller group when it was in Rio. There it was, near the palace on raised ground, and here Dom Pedro visited his Madame de Pompadour for long years. One letter he wrote the marchesa still survives and I saw it next day in the ancient palace museum. And that letter made it seem alive and real, altho I was surrounded at the time by a lady guide appointed by the curator, my own embassy guide, also the custodian of the key that locked the safe, and two café au lait guards with swords and bayonets, who were panting hotly at my elbow.

Next we climbed a hill, in the car, to the Monastero St. Benta, a very famous place with a view over all Rio. Not that the monastero did me much good. A delighted old Benedictine monk announced that ladies couldn't possibly go in, but he would open the door wide when he and my companion entered, so that I could have a nice peek at famous wood carvings and rococo gildings of three hundred years ago.

Then I went alone into the church of the monastery, Notre Dame de Montserrat, and found I needed smoked glasses with the golden gorgeousness of it. In the choir the Benedictine fathers were intoning a vesper service and I seemed to be back again overseas in old Spain. Here were the oldest paintings in Brazil. The walls of the small church were chiseled from the hard Brazilian wood and heavily gilt, while the carven statues of militant saints shone forth in rich colors. The ancient lanterns were of heavy silver.

• • •

I sat a long time listening to the rhythmic prayers of the monks. Presently my guide came in from the monastero to tell me of the wonders he had seen. The poor chap was gasping for words to describe the splendors he had beheld inside. First of all, everything was all carved and gilded, except where it was paneled gray with lovely rococo mirrors set in. And every monk had his own chic little cell with gray paneled walls and elegant furniture. And they had a library and marvelous flower gardens with views of the town and bay. Also they had their own private chapel, all gray and gilt, a gorgeous altar and trimmings, "and just think, their own chef!" said he.

Not having shared in this ecstatic vision, I said that it sounded very much like the Place Vendome side of the Ritz, and not a bit like a Portuguese monastero.

But if the Church of Our Lady of Montserrat was an eye opener, the next day on our rampage in search of history we took an elevator in a stone cliff, and found two even more rococo churches, snuggling together on top of a rocky hill. San Antonio was one church, and the other was San Francesco. They were small and might have been the private chapels of any sun king so dazzlingly were they overcast with gold, and so richly were they carved and inlaid. In a garden back of San Antonio was a crude small chapel where was the velvet covered tomb of Leopoldina, first empress of Brazil. There were several other tombs of exiled Hapsburgs, one with a baby's coffin.

• • •

San Francesco was gayer, and a guide led us to a terrace at the rear, with a fountain, old stone seats, and a view out over the rushing stream of life in Rio's sweat shops and narrow streets. Over yonder were silver lined clouds, purple masses, and the twin towers of a Spanish church, where bells began to clang, ding, dong, ding, dong, as they had clanged over Rio for more than a brace of centuries.

Behind the garden we found a mortuary chapel. Its marble slabbed walls were dotted by numbers where lay long-gone Brazilians in utmost privacy—no names, no worthless epitaphs. I thought it was an excellent idea.

The old museum near the Santos Dumont airport was crude and quaint and charming. It had cabinets for the collections of Señor Calman, a very big shot of other days, and rooms full of souvenirs of Dom Pedro II., with stony-eyed portraits and wide-mouthed statues of all concerned. It was formerly a royal abode built around a patio, and not a cheerful place. But the letter of Dom Pedro I. to his love upstairs in a glass case supplied enough fervor to romanticize the whole.

The curator told me beforehand what was in the letter—an inky, blotted affair in Portuguese. It began: "Ma Chére," and its gist was that inasmuch as their love began on the date Brazil had her independence, it couldn't possibly be a crime. The signature in a bold hand was "Empereur." Rather melodramatic, I thought.

Across the sala is a portrait of Marchesa da Santos, and here was one tight-lipped, sallow-faced vamp with steely eyes. I couldn't get steamed up over her. Neither could my guide.

While I was taking time seeing sights the intense life of Rio was going forward. Charming people, little runs to the country, daily luncheons and cocktails, teas, and a never ending variety of dinners colored our days and nights in a fascinating way, of which more anon.

MARRIED IN JUNE

Mrs. Edwin G. Richer is the former Jane Mary Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Joseph Armstrong of Columbia avenue. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer J. Richer of Albion avenue took place in June at St. Ignatius church. Mr. Richer, a graduate of the University of Notre Dame, and his bride, who attended Mundelein, are at home in Magnolia avenue.

The wedding is to take place in the Chudnow home in Long Beach, and Mr. Chudnow and his bride will make their home there. Miss Roth attended Rockford college. Mr. and Mrs. Roth will go west for the wedding.

Festival Lunch Guests to Hear Airmen's Song

Thirty-five khaki-clad lads from Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., will sing an airmen's song at the fifth annual Chicagoland Music Festival luncheon to be held Friday, Aug. 15, in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. They are members of the Wing Chorus of the army's 38th school squadron. Their song includes a remarkable imitation of the sound of an airplane in flight. First Lieutenant F. E. Hammond, the officer in charge, will accompany the group to Chicago.

Mrs. Oscar Ahlgren.
[Charmaine Photo.]

National defense will share the spotlight with home defense at the luncheon. The Chicago Firemen's chorus of 15, which made its debut at the recent Chicago Police and Fire Thrill show sponsored by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field, also will be presented. This chorus' song, appropriately, will be "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

• • •

The Bengal Guards, a band of more than 100 high school girls, again are coming from Orange, Tex., to play at the luncheon and to take part in the music festival the following evening, Aug. 16, at Soldiers' field. H. J. Lutcher Stark, who sponsors the band, is bringing them to Chicago by special train just in time for the luncheon.

Albert Cotsworth, 90 year old musician and music critic, is coming from his summer home at Walworth, Wis., to give the benediction at the luncheon. Until a year ago Mr. Cotsworth wrote criticisms for the Music News, of which he is emeritus associate editor. He also gained distinction as an organist and choir director.

Incidentally, Mr. Cotsworth was born in Lafayette, Ind., near which city John T. McCutcheon also was born. The veteran cartoonist is to be the principal speaker at the luncheon, and another Hoosier, George Ade, is to introduce him.

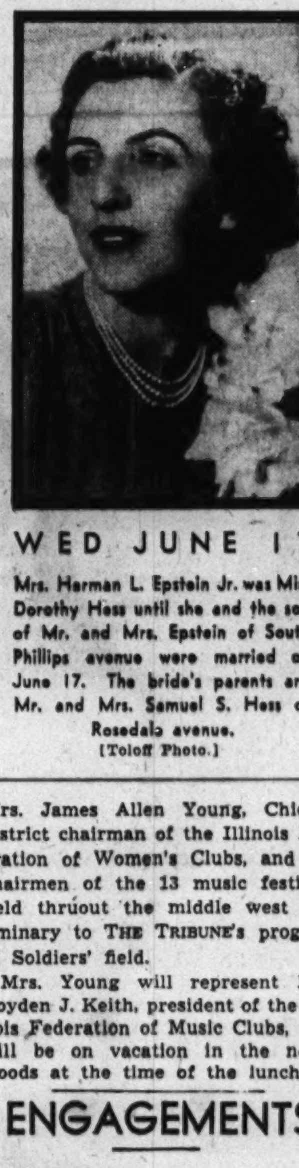
• • •

One of several surprises on the luncheon program will be a fashion revue prepared with the assistance of Miss Rea Seeger, fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE. There will be community singing led by Frank Bennett and Carl Craven, who each year lead the community singing at the festival.

Mrs. J. G. Shakman.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. James G. Shakman, president of the Woman's Symphony Orchestral association, will be among the distinguished musicians and music lovers who will be seated at the speakers' table. Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren of Whiting, president of the Indiana Federation of Women's Clubs, also will be at the speakers' table, as will Hans Lange, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Edith Mason, opera singer; Ernest J. Kruetgen, music patron and postmaster of Chicago; Mrs. James Allen Young, Chicago district chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and the chairmen of the 13 music festivals held thruout the middle west preliminary to THE TRIBUNE's program in Soldiers' field.

Mrs. Young will represent Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, who will be on vacation in the north woods at the time of the luncheon.



WED JUNE 17

Mrs. Herman L. Epstein Jr. was Miss Dorothy Hess until she and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Epstein of South Phillips avenue were married on June 17. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Hess of Rosedale avenue.

Chicagoans in New Hampshire Fete Visitors

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr. of Chicago, who is cozily established in Whitefield in a little cottage furnished with rare early American furniture and, as its name Mostly Trees implies, nestled in a grove of lovely trees, has been entertaining Mrs. J. H. Durrell of Scarboro, N. Y., Mr. Erminger is expected to join Mrs. Erminger soon.

Mrs. Robert W. Edge [Elizabeth Glessner] and her daughters, Misses Ann and Alice Edge, have a house on Farr Hill at Littleton this season across the Ammonoosuc Valley from the estate of her mother, Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner, at Littleton. Mrs. Edge gave a buffet dinner on Wednesday evening at which many of the Sugar Hill Franconia cottage colony were invited, also Mrs. Edge's sister, Mme. Rene Mathey, who with her family is with Mrs. Glessner at The Ledge.

• • •

Miss Emily Glessner, home from Boston and her war relief work for a holiday at The Ledge, gave a picnic supper there on Tuesday night having her sisters and their families, her guest, Miss Helen Cabot of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell R. Burch of the Cottage colony. Mr. Burch formerly resided in Chicago. All were guests this week at a buffet dinner given at their log house in Franconia by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Symmes Jr., and also at a cocktail party given there.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole have leased one of their cottages to Prof. Leland Rex Robinson and his family, who were joined there this week by Mrs. Robinson's mother, Mrs. George Ball of Muncie, Ind. They all drove to Spalding Inn, Whitefield, to dine this week. They spent several summers there in past seasons.

Arrivals at the Mount Washington, Bretton Woods, include Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Frisbie Jr. of Evanston with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Frisbie Sr., and Herbert Frisbie of New Britain, Conn., with whom they are touring the mountains.

• • •

L. E. Phillips of Springfield is at the Forest Hills, Franconia. Mrs. E. C. Swadener, Mrs. John E. Wilder and Mrs. John L. Porter of Evanston spent a few days at Pecketts on Sugar Hill while on a motor tour of the mountain resorts. Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Taussig of Chicago were recent arrivals there.

Mrs. Glessner Lee sent a beautiful collection of flowers from her gardens at Littleton on Wednesday to exhibit at the regional meeting there of the New Hampshire Federation of Garden clubs, acknowledged to be the finest exhibit of the many held there.

Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner was among those attending the benefit performance of the Forty-Niners on Thursday night at Chase Barn theater, Whitefield, for the benefit of the British War Relief society. The company sponsored by Mrs. Lucy Chase Sparks of Alton, Ill., and Whitefield presented "Spring Meeting."

Lake Geneva Is Hub of Week's Society Events

By Judith Cass.

It's just as well there's not much going on in and about Chicago this week, for there will be lots of activity for golfers and gardeners to the north. The annual Lake Geneva Flower show will attract its usual large quota of visitors on Friday, Saturday and Sunday when the beautiful display will be open to the public in Horticultural hall, Lake Geneva, Wis.

The annual men's invitational golf tournament at the Lake Geneva Country club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday will add to the complications of Lake Geneva hostesses over the week-end, but it also will provide entertainment for the husbands of garden loving wives.

It is the 44th year the golf tournament has been held, and any one with an invitation to this famous gathering thinks twice before turning it down. A second tournament, to be played concurrently with the invitational, will be for the Charles R. Crane III. trophy. Members of the club under 25 years of age only are eligible. The winner may keep the handsome cup for one year.

A stag dinner on Friday night and a dinner-dance and the awarding of prizes on Saturday have been planned for the entertainment of the players.

• • •

The flower show is completely different every year, and always refreshing. Perhaps the dozens of varieties of vegetables and fruits, all scrubbed and appealingly arranged, and the fragrance of the goods in the bakery booths, and the coolness of the dairy products in their frosty containers are even more attractive than the flower displays.

The main hall this year will be decorated with an old fashioned English dipping well in an old fashioned garden. Tea will be served in the outdoor patio, with vegetables, fruits, dairy products, garden accessories, cakes and cookies on sale in various booths. Table settings arranged by some of the lake's best known hostesses will be on view in the patio, too.

The admission price will be reduced considerably on the final day so that whole families may come without straining the budget. Instead of auctioning off the flower and fruit displays as at past two-day shows, the committee will send those in good condition to Holiday Home, which receives one-third of the proceeds from the show. The Gardeners' and Foremen's association, whose hard working members are of invaluable assistance in preparing and running the exhibit, receives another third, and the Lake Geneva Garden club takes the remainder.

• • •

One curious and puzzling fact about the show is the lack of attendance on the part of young men. It's easily understood that there are, from their point of view, better things to do than to look at prizewinning posies, champion vegetables, and giant sized fruits. But how they can keep away from the patio at tea time is incomprehensible, for then the hall is crowded with the prettiest young women imaginable, all being helpful by serving cooling drinks, cakes, pies, etc. Debutante Ada Blanche Wrigley and her subdeb sister, Dee Dee; Subdebs Pamela Finney, Barbara Wakeley, Joan Johnson, Suzanne Warner, and Elizabeth Hettler are just a few of the volunteer waitresses whose average in beauty is 100 per cent.

Acting as hostesses for the garden club will be a number of women who have taken a leading part in these flower shows for many years. Among them are Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, Mrs. Simeon B. Chapen, Mrs. Alfred Craven, Mrs. Charles Frank, Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, Mrs. Albert W. Harris, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, whose husband is head of the country club; Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, Mrs. Bradford W. Ripley, Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt, Mrs. Nelson Tevander, and Mrs. Robert Whitaker.

Nearer at hand is a flower show the Ravinia Garden club and the Garden class of the Highland Park Women's club are giving on Tuesday and Wednesday at the Moraine-on-the-Lake in Highland Park. Mrs. Oliver S. Turner is chairman of the show, from which the proceeds will go to the USO.

• • •

The Garden Club of Illinois will hold its monthly meeting at the Barrington Hills Country club tomorrow as guest of the Barrington Garden club. Miss Elizabeth Howland, president of the Barrington club, is on the board of directors of the Garden Club of Illinois and chairman of its speakers' bureau. Miss Louise Wood will speak on "Flower Symbolism in Renaissance of Painting."

The Midwest Gladiolus society will hold its first show at the Garfield park conservatory next Saturday and Sunday. It will be the largest gladiolus exhibit ever held in this country, with over 5,500 entries.

Now that Arlington Park has closed, racing fans are heading for Washington Park every afternoon. The Washington Park Juvenile stakes and the Sheridan handicap will be featured races next Saturday.

Georg Szell will conclude a week's engagement as guest conductor with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia Park this afternoon. Pierre Monteux, conductor of the San Francisco Symphony, will take over the baton for this week's concerts.

TO BE MARRIED IN FALL

Miss Harriet-Joy Beil, whose engagement to Michael Curtis Quinn of Appleton, Wis., is announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harry H. Beil of Parnell avenue. Miss Beil attended Monticello college and was graduated from Mount Mary college in Milwaukee. Mr. Quinn is a graduate of Marquette university. The wedding will take place this fall.

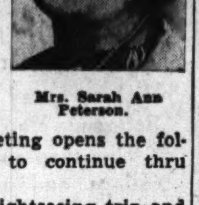
Chicagoans Will Attend Isabella 13th Convention

Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson and Mrs. Minerva C. Boyd will head a large delegation from Chicago to the 13th biennial convention of the national circle, Daughters of Isabella, next week at St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. Peterson, who is Illinois state regent, and Mrs. Boyd, a former national regent, will leave with their party Sunday. The meeting opens the following Tuesday, to continue thru Friday, Aug. 15.



Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson.

A preliminary sightseeing trip and a luncheon at the Norwood Hills Country club are scheduled for Monday, Aug. 11. A pontifical mass will be celebrated Tuesday morning in the Cathedral of St. Louis. Delegates will attend the Municipal Opera company's open air presentation of "The Desert Song" that evening. The convention banquet is scheduled for Wednesday evening, and the Illinois state dinner, for Thursday evening, with Mrs. Anna A. Bier of Belleville in charge.

Recovery Will Have Its Annual Picnic Sunday

Eight teams will take part in a volley ball tournament at the annual picnic of Recovery next Sunday at Thatcher's woods, North avenue and Thatcher road. Baseball also will be on the day's program, which has been planned by Mrs. Annette Brocken. The 800 members of Recovery include more than 150 former mental patients of the psychiatric institute of the University of Illinois, and other mental hospitals, as well as more than 600 relatives and friends interested in the association's activities to help recovered patients readjust themselves to normal life.

Beach parties and a boat trip are among the current activities of the eight groups into which the association is divided. Thomas P. Flynn is handling arrangements for transportation next Sunday for those who do not have cars.

Illinois PTA to Have Exhibit at State Fair

The Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will have an exhibit at the Illinois state fair to be held from next Saturday thru Aug. 17 at Springfield, Ill. Wednesday, Aug. 13, will be President's day, on which Mrs. F. Russell Lyon of Chicago, state president, will visit the congress' booth on the balcony of the exposition building.

Assisting as hostesses each day at the booth will be members of the state board of managers and of the Springfield council of parent-teacher associations.

Alpha Sigma Alpha Will Hold National Conclave

Alpha Sigma Alpha national professional sorority will hold its 16th national convention from tomorrow thru Friday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Miss Evelyn Bell of Buffalo, N. Y., national president, will conduct the meeting, and Mrs. Grover C. Ramsey will be hostess on behalf of Chicago alumnae.

Yacht Dixonia Makes Its Last Cruise on Lake

By Lolita Linn.

ON BOARD THE DIXONIA. Like the perfect lady she is, Dixonia has spent the last hours of her carefree yachting life calling on old friends. Of course, that life may come again. But "for the duration" the flag of its owner, Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, with its one lucky star will come down. In a few days the flag of the United States with its 48 stars will go up and for $1 a year the Dixonia will be at the service of the United States army.

Old friends have always had first claim on the Dixonia. She was named in honor of Dixon, Ill., where the late Charles R. Walgreen spent his young life, and where the Walgreen family and friends still gather at all seasons of the year.

When the Dixonia set sail a few days ago on her farewell round of calls in the harbors of Lake Michigan she carried a friendly crew, many of whom have been with her most of her sea-going life. The master of the ship, Ivar Jacobsen, learned his trade on sailing vessels calling in the harbors of the world. As sturdy a viking as ever cast his bright blue eyes seaward, Capt. Jacobsen is constantly being rescued by taxi drivers as he tries to find his way on Chicago streets. But just give him a nice stretch of heaving water and he will make for his chosen harbor with three minutes to spare. Capt. Jacobsen is well prepared for the experiences of war. Torpedoed in the Mediterranean, mined in the North sea, he served in the last war as a first lieutenant in the United States navy.

• • •

A very matter of fact internationalism exists in even as tiny a crew as that of the Dixonia. There is Frank, the assistant steward, from whose home in a tiny village on the Thames comes word of repeated bombings, but unflagging determination to "get on with it"; there are the two Norwegian sailors who awakened one morning in a South American port to find themselves without a country [we like the way these men bred to the rough life of a whaling vessel brighten up when Mrs. Walgreen comes on board]; there is the Danish boy who each night at sunset gathers in the Stars and Stripes—he sailed from Denmark two days before Hitler marched in.

After an uneasy night composed of three parts of "freshening" wind and one part lobster, to sail into Sturgeon bay is to think of old hymns about peaceful strands and heavenly harbors. But the cherries were ripe and the town of Sturgeon was far from slumbering. Her streets on Saturday night were crowded with cherry pickers beginning their seasonal round of Michigan fruit. They looked for all the world like the cotton pickers we had seen last winter in Arizona. Jostling them in the stores were the dark skinned descendants of Indians who must have once paddled their canoes up Sturgeon bay.

Far more typical of the serenity that seems to hover over Door county was the old man who sat on the curb holding a laden branch from a cherry tree. A rudely printed sign saved him all sales effort. It announced that cherries such as those he held were available at his nearby orchard for the picking and 30 cents a pail. He seemed well pleased with his sales campaign. The day before "just sitting" had sold $30 worth of cherries. Best of all, his wife took care of the orchard.

• • •

In true viking spirit, Jens Jensen, noted landscape artist of Chicago, established his school, The Clearing, where the waves beat highest along tiny Ellison bay. After asking directions of Mrs. Charles Karnopp of Winnetka, at whose pier we had landed, we started off over a trail that has been very little spoiled by civilization. Some might mention crawling under a barbed wire fence or anxiously skirting a bed of poison ivy, but our most vivid recollection is of coming out suddenly into a clearing and seeing before us a woodland cathedral. It was Sunday morning, so we hushed our voices and tiptoed in. Before us, instead of pews full of devout worshipers, were draftsmen's high tables covered with blueprints—the whole scene presided over by a window of surpassing height and narrowness. Apparently this was not a church, but a workroom designed for students by one whose whole life has been spent in the creation of beauty.

To the crew and the guests on the Dixonia who watched the end of the Chicago-Mackinac Island sailing races from noon, when the first comers proudly rounded the light, to the next morning, when weary stragglers were still "getting the gun," the fascination seemed to lie not in the time or outcome of the race but in the hardihood of men and women who trust to the caprice of the wind and their own skill while powerful engines lie silent beneath them.

Perhaps the prettiest sight of the races are the great white sails spread out on the beach to dry. We noticed that the care of these silken wings took precedence over rest and food.

• • •

Mackinac Island has, to our mind, always been a strange composite of honeymoon tales, of testimonials of hay fever victims, of the "longest front porch in the world," of bloody fights between the English and Americans, with the Indians doing most of the dirty work. Seen from our anchorage out in the harbor, Mackinac Island is a glorious seascape and "turtle back" of green woods by day, and a study in light and reflections by night.

There always is fascination in an island. But when you throw in the blackest cherries—acres of them—miles of shadowy woodland roads, cold springs of the purest water, two quiet lakes, a thousand deer, and bass that catch on almost before you drop your line [yes, they do]—then you have North Manitou Island. Masters of all they survey at North Manitou are Roger Sherman of Winnetka and W. R. Angell of Detroit. Each fall the department of conservation of Michigan declares an open season on the deer that inhabit the island, and hunters from Chicago come to try their luck. If the deer are as accommodating as the bass there should be good hunting indeed.

Fortunately for those of us who had longed to see a sailing ship "close up," Jevne Haugan of Chicago invited us aboard the motor-sailer Sunbeam at Waukegan. We marveled at its compactness and beauty. At a nearby dock was Jiminy Cricket, motor launch, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Boynton Jr. of Highland Park. Their small sons, Frederick III. and George, secure in their gaily colored safety belts, were paddling around the harbor in a tiny rowboat.

Tennis Tournament Is Week's Highlight at Bar Harbor, Me.

BAR HARBOR, ME. The annual International Maritime Tennis tournament, highlight sports event of the smart set, will get underway tomorrow and will continue to Saturday. Last season's tennis tournament drew a sizeable Chicago entry and Miss Pauline Palmer and Long Ellis of Chicago won the mixed doubles.

The annual social highlight of the season, the fancy dress ball for the benefit of the Mount Desert Island hospital is scheduled for Saturday Aug. 23. Chicagoans summering in Maine are active in the charity ball. Other events scheduled for the remainder of the month at the Bar Harbor club include buffet suppers each Sunday night, dances each Tuesday and Saturday night, tombola luncheons each Wednesday, a dinner next Saturday, and a dinner-dance Friday, Aug. 29.

The Pot and Kettle club, men's social organization of Mount Desert Island, will have a series of four club luncheons during the month, to be held each Thursday afternoon—Aug. 7, Aug. 14, Aug. 21, and Aug. 28—and the Shore club will hold dances on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights during the remainder of the month.

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick of Chicago was honored at a large dinner party at the Pot and Kettle club last Thursday.

Mrs. Harold A. Howard of Chicago was a hostess at the weekly tombola luncheon at the Bar Harbor club this week. Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne of Chicago have leased Miss Elizabeth Hudson's estate on Eden drive for the summer months.

Mrs. Ross J. Beatty Jr. of Chicago and her little daughter, Phoebe, are visiting Mrs. Walter Ayer of New York at her residence, Audley cottage. Mr. Beatty has returned to Chicago after a short visit.

Mary E. Cowsert Is Engaged to Dr. J. Sanchez

Mrs. Hugh Ingram Cowsert Sr. of Goodman, Mo., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to Dr. José Sanchez of Evanston. Miss Cowsert is a graduate of the Mississippi State College for Women, where she received her degree in music. She also attended Converse college, where she studied piano.

Dr. Sanchez, a member of the department of Romance languages at Northwestern university, is a graduate of the University of Granada, in Spain, and of Ohio State university and the University of Wisconsin. He previously taught at Mississippi State and Wisconsin. The wedding is to take place the latter part of this month in Goodman.

Clubwomen's Parties Cheer the Trainees

By Betty Browning.

A touch of home is being provided this summer to lads from Texas and California, and Iowa and downstate Illinois who are in training in Chicago for national defense. Club members are disregarding the usual rule about a summer recess in their activities in order to provide it.

The Woman's City club is throwing open its clubrooms in the Fine Arts building each week-end to the young men enrolled in the United States naval reserve vocational school. Members are reviving the cookie jar of the World war so that no visitor need hunger vainly for a snack. There was a dance in July, and there is to be another in August, and one in September.

• • •

Miss Bessie Torrey, a member of the Woman's City club, and Miss R. Ella Ray together have worked out the plans for the young men's entertainment. Miss Ray takes the responsibility of bringing girls to the dances. This has been a special interest of hers since the last war when she herself, just out of school, began going to dances at the Naval training station. Her brother was in the navy and served for a time in France.

Miss Ray was a member of the Patriotic Service league, a young women's organization which entertained the soldiers and sailors during the war and afterward engaged in other civic activities as a branch of the Woman's City club. The league still holds annual reunions at the club, and usually musters from 75 to 150 of its members.

• • •

Except for the brief period during which the Naval Training station was closed, Miss Ray has not missed the monthly dances there since World war days, at first as one of the girls who danced with the sailors, and in recent years as the chaperon of some 75 girls whom she brings up to the dances by bus. These girls, aged from 17 to 23, all are known to her personally; all abide by strict rules as to dress and conduct; and all are under her watchful eye from the moment they arrive in the reservation until they depart. There is a long waiting list for the privilege of being one of Miss Ray's "girls."

At the recent dance in the clubrooms a homelike atmosphere was established so successfully that the boys themselves helped to wash the dishes afterward. Several of the boys confessed it was their first chance really to talk to any one of the opposite sex since arriving in Chicago.

• • •

Mrs. Burnett D. Warner. [Bloom Photo.]

Club members of the 1st, 2d, and 3d districts of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs are helping to create a similar atmosphere at the recreation center for service men at 1249 South Wabash avenue.

A committee headed by Mrs. Burnett D. Warner, former president of the Chicago Woman's club, who has two sons of draft age, sees to it that there are refreshments and hostesses at the center's Friday night dances, and that all possible comforts such as books, magazines, writing paper, musical instruments, and materials for the craft shop are made available to homesick young men. Thruout the week members of the committee drop in to talk to the young men and to see that things are running smoothly.

Nurses of St. Luke's and the County hospital have helped at the center, and so have the Women's Overseas Service league, the organized business and professional women, and the woman's department of the Chicago Church Federation. Miss Myrtle Carpenter, Miss Jane Magan, Miss Frances Jones, Mrs. John B. Simson, Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, Mrs. George Hanly Nippert, and Miss Hettie Gooch are on Mrs. Warner's committee.

This center is used not only by the young men attending the Aeronautical university on South Michigan avenue and by the naval reserve men who are guests of the Woman's City club each week-end, but by scores of young men who are referred there each week by the Travelers' Aid society as they pass thru Chicago en route to army camps.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Dorothy Jean Dieckmann, whose engagement to Robert G. Reynolds has been announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Joseph Dieckmann of South Shore drive. Miss Dieckmann and her fiance attended the University of Chicago. Mr. Reynolds, a member of the Marine Corps Reserve, will leave for active duty in October.

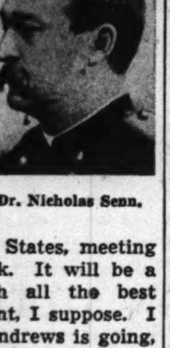
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Aug. 11, 1893.

Dear Julia: Sandy and Martha have just dropped in on their way to a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Senn. Dr. Senn is surgeon general of the Illinois National Guard and a member of Gov. Altgeld's staff. He planned this reception as a compliment to the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, meeting in Chicago this week. It will be a brilliant affair, with all the best known doctors present, I suppose. I know Dr. Edmund Andrews is going, and Sandy said others he knows will be there, and so he felt they would have a fine time. During the evening a new pipe organ Dr. Senn has just had installed will be dedicated by Dr. Louis Falk, one of our great Chicago organists.



Dr. Nicholas Senn.

Last evening Will and I attended the wedding of Miss Maie Bartlett to Dwight C. Heard at the home of the bride's father, A. C. Bartlett, 2720 Prairie avenue. The Bartlett house is large and beautiful, and the rooms looked like a bower as the wedding party entered, Clarence Eddy playing the Lohengrin March. The bride looked ethereal in a cream satin gown trimmed with chiffon. Her sister, Florence, was maid of honor and wore white embroidered muslin made in Empire style. Florence is one of my favorites, for she looks on life seriously and isn't frivolous as so many of our young people are today. Dr. Barrows performed the ceremony.

Smiley, a Negro caterer, who has a business on 22d street, served the supper, which was very good. He has become quite popular with the south side society hostesses. I must try him at my next reception. There was a great crowd at the wedding. One could hardly move about, but it meant that we saw all our old friends—the Cyrus H. McCormicks, Albert Keeps, A. A. Carpenters, William Blairs, John B. Drakes [their daughter, Helen, was a bridesmaid], Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Wells, the Byron L. Smiths, A. E. Lancasters, Uri Balcoms, Ernest A. Hamills, Charles T. Atkinsons, T. B. Blackstones, etc. What wonderful people Chicago has always had as the backbone of society! You'll recognize many of these names, for you met their owners at our house on your recent visit. We enjoyed your stay so much, only could wish it had been longer. I suppose you are back in quiet Newport by now.

World's Fair officials have just announced that all debts are paid up and they are ready to retire the bonds. Isn't that an achievement? Usually a fair of such proportions loses money. Will says it just shows the caliber of Chicago's big business men.

Armour Institute, a new institution of learning, will open its doors on Sept. 14, and Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, president, is enthusiastic over its prospects. P. D. Armour, for whom it is named, has given a million dollars to start it off, and already more than 400 students are enroled. The faculty is busy receiving and installing its equipment, which is to be exceptionally fine—the best that money can buy. Dr. Gunsaulus is especially proud of the electrical machinery the school has bought. Electricity is such a new thing, and the fair has brought so many of the very latest inventions connected with it here it has been possible to buy just what they needed. I am glad Mr. Armour was moved to give this large sum. We have needed such a school here.

And now I must close, for Will and I are going out to the fair to take dinner leisurely at Old Vienna tonight. With much love,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

Dr. Nicholas Senn [1844-1908] was one of Chicago's distinguished physicians. A professor at Rush Medical college, his subject being surgery, he became chief surgeon of the 6th army corps during the Spanish-American war and did much experimental work in gunshot wounds.

They Remember the Brave Firemen.

Many readers have written of the Cold Storage fire. Jules Oppenheim, 1401 West Hubbard street, a coffee taster at Chase & Sanborn's exhibit during the exposition, witnessed the tragedy and helped carry buckets of coffee to the suffering firemen. He says of Lieut. Thomas Barry [later Capt. Barry]: "He was the bravest of the brave." . . . William Watson, vice president of the Allis-Chalmers company, Milwaukee, writes that his firm has the honor of employing Sigurd Nerdrum, age 77, last survivor of the men who fought that terrible blaze. Sigurd Nerdrum's address is 1118 South 50th street, Milwaukee. . . . Louis A. Bowman, 30 North La Salle street, saw the first tiny flame burst from the tower of the building and the firemen arrive. . . . Henry Koenker, 1204 North Clark street, saw the lurid spectacle and can never forget the agony felt by witnesses when the ropes on which firemen were descending broke and they fell to death. . . . Harry T. Johnson, 7612 Colfax avenue, says he always will hold the memory of the last fireman's drop into the flames. . . . Mrs. Carrie Adler, 1380 Hyde Park boulevard, writes that her father, Emanuel Kramer, witnessed the fire, and when it was over found he had twisted and torn his umbrella in his agony over the fearful sight until he was holding only the ferule in his hand. . . . John Jay McCarthy, 139 North Clark street, as a child saw the fire, and tho nearly half a century has passed can still see the doomed firemen embracing each other before they jumped. . . . A. Ruhling, Forest Park, witnessed the death of Capt. James Fitzpatrick, a family friend. . . . J. B. Merkels, 1720 North Shore avenue; C. H. Fenton, 637 North Central avenue; H. S. Hibbard, 5445 Ingleside avenue, and O. N. Hutchinson, 7419 Kenwood avenue, also have written us about the terrible sight which they can never forget.

Doughnut Day Workers to Be Camp Visitors

Mrs. Henry Paschen. [Moffett Photo.]

Four thousand volunteer workers who recently helped the Salvation Army to make its annual Doughnut day a success will have an opportunity to view the fruits of their labors next Friday when the women's division of the army will be their hostess for the day at Wonderland camp near Antioch, Ill.

At Wonderland some 1,200 underprivileged mothers and children are enjoying vacations this summer as guests of the Salvation Army, thanks to the Doughnut day. Of these, 240 will be in camp Friday.

The visitors will see camp life in full swing, handicraft and nature study classes, sports, and all. The women's division will provide ice cream and coffee to supplement the picnic lunches their guests will bring. Bus service has been arranged for those who do not wish to drive their cars.

• • •

Mrs. Henry S. Paschen, Doughnut day chairman, is in charge of arrangements for the day. Mrs. William S. Monroe is chairman of the women's division, and other board members are Mrs. Charles S. Clark, Mrs. B. J. Rosenthal, Mrs. A. Homer Goodhue, Mrs. Joseph F. Ross, Mrs. Edward J. Buchan, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. F. Harney Bassett, Mrs. Robert F. Bensinger, Mrs. C. W. Bryant, Mrs. Homer F. Cooper, Mrs. Edward R. Fifield, Mrs. Holland Flagler, Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming, Mrs. Joseph F. Govan, Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Herbert Paschen, Mrs. Edwin O. Robson, Mrs. William H. Snyder, Mrs. George W. Wilson, Mrs. Grace Yorkton, Mrs. J. Frank Neuman, Mrs. Cathryn Scallon, Mrs. Andrew Brislen, and Mrs. B. E. Bensinger.

A luncheon and theater party are on the calendar of the Woman's University club for Wednesday. A dinner and variety program will follow the afternoon's festivities at the club's headquarters, 410 South Michigan avenue.

• • •

Mrs. Paul Douglas. [Root Photo.]

Mrs. Paul Douglas will speak on the final summer program of the Chicago Woman's Aid Tuesday afternoon at the clubrooms, 185 North Wabash avenue. "The Second Year of the Second World War" will be Mrs. Douglas' topic. She is chairman of government and foreign affairs for the Illinois League of Women Voters. Tea will be served following the program.

"A Garden Transcending Time" will be described by Mrs. Ethel M. C. Brazelton before the Chicago Woman's club at 11 o'clock Wednesday at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street.

• • •

The Commodore Barry Country club at Twin Lakes, Wis., will be the scene of the second annual outing and golf tournament of the Chicago Speakers' forum today. A buffet luncheon, an old fashioned chicken dinner, and country sports of all kinds will be in order. Harry S. Scholl is the new president of this organization of men and women speakers, which is said to be the largest of the kind in the country.

From 11 a. m. until 11 p. m. Tuesday the annual summer festival of the German Old People's home will be held on the grounds of the institution in Forest Park. Men's and women's auxiliaries and the junior organization are coöperating on the program of music, dancing, games, and entertainment. Luncheon, afternoon coffee, and supper will be served.

Alpha Kappa chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority of the University of Illinois will give a luncheon Saturday at the Congress hotel for students entering the university in September.

Benefit Tennis Matches to Aid Cape Cod Fund

CAPE COD, MASS.

With four world champion tennis players scheduled to give exhibition matches at the Oyster Harbors club Wednesday afternoon for the benefit of the British War Relief society, this exclusive resort on Cape Cod once more takes the limelight in social and sports activities.

Reservations from all over the peninsula have poured into the tennis shop, reports Tom Frydell, professional, resulting in construction of additional boxes around the courts where the play will be held, and of more grandstand space. The stars, Bill Tilden, Vinnie Richards, Fred Perry, and Karel Kozeluh, will step onto the courts at 3:30 o'clock. The gathering before which they perform not only will include enthusiastic followers of the sport but an outstanding gallery of socialites from scattered sections of the country.

Ushers for the tennis matches, among them Miss Nancy Dangler of Lake Forest and Miss Miriam Boyd of Winnetka, will wear striking red, white, and blue bands diagonally across the front of their all white sports frocks.

Tilden, it will be recalled, won every title in the world during his 30 years of campaigning. Perry, Richards, and Kozeluh have starred on the famous Wimbledon courts of England, at Forest Hills in New York, and in Davis cup matches.

Heralding the gala benefit, the weekly dance at the club last night featured a group of 20th century English dances under the direction of the Arthur Murray dancers. Among them were the Lambeth Walk, Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree, and the Palais Glide. Altho the latter has a decidedly French name, it is reported the dance originated in London.

• • •

New arrivals at the Oyster Harbors colony from Chicago are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Butz and their family, who are occupying one of the largest cottages on the island. Aptly named Fairways Cottage, the residence overlooks the fairways of the club's famous golf course.

With Mr. and Mrs. Butz are their twin sons, Robert and Theodore II., and their 14 year old daughter, Alice. The two boys have come to the Cape direct from a Connecticut camp.

Noted at various functions in and around the Oyster Harbors club are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burnes of Evanston, whose wedding on the cape in 1938 was one of outstanding social prominence. Mr. Burnes is a son of Mrs. Robert M. Roloson of Chicago and Oyster Harbors.

At the "pop" concert held at the lower terrace of the club last Sunday night, Mrs. Burnes was one of the many women who chose sports attire. Her costume was an all white ensemble, accentuating her dark brown hair.

Another Chicagoan who attended the concert by the Mozart Festival orchestra of the Cape Cod Institute of Music in East Brewster was Mrs. David Dangler of Lake Forest. A prominent figure whenever society gathers at this resort, Mrs. Dangler appeared in a becoming frock of snowflake white chiffon. She was included in a large party given by Mrs. Delano Putnam of Boston, while the Dangler children, Nancy and Henry, served on the corps of brother-sister ushers.

The Dangler family also took the spotlight recently, young Margaret carrying off third place honors in the flutterboard race of the Oyster Harbors junior swimming meet. The contest was the most closely fought event of the program. A gallery on the pier, along the beach, and in the fleet of well known boats watched the juniors perform.

• • •

The first weekly Friday night dance at the Hyannisport club this week increased the social activities at that resort to full capacity. Arriving at the colony a short while ago from Chicago was Mrs. Charles A. Street, who has reopened her summer place in Irving avenue.

The Gordon Ingram house at Pine Island, West Falmouth, is now being occupied by Mrs. Katherine S. Cornell of Chicago and her two nephews. Mrs. Cornell has hired a sailboat of the Southern Massachusetts Yacht Racing association class for the boys and they are seen regularly in the waters off the Woods Hole Yacht club.

The Wianno club tennis courts, which last week were the scene of the Cape's major sports attraction, an exhibition match by the famous Falkenburg family of California, will be the meeting place of scores of tennis fans during the coming week, with mixed doubles and ladies singles tournaments both under way.

Just what is the Dolly Varden trout? —K. B.

The Dolly Varden or bull trout is a species of charr that is closely related to the brook trout and resembles it in appearance. It is native to the Pacific ocean drainages in Montana, Idaho, Washington, and California.

Please give me a brief description of the Thousand Islands. —A. D. W.

The name is an understatement, inasmuch as there are more than 1,700 islands in the group where the St. Lawrence river flows from Lake Ontario. They form an international playground belonging partly to the United States and partly to Canada. While many of them are private estates, others are open to the public, with free parks, campsites, and picnic grounds. Sports facilities include fishing, swimming, golfing, and tennis. Sightseers are taken on motor boats thru the channels.

Plan your trip with the aid of this map!

1941 Chicago Tribune
CHICAGOLAND MAP
25¢

Have more fun on your motor trips by making the new 1941 Chicagoland Highway and General Reference Map your guide.

This map shows the locations and most direct routes to hundreds of places where fun and relaxation await you—resort lakes, golf courses, forest preserves, beaches, zoos, baseball parks, race tracks and places of historic and scenic interest.

One side of the map shows in large scale the 40-mile area adjacent to Chicago, with streets, boulevards, highways, and important suburban towns. The map has a special inset showing the streets in downtown Chicago, and an indexed street guide.

The other side shows every county, state and federal highway in the 125-mile area (35,000 square miles) surrounding Chicago, including locations of towns, lakes, and many other places of interest.

Get your copy of this map today and make your holiday fun complete. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan avenue. Price, 25 cents each. Postpaid, 30 cents. Use coupon to order by mail.

OUT OF TOWN MOTORISTS! Here is the map you need when you come to Chicago. It shows locations of parks, race tracks, Sox and Cubs baseball parks, zoos, beaches, Soldiers' field, and airports. It includes a complete street guide and a detailed map of Chicago's downtown business district. In addition, it shows the roads within 125 miles of Chicago, making it easy for you to choose the best, most direct route.

Send for your copy of this map today, or pick it up when you arrive at either of the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or at Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price by postpaid mail, 30 cents. At the Public Service offices, 25 cents.

Annual Regatta Being Held at Ephraim, Wis.

EPHRAIM, WIS.

One of Ephraim's strongest traditions has been built around the annual regatta of the Ephraim Yacht club which is being held this week-end for the 35th consecutive year. One of the most outstanding evidences of the loyalty with which this popular event has been followed is the participation of the third generation of some of Ephraim's earliest summer residents in various of the occasion's activities.

Roger and Henry Vail of Highland Park sailed their boat in the first big race of the day for the Henry S. Vail trophy given by Mrs. Vail in memory of their late grandfather, who was one of the first yachting enthusiasts in the village. Their grandmother still enpoys her summers here where, from her screened veranda, she can watch her family and friends cruise idly around Eagle harbor, or steer a swift sure course, as the occasion may demand. Her son, Malcolm Vail, present commodore of the Ephraim Yacht club, arrived from Highland Park Friday night for the week-end festivities.

The Vail boys also were aboard the Nisswa with its owner, George Sollitt of Evanston, on the Escanaba cruising race, which is a week-long annual event. It gave participants an opportunity to take part in the Fish Creek mid-summer regatta on Wednesday and the Ephraim regatta yesterday, during their zigzag course back and forth across Green bay.

• • •

Another sailing yacht which left Ephraim the early part of the week to join the Escanaba race was the cutter, Edyth II., owned by M. B. Salisbury of Kenilworth. It had anchored here on its return from the Mackinac race with Bob Mathews of Evanston and a crew of friends from Northwestern university aboard.

Another was the Stowaway, which probably carried the largest crew of any of the entrants in the first and most exciting leg of the Escanaba race. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Horween, the owners, their daughter, Marion, and sons, Ralph Jr. and Freddie, their boat carried the young people's friends and ardent sailors, Miss Martha Franey of St. Louis, Dave Pontius of Chicago, Charles Butler of Madison, and Bob and Warren Davis of Northbrook. Mr. Horween's brother, Arnold, who arrived in Ephraim from Chicago last week with Mrs. Horween and their son, Arnold Jr., on their power yacht, Rusty II., also was aboard. A final and very important member of the party was Richard Babcock of Evanston, an expert sailor whose skill stood the test of the severe squall which struck the boats Tuesday afternoon near Washington Island.

Altho there were no serious accidents, the high wind forced some of the 11 boats entered to seek shelter in the harbor at Washington Island. Others had their sails so badly damaged that they had to be towed into their Fish Creek destination by a Coast Guard cutter. Taking advantage of the gale, the Nisswa came in first and the Stowaway second on the first leg of the cruising race.

While in port for both the Fish Creek and Ephraim regattas the large Stowaway party formed smaller crews to operate the various seagull boats in competition with representatives of the other yacht clubs from Green Bay ports.

• • •

The presence in these waters of a number of larger yawls and cutters, including the Betty Bro, owned by Milton Friend of Wilmette, the Ruth S. II., belonging to Col. Edward Olin of Chicago, and Duncan Hodges' Kamaaina of Lake Forest, added to the festive regatta spirit. The first two have been stopping over on their return from the Mackinac race.

Bruce Millen of Oak Park, who is serving as manager of Ephraim's clubhouse this season, was instrumental in carrying out many of the regatta arrangements.

Many of the regular summer residents who were active in Ephraim regatta events when they spent their childhood vacations here now plan their shorter vacations to include the midsummer activities when possible. This past week Dr. Parker Hardin came by plane from the new government Stark general hospital in Charleston, S. C., and his brother, the Rev. Martin D. Hardin Jr. came from Elmira, N. Y., to join Mr. and Mrs. Adlai S. Hardin with their children of Rowayton, Conn. Their sister, Mrs. William Foote, also of Rowayton, and her children arrived at the family home in Ephraim several weeks ago. Their mother, Mrs. M. D. Hardin of Ithaca, N. Y., has been here since early June.

F. E. Crawford Jr., who also spent his childhood summers in Ephraim, is now spending a shorter vacation of several weeks with Mrs. Crawford and their son Richard. His mother, Mrs. F. E. Crawford of Winnetka, also has spent some time with her family here. The Crawfords have been making week-end trips to their Ephraim home since early spring when Mrs. Crawford and Richard returned from an extended visit with relatives on the west coast.

• • •

The most important social event of several weeks along the Bay Shore road at Sister Bay took place recently when Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bostrom and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Landstrom, entertained a large group of Sister Bay and Chicago friends at a buffet supper in honor of the Bostrom's 40th wedding anniversary. House guests who were present for the occasion were Mrs. August West, her daughter, and Mrs. Landstrom Sr.

North of Shadow Lawn at Claus Haven Mrs. Henri Nelson gave a tea for Mrs. Oscar Torrison of Evanston, Mrs. Oswald Torrison, and her daughters, Mary Louise and Ann of Chicago. Mrs. Nelson's sister, Mrs. Ralph Bengston, entertained recently for her friend, Mrs. Otto Westphal, and her daughter, Miss Ellen Westphal of Chicago, at a tea on her newly enclosed terrace near the water's edge.

Water Festival at Grand Haven

GRAND HAVEN, Mich.—This resort on the shores of Lake Michigan will commemorate the birthday anniversary of the coast guard with a water festival Saturday, Aug. 9.

A Venetian night parade, climaxed by a display of fireworks shot from the top of Dewey hill, will be the major item of the program. The parade is to be built around the theme of national defense. About 75 boats are expected to take part.

Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

APPRECIATION.

Momence, Ill., July 25.—To the Travel Editor: Your article about our Gladiolus festival, to be held Aug. 7, 8, and 9, has been received with much favor here. We want to thank you very much for your willing coöperation, and to express the hope that you will have the pleasure of attending our celebration.

From the number of inquiries we have received, we feel satisfied that people take a deep interest in such affairs. Our best means of informing them of our plans is, of course, thru the newspapers. For that reason THE TRIBUNE'S help has been greatly appreciated.

ARNOLD L. SHERWOOD,
Secretary, Momence Gladiolus
Festival Association.

CHICAGO BOUND.

Hammond, Ind., July 1.—To the Travel Editor: I wonder if some of your readers would tell me, thru "The Voice of the Traveler," of some of the interesting places to visit in Chicago. I would appreciate any suggestions regarding places easily reached by bus or street car, and the location of each. M. S.

August is the traditional American month for county fairs, those small town harvest festivals that are typical of the United States. If you would like to renew the days of your youth and once again spend a day watching trotting races, inspecting livestock, admiring the accomplishments of farm kitchens, and viewing a patriotic pageant, here are the dates for Wisconsin's 1941 county fairs:

Antigo, Aug. 14-16; Athens, Aug. 26-28; Baraboo, Aug. 26-29; Bloomington, Aug. 29-31; Chilton, Aug. 29-Sept. 1; Crandon, Aug. 26-29; De Pere, Aug. 20-24; Durand, Aug. 14-16; Eagle River, Aug. 22-24; Eau Claire, Aug. 12-14; Elkhorn, Aug. 29-Sept. 2; Elroy, Aug. 22-24; Florence, Aug. 30-Sept. 2; Fond du Lac, Aug. 14-17; Galesville, Aug. 8-11; Glenwood City, Aug. 11-13; Grantsburg, Aug. 21-23; Green Lake, Aug. 14-16; Hayward, Aug. 29-Sept. 1; Iron River, Aug. 22-24; Janesville, Aug. 11-14; Jefferson, Aug. 7-10; Ladysmith, Aug. 14-17; Lancaster, Aug. 21-24; Luxemburg, Aug. 30-Sept. 1; Manitowoc, Aug. 13-17; Mauston, Aug. 27-30; Medford, Aug. 22-24; Menomonie, Aug. 16-21; Merrill, Aug. 4-7; Mondovi, Aug. 23-26; Neillsville, Aug. 16-19; Oshkosh, Aug. 26-29; Phillips, Aug. 29-Sept. 1; Plymouth, Aug. 29-Sept. 1; Portage, Aug. 23-27; Rhinelander, Aug. 21-24; Rice Lake, Aug. 9-13; Rosholt, Aug. 31-Sept. 2; Seymour, Aug. 7-10; Slinger, Aug. 30-Sept. 1; Spooner, Aug. 11-13; St. Croix Falls, Aug. 14-17; Stoughton, Aug. 9-10; Sturgeon Bay, Aug. 21-24; Superior, Aug. 11-17; Union Grove, Aug. 26-28; Wausau, Aug. 9-14; Wautoma, Aug. 21-24; Weyauwega, Aug. 7-10; Wilmot, Aug. 8-10.

North Woods Offer Escape from Reality

By Frederic Babcock.

Perhaps this story should be written by Bob Becker, who knows all about woods and waters, or by Hal Foust, who knows all about travel by auto. . . . At any rate, these are the random impressions of one traveler who has seen quite a bit of the far places, and is still strong for the nearby places. . . . The impressions are set forth for the benefit of any one who wishes to take a late summer or early fall trip to some of the finest scenic effects to be found in the American midlands.

One of our week-end trips [only this was an "English" week-end—from Thursday morning to Monday morning] this summer took us from Chicago to the northland by way of Milwaukee, Sheboygan, the Door county peninsula, Green Bay, Marinette, and Menominee; thru Escanaba, Manistique, Blaney Park, Munising, Marquette, Land o' Lakes, and Eagle River, and back by way of Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, and Lake Geneva. . . . It's a long trip to be done in four days, and a trifle tiring at times, but it's worth the effort. . . . And it provides a splendid—even tho only temporary—escape from reality.

• • •

Apparently they call it Green bay because it's blue. . . . Not as blue as the Mediterranean, but blue enough to bring an exclamation of delight from our traveling partner [and the same thing could be said of Green lake, over to the west in Wisconsin]. . . . Door county likes to think of itself as the original air-conditioned area, and maybe it's right. . . . Certain it is that, with the temperatures reaching for the hundred mark around Chicago, it's a relief to land in a place where the average daytime summer temperature is only 73. . . . Add to this the peninsula's forests, beaches, rocky headlands, and fishing villages, and you have something to write home about.

It grows cooler as we go northward, and more primitive, especially when we get away from the traffic and take to the country roads. . . . Log cabins begin to appear, and there are long stretches of pines and maples and oaks and birches. . . . And singing waters and woodlocked lakes which send their insistent call to the fishermen, the swimmers, and the canoeists, but which we have to pass up in favor of adventures further afield. . . . The air is alive with the odor of the pines.

THREE IN A BOAT

Trout lake, near North Bay, Ont., lives up to its name as it gives up this speckled specimen to two young Americans. The camp dog merely "cuts bait."

Both Wisconsin and Upper Michigan have done wonders with their cutover lands. . . . State parks and state forests have been created to let nature restore what man has taken away. . . . The forest and game preserves are as much a sanctuary for human beings as they are for the flora and fauna. . . . There are accomodations of all kinds, from roadcommodations of all kinds, from road-favorite happens to be Blaney Park, which is privately owned, but there are many good ones in the districts set aside by the state.

• • •

The one disappointment, so far as we are concerned, is King's Gateway inn, on the border between Wisconsin and Michigan. . . . A lot of money has been spent there, and much has been done to provide for everything demanded by the holiday makers. . . . We would say it has been overdone. . . . Our idea of getting away from city life is to plunge into the woods and away from the noise and the crowds, and not into a place full of slot machines and juke boxes. . . . We couldn't help contrasting this resort with the quiet dignity of Blaney Park. . . . But King's Gateway is drawing the crowds, and that shows that we're very much in the minority.

Everything up north is green now, but in a few weeks the maples and birches will be turning to red and gold, and the oaks to brown and purple, and all these colors will be set against the green background provided by the pines, spruces, and balsams. . . . The spectacle should merit a return trip in early October.

• • •

In the city you know types; in the wilderness you come to know individuals. . . . You meet fewer people, but you appreciate the people you meet. . . . And you find contentment in simple living.

If you are like this traveler, a quietness of spirit will settle over you in the north woods, and your trip—even tho it lasts only four or five days—will help revive you for the more strenuous life of the city.

Cascades Visitors to Go 'Backstage'

JACKSON, Mich.—Opportunity for inspection of the Cascades, and explanation of the methods of operation of the huge waterfall and its multicolored lights, will be offered the estimated 100,000 persons who visit the fourth annual festival here Aug. 9 to 16.

The stage for this year's fête has been arranged at the base of the falls, thus permitting visitors the freedom of the walks and terraces on each side of the 550 foot series of falls, pools, and fountains. Previous performances were on a series of stages built over the Cascades pools.

Following the show each night the public address system will carry an explanatory drama, timed to each change of the fountains and colored lights, to describe the "backstage" operations.

The 1941 festival, presenting the professional "Cascades Star Follies" under the stars for eight nights, is in celebration of the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Cascades.

Wind Cave Park Seen by Throngs

HOT SPRINGS, S. D.—Wind Cave National park travel for June, 1941, showed a 7 per cent increase over June, 1940. A total of 4,920 visitors registered at the park headquarters, and of this number 3,231 visitors made the cave trip. Visitors were from 36 states, the District of Columbia, Canada, Hawaii, and Thailand [Siam].

Restocked Annually.

Itasca county, in the Minnesota Arrowhead country, has 387 sand bottom lakes, covering more than 130,000 acres. Half of them are restocked annually with pike, bass, and trout.
